LUNCHEON IN EAST SPEEDS VIVIAN MARTIN WEST TO BEGIN WORK FOR MUTUAL

The eastern representative of the Oliver Morosco and Pallas Pictures companies, the two allied subsidiary contributors to Paramount Pictures' Corporation, tendered a farewell luncheon to Vivian Martin, their newly acquired star, at the Hotel Claridge, New York City, before Miss Martin's departure for the Los Angeles film colony. Miss Martin left for the west on May 4 and the lunch was served on the day immediately prior to the start of her trip.

Members of all the motion picture trade papers attended as well as representatives of publications outside the trade. The luncheon was entirely informal—given only at an hour's notice—and there were no lengthy speeches and no one stood upon ceremony.

Miss Martin was the only lady present at the gathering.

VERA PEARCE, OF METRO, DROPS "BOMBS" AS PREPAREDNESS LESSON

Vera Pearce, one of the Metro Picture Corporation's crop of ingenues, is the first woman to fly over New York City in an aeroplane. She performed this feat with the aid of Tex Millman, instructor in aviation for the New York National Guard, in a military tractor biplane.

Circling above the city at a height of 4,000 feet, Miss Pearce threw down cotton "bombs" of red, blue and yellow. This was done as a hint to the city, for Miss Pearce believes in preparedness. Attached to each "bomb" was an envelope containing two season tickets to the Motion Picture Exposition at the Grand Central Palace.

Executive Organization of "Fall of a Nation" in New York

National Drama Corporation Will Begin Country-Wide Campaign—A. P. Gold, Jr., is President of the Company with Thomas Dixon, Director-General

WITHIN the last week the executive organization of the National Drama Corporation, producers of "The Fall of a Nation," has moved from Los Angeles to New York, preparatory to a country-wide exploitation campaign, beginning with the opening presentation of the Dixon-Herbert grand opera cinema here.

The officers of the Corporation are P. D. Gold, Jr., president; William R. Perkins, vice-president; Thomas Dixon, director-general and treasurer; William A. White, secretary; Bartley Cushing, head producing director; William C. Thompson and John W. Boyle, head photographers; Harold Sanford, conductor and assistant to Victor Herbert.

Messrs. Gold, Cushing, Sanford and Boyle arrived in New York May 10, and plunged into the many details of getting the Broadway production ready. A suite of offices at 720 Longacre Building had already been actively in use a fortnight, but a new impetus was given to the work by their arrival. A dozen trained executives are on the job in as many departments, so results are rapidly being achieved that would be impossible with a less expert body.

President Gold is of the newer type of alert efficiency in "Big Business." He is a native of North Carolina, where he was graduated at the University and later read law at Richmond College, Virginia. At the age of 34 he founded the Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Company of Raleigh, N. C., and put it in the front rank of such organizations. Of recent years he has been prominent in Wall Street. For the last eight months the chief executive of the company has been in California supervising the vast expenditures of the Dixon studios and laboratory and the task of filming "The Fall of a Nation."

Vice-President Perkins and Secretary White are both men of large interests in the New York downtown district. The former is legal counsel of a great corporation, the name of which is often mentioned in connection with the rumors of proposed film mergers.

Although best known as the author of "The Birth of a Nation" and of many highly successful books and plays, Director-General Dixon has been actively identified with theatrical management for the last decade and with film enterprise for several years past. Bartley Cushing was the chief of six technical directors in the studio and on the field. On the legitimate side, before entering film work, Mr. Cushing staged several of the Dixon dramas, and, as director for Henry W. Savage, put on the memorable production of "Everywoman" at the Drury Lane Theatre, London, one of the most notable theatrical successes.

Harold Sanford is one of the few native-born American musicians of the first quality, and in his association for many years with Victor Herbert has won golden opinions. He returned from Los Angeles after two months of rehearsal work with orchestra in the projecting room. As a result, the Victor Herbert's "Fall of a Nation" music is now finally revised and in practice by the sixty musicians of the Herbert grand orchestra.

John W. Boyle and William C. Thompson shared the heavier photographic labors of the filmed spectacle. Mr. Boyle is now in New York for the purpose of supervising the initial Broadway screening, while Mr. Thompson, remaining in Los Angeles, will take charge of the technical side of the Auditorium opening there and will continue to manage the Dixon Laboratory. The laboratory, now open to commercial work, is one of the finest in the country. It has a capacity of printing and developing 500,000 feet of film a week. Mr. Thompson, its manager, is a scientific graduate of Columbia University and a member of the American Chemical Society.

SPECIAL MUSIC SCORE BY NOTED COMPOSER FOR KELLERMANN PICTURE

William Fox announces that a noted composer is just completing a special score for the new million-dollar Annette Kellermann picture, which has recently been finished by Herbert Brenon in Jamaica.

The film is now going through the final stages of cutting and assembling in the home offices, and will be ready for presentation early in June, it is expected. First-class orchestral talent will be secured in various large cities to serve as accompanists for the picture. It will be shown at advanced prices in the best theatres.

Advertising Help for Exhibitors Booking "Peg"

Brochure is Printed in Color, the Back and Front Covers Showing Posters for the Ford-Cunard Serial—It Contains Instructions for Mapping Out Campaign

A COMPLETE advertising book, attractively printed in color, has been prepared by Nat G. Rothstein for the use of exhibitors who book "Peg o' the Ring," the new Universal serial, starring Francis Ford and Grace Cunard.

The back and front covers show the posters for the serial. These are in three colors, and are exceptionally animated and attractive. The text of the book gives the exhibitor about everything he needs for mapping out a business-building campaign.

A page is devoted to "crowd getting stunts," which contain a number of novel suggestions.

In addition, practical plans for securing newspaper co-operation are outlined. There are reproductions of player cuts, electros for ads, novelties, slides, banners, and lobby display frames, with full directions as to how they may be secured.

Schlank Musters Distributing Forces of Unicorn

Program Released by His Company is Meant to Give Exhibitors Reliable "Fillers" and Prices Are Made Suitable to the Conditions of Each Locality

THE distributing forces of the Unicorn Film Service are being mustered by Ike Schlank, vice-president and general manager of the company. Mr. Schlank needs no introduction to exhibitors of the country, especially to those in the middle and far west. In a comparatively short time he has risen from a place of obscurity to one of prominence in the film business.

Mr. Schlank has successively been usher, operator, box office man, manager, owner, salesman and exchangeman in the motion picture trade. In each of these positions he has been ever observant and consequently he is now in a position to realize and furnish the vital needs of the exhibitor in the picture line.

IKE SCHLANK

In an interview with MOTION PICTURE NEWS, Mr. Schlank laid down the plans of his company in a brief but comprehensive manner. "The Unicorn Film service," he said, "was not formed to set up a tremendous standard or to enter upon cut-throat competition with other concerns marketing pictures. The exhibitor with the small house and the exhibitor with the large house in want of 'fillers,' has been obliged in the past to accept old, worn out film as a substitute for pictures. This film had done service since its first day out of the laboratory and was in miserable condition. The program to be released by Unicorn will fill this long-felt want. The pictures have been culled from various quarters and will be in good condition when offered to the exhibitor.

"The prices are designated to fit the exhibitor's bank roll," he continued. "They will be moderate, and when it is considered that we are offering stars of national and international reputation on our daily program, they seem to me to be extremely small."

The Unicorn Film Service Corporation is financed by men of such reputation as Leslie R. Palmer and Alwyn Ball, Jr. Mr. Palmer is a member of the Federal Reserve Board, while Mr. Ball is a prominent figure in New York City real estate circles. Mr. Palmer holds the position of president in the company and Mr. Ball is treasurer.

J. A. McKinney, secretary of the company, is as well known in the organizing and business end of the picture business as Mr. Schlank is in the distributing end. Mr. McKinney has been in the motion picture trade for several years and is thoroughly conversant with the management of a film company. J. A. Coram is vice-president.

Mr. Schlank, continuing his discourse on the already staunchly established methods of Unicorn, said: "Our company is in no wise a producing organization. It was formed to distribute a program, picked from the films available in the field.

"Their distribution will be handled by prominent and reliable exchanges in every large city. Suitable paper will be provided with each program release. The needs of the exhibitor will be ever uppermost in the mind of the company. I am firm in my belief that our methods and intentions will be accepted in future weeks to come with the same good faith that has already greeted our first efforts."

CALVERT AGAIN, IN AN ESSANAY, "ACCORDING TO CODE"

E. H. Calvert, Essanay heavy, who has not appeared in pictures since "Vultures of Society" and "Beyond the Law," both issued more than two months ago, will be seen again in "According to the Code," a five reel feature, which he directed. Lewis S. Stone and Marguerite Clayton play the leads.

MANAGERS IN OKLAHOMA TOWN CLOSE ON SUNDAY BY AGREEMENT

Chickasha, Oklahoma, will have no more moving picture shows on Sunday. By a voluntary agreement of the managers of all the theatres in Chicakasha, no more pictures or vaudeville will be given on Sunday. Attempt was made by the county attorney two years ago to close the shows by legal action, but it failed. The closing of the shows is the result of a three-years' litigation on the part of the ministerial alliance of the city.

ELEANOR WOODRUFF MAKES TOUR OF HOUSES SHOWING PICTURES IN WHICH SHE APPEARED

Eleanor Woodruff, who has just finished a picture for Equitable, is taking a much needed rest by making a tour of the picture houses which are showing the Pathé picture, "Big Jim Garrity," and Vitagraph's, "The Island of Surprise," in both of which she played leads. Miss Woodruff's first appearance was at the Bohemian theatre in New York City. Her screen appearances have included important roles in a number of recent photoplay successes.

KALEM STUDIO NO. 1 REBUILT

Los Angeles, May 13.

With the arrival of the Kalem Glendale Company from their trip up the coast, where they filmed number thirteen of "The Social Pirates" serial, work was taken up last week on number fourteen, which will be known as "The Music Swindlers." This is spoken of as having an out of the ordinary story with many kicks, new effects, and thrills. The usual cast, headed by Marin Sais and Ollie Kirkby, appear in this.

During the absence of the company the Number 1 stage at the studio was dismantled and rebuilt. This enabled adding traps and hits and pits, a new diffusing system and other features. The diffusing system is of an entirely new design, worked out by Mr. Horne and his cameraman, H. M. Oswald.

It has been just one year since James Horne took complete charge of the Glendale studio, and in that time he has produced one hundred and four reels. This number includes two Broadway features of four reels each, three and a part of a fourth serial of fifty-two reel episodes.

HYLDA HOLLIS AND JOHNSTONE TOUCH HANDS (PERHAPS ONLY FINGERS) WITH DEATH

Hylda Hollis and Lamar Johnstone are said to have risked their lives in a scene for "The Secret of the Submarine," wherein a launch is blown up with the two aboard. The players were thrown overboard by the explosion, it is said, and fought the waves in their battle to cling to floating wreckage until they were rescued.

Pathe Gives "Get-Together" Dinner in McAlpin

President Berst of the Club Entertains Number of Prominent Guests at His Table—Gasnier Receives Rousing Welcome on His Entrance Into the Banqueting Room

FIRST ANNUAL BANQUET OF THE PATHE CLUB AT THE HOTEL McALPIN, NEW YORK

THE Pathé Club gave a dinner in the Green Room of the Hotel McAlpin, New York, on the night of Saturday, May 6, which was the second "get-together" time which the club has enjoyed since the first of the year. One hundred and twenty-five members and guests were present, and after the dinner there was dancing until the wee sma' hours.

President J. A. Berst of the club, who is taking a great interest in the organization and under whose auspices it was reorganized a short time ago, entertained at his table several prominent guests.

With Messrs. Shallenberger and LeVino of the Arrow Film Corporation were Mrs. Shallenberger, Alice Joyce, Katharine Gray, Guy Coombs, E. A. Bingham, and the stars of "Who's Guilty?" Anna Nilsson and Tom Moore. In addition to the celebrated players just mentioned, Pathé's "peerless fearless girl," Pearl White, was present at the dinner, as was Grace Darmond, now starring for Astra.

Louis J. Gasnier, formerly vice-president of the Pathé Exchange, received an uproarious welcome as he came into the room with a party including Mrs. Gasnier, Leon Bary, who plays the heavy in his new serial; William Baker and Mr. Hart of Jersey City, and Hannah Kohn. Mr. Gasnier's welcome afforded good proof as to his popularity among his former associates.

Among other guests were Mrs. Paul Brunet, Mrs. P. Allen Parsons, Mrs. George A. Powers, Mrs. F. H. Knocke, Mrs. Ramirez-Torres, Mrs. E. J. O'Connor, Miss Millhauser, Mrs. Edward Jose, Mrs. George B. Seitz, Mrs. L. S. Williams, Mrs. A. J. Picard and Muriel Ostriche.

The Mittenthal Brothers, makers of the "Heinie and Louie" comedies; George B. Seitz of the Astra; H. M. Osborne, manager of Pathé's Philadelphia office; George A. Powers, the printer; Edward Jose, the producer of "The Iron Claw"; Harold Davis of the Chronicle Press, and L. Gausman were among the prominent associate members present. Telegrams of regret were read from the Horkheimer Brothers of Balboa, makers of "The Red Circle"; Messrs. Whiting and Roach of the "Lonesome Luke Comedies," and W. A. S. Douglas, Pathé director of production, now on the Coast.

The club expects to hold an outing and picnic some time in June. It was organized last fall, its purpose being to promote good fellowship among Pathéites in executive and clerical positions, and to aid those members in sickness and misfortune

They're Ringing the Merger Bell Down in Texas

Rumors of Realignment in Producing Companies and Distributing Agencies Are Rife Among the Exchanges in Dallas—Managers Hint a Lot and Say "Wait and See"

Dallas, Tex., May 13.

THE motion picture trade around Dallas, talking of the recent merger stories, believe that this is the first of several mergers that are soon to be announced. In one quarter, the exchange manager openly intimated that he believed his company would align itself with another feature producing organization before sixty days. He said that he had nothing definite to base his contention on; but that the correspondence from the home office, along with the news from headquarters, would tend to bear out his belief.

An exhibitor, visiting in Dallas, from the southern end of the state, said that he believed two of the program concerns would be together in a short time; that he believed the recent newspaper report that these two would be in one combine was rather true, and that the reason contradictions had been forthcoming so readily, was that the details were not worked out.

It seems to be almost unanimous among the trade in Dallas that other combinations are coming, and the differences in opinion are mostly as to the concerns to be aligned with each other.

Commenting on this condition, L. C. McHenry, manager of the Southern Cabiria Company, a state rights concern, said:

"If the rumored other combinations come about, it will mean that five or six exchanges will remain in each section releasing regular daily programs of features or small film. If that condition comes about, as I think it will within a short time, the state right business will pick up wonderfully. It will mean more state rights exchanges, and it will mean more business for the state rights plan, for it will be the only medium from which an exhibitor can secure the film he wants and that only—the only place to book on the open booking policy. I believe the next six months will see many wonderful changes in the picture industry."

E. T. Peter, president of the United Program Film Service, handling program film and a few features, had this to say:

"There's a lot of talk about other combines. Whether they will come soon or not, I don't know; but I do believe that eventually, there will be five or six, maybe seven, releasing organizations over the country. Of course, there will be a number of state rights fellows, and with such a condition, their business will be as good as now; maybe, better."

S. G. Parker.

LIVE WIRE EXHIBITORS

EDITOR'S NOTE.—It is the desire of "Motion Picture News" to include under this heading novel advertising ideas, successful schemes in the management, decoration and equipment of the theatre—everything, in fact, done by the exhibitor to stimulate his trade. We invite every exhibitor to write us about any new enterprise he has; also to come to us for advice or information along any line. Liberty Theatre, Seattle, Uses Novel Methods to Create Real Atmosphere for "Beggar of Cawnpore"

"THE Beggar of Cawnpore," the Ince-Triangle feature, had an unusual presentation in Seattle where Manager von Herberg staged it at the Liberty Theatre for four days. This stunt, described below, created a sensation.

The picture is a story of East India. Hence the staging must suggest that. To begin with, all the Liberty girl ushers were dressed as East Indian dancing girls, in bejewelled head pieces, veils, balero, cestus and Oriental bloomers with Turkish harem slippers.

The order of the show was comedy, and after that the house became gradually darkened, starting from the extreme front and working back until the entire house was pitch dark. As soon as the house started to darken no patrons were admitted—(this to avoid confusion). The moment the house was dark, a strong aromatic incense was forced through the house by the ventilating system, and the organist started a weird tom-toms beating, accenting the beats at regular intervals, using throughout a faintly heard background of Oriental music. Gradually the organist swelled the music until the operator flashed on the lowered velvet curtain the title strip, "The Beggar of Cawnpore," —giving a ghost-like appearance. The curtain was raised just in time to frame the death bed scene of the Civil Engineer, in which he exclaims: "Those Tom-Toms are like the pulse beats of Hell." Thus the Tom-Toms were explained and the wholesouled attention of the spectator gained. From here we are right into the picture and have created the proper atmosphere to put the story over. (The action in the first reel was rearranged, the opening scene being taken from near the end of the first 1,000 feet of film.)

The effects were greeted time after time with applause, and with a few exceptions left the audiences spellbound throughout the entire picture. The incense was stopped as soon as the picture was started and gradually the customary house lights were turned on, one here and one there, but only after the picture had progressed far enough to have the eye of the audience riveted on the screen. Thus they were transferred to India and brought back without a conscious effort on their part. Oriental perfume was sent through the house as the romantic scenes were screened, the incense being used only for the dramatic and sensational.

LINE WAITING FOR SECOND SHOW MADE COMFORTABLE

The Empress, Kearney, Neb., was showing "Damaged Goods" to capacity houses on May 1, when Jess Hartman, road man from the Mutual exchange in Omaha, happened by.

The second-show crowd was lined up in front of the theatre, waiting for the first houseful to be satisfied. Hartman stood in line ten minutes, then he spied a furniture store and undertaking establishment a block away. A brief agreement was reached, and soon he had the waiting Empress crowd comfortably seated along the sidewalk in borrowed chairs. "The Empress Did It," he announced.

BUYS BIG BILLBOARD SPACE TO HERALD "THE FLOORWALKER"

Manager W. H. Lediaus of the Empress theatre in Omaha is trying out a new advertising scheme for his part of the country. Circus advertising isn't in it with the bill-board space he is consuming. When telling the public of the advent of Charlie Chaplin in "The Floorwalker," he used almost every available square foot of bill-board space in the city, utilized the windows of vacant buildings in regular circus style, and filled his house at every show.

How a Missouri Exhibitor Co-operates With School Officials in Arranging Profitable Children's Programs

SCHOOL officials in the West are becoming more and more interested in educational films. A striking instance of the opportunities for the school officials, as well as for the exhibitors, is in Lawson, Mo. This is a town of 500 people; the moving picture theatre, owned by Robert Thompson, seats 165. Mr. Thompson knows the people of his town, and has given them good service.

It was for this reason that the superintendent of schools was led to talk of educational pictures with Mr. Thompson.

"I am looking around and studying films, hoping to find suitable subjects for the children to see," said the superintendent.

That was Mr. Thompson's opportunity, and he grasped it. Together they selected pictures, and arranged for a special matinee for children Saturday afternoons. This is called a "3-penny show," for the admission is only three cents. But the attendance exceeds the seating capacity every Saturday afternoon. The superintendent announces the show in the schools, and the whole town knows that it is for the children, the parents realizing that it has not only the endorsement but the support of the officials. Two or three reels of educational films are run, usually some of the older releases, but exactly what the children, as well as the school officials, want.

Not only is the "3-penny show" profitable, but the business is growing because of the general endorsement of its service.

INDIANAPOLIS WOMEN ORGANIZE TO SHOW CHILDREN'S FILMS

The Indianapolis school board is to be asked to endorse the movement for better children's pictures sponsored by women's clubs in the Indiana city. The women have formed an organization known as the Indianapolis Board of Indorsers for Junior Motion Pictures, and gave their first performance at Keith's theatre April 29.

James L. Weed, manager of Keith's, is co-operating with the new organization.

PARAMOUNT'S "BACK PAGE" SCHEME A GOOD ONE FOR EXHIBITORS

Commencing with the March number of Picture Progress, Paramount's monthly magazine, the back cover of that publication was left blank and placed at the exhibitor's disposal as an advertising medium. It was suggested that the exhibitor use the space for announcements of coming attractions at his theatre, or use half for his own advertising and sell the remainder to merchants.

Paramount reports that many exhibitors have tried the plan with great success. Many have increased their orders for the magazine. "Pointed, pithy copy makes this back page invaluable," says the Paramount Press Department. Which is correct, and the advice should be followed closely, if the best results are to be obtained.

Just how this scheme works out in practice may be seen from the accompanying cut. Here the use of the small cuts is effective. The arrangement of dates is good. The only criticism we make is that the page is a little crowded. It would be better to gain white space by shortening the house talk at the top.

The descriptions of pictures are well phrased and neatly condensed.

"LUSITANIA" COMMEMORATED IN "BATTLE CRY" SHOWING

When the Murray Theatre, Twenty-seventh and Walrond, Kansas City, Mo., decided to make a two-days' showing of "The Battle Cry of Peace," the management interested the American Legion in it, with the result that that organization got behind the showing and boosted it as under their auspices.

To make the event doubly interesting, the film was secured for the anniversary of the sinking of the Lusitania. This fact was most prominently mentioned in the advertising. In fact, the occasion was a service in commemoration of the disaster. Leading men of the Legion delivered talks, telling of the need of national defense; the special orchestra which has been playing for this picture in the territory was on hand, and twenty-five girls from a local dramatic school gave a patriotic drill.

CHILDREN'S SHOWS IN EDMONTON SUCCESSFULLY STARTED

The first of the special children's Saturday morning matinees held at the Monarch theatre in Edmonton, Alberta, was encouragingly successful, and Manager Max Allen entertained an audience of more than 350 children. He has since received letters from several mothers in the city, commending the type of pictures shown.

Members of the board in charge of the Children's Shelter and Day Nursery brought a party of forty children from that institution to the Monarch for the opening show, and it is probable that they will in future be regular attendants.

Looking Ahead With The Producers

Thirty-one Reels Comprise Releases from Mutual for Week of May 22

TWO Masterpictures, de Luxe Edition with Winnifred Greenwood, Franklin Ritchie, Edythe Sterling and Norbert A. Myles the featured players, head Mutual releases for the week of May 22. Thirty-one reels comprise the Mutual release for this week.

"Nancy's Birthright," a Signal production featuring Miss Sterling and Mr. Myles, is the first of the Masterpictures to go to the public. It will be released May 22. Power of will to destroy inherited criminal traits is the all powerful theme treated in the story on which this production is founded. Director Murdock MacQuarrie, under whose supervision the piece was filmed, and Clarence Manning MacQuarrie, the author, have collaborated in the treating of this subject along lines never before attempted in a screen drama. Millard K. Wilson and V. T. Henderson are other members of the cast.

"Reclamation," from the American studios, which is to be released on May 25, is from the pen of Kenneth B. Clarke, author of a number of Masterpictures de Luxe Edition, which have come from the Santa Barbara studios. It was screened by Director Edward Sloman, who worked for many days with the members of his company in the desert where considerable of the story takes place.

Miss Greenwood is seen in the role of the true daughter of the West, whose love and confidence in the man she had for a time despised, finally brings about a settlement of what promised to be a bloody feud concerning ownership of a water hole. Mr. Ritchie handles an exceedingly difficult role.

"Armadale," from the Gaumont studios, based on the celebrated novel of the same name by Wilkie Collins, is the title of the three part feature of the same week. It will be released May 25. This is the first of the new features of this length to emanate from the Gaumont studios, under the change of policy recently inaugurated. One of these features will be released every other week, and in them will be featured one or more of the stars who have frequently appeared in Masterpictures, de Luxe Edition, screened by Gaumont.

Richard Garrick was director of the drama. Iva Shepard, famous for her "vampire" roles in Gaumont Mutual productions, will be seen in the role of Miss Gwilt, the maid, while Alexander Gaden essays the role of Ozias Midwinter. Others in the cast are Henry W. Pemberton, Lucille Taft, Harry Chira, Kathleen Butler, Robert Clugston, John Rinhard, James Levering, Charles A. Travis, John Mackin and several others.

Four two reel subjects are included in the releases for the same week. "Repaid," first of these short length features is an American production. It will be released on May 22. Lizette Thorne and Edward Coxen have the principal roles.

"For Uncle Sam's Navy," from the Thanhouser studios, with Kathryn Adams and Edwin Stanley in the leading roles, is a story of the nation's navy. It will go to the public on May 23. The Mustang two reel subject will be released on May 26 under the title of "Jack," starring Anna Little and Frank Borzage.

"The Kaffir's Gratitude," a powerful story of the African jungles, with Margaret Gibson as the star, is the Horsley contribution to the two reel dramas. In this release, the Bostock animals play an important part. "The Kaffir's Gratitude" will be released on May 27.

Mutual comedy releases for the week are comprised of a number of excruciatingly funny single reel subjects, featuring a host of noted Mutual Laughmakers. "Politicksters," featuring Claude Cooper and Frank McNish, in the comical roles of Conrad and Oscar and "Sammy's Semi Suicide," with Walter Hiers, the principal, are the Falstaff contributions. They will be released on May 22 and May 27, respectively.

The Vogue comedies include "Rival Rogues," with Rube Miller and Madge Kirby, for release on May 23, and "National Nuts," to be released on May 28. "Beauty" offerings for the week include "Adjusting His Claim," with Carol Halloway and John Sheehan, to be released on May 24, and "The Pork Plotters," starring Oral Humphrey. It will be released May 28. George Ovey, the diminutive Cub-Mutual comedian, is the hero of "Preparedness," which will be released May 26.

Mutual Weekly No. 73, presenting a number of exclusive pictures of Gen. Pershing's Mexican Expedition, "See America First," presenting an interesting trip through Savannah, Ga., and Harry Palmer's comic cartoon, "The Escapades of Estelle," with "Reel Life" the third issue of the new and exceedingly popular single reel subject, complete the releases for the week. The Mutual Weekly and "See America First" will be released on May 24.

"TEMPERANCE TOWN" FROM SELIG ON JUNE 5

"A Temperance Town," one of the late Charles Hoyt's best comedies, with Otis Harlan in the role of Mink Jones, will be released by the Selig Company through General Film Service on Monday, June 5.

"The Primal Lure" and "A Child of the Paris Streets" Are Triangles for May

WILLIAM S. HART'S last appearance in western character for some time, and the second appearance of Mae Marsh on the Triangle screen are the features of the late May releases of the Griffith-Ince-Sennett combination of producers. Hart's "The Primal Lure," shown at the new Rialto theatre in New York week of May 7, and "A Child of the Paris Streets," with Miss Marsh and Robert Harron, are the dramatic releases of the week of May 21. Although placed in the Canadian Northwest, "The Primal Lure" gives Hart the role of a hard-headed Scot in charge of an isolated post of the Hudson's Bay Company. Margery Wilson, last seen with Douglas Fairbanks in "Double Trouble," has the leading feminine role. A fight beneath the surface of a mountain stream is one of the spectacular features of this Ince picture.

In "A Child of the Paris Streets" Mae Marsh shows her ability to make an unaccustomed role her own. She is the cleverest thief in Paris, but her blood surmounts her environment and she flees to the studio of a young American artist whom she has met in the Latin Quarter, and seeks refuge from the Apache band which she has deserted. How she is dragged back to the den of her former associates to be strangled as a traitor, her rescue and restoration to her father, is told in a dramatic and spectacular film. Tully Marshall heads a supporting company of Griffith players.

For month-end entertainment the Triangle has combined the third De Wolf Hopper picture and the third H. B. Warner drama. The comedian is "Mr. Goode, the Samaritan," and the matinee idol has the role of an earnest young minister with a protest against the indifference of the rich to the teachings of the gospel. Clara Williams, Gertrude Claire and Charles Miller are active in the star's support. Ince calls the play "The Market of Vain Desire." Hopper has Fay Tincher and his familiar cast as histrionic assistants in the lighter vehicle.

"Nine Reels of Variety" from Pathe for Week of May 22; Cartoons and Comedies Prominent PATHE offers for the week beginning May 22 a program of nine reels in a variety of subjects: a new episode of "The Iron Claw," a chapter of the "Who's Guilty?" series, a "Lonesome Luke" comedy, a split reel scenic and educational, a Goldberg cartoon, and two issues of the Pathé News.

"The Hidden Face" is the name of "The Iron Claw" episode, and in it the identity of the Laughing Mask is revealed to Margery Golden, but not to the spectator. "The Tangled Web" is the "Who's Guilty?" release. It is described as a thrilling two-reeler, with the leading parts played by Tom Moore and Anna Nilsson.

"Luke's Late Lunchers" shows Luke as the proprietor of a bean foundry. "Saving the Shad Supply" is an educational film and one of the official pictures made for the United States Bureau of Fisheries and released with Government approval. On the same reel is the scenic "Yunnen-Fou" (Southwest China).

Goldberg's second creation is "Leap Year," which is, to tell it in Goldberg's own words, "the story of a forty-seven-year-old maiden who would have been more popular if all men were near-sighted." This is on the same reel with "How to Bring Up a Child," a nonsense film, heralded by Pathé as "something no wives or mothers should know."

Pathé News Nos. 42 and 43 will be released May 24 and 27, respectively.

"BEGGAR KING" ASKS FOR FAVOR ON GENERAL PROGRAM

"Otto, the Artist," written by Burr Symon and directed by Edwin McKim, is the release by the Lubin Company on May 15 through the General Film Company. A one-reel comedy in which Davy Don as a struggling artist with an afflicting appetite and a consuming love affair survives many breakneck vicissitudes. Patsy DeForest, Bernard Siegel and George Egan give able support.

"The Beggar King," a two-act drama, written and directed by Captain Wilbert Melville, is the release by the Lubin Company on May 16 through the General Film Company. Robert Gray, Jay Morely, Louis Fitz Roy, M. de la Parelle and Eleanor Belvins are in the cast.

"Jackstraws," written by Josephine McLaughlin and directed by Melvin Mayo, under the personal supervision of Captain Wilbert Melville, is a three-act dramatic feature released May 18 by the Lubin Company through the General Film Company. The mistake of a girl in trying to reform a man by marrying him. The cast includes Lucy Payton, Adelaide Bronti, Evelyn Page, George Routh, Cecil Van Auker and Alan Forrest.

"HER HUSBAND'S WIFE" FROM IVAN FOR MAY

After two months "Her Husband's Wife" has been completed and will be the Ivan release for May.

This is said to be the most sumptuous feature yet made by the Ivan Film Production and it employed some of the best known artists in filmdom. Sally Crute is featured and enacts a vampire role. Augustus Phillips makes his reappearance on the screen with this film. Mignon Anderson, the featured star of Ivan's "The City of Illusion," shares honors with Miss Crute and Mr. Phillips. Others in the cast are William Bechtel, the noted character man, and Brindsley Shaw.

SEA CAPTAIN BUILDS "ROCKING ROOM" FOR A VIM

A "rocking room," designed and built by a retired sea captain, will furnish, it is announced, some rapid-fire comedy in the Vim release of June 2, "The Land Lubbers." Burns and Stull are featured.

The Vim for June 1 is entitled "The Schemers," a brisk comedy, in which "Babe" Hardy, Billy Ruge and Elsie MacLeod have the leading parts.

VITAGRAPH OFFERINGS: SCENES FROM "THE SUSPECT," "THE COST OF HIGH LIVING," AND "THE PRIMAL INSTINCT"

"GOING STRAIGHT" TELLS STORY OF A CROOKED LIFE

When the new Norma Talmadge picture is released by the Triangle in a few weeks it will be called "Going Straight." The working title, "Playmates," so given because of the presence of half a dozen Fine Arts kiddies in the cast, does not express the theme of the drama, which aims to solve the problem confronting a respectable man who has a criminal past to live down. Miss Talmadge is the wife of the man, played by Ralph Lewis, and Eugene Pallette is a crook who lives by blackmailing his former pal. The Franklins, as is customary in all Triangle pictures in which the Griffith children appear, produced "Going Straight."

Bernard McConville, the author, has provided a scenario that indicates great dramatic strength. His crook, Jimmy Briggs, recognizes in John Remington his former pal in many a dangerous and profitable job. Remington's wife was also a member of the gang but both are going straight when Jimmy comes into their life again. Cut backs emphasize the contrast between the old life of the Remingtons and the new. The element of suspense is said to be well developed in the action.

"Going Straight" is the fourth picture Miss Talmadge has completed since she went to the coast to join the Triangle player, "The Missing Links," "Martha's Vindication" and "The Children in the House" were the earlier releases.

"DETECKTERS," WITH COOPER AND McNISH, FROM THANHOUSER, MAY 15

First of the new Thanhouser-Mutual comedies, featuring Claude Cooper and Frank McNish in the laughable roles of Conrad and Cooper, will be released May 15 under the title of "Deteckters." It is in one reel, having to do with the adventures and escapades of two would-be detectives.

A series of comedies featuring these two laugh-makers are being prepared at the New Rochelle studios for early release.

ARTISTIC DOUBLE EXPOSURE USED IN "SHADOWS"

Artistic double-exposure effects are promised in "Shadows," the three-reel Knickerbocker Star Feature scheduled for release on June 2, in which Frank Mayo and Lillian West are featured. Mayo plays a dual role. Reaves Eason directed the production, which is from the Horkheimer studios.

"The Gas Bomb Wallop" Explodes Championship Honors in "The Battler," a "V" With Mack in Title Role

FOR the week of May 22 Vitagraph promises an entertaining program of comedies and dramas. The six-part Blue Ribbon Feature, "The Suspect," and "The Primal Instinct," a three-part Broadway Star feature, furnish the drama, while in "Kernel Nutt Wins a Wife," "The Cost of High Living" and "The Battler" are found three reels of comedy.

In "The Suspect" Anita Stewart portrays the part of a young girl, who, after her father's execution by the Russian government, vows to devote her life to avenging his death. After many tragic experiences, she meets an English nobleman and true love overshadows the hatred in her heart. S. Rankin Drew, Anders Randolf, Bobby Connelly, Edward Elkas, George Cooper and Julia Swayne Gordon are seen in Miss Stewart's support. The story was adopted from H. J. W. Dam's book, "The Silver Shell," and produced by S. Rankin Drew.

Frank Daniels in "Kernel Nutt Wins a Wife" is seen as the proprietor of a matrimonial agency. Much to his chagrin, he is forced to marry one of his clients, a "cold storage chicken." Alice Washburn and Adele De Garde support Mr. Daniels. C. Jay Williams is responsible for the production.

"The Cost of High Living" tells the story of a college boy who is fond of a fast life until his father gets him interested in a pretty girl and things seem to take on a different aspect. William Duncan, Corinne Griffith, Carmen Phillips and Anne Schaefer are seen in this comedy. Joseph F. Poland wrote the story and William Wolbert supervised the action.

When they wrote "The Battler" C. Graham Baker and Lawrence Semon gave us something different. Hughie Mack, in the title role, introduces a new form in the manly art of self defense. When he is pitted against a champion, he uses the "gas bomb wallop" with wonderful effect. The things that fallow at the fight club are too funny to be related. Lawrence Semon produced this comedy.

Leah Baird appears in a sympathetic role in "The Primal Instinct." Miss Baird takes the part of a rich young heiress, whom an unscrupulous lawyer tries to estrange from her husband for selfish purposes. When her fidelity is wavering, her child is born and she realizes that she really loves its father. Don Cameron, and Van Dyke Brooke are also seen in this Broadway Star production. The filming was directed by Van Dyke Brooke.

"LIGHTS OF NEW YORK" ILLUMINES CITY'S DARK CORNERS FOR "V" ON MAY 29

The Vitagraph Blue Ribbon Feature announced for Monday, May 29, is entitled "The Lights of New York." The story comes from the pen of Charles L. Gaskill and deals with life in New York's slums. Later we are taken into the society circles and given an idea of the manners and customs of the "Upper Ten."

Walter McGrail supports Leah Baird in the leading role. He is seen as a gangster who tires of his half sister, a trusting young girl and decides to fit himself to enter society that he may be in a better position to carry on his dishonest purposes. He wins the love of a prominent society girl who, against her mother's wish, is about to marry the gangster, thinking him a man of honor. She is saved from this fate at the altar by the little girl he had deserted.

Adele De Garde plays the role of the half sister. Arthur Cozine and Don Cameron are also seen in good parts.

"FLAMES OF VENGEANCE" FROM GAUMONT ON MUTUAL, JUNE 8

Continuing its policy of thrilling photoplays in its three-reel releases, the Gaumont Company will show "Flames of Vengeance" as a Mutual on June 8. Gertrude Robinson and Sydney Mason are the stars. The climax of the story comes with the escape of the pair from a burning building. Miss Robinson is also forced to cling to the top of a limousine while the car is going at furious speed. Supporting the stars are Iva Shepard, John Reinhard, John Mackin, Albert Macklin and James Levering. The production is being directed by Edwin Middleton. The plan of the Gaumont Company to release three reel photodramas as well as Mutual Masterpieces, de Luxe Edition, was inaugurated with the filming of the Wilkie Collins' novel, "Armadale." The book was a "best seller" when it first came out. The Gaumont Company has provided a cast headed by Iva Shepard and Alexander Gaden. Featured in their support are Lucille Taft, Kathleen Butler, Henry W. Pemberton, John Mackin, Robert Clugston, John Reinhard, Charles W. Travis, Harry Chira, and James Levering.

"TWO ORPHANS" A JUNE 12 RELEASE FROM SELIG

The Selig Polyscope Company announces the revival, in three reels, of Kate Claxton's "The Two Orphans." This production will be released through the General Film Company's regular service on Monday, June 12. The players include Kathlyn Williams, Winnifred Greenwood, Myrtle Stedman, Thomas J. Garrigan, Charles Clary, Adrianne Kroll, Lillian Brown Leighton, Frank Weed, James O'Burrell and others.

GLORIA'S ROMANCE PROVES RECORD-BREAKER, SAYS JONES

A telegram to MOTION PICTURE NEWS from Aaron Jones, announces that George Kleine's serial, "Gloria's Romance," with Billie Burke, opened to capacity business at the Studebaker theatre, Chicago, on May 8. The theatre is under the management of Jones, Linick and Schaefer.

Mr. Jones declares that the film is the biggest box office proposition his theatre has ever played.

"Unscrambling Eggs" Proverb Fades Before Realization of Impossible in Paramount's "Unmaking a Cake"

SHORT reel subjects on the Paramount Program for the week of May 29 will range in interest from the unmaking of a cake to a jaunt among the most murderous tribe of the Philippines. The usual features will include Earl Hurd's "Bobby Bumps Goes Fishing," Paramount-Bray Animated Cartoon, a Paramount-Burton Holmes Travel-Pictures, "The Murderous Moros of Mindanao," and the Pictograph.

To see the Moros, most troublesome of all the tribes of the Philippines, on the Island of Mindanao, their native heath, Burton Holmes continues his cruise through this distant archipelago in the seventeenth release of the Paramount-Burton Holmes Travel-Picture," The Murderous Moros of Mindanao." Zimboanga, capital of the Moros, is well worth seeing, and here the natives are comparatively tame, while in the wilder parts of the island they are in their natural and appropriate atmosphere.

Reversing the usual order of things, this release of the Paramount Pictograph shows a reel novelty in the interesting process of unmaking a Lady Baltimore cake. Butter, eggs, flour, nuts, milk and other ingredients are first shown in the films as they are put together into a snowy layer cake made after the recipe of Lady Baltimore, wife of the second Lord of Baltimore, who founded the Province of Maryland. As this recipe has never appeared in a cook book, the editors of the Pictograph's household department will send the formulas for cake, icing and filling, to any one writing to the Paramount Pictures Corporation, 485 Fifth avenue, New York City. Motion picture audiences will see how such ingredients may be literally unscrambled under the eyes of a startled cook and returned to their original forms on the pantry shelf.

"Better Babies" of all nationalities make their screen debut in another feature of this Pictograph, which also includes more Preparedness films, and "Happifat and Rip Van Winkle" in the "Trickids."

Kalem Offers 4 Single-Reel Releases a Week Through General and 2 Specials for June

KALEM'S schedule for the month of June continues to offer four single-reel releases a week on the regular General Film program and the special two-reel release, "The Social Pirates." Sis Hopkins, Ham and Bud, Ethel Teare and Helen Gibson are the featured stars in the program releases, with Martin Sais and Ollie Kirkby upholding the honors in the George Bronson-Howard series.

The first "Social Pirate" release in June is "The Fangs of the Tattler," issued on June 5. This episode of the series finds the heroines bringing the wealthy backer of a blackmailing society newspaper to justice.

"The Disappearance of Helen Minter," twelfth episode of the series, follows on Monday, June 12. A "beauty parlor" of the type that police authorities throughout the country are devoting more and more attention to is the particular evil that calls for the girls' attention in this episode.

Marine scenes are supplied in "In the Service of the State," release on June 19, which finds Mona and Mary embarked on a diplomatic mission. "The Music Swindlers," the fourteenth episode of the fifteen week series, is the final June release on Monday, June 26.

Rose Melville, supported by Henry Murdock and Frank Minzey, continues to be among the strongest of Kalem offerings in the Sis Hopkins comedies. Included in the coming issues are "A Baby Grand," on Friday, May 26; "Sis the Detective," on Friday, June 2; and "Juggling Justice," scheduled for June 9. Sis runs the range of occupations from maid to sleuth to Justice of the Peace in this trio of offerings.

A single reel release every week of the Ham comedies, Ethel Teare comedies and "Hazards of Helen" complete the Kalem list.

"POLICE!" FOR RIALTO THEATRE

S. L. Rothapfel, through General Film Service, has contracted for the Essanay-Chaplin comedy feature, "Police!"

Mr. Rothapfel made no exception to his custom of insisting upon a film inspection before signing.

AMONG THE EXCHANGES

Weisfeldt Enumerates a Few Serious Troubles Exchangemen Are Obliged to Contend With

MAX J. Weisfeldt, manager of the Mutual exchange in Omaha, announced last week that he is out for only legitimate business. Here's what he meant, he said: "Omaha territory has too many fly-by-night exhibitors. There are also men who rent films and who in turn sub-rent them to other exhibitors. Some men even hold out the posters and sell them for old paper. The result of this juggling of films and of paper is that some conscientious exhibitor, who has advertised a certain film, is disappointed. We are cancelling the service of these unscrupulous theatre men and are dealing only with the reliable fellow who has gone into exhibiting as a serious business. Omaha, to my notion, could be greatly helped by an exchange managers' exchange.

"Several Omaha exchange managers, especially those who attended the northwestern convention at Minneapolis, are in favor of following that city and adopting the policy of pay-in-advance. A number of prominent exhibitors have already voiced their approval. This, it is claimed, will do away with the unreliable theatre proprietor. While not giving out the figures, Omaha exchanges report too much of a loss from the man who uses the films and afterward, through a number of ways, evades payment. The sooner this specimen of exhibitor passes out of existence, the quicker they are replaced by a better class of business men, the better the future of the business will be," said Weisfeldt.

To adopt the pay-in-advance policy is one reason, and to exterminate some of the following troubles are other reasons advanced for an exchange men's exchange in Omaha:

To get rid of the exhibitor who books a picture for one day and runs it two. To get rid of the man who sends one good check and, relying on it, sends several bad ones. To reprimand the man who contracts to pay the express on a film both ways and then returns it collect. To get rid of the one who telephones the money is on the way, when it isn't. To rid the business of the man who says the electric current was off, when it wasn't, and thus gets out of paying when he has run the picture. To stop the useless price slaughter, better the class of pictures and put the business on a firmer foundation.

OMAHA BOOSTS ITS OWN SHOW AT MINNEAPOLIS EVENT

A number of Omaha exchange men went to the Northwestern Motion Picture Exhibitors' League convention at Minneapolis. They carried with them advertisements of the big ball to be given in Omaha May 25. F. A. Van Husan of the Laemmle Film Service, accompanied Carl Laemmle about the convention and back to Omaha, May 6. Mr. Laemmle will attend the exhibitors' ball and convention in Omaha.

"TOM AND JERRY" FOR ASSOCIATED IN KANSAS CITY

The Associated Film Service of Kansas City, Mo., announces that it has taken on the comedy series, "Tom and Jerry," and that it has placed it in all large houses in that territory. They will get two releases each week, beginning June 1, and continuing twenty weeks. The company will be supplied with several prints of the series and will be able to take care of more than one house on each night.

NEW YORK METRO EXCHANGE MOVES TO GODFREY BUILDING

The New York Metro Film Service, Inc., distributors of Metro Wonderplays, has removed from 1110 West Fortieth street, to more spacious quarters in the Godfrey Building, at Seventh avenue and Forty-ninth street. The offices are in charge of Edward M. Saunders, general manager of the branch. In the new quarters Mr. Saunders has been able to enlarge several departments and install several new ones. Among the departments are the booking and sales, stenography, bookkeeping and auditing, poster and advertising, repair rooms and extensive film vaults. Another important department which has been considerably enlarged is the publicity department, which is run under the slogan of "first aid to exhibitors."

TRANSFER OF GENERAL IN DES MOINES IS PUT THROUGH

Final transfer of the buying exchange for the General has been made from Des Moines, Ia., to Omaha. Manager C. W. Taylor has had the Omaha office enlarged, remodeled and refiitted. Des Moines still has a distributing branch.

"Our business is showing a steady increase," said Mr. Taylor. "There are no sensational leaps and bounds in business this spring. We don't want any. The wave of epidemics in the smaller towns has about disappeared and all the houses in these places are reopening. Several towns went dry in March and we get better business from there. This spring, thus far, compares very favorably with business of former years."

"MANY A TRUE WORD SPOKEN IN JEST," FROM WORLD EXCHANGE IN OMAHA

Manager Ph. Goldstone of the World Exchange in Omaha, like other managers, has a waiting room outside his office. Along with the heralds and other World advertising matter on a library table in the waiting room, he keeps a file of "Motion Picture News." "The only trouble is," he jokingly declared, "they get to reading the 'News' and hang back when they ought to come in and talk business."

POSTER AND ADVERTISING DEPARTMENT OF THE NEW YORK METRO FILM SERVICE

CALIFORNIA MEN READY FOR FILM-CARRYING HEARING

The film men of California are the first ones to make a determined fight against the railroads for the privilege of carrying films as baggage. Some time ago the Southern Pacific Railroad brought proceedings to force the exhibitors around the Bay cities to send their shipments of films by express instead of carrying them as personal baggage, on the ground that the films are dangerous. This means a big added expense to nearby exhibitors who go to the city for their reels, and at once a complaint was filed with the California Railroad Commission.

The shipment regulation was to have gone into effect in February, but now it has been held up by the exhibitors and a hearing will be held before the commission on May 22. The exhibitors expect a complete victory, and their success will be a valuable precedent in other states where the railroads have secured the shipping regulations so quietly that the exhibitors made no opposition.

M. L. Markowitz of the California Film Exchange reports that conditions are getting considerably better, and everything is back to normal again.

The big social event of the near future is the Motion Picture Ball, which will be held on May 13 as a benefit actors' fund. There are twenty-five motion picture men on the executive committee.

HARRY HEYMAN WINS THIRD PRIZE IN WORLD FILM CONTEST

Out of sixty World Film Corporation salesmen Harry Heyman of the exchange in Omaha, won third place and the office, managed by Ph. Goldstone, won seventh place in a recent contest. Heyman has received his prize money and a letter from the general manager's office, saying among other things: "It is mighty gratifying to see one of the boys from the west carrying off third prize, and we wish you to realize that we appreciate the hard work necessary to enable you to finish so high up in the list." Manager Goldstone is showing an equally complimentary letter.

"Weekly figures show Omaha, as an exchange for the World, is one of the best business centers we have," said Goldstone. "This section of the Middle West, I believe, is ahead of other parts of the country because it can be cultivated to a much greater and better field."

Esther Epstein, feature manager at the World exchange in Omaha and widely known throughout the middle west, has resigned to become the wife on May 21 of Arthur Marowitz, a young Omaha attorney.

T. Y. Henry, in Omaha last summer and a well known middle western film man, now has charge of the General branch at Denver.

MAINE BUSINESS ON INCREASE SINCE LENT

Since Lent the Bangor, Me., exchange men have been busy and the crews in each of the exchanges are working hard to supply the increased demand for service. Manager Borrotto of the Mutual Film Company, recently transferred from Portland to Bangor, in order to be in the center of the Maine trade, and Manager Stern of the Universal, have been in Aroostock county and find that business there is excellent.

Nearly all the houses that were running only half time and those that were closed up entirely during the Lenten season are now running on regular time.

OF COURSE FOLAND IS A HUSTLER —HE USED TO BE ON THE "NEWS"

J. E. Foland, salesman for the Pathe Exchange out of Kansas City, Mo., lost a night's sleep recently to good advantage. He talked to a possible customer until 3:15 o'clock one morning—but got the contract. He caught the 3:30 train, telephoned early in the morning to all and the picture was on hand for the exhibitor's show the afternoon of the same day.

PICTURE BUSINESS RECEIVES IMPETUS IN OTTAWA

W. H. Davidson, special representative of the Canadian Universal Company, when seen in Ottawa, declared that the amusement business in general was better in Ottawa and the surrounding district than he had seen it for some time. He pointed out the fact that many of the theatres were changing services, the National, Casino and Regent all coming back to program and program features. He stated that Universal pictures would be seen in all these houses. The big Dominion vaudeville house closed on Monday, May 8, while the Empire and Majestic theatres are boosting their prices from five to ten cents. Mr. Leduc and Mr. Davidson spent considerable time discussing various plans Mr. Leduc, who is a prominent exhibitor, has in mind.

FLINTOM APPOINTS COMMITTEE FOR ACTORS' FUND

Under the direction of A. D. Flintom, president of the Kansas City Feature Film Company, who has been appointed to take care of the promotion of Actors' Fund Day, has appointed the following exhibitors a committee to arrange for the details of that day: Frank Newman, owner and manager of the Royal and Regent; F. I. Buckingham, one of the proprietors of the Apollo Theatre, and William Scoville, proprietor of the Idle Hour.

Practically every theatre owner in the Kansas City section has agreed to co-operate with the committee in donating ten per cent. of the proceeds, and a good revenue is expected by Mr. Flintom to be sent East.

BARRET RESIGNS FROM "U" IN WINNIPEG

Mr. Barret, for some time well known as the manager of the Winnipeg Universal office, has resigned his position, and Mr. Walkley, manager of the western offices, is remaining in Winnipeg. Mr. Barret is an excellent business man and exchange manager, and is sure to be soon located in another responsible position.

WOLFBERG GIVES PRIVATE SHOWING OF 5-REEL KNICKERBOCKER IN ST. LOUIS

H. P. Wolfberg, manager of the General Film Exchange, 3610 Olive street, St. Louis, gave a private showing to exhibitors and theatre managers of the first five reel Knickerbocker Star feature to be released by the General, at the newly erected projection room at the St. Louis branch. The feature was "Spellbound," starring Lois Meredith. Since the plan of showing the films to exhibitors before booking has been inaugurated there has been much interest evinceed and many notes taken for future reference by the customers when they see the pictures, and not a few show a remarkable discernment in their selection of a program.

The World Film office at 3626 Olive street, St. Louis, was paid a flying visit one day recently by William A. Brady, who reached town on the 7:40 A.M. train, was whisked to the exchange, where he made a little talk to a number of St. Louis and out-of-town exhibitors on the plans for distribution of the Brady pictures, and then was whisked away again to the station to catch the noon train. George W. Fuller, manager of the St. Louis World Exchange, acted as host to Mr. Brady.

PRE-SHOWING OF UNICORNS IN BANGOR, ME., BY BRENNAN

Manager Brennan of the Unicorn Film Exchange in Bangor, Me., one of the old United exchanges, which was in the sale Fred B. Murphy made to the Unicorn Film Company, has adopted the method of showing the exhibitors the films they are considering using. He still retains his quarters in the Eastern Trust building. The trouble the exhibitors have had in Bangor is that they were not able to throw their pictures on the screen in the exchange rooms.

Last week Manager Brennan took a number of exhibitors from the neighboring towns and exhibited his pictures at the Graphic theatre in Bangor.

PHOENIX DOES GOOD BUSINESS IN NEW ENGLAND

The Phoenix Feature Film Corporation of Boston, with a branch in Ellsworth, Me., presided over by Earle B. Tinker, is doing a good business on Cosmofotofilm features and Chaplin comedies. This company also controls two big European war films which are working solidly. The Rupert Hughes feature, "All for a Girl," is also being booked by this company, as well as reprints of the Sawyer, Inc., program.

LARONTE SATISFIED WITH CONDITION OF HIS FORCE

Arthur Laronte, Toronto manager for the Mutual Film Company, has been battling vigorously against many of the difficulties which he encountered when he took his new position, and has at last expressed himself fairly well satisfied with the condition of his staff and the method of conducting business. Mr. Laronte is a quiet worker, and from all accounts is securing very gratifying results.

New England Enjoys Good Times, and Sam Moscow Grows Whiskers for the Winter

ALBERT S. SCHALLER, recently appointed manager of the Universal Exchange in Boston to succeed J. A. Eslow, the new western division manager of the Unicorn Film Service, has been succeeded temporarily by Shepherd of the home office.

J. K. Burger, in charge of exchanges for Hearst's International Film Company, was in Boston a few days last week, visiting his New England representative, Frank Vine.

Charles Phillips, assistant manager of the Fox Film, is laid up at home with inflammatory rheumatism. Everybody in New England film circles extends his best wishes for a speedy recovery.

Harry Campbell, manager of the Fox Film Company, and Edward Connolly of the Unicorn forces went fishing in Scamus Lake, New Hampshire, last Sunday, and exchange men are now asking Campbell about the salmon he almost landed.

William O'Brien, manager of the Springfield office of the Unicorn films, has returned to his duties from his honeymoon, and is thanking his friends for their kind remembrances and also wants to know if it was a conspiracy that everybody sent him cut glass for a wedding present.

Eddie McEvoy wears the smile that won't come off. Many people were under the impression that he was advertising a new tooth powder, but the truth is that he is busy selling "Mutt and Jeff" cartoons.;

Sam Moscow, Boston manager of the Unicorn Program, has started to raise a set of whiskers. He says he is getting ready for next winter.

Fred Murphy, eastern division manager of the Unicorn Program, has been making a tour of the Unicorn exchanges and claims that the word wonderful doesn't express the amount of business the new program is doing. He claims, and always has, that the one and two reel subjects are the ones that the average picture patron desires.

S. P. Lovenberg, formerly roadman for the Community Moving Picture Bureau, is now traveling for the Unicorn out of the Boston office under Sam Moscow.

Thanhouser, World, Metro and Paramount Stars Expected at First Ball in Buffalo, N. Y.

PLANS for the first annual ball of the Buffalo, N. Y., Screen Club, recently organized, are nearing completion. To date, Florence La Badie and Frederick Warde will represent the Thanhouser company, while William A. Brady has promised to send Gail Kane, Ethel Clayton, Alice Brady and Mollie King as guests of the club at the ball. Jesse Bonstelle and her entire stock company now playing at the star theatre will attend, as will Mayor Louis P. Fuhrmann and Commissioners Hill, Kreinheder, Malone, Hill and Heald.

The ball, which will be held at Elmwood Music hall on Monday evening, May 15, will be one of the most novel ever held in Buffalo, and a gigantic crowd is expected. The press is giving much space to the event, which is greatly appreciated by the club. President Daniel J. Savage is in New York, and word is expected momentarily from him as to whether the Paramount company will send any of its stars to the ball. Negotiations have been opened with Francis X. Bushman, who it is hoped will lead the grand march. Fifteen per cent. of the receipts will go to the Actors' Fund of America. The 74th Infantry band of 50 pieces, under the direction of John W. Bolton, and an orchestra with the same number of men in its personnel under the direction of Herman E. Schultz, will furnish the music.

The hall will be turned into a veritable fairy garden, with the club colors, blue and gold, predominating. In the afternoon an automobile parade will be held with the visiting stars participating. An elaborate program, street car advertising billboards and electric signs, are now telling Buffalo about the great event. The club had its formal opening last week, when the clubrooms in Court street was the scene of much jollity, with music, dancing and a banquet.

Among the new members reecntly added to the Buffalo Screen Club are: Michael Shea, I. M. Mosher, J. A. Schuchert, G. A. Rudolph, I. Moses, John F. Miller, John Pferd, J. S. Savage, C. R. Higgins, C. N. Johnson, G. C. Hall, George Hanny, Jr., M. Whitman, G. A. Keating, William Leyser, Edward Hyman and E. S. Davis. W. R. Wood, of Rochester, has been elected to non-resident membership. The club is being "swamped" with applications, and a large number of new members are expected to be taken into the fold at the next meeting on May 1.

SMITH, MUTUAL, IN KENTUCKY, TO MARRY

Percy L. Smith, district manager in Kentucky for the Mutual Film Corporation, and Dessa E. Wright, of Kalamazoo, Mich., were granted a marriage license, May 1, in Kalamazoo.

Mr. Smith is widely known among exhibitors in Louisville and Kentucky, and also in theatrical circles in New York. He went to Louisville from New York City about five months ago. The despatch received in Louisville stating that the license has been issued to Mr. Smith and Miss Wright said that both have been married before. The date of the wedding was not given.

CORY TAKES CHARGE OF WORLD IN 'FRISCO

M. E. Cory has been appointed manager of the San Francisco branch of the World Film Corporation, and assumed charge last week. Mr. Corey has been an exhibitor for the past five years and is well known to the trade. He reports that business is holding its own.

HAGUE, LATEST "U" WINNER

Another name has been added to the list of winners of the competition contest between the exchanges for gross business during one month's time. The latest winner is Clair Hague, of the Canadian Universal Film Company of Toronto, who piled up a total of such proportions that none of the other exchanges were in danger of taking away his laurels for that month.

The previous winners in this contest, which was instituted by M. H. Hoffman, and which has proven extremely successful in stimulating endeavor, are L. L. Hensley, of the Universal Film Supply Company, Oklahoma, twice; S. B. Kramer, Universal Film Exchange, New York; M. L. Markowitz, California-Canadian Film Exchange, San Francisco, and Clair Hague, of the Canadian Universal Film Company, Toronto.

ABEL USES TELEPHONE TO HELP V-L-S-E EXHIBITORS

In line with the V-L-S-E policy of establishing the most friendly relations between exchange and exhibitor, S. E. Abel, manager of the Chicago office, has put in operation an added service for exhibitors, with the telephone playing a leading part.

His telephone operator calls up each day all the motion picture theatres in the city where the company's releases had been shown on the previous day. Inquiries are made as to the success attained with the picture, whether the delivery and exchange service had been satisfactory, and if there were any complaints to be made.

The replies to these inquiries enable the exchange to rectify errors, and to increase the efficiency of the service.

MONTGOMERY MAKES RECORD

The Indianapolis office of the World Film Corporation, of which W. A. Montgomery is the manager, has been notified that it won first prize in the contest, conducted by the company for the last three months, ending May 1, for obtaining the most new business. Mr. Montgomery says he believes he has a record unrivalled by any other exchange in Indiana, as he says he has a theatre in every town of more than 6,000 inhabitants in Indiana showing first run World Film pictures.

TRIANGLE AT 73 BROADWAY, DETROIT

The new location of the Triangle film exchange in Detroit is to be at 73 Broadway, where the company has leased an entire floor. Already contractors are making changes. It will be ready by May 15, or thereabouts. L. W. Foster is manager of the Detroit exchange.

WARD IN CHARGE OF UNICORN IN DETROIT

W. D. Ward has been appointed manager of the Unicorn film exchange which has been opened at 183 Jefferson avenue, Detroit, Mich. Mr. Ward is well known among Michigan exhibitors and has been associated with the business for many years.

THE EASTERN STUDIOS

THE newly organized Rialto Film Company has finished its first picture, "The House of Mirrors," and is preparing to commence work immediately on a second. The first picture was made at the old Victor studios, in Eleventh avenue, and it is understood that this studio has been retained for the next subject. The work is being done under the direction of Marshall Farnum, whose "Driftwood," produced for the Ocean Film Company, was generally pronounced one of the most artistic works of the season. The name of the second Rialto picture has not been decided upon as yet. Mr. Farnum, however, will direct it.

The "House of Mirrors" is described as an especially strong play, based upon a number of gripping and dramatic situations. Bliss Milford and Frank Mills have the leading roles.

The Famous Players Company has sent Pauline Frederick and a large company South to finish a new picture which will be released on the Paramount program during the summer. Other studios are showing renewed activity, and the excellent weather of the last two weeks has aided greatly in preparing the country around New York for the making of attractive exteriors.

Arthur Donaldson will appear in Jose Collins's new photoplay, under the direction of William Fox. Mr. Donaldson is not only an actor, but is an excellent singer as well. He is an author, and has himself produced a number of plays. He created and sang for five years the title rôle in "The Prince of Pilsen," and has been featured in the leading baritone rôles of such well-known comic operas as Baron de Grim in "The Magic Kiss"; Rob Roy with the Duff Opera Company, and Augustin Daly's musical productions. He still sings—for pastime—but devotes practically all of his time to motion pictures.

Other Players in the Picture

Among other well-known actors who appear in the new picture are Devore Palmer, Mrs. Cecil Raleigh, Armand Cortez, Anna Reedor and Ruby Hoffman. All the exterior scenes were taken in Cuba, while others were filmed in the coal regions near Shamokin, Pa.

Bradley Barker, who is also appearing in this same picture, is well known to all motion picture audiences. He has played leading parts with Olga Petrova, Mary Fuller and others equally prominent. He is well known as a stock actor, and was in the support of Dustin Farnum in "Arizona" and "The Virginian" during the long runs of those plays. He has also been in vaudeville, and left the theatrical field to engage in commercial pursuits, especially advertising. After a short time he returned to things theatrical, having become interested in the motion picture art.

Director Wilfrid North and his company of players, headed by Lillian Walker, Evart Overton, Denton Vane and Robert Gaillard, arrived back at the Vitagraph studio early in the week from Highland Falls, New York. Mr. North and his company of players spent two weeks at the country town filming scenes for an adaptation of one of Hamlin Garland's books, which is being produced as a Blue Ribbon Feature.

There is in iron mine shown in this picture that has been in operation since 1776. Iron was extracted from this mine that furnished cannon balls for Washington in many of his battles.

Director North used many of the natives of Highland Falls in the filming of the play, and the locations corresponded exactly with the description in Garland's book.

The picture features Lillian Walker, who is supported by Evart Overton. It will be released through the V-L-S-E the latter part of June.

One of the prominent physicians of Bay Shore, Long Island, received a telephone call the other day which made him move about as fast as he had ever moved in his life.

When he answered the phone an excited voice on the other end shouted: "Come to the Vitagraph studio, quick, one of our stars has attempted suicide."

He immediately collected a number of instruments, including the pulmotor, put them into his waiting auto and made a dash for the movie establishment.

Deft Touch of Realism

While he was doing this, Director Ralph W. Ince with his cast and cameraman were patiently awaiting his arrival. It seems Lucille Lee Stewart was to have attempted suicide in the Blue Ribbon Feature now being completed by Mr. Ince, and this capable director conceived the idea of having a practicing physician come into the scene and go about his work in the regular way. With the assistance of Miss Stewart the deception was carried out, and the developed negative shows a very realistic piece of work, including a busy doctor with all the latest surgical instruments.

Director William P. S. Earle of Vitagraph and his cameraman, Clark R. Nickerson, are at Mont Alto, Pennsylvania, filming scenes showing the old and new methods of forest fire fighting.

There will be two full reels made to assist the Pennsylvania State Forestry Bureau in their campaign for the collection of the necessary amount of money required to improve the present conditions. One part will show the system in vogue now, the old way and means of carrying out their work and the others will present the advantage of the new and improved methods.

In taking these photoplays Mr. Earle has the assistance and co-operation of the Pennsylvania Forest Rangers and School of Forestry.

The reels promise to be two of the most interesting ever shown on the screen, not only for the Forestry Bureau's purpose, but to motion picture audiences in general.

ber of the Edison forces, has been engaged by Metro as an assistant director. He will be associated with John H. Collins, and his first work on the Metro program will be seen in "The Flower of No Man's Land." Mr. Nowland had many years of training as an artist and draughtsman before he went into motion pictures, and is also a musician of rare ability. He studied the violin in Berlin and Vienna and upon his return to this country toured the United States and Canada on the concert and lyceum stage.

John H. Collins, one of the youngest, but also one of the most successful directors in the country, has signed a long-time contract to produce Metro pictures, and his first feature will be "The Flower of No Man's Land," in which Viola Dana is starred. This production will also mark Miss Dana's debut with Metro. Mr. Collins is but twenty-three years old, and before he was out of his teens he was general stage manager for seven directors in the Edison studio, where he supervised the construction of more than 5,000 studio sets during the two years he held that important position.

Collins Caught Young in the Game

Mr. Collins went into the motion picture business when he was eighteen years old. He was made an assistant director to J. S. Dawley, then with Edison, but now the director of Marguerite Clark, with the Famous Players. He was also assistant director to Oscar Apfel and Ashley Miller, and through the good offices of Horace G. Plimpton was made a director in a remarkably short time.

Among some of the last features made by Mr. Collins with the Edison are "The Cossack Whip," "Children of Eve," "His Sister's Champion," and "Gladiola," all of which served Miss Dana as starring vehicles. Besides directing big features, Mr. Collins also writes the story from which they are made. Hs is the author of "The Flower of No Man's Land," and is writing another feature for Miss Dana. He has written more than one hundred scenarios during the five years he has been in the business, and was one of the first directors in the country to make talking pictures.

Mr. Collins was born in West Fifty-first Street, New York City, and is a graduate of DeWitt Clinton High School in Brooklyn, where he spent his boyhood. He was prominent in athletics and was the pitcher of his baseball team during the last two years in school.

Ilean Hume, a popular ingenue of the Metro forces, is mourning the death of her brother, Arthur Hume, who was killed at Verdun April 10th. The news did not reach Miss Hume and her family until April 26th, and since then they have been too overcome with grief to make known their relationship to the youth who was mentioned in the despatches of that date.

Harry Brown, dramatic actor, has been engaged by Metro to play the role of the big Westerner in "The Flower of No Man's Land." Mr. Brown met Miss Dana on the studio floor for the first time in several years when he was called for the first rehearsal. He played the "heavy" with Miss Dana three years ago in the noted stage production of "The Poor Little Rich Girl." Mr. Brown, in addition to his studio work, is appearing in a prominent role in "The House of Glass," the successful Broadway play.

Hedda Kuszewski has accepted an offer from the Lubin Company to create one of the principal parts in the forthcoming feature production, "The Light of Dusk," in which the evolution of a Russian peasant furnishes a novel theme. Mlle. Kuszewski arrived in New York last week and reported at once at the Lubin studios in Philadelphia. The following day she made a visit to the shopping section and lost a valuable solitaire diamond ring, a gift from a nephew of the Grand Duke Nicholas. Edgar Lewis, who is directing "The Light of Dusk," volunteered to advertise at once for the lost jewel, but, to his surprise, the Russian artiste put an emphatic veto on the proposal.

No Diamond Publicity for Her

It has been frequently noted in the newspapers of her home country that the advertisement of lost diamonds was a favorite artifice of American actresses in an attempt to secure publicity which their artistic merits would not command. Mlle. Kuszewski declared that as a newcomer she wishes to be appraised according to her abilities and not as a loser of a diamond.

Robert T. Thornby of the Paragon studios began the production of "The Almighty Dollar" last week. Emmett Corrigan, Francis Nilson and James Eldridge are included in the cast.

Maurice Tourneur, having just completed his production of the "Velvet Paw" with Alice Brady, will begin a new production this week, entitled "B," with House Peters.

Albert Capellani has completed his production of "La Boheme" for Paragon.

Pritchard Called North

Walter Prichard, who has been filming Gaumont photoplays at the winter studios, Jacksonville, Fla., has been called north to become official cameraman for "Reel Life, the Mutual Film Magazine," the new single-reel Gaumont weekly release. Mr. Pritchard will make his headquarters at the Gaumont Laboratories, Flushing, N. Y. At present he is engaged in filming some unusual engineering projects, since "Reel Life" specializes in outdoor subjects. These will keep him in or near New York for a month at least. Before going farther afield he will also catch for the screen some scientific subjects of general interest. The decision to have Mr. Pritchard devote all his time to this new weekly addition to Mutual Pictures is indicative of the success "Reel Life" has already achieved and the insistence of the Gaumont Company that it shall maintain a high standard.

A corps of Essanay photographers, who were sent to the coast by President George K. Spoor for scenic pictures for Essanay's split reel releases, have just returned to Chicago with several thousand feet of film.

Among the most interesting are scenes at the U. S. aviation field at Coronado, where the American army officers were photographed in air manœuvres. Scenes also were taken of the battleships and torpedo boat destroyers in San Diego bay.

A number of scenes were taken at the San Diego exposition, in Los Angeles and San Francisco. The photographers also stopped at Albuquerque, New Mexico, where scenes were taken of the Indians.

These will be released in five hundred feet, in conjunction with Essanay's Canimated News Pictorials, the cartoons by Wallace A. Carlson.

STATE RIGHTS MEN INTERESTED IN "A WOMAN WILLS"

State rights buyers are taking an active interest in the Sun Photoplay Company's latest release, "A Woman Wills." In this production, a five-reeler, Elsie LeClaire is featured. Her work has attracted favorable comment from the New York reviewers.

The picture, of foreign make, is a love story, with many exciting situations. The war is used as a background.

In and Out of West Coast Studios

By J. C. Jessen

Special to Motion Picture News.

Los Angeles, May 12.

An automobile accident last week robbed the western film colony of two writers, and sent a third to a hospital where it will require several months for his recovery. Clinton Stagg, who less than two weeks ago came to the coast from New York to take up work at the Lasky studio as writer, was one victim; George Foster Platt, well known magazine writer and head of the play department at the Lasky studio, is in the hospital with a broken leg and internal injuries; and Malcolm Strong, a free lance writer, was the other one killed.

The three were in a new runabout machine just purchased by Stagg Wednesday evening, May 3d, driving on a beach boulevard when a tire exploded, causing the car to dash into a telephone pole. The two were killed instantly. Telegrams from Orange, N. J., advise that the news of the death of Stagg brought about the death of his mother from heart failure. Both Stagg and Platt were formerly connected with Eastern studios, and for a long time were affiliated with the Thanhouser Company.

As the result of the accident, the Lasky scenario department is greatly disorganized. Stagg had at the time of his death partially completed the synopsis and working script for a photoplay entitled "A Selfish Woman," which had been put in production by Director George Melford. Fortunately Stagg had gone over the scenario with his secretary, who is now able to prepare the remainder of the script. Cleo Ridgley is being starred in this photoplay, supported by Wallace Reid.

Masquerade Ball Scene in a de Mille

Director C. B. deMille has finished the filming of the Mae Murray subject which has been titled "Meg o' Dreams." This is from a scenario by Jeanie McPherson. Mr. deMille will not take up a new subject at once, as he expects to depart for New York shortly for a brief stay. His visit to the east, it is understood, is to be in connection with the talked of merger.

A very brilliant scene was filmed by Director Cecil B. deMille this week for "Meg o' Dreams," showing a masquerade ball. It required all afternoon for the filming of this, and during that time it was necessary for Earl Fox to turkey trot while wearing a suit of mail weighing one hundred and fifty pounds. The title for this subject has not been decided upon.

Hector Turnbull is home from an extended trip to New York, and is back at his work in the Lasky scenario department. During the absence of Jesse L. Lasky, president of the company, now in New York to attend the conference of the film magnates with regard to the merger, the affairs of the company are in the hands of Milton E. Hoffman, the new general manager. Mr. Lasky stated that he would probably remain in the East for several weeks to look after details of the releasing system.

Through arrangements completed by the Los Angeles Committee of the Actors' Fund Association, a number of stars will go to San Francisco on May 12th to attend a ball given at the St. Francis hotel for the purpose of raising money for the endowment fund. The arrangements for this ball are in the hands of Herman Webber, manager of the Paramount Progressive Exchange at San Francisco.

The Lasky circus story entitled "The Clown" has been completed under the direction of William C. de Mille, and at the studio the trial showing elicited nothing but favorable criticism. Every member of the staff who witnessed this speaks of the subject as the nearest perfect photoplay made at this plant, which is indeed a most emphatic statement. Victor Moore is star of this, and his work in it is said to be the best of his film career. With this picture Mr. Moore completes his contract for this year with the Lasky Company, and despite offers of the organization to continue in additional plays, Mr. Moore decided to return East, and will leave shortly. Florence Dagmar has the leading feminine part in this, and Tom Meighan has another important role. Meighan is to be starred in a subject shortly to be produced by William C. deMille.

The last scenes of the two five reel subjects adapted from the story "Whispering Smith," which in the film version is known as "Whispering Smith" and "Medicine Bend," were made last week, and within the next ten days the subjects will be shipped east to the factories. The release for these two subjects has been arranged for early in June, and "Whispering Smith" will be released one week, and its sequel "Medicine Bend" the following. The same cast appears in these two subjects, the principals besides Miss Holmes and J. P. McGowan being Paul Hurst, Leo D. Maloney, Thomas G. Lingham, William Brunton and others.

A Harum-Scarum in Harem

This week Harold Lloyd as "Lonesome Luke" of the Pathe Phunphilms, made by the Rolin Company, was unfortunate to become mixed up with a harem in which Beebe Daniels played the role of queen. It is a great life for Luke until a policeman taps him on the head. Rolin Director Hal Roach has completed one of the pictures, exteriors of which were made beyond the Mexican border recently. This is a race track comedy in which a race horse is doped, making it possible for "Lonesome Luke" to win the race.

G. A. Hutchinson, business manager of the Signal Film Corporation; Orrin Denny, superintendent of laboratories, and others of this producing organization, have become interested in the mines at Randsburg, California, where tungsten has been found, and have organized a mining company which will begin operations in this field shortly. Practically every member of the organization has become interested, and all have the "get-rich-quick" fever. This is the result of the photoplay people spending several days in the vicinity of Randsburg recently, while filming scenes for "Whispering Smith" and "Medicine Bend."

Thomas H. Ince having received very encouraging news from George Beban, who is in New York planning for the premier there for "Civilization," is making plans to depart within the next few days for the East to personally aid in planning the presentation. Negotiations are also under way for the premier of this subject at other Eastern cities, including Washington, Chicago, Philadelphia and Boston. The attendance at the Majestic Theater in Los Angeles, where this subject is now being shown, continues good, and it has been found that the peace spectacle appeals to people of all classes. Recently a Japanese organization attended the showing in a body, and the secretary has sent to Ince a letter of congratulation which he prizes most highly.

Raymond B. West, who has worked constantly for eighteen months in the making of Ince subjects, has been granted a leave of absence of several weeks, and is now making plans for a trip to the Orient. Mr. West insists that he cannot remain idle during this vacation, and expects to put his hand into the scenario writing department while absent from the studio.

Announcement has been received at the Culver City Ince plant stating that Charles Ray has been voted the most popular actor in a contest conducted by the Sioux Falls Argus-Leader. As the result of this victory, the letter from the newspaper states the theatres in that city had exceptional patronage for "The Coward" and "Peggy," two subjects in which Ray plays the important parts.

Hart Begins Another Bad-Man Kay-Bee

William S. Hart has taken up the filming of another bad man western Kay-Bee subject at Inceville. His role in this is similar to that taken in "The Aryan" and "Hell's Hinges." Nearly five hundred people will be used in the filming of scenes in this. Mr. Hart is supported by Robert McKim, Louise Glaum and Margie Wilson.

Another subject taken up at the Ince Culver City plant is from a scenario by J. G. Hawks, which contains a Mexican border romance. Director Walter Edwards is in charge of filming this, and his co-stars will be Enid Markey and William Desmond, the former appearing in the role of a Mexican senorita, and the latter as an American colonel. Other principals are Robert Kortman and Gertrude Claire.

Frank Keenan has again been cast to play the role of a southerner in a north and south melodrama by C. Gardner Sullivan, which is to be filmed under the direction of Reginald Barker. This story is now in rehearsal, and filming will be taken up within a few days.

Work on construction of two new buildings was begun at the Culver City Ince plant last week. These will be of the same style of architecture as the others of the plant, and one will be used for a garage, and the other a laboratory. In the past all laboratory work for the Ince studios has been done at the Edendale plant of the NYMP organization, which adjoins the Keystone studio, but it is planned to do all of this at the Culver City plant as soon as the laboratories are completed. The laboratories will be of sufficient size to make all copies of Kay-Bee subjects for release, which means that the factory work is to be done at Los Angeles instead of in the east.

Thomas H. Ince has a force of workmen busy at Inceville in the construction of a pretentious summer home. The location selected is on one of the foothills of the Santa Monica Mountains, which will give the producer and his family the advantage of both mountain and sea during the months of June, July and August.

Bessie Barriscale in "Sorrow of Love"

Bessie Barriscale is to be seen soon in "The Sorrow of Love." This subject was finished from a scenario by Elaine Stearn and J. G. Hawks, under the direction of Charles Giblyn. It will serve to introduce several radical departures in production. Miss Barriscale plays the role of a sister in a convent, where she is known as "The Lily." The plot required Italian locale, and revolves about the efforts of the sister to learn the ways of the world. Dal Clawson, cameraman in charge of filming this, worked out a new lighting device which is used in "The Sorrow of Love" for the first time. The device perfected by Clawson makes possible realistic effects with candle, lamp, or the sun. In the case of using a candle, the flame lights only the person's face who is carrying it, and not cale in this subject in the leading role is the entire setting. Supporting Miss Barris-William Desmond, and other members of the cast are Ora Carew, Hershall Mayall and Wedgewood Nowell.

William Parsons, head of the National Film Corporation, who has been at Tampa, Florida, and New York City since early this year, arrived in Los Angeles early last week to spend several days there looking after business interests. Mr. Parsons will shortly perfect plans for production, and announcement will be made of this in the near future.

Universal Officers Hosts to Naval Officers

Universal City officials last week acted as hosts for a number of U. S. Navy officers from the U. S. S. Cheyenne, which was stationed in Los Angeles harbor for several days. Several special scenes were made at the zoo under the direction of Rex de Roselli for the benefit of these distinguished visitors. Another party entertained was that composed of justices of the Supreme Court of California. The three judges spent an entire afternoon and were shown how the films were made.

Universal City officers are now making plans for Knight Templar Day on June twenty-third, when the delegates to the third tri-annual conclave of the Grand Encampment of the U. S. will be held in Los Angeles. One entire day the visitors will spend at the film town. Special entertainments will be given in all parts of the plant, including the making of comedy, wild west, wild animal and dramatic scenes. A big feature will be a rodeo given in the afternoon. All of the cowboys of the company will participate in this, and it is expected that ten thousand people will be guests. The Knight Templars will be given opportunity to work in many scenes. All twenty-four directors will have their companies at the studio on this day, and all stars and leads will take part in scenes being made.

The filming of a series of comedies to be known under the general title of "Timothy Dobbs" was begun last week at "U" City by Wallace Beery as director. Beery is late of the Keystone Company, and previously was affiliated with Essanay. This series, which will consist of fifteen two reel numbers, is from a scenario by Bess Meredith, and will feature Carter De Haven as an egotistical small town youth with a slender income and an admiring valet.

Peggy Custer, actress of the legitimate stage and great niece of General Custer, who was killed June 25, 1876, at Little Horn, Montana, has been engaged by the Universal to play ingenue parts.

Another addition to the staff is Eugene Lewis, who is connected with the scenario department. Lewis was with the Biograph Company for several years, and has a large number of original stories to his credit.

"Bashful Charley's Proposal"

The Universal Joker Company has just filmed "Bashful Charley's Proposal," written and produced by Allen Curtis, in which Charlie Conklin played the double role of two brothers; one too bashful to propose to a widow, and the other the accepted suitor of the widow's daughter, whom mother does not approve of.

The company will next make "The Fall of Deacon Stillwater." William Franey plays the part of a deacon who is elected president of an anti-sin league, and while working on a cruisade to stop prize fighting, becomes an ardent enthusiast of the manly art. When this and other facts concerning the deacon become known, the society, for want of encouragement and a president, is broken up. The players appearing in these two subjects are William Franey, Gale Henry, Lillian Peacock and Milburn Moranti.

Number three of the "U" baseball series "Baseball Bill,"—Smiling Billy Mason—takes the coming genius of the pitcher's slab through a series of misfortunes in which he loses his erstwhile manager, Penpoints, and ends with him being arrested, sent to a lunatic asylum, where he is confined in a padded cell.

Director George Cochran is making a one-reel subject which features little Zoe Beck. Others in the photoplay are Malcolm Blevins and Marjorie Ellison. The subject is entitled "The Availing Prayer," and is adapted from a magazine story. The story pertains to the temptations which beset a low-salaried drug clerk when his slender bank account is wiped out by the sickness of his little daughter.

A number of new thrills were filmed last week for scenes in the 101 Bison subject, "The Battle of Black Rock Short Line." The direction of this is by Henry McRae, who also wrote the story. The scenario was prepared by Frank Wiltermood. One of the thrills is the destruction of a train as it dashes through a blazing tunnel. Another, the rescue of a girl hanging on the side of a mountain cliff by two men who make a human rope of themselves, by hanging by their feet in a crack in the cliff. Marie Walcamp is the heroine, Lee Hill the hero, Iver McFadden his aide, E. N. Wallock the railway president, and L. C. Shumway the heavy. Other parts are taken by Bud Ennis and Jean Hersholt.

"They Wouldn't Take Him Seriously"

The title of a two-reel photoplay being filmed at "U" City by William Worthington, "They Wouldn't Take Him Seriously," concisely tells the plot of this subject. Herbert Rawlinson takes the leading part, and the others in the cast are Agnes Vernon, Jean Hathaway, Charles Gunn and Betty Schade.

"Not by Faith Alone," or "In the Days of the Missions," is a two-reel photoplay of early California life from a story by Bob Wagner, a Saturday Evening Post writer. Several of the old missions of California are used as settings for scenes in this, the story dealing with the effect of the mission fathers on desperate marauders. In this instance the pinning of a crucifix on the saddle pad served to wear a hole in the canteen and forced the robber, then on his way to carry out the plans made by his chief to rob a wealthy Spanish residence, to give up the attempt. He is picked up on the desert and induced to reform. Later he spends most of his time in returning wealth he and his associates had previously stolen. Emory Johnson is the robber who is reformed, Alfred Allen the leader, and the daughter of the wealthy Spaniard is played by Dorothy Davenport. Production is in charge of Lloyd B. Carleton.

Harry Carey has been entrusted with the filming of the story adapted from the Peter B. Kyne story, "The Committee on Credentials." Carey appears in the principal part, that of the owner of the only gambling hall in a western mining town which has sprung up over night. Olive Fuller Golden appears in the feminine lead part, and others are Elizabeth James, Joe Rickson, Neil Hart and George Berrell.

An underworld story being produced at "U" City is entitled "The Viewpoint." This portrays the reformation of a youth who has become an aid to white slave traffic, but decides to change his ways when his pal attempts to take his sister to a notorious resort where she will become a prisoner. Raymond Nye and William Quinn take the part of the youths who aid the underworld resort, and Jessie Arnold and Mina Cunard appear in the parts of the unfortunate girls.

"The First Stone" is Cast in "U" City

Before departing for a vacation to be spent in the East, Lois Weber wrote the scenario for a five-reel subject entitled "The First Stone," which is being made at "U" City. The cast for this includes Mary McDonald, as star, Charles Marriot, Ernest Shields, Jack Mulholland, Grace Johnson, Marion Sioler, Nanine Wright and "Kewpie" Morgan. The story pertains to the experience of an unfortunate girl who accepts a position as a trained nurse, but who in reality had never had experience of this kind previously. All this causes many complications, which after many trying ordeals, are overcome.

There are two new directors at Universal City, Wallace Berry who takes up the filming of a serial, "Timothy Dobbs," and Stuart Payton. The latter will make a big submarine feature. Otis Turner, who has been on a vacation for the past month, has also returned, and will again direct his former company. The first picture to be made is entitled "The Soil," and will consist of two reels. Principals of this are Maude George, Lois Wilson, Harry Carter, and Bertram Grassby.

The Charles Swickard Company at the Horsley studio has been busy filming the last scenes of "The Hand of Destiny," and the other Horsley company, under the direction of Robert Broadwell, is busy with the production of "The King of Make-Believe." This story is by Crane Wilbur, who plays the leading part, that of a motion picture actor. The photoplay has several touches of melodrama.

The Horsley Cub Comedy organization is filming a thriller of the Kentucky hills, "Jerry and the Moonshiners." The title character accidently discovers the hiding place of the moonshiners, and in an unusual manner notifies the revenue officers, who by the aid of the constable arrest the moonshiners. Jerry gets in bad for he had previously come into town on a freight train, and bribed the constable not to arrest him by the liberal use of stage money. Supporting George Ovey in this are Claire Alexander, George George, Jeanette Sully and others.

Requests from exchangemen and exhibitors have caused the E. & R. Jungle Film Company to add a statement to the titles of their subjects, with respect to whether or not the animals used in the pictures are real or costumed imitations. Many exhibitors have written stating that people in their audiences were heard to remark that Napoleon and Sally performed many feats and tricks that would be impossible to teach chimpanzees. For this reason the E. & R. are introducing a trio of educated bears in the picture made this week. The subject is entitled "The Bear Idea," from a scenario by Katherine Wilmette. The story relates to a country girl going to the city, where after becoming well acquainted, informs her friends she wishes to become an animal trainer. When the city lad who wooes her learns of this he refuses to aid her. Then her former sweetheart from the small town visits the city. He pledges his aid, and the city sweetheart, learning of it, "plants" educated bears to chase the youth while he is hunting. A greater portion of the subject contains action in which the bears take part. The principals are Lillian Leighton, Ann Kroman, Russ Powell, and Charles Eggleston. The direction is in charge of Joseph J. Franz.

Variety of Animal Acts from E. & R. Jungle

The E. & R. Company has several other groups of trained animals which have been educated for the vaudeville stage. In all there are five separate and distinct vaudeville acts by different species of animals. After the bears have become popular, another group of animals will be introduced in film making. In this way it will enable the company to give patrons a very wide variety of animal comedies. In addition to Napoleon and Sally, the chimpanzees, and the bears, there are trained pumas, lions, tigers, leopards, and the zoo also contains the greatest collection of monkeys in the United States, there being forty-two different varieties. In order to handle the great number of animals best, the management has found it convenient to name each one. The last two in the list were named this week. The capabera will be known as Ken, an abbreviation for Kenneth, and the recently added burro has been named Rodney.

The Fine Arts studio has sent Director Alan Dwan on an auto trip through central California to select locations for exterior scenes in the film version of "In the Carquinez Woods," an adaption from the Bret Harte California novel. Douglas Fairbanks is to be starred in this, and scenes will be made in the Sequoia National Park, Yosemite Valley, near Santa Cruz, and other points where the decided '49 atmosphere can be found. The filming of this will be taken up by Director Dwan immediately after the completion of the two reel subject in which Fairbanks is now working under the direction of John Emerson. Many of the scenes for this short subject were made at Balboa, where excellent ocean locations are available. Many bathing girls were used and appeared in new creations made especially for the subject.

A Fine Arts Company which included Mae Marsh, Robert Harron, and supports directed by Paul Powell, spent several days at Santa Barbara last week securing scenes for the Irish drama. The costumes for this are said to be very unique, representing as they do the clothing worn by the peasantry of the Emerald Isle half a century ago.

"LONESOME LUKE" AND BEEBE DANIELS, IN "THE HAREM," ROLIN--PATHE

The Frank E. Woods and Bernard McConville photoplay, which stars Dorothy Gish as the school teacher in a small town village, who becomes the target for scandal started by the jealous women, has been named "The School Ma'am." The village is of a western type. The story ends with the complete vindication of the teacher, and her triumph in a romance. The Fine Arts children appear in this, and Elmer Clifton plays the male lead.

Fine Art Director William Christy Cabanne has put in rehearsal a subject in which Lillian Gish will be starred, with W. E. Lawrence playing the opposite role, with Spottiswoode Aitken in the leading character part.

Production Manager Frank E. Woods has cast De Wolf Hopper for the role of an aged actor for a comedy drama, written by Anita Loos, and Bessie Love has been chosen to play opposite. Lloyd Ingraham, who has directed the filming of "Casey at the Bat," will also direct this. Others in this company will be Frank Bennett, Loyola O'Connor, George Pierce, Carl Stockdale and others.

MAYO DIRECTS OWN PLAY, "LOVE'S LAW," AT LUBIN CORONADO STUDIO

Special to Motion Picture News.

San Diego, Cal., May 13.

At the Lubin studio in Coronado the past week Melvin Mayo has been directing a play of his own, entitled "Love's Law." It is a three-reel picture, and is built about a tribal custom among the Indians of the Southwest, by which they do not marry outside their own tribes. Miss Adda Gleason is cast as the Indian girl, C. H. Van Auker as the lover, Alan Forrest as the medicine man's son, who aspires for the maiden's hand; Evelyn Page as Satiska, another Indian girl who secretly loves Settewa; Bird Hopkins as the Acoma chief, W. J. Spencer as the medicine man, and Deane Longshot, an Indian of the Painted Desert at the Exposition, as the Hopi chief. Many of the scenes were taken at the Painted Desert. The new municipal stadium was used for the football scene. Two thousand people, including high school students, were in the pictures taken at the stadium.

Director Jack Byrne staged "The Return of John Boston" the past week. This story is by Millard Wilson and James Douglass. It tells about a prominent novelist who has done all his work under a nom de plume. When there comes a popular demand for the personal appearance of the writer at social functions he details his private secretary to assume the pen name and appear, instead of going himself. George Routh takes the part of Gordon Edwards, otherwise known as "John Boston"; Millard Wilson is Arthur Williams, the secretary; Miss Golda Madden, recently with the Biograph, is seen as Edith Bates, otherwise Miriam Lee, the artist; Adelaide Bronti appears as the girl's mother.

All the members of the Lubin staff have been given a week's vacation to compensate for the frequent Sunday work which they have given the management. While they are absent in Los Angeles and other places, some alterations and renovations will be made about the studio, preparatory to resuming operations the following Monday. Capt. Wilbert Melville and his office manager, M. T. George, will spend some of the time in the north, aboard the captain's private yacht. Allen H. Wright.

LOEW TAKES CHAPLIN'S "POLICE!" FOR ALL HIS NEW YORK THEATRES

The time required by the Marcus Loew chain of theatres in Greater New York to decide that the Essanay-Chaplin comedy feature, "Police!" was needed for the entertainment of the thousands of patrons who daily visit these theatres was only the time necessary to inspect the film.

"We'll take it and play it a week in each of our theatres," Mr. Loew's representative told the General Film Service man immediately after the last scene on the film had faded away.

Patents Committee Recommends Amendment to Copyright Law as Aid to Picture Makers

THE committee on patents of the House of Representatives has favorably recommended the bill recently introduced by Congressman Oglesby (H. R. 13981) amending the copyright law so that in the case of any work wherein copyright has been secured by publication of their work with notice of copyright, which by reason of its character, bulk, fragility, or because of dangerous ingredients cannot expediently be filed, the register of copyrights may determine that there shall be deposited, in lieu of two complete copies of such work, such identifying photographs or prints, together with such written or printed descriptions of the work as he shall find sufficient to identify it. It is further provided, in the case of motion picture photoplays and motion pictures other than photoplays, whenever deposit has been made as required by the provision of the copyright law, and registration has been secured, deposit and registration is to be held to be sufficient, and shall exempt the copyright proprietor from the deposit of two complete copies of the photoplay or motion picture if it is later reproduced in copies for sale.

In the case of motion pictures the law would provide that deposit and registration would be sufficient, whether the motion pictures have been reproduced in copies for sale or otherwise published, and the copyright proprietor would be exempt from the deposit of two complete copies if it has been reproduced in copies for sale.

Motion pictures were declared subject matter of copyright by the act of August 24, 1912. Registration of copyright in motion pictures was provided for in section 11 of the copyright act as amended, upon the deposit of title and description, and of the specified prints taken from the different sections or from each scene or act, respectively, depending upon whether the motion picture is a photoplay or otherwise. The registration under section 11, however, was for works not reproduced for sale, and the concluding sentence of that section further provided that "the "privilege of registration of copyright secured hereunder shall not exempt the copyright proprietor from the deposit of copies, under sections 12 and 13 of this act, where the work is later reproduced in copies for sale."

Section 12 requires that after copyright has been secured by publication of the work (i. e., sale or public distribution) two complete copies of the best edition of the work must be promptly deposited after such publication. In view of the proviso in section 11, and the requirement of the deposit of two complete copies in section 12, motion-picture proprietors have felt obliged to make deposit of two complete reels in the case of all motion pictures which have been reproduced in copies for sale (i. e., published). This has imposed a burdensome obligation upon such proprietors which was not intended. The complete reels are expensive, sometimes very expensive, and they are practically of no greater value for the identification of the motion picture in which copyright is claimed than the selected prints together with the title and description required by section 11 to be deposited in the case of a motion picture. The deposit of the complete reels is of no service to the copyright office, and these articles are of no value to the Library of Congress, and by reason of their inflammable character are dangerous. Such deposit also imposes an added burden upon the copyright office to no purpose. Motion picture manufacturers have expressed approval of the purpose and the language of the bill. It is the opinion of the committee that it should become law.

LICENSE FEE IN BANGOR, ME., REDUCED TO $10

It is with great relief that the motion picture men of Bangor, Me., are this year enabled to obtain a license to conduct a theatre in Bangor for a fee of ten dollars, after being imposed upon for several years with a fifty-dollar fee. The order passed by the city administration, retired the latter part of March, did not take effect until last week.

LOUISVILLE CENSOR BOARD ELECTS OFFICERS

The Louisville Board of Censors, which oversees the films exhibited each week at the children's shows at the Mary Anderson theatre, have elected officers for the year as follows: President, Mrs. Fred Levy; vice-president, Mrs. Helm Bruce; treasurer, Mrs. Robert L. Moore; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Bernice Bell; recording secretary, Mrs. Anne Waters.

MINISTERS IN ATCHISON, KAN., AGAINST SUNDAY OPENING

It is reported that a campaign against Sunday shows is being planned in Atchison, Kan. The ministers of that town are writing cities in Kansas that prohibit such shows and are endeavoring to get information on that subject.

Wichita Theatres Organize to Fight for Sunday Opening; Will Move to Have Present Ordinance Repealed

AFTER being stepped on and trodden on for several years, the moving picture men of Wichita, Kansas, are rising in protest, the same taking form of an organization of every theatre owner in that city for the purpose of eliminating the ordinance prohibiting the showing of moving pictures on Sunday. They are being backed in this enterprise by the business men of the town, who are really the agitators of the movement. The organization is composed of every theatre owner in town, both large and small.

Wichita has a local ordinance prohibiting any kind of amusement in that city, whether admission be charged or not, which the moving picture men claim is unconstitutional. Instead of taking it through a series of court trials, it is their plan to call a special election, asking the people of Kansas if they want Sunday pictures. Judging from the interest the city is taking in the campaign it will be as hotly contested as any mayoralty election.

Most of the Kansas towns have similar laws, so it is probable that the owners of theatres in other parts of Kansas will take the action of the Wichita people as an indication of what to expect in their respective towns. It is very doubtful if similar laws could be repealed in all of the Kansas towns, but as Wichita is the second largest city in the state, there is an even chance for the moving picture men.

BRITISH COLUMBIA FACES THEATRE SEAT TAX

Following the lead of three other provinces, the British Columbia government is considering the levying of a special tax on theatre tickets, and although no legislation has yet been introduced, it is a possibility of the present session. The announced intention is to provide a tax of one, two or three cents on every ticket to a moving picture theatre, stamps being supplied to exhibitors to be sold to patrons for affixing to the tickets.

Moving picture men of the province have protested against the proposed measure, claiming that it is unconstitutional, and that it would result in a vast amount of inconvenience and objection on the part of theatre-goers.

British Public Pays Seat Tax for Seeing Pictures

Special to Motion Picture News.

London, May 6.

BY the time these lines appear in print patrons of British picture houses will have had their first experience of the Entertainment Tax. Some amendments have been made, which have had the effect of clearing up a few ambiguities, and generally making the proposals much more acceptable. Not the least important of these has been putting back the date on which the tax was to take effect, from May 1 to May 15. The normal method of paying the duty will be by stamped tickets, but in special cases where the issue and defacement of stamped tickets would be very inconvenient, owing to the very large number of people admitted to an entertainment within a very short space of time, proprietors may make application to the Board of Customs and Excise to be allowed to pay the duty in weekly payments on the basis of certified accounts furnished by them, on giving satisfactory security.

This official communication was warmly welcomed by those managers whose houses are equipped with a ticket machine, and will simplify very considerably the working of the measure. An incidental aspect of the Entertainment Tax not hitherto thrown into prominence was that dealing with the allotment of complimentary seats. The question was asked in the House of Commons, "Would the tax apply to 'deadheads,' or complimentary ticket holders?" such, I suppose, as bill exhibitors and press representatives. It was then made clear that the tax would be levied on payments only, and the deadheads would still remain deadheads. There is to be no relief for children except at special children's matinees. Thus, if a youngster goes to the picture theatre in the evening with his elders, he must pay the halfpenny or penny tax, as the case may be. The tax will not be payable on charges where the commissioners are satisfied that the entertainment is wholly of an educational character, and that the entertainment is intended only for children, and that the price of admission is not more than one penny for each patron. Generally speaking, the proposals are regarded as quite equitable, but there are, of course, one or two slight discrepancies.

Unfair Percentage

It is obviously unfair, for instance, that while the poorer sections of the community must pay something like fifty per cent, the wealthy need only pay slightly less than seven per cent. There has been, and is, a feeling that it would be much better if the penny patron had been exempted altogether. In a nutshell, the proposals, as they will be put into effect, are as follows:

Admission Charge.	Tax.
Below 2d. and including 2d.	½d.
2½d. to 6d.	1d.
6½d. to 2s. 6d.	2d.
2s. 6½d. to 5s.	3d.
5s. ½d. to 7s. 6d.	6d.
7s. 6½d. to 12s. 6d.	1s.

Beyond 12s 6d. the tax will be one shilling on every ten shillings or part of ten shillings in excess of 12s. 6d. The tax will be levied (1) by means of stamped tickets to be obtained from the commissioners, or (2) by special adhesive stamps to be affixed to the proprietors' own tickets, or (3) by proprietors furnishing a return to the authorities on which the tax will be calculated. Transfer tickets are involved in the provisions, and the tax will be in accordance with the scale. Immediately a patron obtains his admission to the entertainment the stamp on the ticket must be obliterated. This, briefly, is the skeleton of the act as it stands, and in view of the unanimity with which it has been received, one has no doubt that every endeavor will be made to insure its success with a minimum of friction.

The prominence to which the multi film, now so popular in America, has obtained has obviously had the effect of reducing the output of short open market films, at one time so plentiful. There is a demand for short dramas, and one is glad to note that the Trans-Atlantic Company, among other leading firms, has made provision for it. In the course of the next seven weeks this firm will be releasing no less than fourteen one reel dramas, amongst the earliest of which are "The Silent Member" (Rex), "Her Dream Man" (Laemmle), and "All for Love" (Victor). Selig is also putting on the market a number of very acceptable short length dramas, featuring some of their leading artistes. In both these categories there is a vast preponderance of American productions.

Official War Films Shown

The fourth of the series of official war films has just been exhibited to the trade, and in their comprehensiveness and interest ably vindicate the excellence of those already released. The latest four productions are between five hundred and six hundred feet each in length, and the titles are: "Lord Kitchener in France," "The Irish at the Front," "Letters from Home," and "With the R. A. M. C."

The latest Board of Trade returns (for March), dealing with the importation and exportation of film, reveal an astonishing increase in the value of imported American film stock. Compared with the month of February, there is a difference of nearly £100,000. The total value of imported films during March is £160,000, of which over £140,000 came from America, £12,000 from France, and nearly £8,000 from other countries. The increase from France and other countries compared with the preceding month is £3,000. During the past twelve months the figures have fluctuated very considerably, but the month of March, so far as imports are concerned, stands out pre-eminently. The restrictions which have been imposed on exports has reduced the quantity dispatched abroad during March, compared with February, by fully fifty per cent, and March exports were valued at only £6,500—a very low figure indeed. Summarizing the return for the first quarter of the year, they are: Imports, £309,000 (£257,000 United States), and exports, just on £30,000.

American films of distinctive merit well received by the trade in this country have been: "The Evangelist" (Lubin Sovereign film), "Blindness of Love" (Metro), "The Soul Market" (Metro), "Fight for a Fortune" (Imp), "Diplomacy" and "Mice and Men" (Famous Players), and "Heights of Hazard" (Blue Ribbon). "An American Home" (Vitagraph) is being looked forward to with particular zest. The first of the Fox Film Company's trade shows, at which "Samson" and "A Fool There Was" were screened, was attended by a most representative gathering of film men, and the Fox organization has certainly made its debut under very happy circumstances. It is intended to release one feature every week. The Triangle Company is another enterprise about to make its debut here, and their first four films will be "Fatty and Mabel," "Peggy," "Let Katy Do It," and "The Submarine Pirate," showing Syd Chaplin.

It is generally recognized that the censorship of films in this country, owing to the non-recognition by local authorities of the certificates issued by the British Board of Film Censors, is most unsatisfactory, involving as it does frequent anomalies in decisions on the merits of particular films in different parts of the country. For a long time the recognition of the British Board, or the setting up of new machinery by the government has been advocated to avoid the vexatious situations which occasionally arise. Considerable intest therefore attaches to the deputation of members of municipal corporations, including the chief constables of several important centers, which has waited on the Home Secretary. One of the subjects discussed was the central censorship of films, and the topic was one which seemed to command considerable favor. It is earnestly hoped that the powers that be will make a forward move very shortly, and thus terminate the inconsistencies which occur all over the country in the adjudication of films.

Authors and American Films

During the few months the David Hoosley "Cub" comedies have been in circulation here sales have gone up 200 per cent since they were first introduced. The agent in this country is N. D. Russell. The Vitagraph Sidney Drew comedies are also extremely popular.

According to The Author, the Cinema Sub-Committee of the Authors' Society has been discussing the matter of the large importantion of American films, having regard to the position of British authors. Their conclusions are embodied in a resolution to the Managements Committee, in which they recommend that a substantial tax be placed on American films with the exception of original film plays by British authors and films based on books and plays of British authors from which British authors derived benefit.

Edna Mayo Popular Abroad

The Essanay Company, when they release their new serial, should benefit from the publicity which Miss Edna Mayo, who takes the leading role, is now receiving in the British weekly press. It is said that Miss Mayo is to contribute to some of the well-known newspapers a series of fashion notes.

DUNCAN McRAE IS LEAD FOR VIOLA DANA IN A METRO

Duncan McRae, the English dramatic artist, who has been the director general at the Edison Company, is now appearing as leading man for Viola Dana in "The Flower of No Man's Land," in which both will make their debut on the Metro program. Mr. McRae is a brother of Bruce McRae and comes from a well-known theatrical family.

Interest in American Pictures in Australia Takes a Regular Kangaroo Leap

Special to Motion Picture News.

Sydney, N. S. W., April 13.

AUSTRALASIAN Films, Ltd., have decided not to make a bi-weekly change of Triangle films and are, from this week, screening three subjects nightly, while the program for the continuous performance (11:45 till 6:00) consists of a Keystone comedy and an Ince or Griffith drama.

"Within the Law," Bayard Veiller's play, which had a successful run of sixteen weeks on the legitimate stage in Sydney, and also made good in the other Australian cities, has been made into pictures by J. C. Williamson, Ltd., and was screened at the Theatre Royal last Saturday. The screen version ran for a fortnight at the Paramount Theatre, Melbourne, prior to its showing in this city. With the exception of Sidney Stirling, Theodore Boase, and Clarence Blakiston, this four reeler presents the original cast as on the stage. The picture suffers in comparison with the speaking version, but nevertheless affords good entertainment. The photographer, W. J. Lincoln, has given the best effects possible. Monte Luke directed the filming of the production.

J. C. Williamson, Ltd., have announced the schedule of rates to be charged for the forthcoming season of "The Birth of a Nation". 6s., 4s., 3s., 2s. and 1s. (approximately in dollars, $1.50, $1.00, 75, 50 and 25 cents) will be charged. An orchestra of twenty-five will render appropriate music and suitable new settings will be built on the stage to accompany the production.

"The Martyrdom of Nurse Cavell" has been reported to be making great business at New Zealand theatres.

The first Broadway Universal feature to be released by the Fraser Film Exchange, "Mrs. Plum's Pudding," will be shown at the Royal next week.

Frank Elliot, who played the "city man" in Bosworth's "Sunshine Molly" and Alan Wilson in Metro's "High Road," has been engaged by the J. C. Williamson management to play a large part in their new play "On Trial," opposite Madge Fabian.

In the same play will appear three other artists who have appeared in pictures, viz.: Winter Hall, Sydney Stirling, and Alma Rock Phillips.

ONE CENT TAX ON THEATRE TICKETS IN EFFECT IN ONTARIO

One Cent War Tax Ticket went into effect in Ontario on May 15. To save its customers trouble and expense of mailing or postage, the Canadian Universal Film Company has arranged with the government to carry a full stock of tickets, which will be supplied to the customer, along with his regular shipment. As ticket chopping boxes are also required by the new law, the same company is arranging to have a supply of cheap, yet efficient boxes manufactured for the convenience and benefit of the exhibitors.

ALBERTA HAS ITS EYE ON SOME OF THE FILM PROFITS

The Alberta legislature recently passed a bill providing for the taxation of all incorporated companies with a capitalization in excess of $20,000, a provincial tax of twenty cents on each $1,000 of capitalization being levied. Companies with a smaller capitalization than that mentioned are exempt.

WILLIAMSON BUYS AUSTRALIAN RIGHTS TO "RACE SUICIDE"

Joseph W. Farnham, distributor of "Race Suicide," the six-part motion picture drama, announces that the exclusive rights to the film for Australia and New Zealand have been purchased by the J. C. Williamson Company, Ltd.

JUST TO MAKE TALK

By LONGACRE

WE fall back upon our ancient right—guaranteed by Magna Charta, and tacitly assented to by the Boss—of reprinting anything which pleases us. The following words are those of Franklin P. Adams, in the New York Tribune:

THE POPULAR ALIBI.

The publisher in wrath declares
The book trade's full of strictures—
"The people do not purchase books—
They go to motion pictures."

The baseball magnate ground his teeth,
"No longer are we sunny.
The ball game used to draw them; now
The movies get the money."

"We used to stand 'em up each night—
Oh, how we used to kill 'em!"
Declared the Broadway manager,
"But now they love the fillum."

And when folks ask me why I don't Produce some wondrous verses,
I find I have a excuse—
And shower the films with curses.

SHEEHAN-LAURELL—Winfield R. Sheehan, of the Fox Film Corporation, and Miss Kay Laurell, late of the Ziegfield "Follies," were married in London, May 10. This newest merger, it seems, will make a decided change in Mr. Sheehan's plans, as it is understood his honeymoon will take him through France, and then into South America. He will carry a lot of good wishes with him no matter where the itinerary takes him.

Lois Weber, Universal director, has been flooded with manuscripts lately. As a sample of many she has received, she has summarized one which she tells us she regards as a masterpiece:

1. A girl disguises as a messenger boy.
2. She goes as a reporter to a millionaire's home.
3. She discovers that the millionaire is her father.

The fearlessness and unconventionality of these scenario editors causes a throb to rise up in the throat like a lump in the mashed potatoes. We quote literally from the proud announcement just received from a press department:

"It can be done! In fact it has been done! Humans held spellbound by a human story on the screen, . . . which, according to the ethics of 'the popular drama' should be a hopeless failure because: There is no villain; no vampire woman; no murder by the old toll-gate; no rags - are - royal - raiment - when-worn - for-virtue's-sake; no furniture broken in a fight; no one pulls a gun; no one chokes the leading lady; no one forges a check; no one steals the baby; no one plants a bomb; no one cracks the safe; no dictograph; no lawyer; no mortgage; no poison. Everything the public is supposed to want is absent, yet 'Dollars and the Woman,' a Lubin photoplay version of Albert Payson Terhune's story, 'Dollars and Cents,' is creating a stir that already marks it as the most notable screen success of the season."

We admit that the offering in question is a good and successful picture; but we invite attention to the last sentence of the press matter. If the supposed cravings of the public were so fearlessly ignored, why was the title changed? Why inject "The Woman" even into the title?

To our esteemed fellow-craftsman, Epes Winthrop Sargent, we extend greetings. He certainly knows a clever thing when he sees it. If, however, he is at all interested in the matter of sources, and will compare the quotation of page 1328 of his publication of May 20, with page 1896 of MOTION PICTURE NEWS for April 1, he may be repaid. It's a cinch to get up a bright sparkling program if one has a copy of the "NEWS" at hand.

We feel like apologizing in our diffident manner for the heading of our department this week. What with two trade expositions just finished, and the junket of the producers and distributers to Albany to see Governor Whitman, artificial aids to conversation are like shipping a load of soft coal to Newcastle, Ind.

However, since our instructions are to "make talk," do you know that:

Sol L. Lesser has pulled up stakes and gone back to the coast for the summer?

Lewis J. Selznick and E. Richard Schayer have moved the Clara Kimball Young Company into our own little hut at Seventh Avenue and Forty-ninth Street?

Metro has altered its offices in order to make more room for the publicity department and Merritt Crawford?

That new advertisers are "looking in on us" each week?

That the next studio directory of MOTION PICTURE NEWS will be issued on September 9?

Surely, the film industry is full of a number of things.

It is Al. Williams' idea of the height of devotion to duty to make up with a large vandyke beard over a sunburned face.

A large silver cup has been awarded to Harry Reichenbach, as the third prize for the personal appearance of booths at the late Grand Central Palace show. The cup, we learn, will not be placed on exhibition until Black, Starr and Frost finish their appraisal.

The Bayside Bugle

Vol. I. No. 1. Bayside, L. I., May 21, 1916 Ten cts. a copy

EDITORIAL

There being so many of our popular and genial thespians connected with motion pictures and the spoken stage having taken up their domicile in this pleasant section, we having quite a colony of the same hereabouts, for this summer, not only in our beautiful village, but in the suburbs of Murray Hill and Great Neck, that it has been thought as well to give the news of their doings to the outside world.

Hence we have established the BUGLE, to be issued weekly, which will be devoted not only to the news as aforesaid, but also to their interests and welfare, and our motto being "one for all and all for 1, and let the chips fall where they may." We will be fair and impartial to all, and although not accepting any liquor advertising, although we are good friends with our genial fellow townsman, Jim McKenna, of here, yet we do not desire to have the finger of scandal pointed in our direction, so many being apt to say there is liquor money behind our venture, which we hasten to say without fear of successful contradiction, there is not.

So the BUGLE makes this bow to the public, and our ☞ is extended to all.

THE EDITOR.

Other Trade Journals

YOU will be interested in the following rate comparisons. Note the striking difference between the advertising page rates of trade journals which go only to the dealer and class journals which go to the same but to the whole general field.

(1) Automobile Topics, Circulation 9,000, $90 a page or $10 per thousand circulation.

Motor Print, Circulation 50,000, $200 a page or $4 per thousand circulation.

(2) Paint, Circulation 3,400, $60 a page or $17.60 a thousand circulation.

House Beautiful, Circulation 45,000, $350 a page or $8 a thousand circulation.

(3) Dry Goods Economist, Circulation 12,000, $150 a page or $12.50 a thousand.

Pictorial Review, Circulation 1,000,000, $4,500 a page or $4.50 a thousand circulation.

(4) Music Trades, Circulation 15,000, $125 a page or $8.30 a thousand.

Etude, Circulation 226,500, $600 a page or $2.75 a thousand.

Or to come right back to our own field.

Motion Picture News, Circulation 12,000, $72 a page or $6 a thousand.

Motion Picture Magazine, Circulation 265,000, $250 a page or less than $1 a thousand.

You will note that the trade journal advertising rate is from two to six times greater per thousand circulation than the class journal rate.

And naturally so, because (1) the trade journal goes to the dealer whose purchases are many times greater than the consumers'—(in this field it is the exhibitors' booking expense against the patrons' ten cent admission fee) and (2) because the trade journal (the successful one) is always a very large, very expensive magazine with a limited circulation and hence with a very large manufacturing loss per copy.

You will also note that none of the above trade journals can be found on the news-stands, whereas all of the class journals find their heaviest sale there.

The trade journals guard their circulation very carefully. They concentrate on the trade. Being compelled to charge you a heavy rate for this limited but important trade circulation, they have no desire to burden your shoulders and their own with (3) the heavy and utter loss of outside or non-useful circulation.

You will also note that Motion Picture News' advertising rate of $6 per thousand circulation is lower than that of any of the above trade journals.

In fact, if you will write to any advertising agency you will find that Motion Picture News' advertising rate is the lowest trade journal rate in this country.

And again, if you will compare Motion Picture News with any journal of any other trade you will find that its number of editorial pages are greater pro rata by almost 100 per cent.

No journal of any other trade carries such an abundance of editorial matter.

That is unavoidable (1) because the trade is a weekly change one and bubbling with weekly news and (2) the advertisers, by custom, expect editorial notice.

We have no objection to the latter custom, but we simply ask in turn that you expect us only to print news about you, news of business value to the reader and secondly that you understand and appreciate our exceptionally large editorial section with its heavily entailed expense and our comparatively low—very low—advertising rate.

The UNIVERSAL GREATEST PROGRAM ON EARTH

WEEK AFTER WEEK, a steady stream of letters keeps pouring in from Exhibitors all over this country. READ those printed below, and remember that people are people the world over.

D. E. Stewart, manager of the Red Mill Theatre, Hamilton, Ont., writes: "As the oldest Universal exhibitor in Canada, I feel that I ought to say a few words concerning the success of a mixed program policy WHICH I HAVE HELD TO UNINTERRUPTEDLY FOR OVER FIVE YEARS. I have taken nothing but Universal program, AND HAVE SUCCEEDED WONDERFULLY. In Canada the past two years have been exceptionally trying and ONLY THE FITTEST HOUSES HAVE SURVIVED THE STRAIN. Certainly a program of mixed reels is the thing."

P. J. Nolan, of the Rex Theatre Ottawa, says: "The Rex Theatre in Ottawa HAS BEEN MAKING GOOD PROFITS USING UNIVERSAL SERVICE, WHILE MANY OTHER HOUSES USING FEATURES ALONE HAVE BEEN WORKING AT A DEAD LOSS."

Harry Pomeroy, of the Belmont Theatre, Toronto, writes: "We have strong opposition in the residential section of Toronto where one might suspect that the big features would be the best drawing card. However, with the REGULAR UNIVERSAL PROGRAM, we have been filling the house, playing to capacity WEEK AFTER WEEK."

If there is the least doubt in your mind as to which is the best plan for you to pursue, get busy and ASK YOUR PEOPLE. Take a test vote every night for a week or every afternoon or as often as you like. Then write or wire your nearest Universal Exchange for the Universal Program.

Flora Parker DeHaven in "The Madcap." From the story by the celebrated author and artist George Gibbs. Nineteenth Red Feather Production. Directed by Wm. C. Dowlan. Released June 5. It's a dangerous thing for a young woman as pretty as Flora to throw conventions to the winds, no matter how innocent her intentions may be. You see she was very rich, and she had tried everything wealth and position had to offer—even to driving a racing car and an aeroplane, and she was bored. Didn't know what to do to kill time, and when she met the big, silent portrait painter, who was inclined to ignore her, she enjoyed him as a novelty. He set out for a week's walking trip and she went with him. Of course they were discovered and what everyone said was a-plenty, you can be sure of that. It is a situation that will grip your audiences, and establish Flora Parker DeHaven more surely than ever as a star who can get it over—whether it is emotions, heart throbs or light and joyful romance and love making. Book this for the treat it will give your patrons and for the prestige it will bring your house.

Herbert Rawlinson in "The Rose Colored Scarf." With dainty Agnes Vernon. Three Reel Gold Seal Romantic Society Drama. Directed by Wm. Worthington. Released June 6. It's a darned lucky thing for Herbert that he kept that piece of rose colored scarf in his pocketbook for two long years, because Agnes surely thought he'd forgotten her, until he flashed the fragment for an alibi. Herbert loved her all right, but as her father's chauffeur he figured he had about as much right or chance to win her as the man in the moon, even though he was born a gentleman. Agnes plotted to make him see things different and luck, love and her woman's wits all being on her side she won hands down—no—arms up—around her neck. A bully picture that will please every audience, make 'em feel good all over and thank you for three reels of "regular" entertainment.

"Object Matrimony." With Harry Myers and Rosemary Theby. Two Reel Victor Comedy Drama. Released June 7. Harry's object was matrimony all right, but he was so darned busy making love to Rosemary that he lost his job. Then he became a professional fiance for a marriage broker, showing up at Rosemary's house with a pocketful of phoney engagement rings. Dodging widows with large families and old maids with cats and parrots soon put Harry on the blink, so he collected his salary and—well, what would you do if the girl was willing? A lot of fun.

"Alias Jane Jones." With Edna Maison and Edward Hearn. Two Reel Laemmle Detective Drama. Directed by Ray Meyers. Released June 8. This is a double-barreled detective story; at first it masquerades as a crook story and you don't know whether to sympathize with Edna, the lovely confidence woman or not. But when you find out that she loves Edward you're glad to learn that she is the cleverest of women detectives, and they can get the license whenever they want to.

"The Scorpion's Sting." Three Reel Imp Melodrama. Released June 9. I don't care how highbrow a person is, he (or she) simply craves good old blood and thunder mellerdrama every so often, and sometimes oftener. And here you've got it. A chance for everyone to be a dyed-in-the-wool gallery god for a while; to see the villain suffer and the hero triumph; crime punished and virtue rewarded and a close-up with the hero and hero-wine in each others arms. Splendidly acted, lavishly produced and directed with great judgment.

"The Cage Man." With G. Raymond Nye and Roberta Wilson. Two Reel 101-Bison Drama of Revenge. Directed by Jacques Jaccard. Released June 10. One of the most unusual stories of the season. The lucky rival for the hand of a beautiful girl soon neglects her for his club and the poker table. The unsuccessful one is a doctor who chivalrously protects the lonely wife, and successfully controls his passion. In a drunken rage the husband shoots at the doctor, misses him but kills a policeman called by the butler to stop the fight. The husband goes to prison, serves his time and is released—with but one idea burned into his maddened brain—REVENGE. What follows makes the biggest and tensest situations followed by a most unexpected climax you have ever seen, and finishes a remarkable and fascinating picture.

Ben Wilson in "The Sheriff of Pine Mountain." With Dorothy Phillips. Two Reel Rex Drama of the North. Directed by Ben Wilson. Released June 11. Ben is always there when it comes to the red-blooded, rugged, manly stuff, and your audiences will be glad to revel in this picture of the Northern snows on the hot days of June following release date. While this is a story of mistaken identity, it is worked up in a new and novel manner that makes it one of the most original stories of the year.

Where are my Children?

Blocks Broadway Traffic

Old Timers along the Great White Way who saw the huge mob struggling to gain admission to the GLOBE THEATRE to see "Where Are My Children" pronounced it "Unbelievable" that Broadway Traffic could be blocked by ANY Moving picture ever produced.

Yet the crowd shown in the picture reproduced below is ONLY the crowd that jammed the sidewalk in front of the Globe Theatre.

Inside, in the lobby (which is nearly 100 feet deep), another huge crowd was massed from doors to entrance. That's how "Where Are My Children" packed 'em in on Broadway, the hardest show street in the world, and in spite of the fierce competition in this, the greatest Theatre neighborhood in the world. The New York Newspapers, the Clergy, the Trade Press and the Public pronounced it "Wonderful," "Amazing," "Sensational," "Dignified." With

"Salvation of Industry Hinges on Real Plots"—Lasky

Fault is Not With Players, Directors, Cameramen and Other Studio Assistants, But With the People Who Furnish Scripts for Them to Work On—Dramatists Complain of Small Compensation, But Lasky Says They Will Receive Just Due When They Write Worth-While Scenarios

THAT the art of motion picture producing is not advancing, but is almost at a standstill, is the opinion of Jesse L. Lasky, president of the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company, as expressed in an interview given to MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

Mr. Lasky, analyzing the cause for the lack of progress at the present time, exonerates from blame actors, directors, cameramen, technical workers. The root of the evil, he believes, is to be found in the trashy stories with which the screen is swamped.

"The situation is critical," says Mr. Lasky. "If the motion picture drama is to progress it will need better stories, far better stories, than it has been receiving of late."

The interview follows:

"After the most rapid advance, the most marvelous progress and quick development ever achieved in a new art or a new industry, the producers of motion pictures have suddenly found themselves at a standstill. This is a truth which few will deny, and much as I personally hate to voice it, it is a truth that must be recognized. To disarm criticism at the very start, I will admit that this statement is general. A few individual producers are making progress. I predict that Griffith's 'Mother and the Law' will surpass his 'Birth of a Nation.' Ince shows marked advancement in his 'Civilization' over his former productions. Three months after his 'Carmen' was pronounced his masterpiece, De Mille surpassed it with 'The Cheat.' A very few other producing geniuses are forging ahead. Slowly it is true, but the art is advancing. Still, when one considers that there are approximately twenty-five five-reel features released in America every week, the majority of them not worthy of the name, we are forced to the conclusion that the wonderful advancement that marked the earlier development of the motion picture has slowed down to a large degree, so that I am forced to reiterate my first assertion; viz., the art of motion picture producing is not advancing, but is almost at a standstill.

What Is the Trouble?

"When we think of the vast possibilities of motion drama, this fact is the more to be deplored. Every cause has its reason. Let us see if we can find the reason for the lack of progress in the newest art.

"Our actors, including as they now do the survivors of the old movie school and the newcomers from the legitimate stage, are the best in the world. The older school of movie artists are those who, although they lacked stage or dramatic experience, developed a wonderful and new technique of their own. The Gish sisters, Blanche Sweet, Mae Marsh are examples of this type. The newcomer, the legitimate actor, chosen from the very best the speaking stage afforded, such artists as Tyrone Power, Theodore Roberts, Bessie Barriscale, are now, with the other, or screen artists, the rank and file that compose the stock companies of the motion picture studios. With the best, the foremost, the greatest stars in the world devoting themselves exclusively to the screen drama, we can eliminate the actor as either a direct or indirect cause of the recent lack of progress.

"Our cameramen, many of them famous old still photographers, all of them veterans in the newer art, quiet, determined, thoughtful, studious, daring, always experimenting—surely no blame can be attached to them. Rather must we say, 'Well done, oh, cameraman, the great art owes much to you.' It is a fact that in the last year motion picture photography has advanced marvelously well. New and wonderful lighting, perfect double and triple exposure, a dozen wonderful effects, have marked the constant progress of motion picture photography. The cameraman is pronounced with firm conviction 'Not Guilty.' And the modern new laboratories have kept pace with the photographer.

"Our scenic artists have progressed. The scenes and settings of all periods defy the criticisms of the most critical; there can be no question on this point. The art director and scenic artist are eliminated. Also, we can exonerate their brother, the property builder and the property man. Using at all times the real, the genuine, in place of the imitation, skillfully duplicating the rarest art treasures of the old world—surely he, too, deserves a word of praise rather than censure.

Directors Not at Fault

"And now, most important of all, the director, the old school men, the pioneers, experienced in picture producing from its very inception, striving, studying, inventing, progressing, they are doing their conscientious best, and they are not standing still. Reinforced by the ablest men fro the ranks of the dramatic or stage directors, who, bringing new ideas and tireless energy, with a world of dramatic training and experience, gave the motion drama a real push forward—surely the directors of both classes can be exonerated. But in spite of their efforts, the cameraman's efforts, the art director's, scenic artist's, property man's efforts, the new laboratories and the unnumbered thousands spent weekly by the too numerous producing firms, I reiterate for the third time, the motion picture drama is not progressing to any appreciable degree at the present moment.

"Now, if all of the above are doing so much, striving so hard to advance the new art, why is it not advancing? The answer is in Shakespeare's famous line, 'The play is the thing.' As in the spoken drama, so it is with the moving picture drama, the play is always the thing, the foundation, the heart, the vitals, the very life of the motion picture drama. And our dramatists, novelists, short story writers, scenarioists are not delivering real plays. They are writing manuscripts, yes, by the tens, hundreds, the thousands, but not ten per cent are living, breathing, human interest stories, worthy of the name or of the noble effort the directors and their assistants and associates are putting into this trash.

"Therefore I say that the motion picture dramatic art is at a standstill, as far as real progress is concerned, on account of the poorly constructed, quickly conceived stories or plays it is receiving from the majority of the authors who are writing for the screen. If the motion picture drama is to progress, and strengthen the marvelous hold it already has on the affections of the public as a form of amusement, it will need better stories, far better stories, than it has been receiving of late. The situation is critical. I need hardly refer to the unsatisfactory conditions prevailing in the industry at the present time; the need for better pictures is paramount. Yet the authors are not rising to the situation; they are not taking their work seriously enough. Mr. Dramatist conceives what he thinks is a good idea for a picture play and dashes it off in a week. It is sent to the hard-pressed producer, and he, for lack of something better and because release dates must be met and expensive stars and stock companies get their salaries whether they are working or not, turns it over reluctantly and often apologetically to the director, who does his best, and our beloved art suffers. This same Mr. Dramatist who writes his photoplay drama in a week is accustomed to spend from six months to a year, and often longer, in the writing of one play for the stage, and in this fact I think we have the root of the evil. Our writers will not give the thought, take the time, nor expend the energy necessary to write a really good play worthy of the name.

"They complain that the reward is not enough, that they are not well enough paid. I am inclined to agree that they are not well enough paid, but they are receiving full value for the material they are at present turning out. I predict that when our dramatists give us real plays, plays that will live on the screen and that the public will want to see more than once, the producers will gladly pay by outright purchase or royalties, sums that will satisfy the most exacting demands of our greatest writers. Plays of human interest, well motived, with well constructed plots and dramatic situations, characters that might have lived, doing things we could believe—good honest, but clean, wholesome, comedies, with real plots and situations—these are the kind of plays we need, and not until we get them, and we need them by the scores, yea, by the hundreds, will the great new art, which has already advanced so far, continue to progress until it takes the first rank as the greatest of all arts, the place it is aiming for and the place it so well deserves."

SUMMER OUTINGS PLANNED BY PITTSBURGH SCREEN CLUB

Special to Motion Picture News.

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 13.

A series of outings has been planned by the Pittsburgh Screen Club for the summer.

The club has moved to its new quarters in the Lyceum Building, in Penn avenue, and last Sunday it had one of the largest meetings in the history of the organization. The club membership is growing and it is stated before long there will be a campaign started for the raising of funds for the building of a Club building.

The members appointed at the meeting held last Sunday who will arrange for the outings of the organization to be held this summer were Charles Seltzer, John Long, P. A. Mansfield and Max W. Herring.

Mohn McAleer made an exhaustive report relative to his trip to New York City, where he went to raise funds for the fighting of the State Censorship laws of Pennsylvania. He stated that he was given a guarantee from the Motion Picture Board of Trade that that body would lend assistance in the fight in this state.

NASH IS AGAIN WITH SELIG ON WEST COAST

Los Angeles, May 13.

Since the arrival of James L. McGee as manager of the Selig Polyscope interests here, Thomas Nash has been added to the staff as manager of production. Mr. Nash was formerly associated with the Selig Company, which he retained for a period of sixteen years. Two years ago Mr. Nash resigned, and organized the Nash Motion Picture Company, the affairs of which he has conducted until this time.

The Selig Company has engaged Arthur Shirley to play the lead opposite Kathlyn Williams in "The Valiants of Virginia," which is being produced by Director T. H. Heffron, from the novel of the same name. Production of the photoplay has been commenced and many of the interior scenes have been filmed, while the technical staff of the studio is preparing the larger sets. In many of these a large number of people will be used.

FOX WIRES WALSH TO MAKE "HONOR SYSTEM" A TEN-REELER

Special to Motion Picture News.

Los Angeles, May 13.

The William Fox studios are still deserted by the producing companies, Director Raoul Walsh and players who are producing "The Honor System" being at Florence, Arizona, and Director Oscar Apfel and his company making scenes in a mountain region northeast of Fresno, California.

Advice from William Fox instructed Walsh to increase the size of his picture from five to seven or eight reels, and a late telegram instructs to increase to ten reels if necessary. Mr. Walsh has induced Gov. J. P. Hunt of Arizona to take part in the filming of scenes in and about the state prison at Florence. The story contains an accurate history of the honor system as introduced by this state executive.

Three More Players of Note Join Morosco Forces

De la Cruz, Formerly With the Company; Katherine Griffith, in Many Screen Successes; and Chase, Experienced in Picture Work, Will Be Cast in Important Roles

THE Oliver Morosco Photoplay Company has added three players to its roster—Juan de la Cruz, Katherine Griffith and Colin Chase, who will appear in forthcoming issues of the Paramount Program. Juan de la Cruz appeared under the Morosco banner in "Peer Gynt" and in a Pallas, "The Gentleman from Indiana." Following his appearance in these productions, he met with considerable success in the pictures of other West Coast producing companies. Born in Copenhagen, the actor received his first stage training in drama and opera at the Royal Opera House in Copenhagen. Later he appeared in the leading houses of London, Berlin, Paris and other continental cities.

Katherine Griffith, who appeared in "The Heart of Maryland" with Mrs. Leslie Carter, has played in stock, vaudeville, musical comedy and in dramatic productions. Her motion picture career started some three years ago in New York with Edwin Porter and the Smalleys at the Rex studio. Later she became connected with a Los Angeles producer. In Morosco productions she will appear in heavy character parts.

Colin Chase has appeared in leading parts for Essanay, American, Eclair and Universal, and goes to the Morosco studios with three and a half years' picture work behind him. His initial theatrical work was offered with the People's Stock Company of Chicago, after which he appeared on the road in the vaudeville and dramatic fields. Mr. Chase has many friends among patrons of both screen and stage, and will be cast for important roles in Morosco productions.

Kansas City Exhibitors Plan 7-Theatre Circuit

Scheme Means Dependable Service for Suburban Houses in Rental of Pictures on Weekly Basis, Hiring of Special Music and Issuance of Combination Theatre Programs

Kansas City, Mo., May 13.

THE latest idea of the Kansas City exhibitors is the formation of seven of the leading suburban houses in the city into a body which will act as a unit. The present plan contemplates the renting of films on a seven-day basis, the hiring of special music, if such be necessary, the use of advertising space and various features to be developed on the formation of the organization.

The leaders are of the opinion that the exchanges would as soon rent to an exhibitor unit, such as they will be, for one week than to take a chance on handling it, perhaps five nights a week. In the new plan, if the exhibitor body takes the picture it will have to be shown at each of the seven houses on successive nights. The theatres will be located in parts of the city where there will be no competition between themselves, so the matter of first runs will be eliminated through this arrangement.

The program will be another novelty. It is probable that a house program will be issued, under the direction of some advertising firm. The large number of people who would read such a publication could almost secure for it a solid basis at the very beginning. The plan is to make the program a weekly, each theatre having a section, with other parts devoted to advertising.

The main idea of the plan is to protect the exhibitor, according to one man foremost in the agitation. This new method will have a clause whereby the respective managers will have to review a picture before it can be brought up before the body as a whole. As nothing but the high-class houses will be allowed in, it is almost certain to make the exchanges careful about what they present, as a refusal by this body of a picture would give it a bad standing.

Henry Otto to Direct Lockwood and May Allison

Producer Who Made "Undine," "Half a Rogue," "Will o' the Wisp" and Other Noteworthy Pictures, Is Now a Member of the Metro Forces

HENRY OTTO, who is counted one of the most artistic directors in the country, has joined the Metro forces, and in the future will direct the Metro plays in which Harold Lockwood and May Allison are starred.

Until recently Mr. Otto has been with the Universal. Among some of the notable productions made under his direction with that company is the Bluebird feature, "Undine." Other productions directed by Mr. Otto recently are "Half a Rogue," starring King Baggot, and "Will o' the Wisp," with Jackie Saunders. Mr. Otto made his debut in motion pictures with the Selig Company, playing the heavy role in a feature in which Mr. Lockwood had the part of the juvenile. They played in many pictures together and Mr. Otto was soon made a director.

When Mr. Lockwood left Selig and went to the American Company, Mr. Otto followed him, as he has to Metro. While with the American, Mr. Otto directed Winifred Greenwood and Edwin Coxen for more than a year and a half. Before going into motion pictures, Mr. Otto was identified with the speaking stage for nine years. He studied for the priesthood in St. Bernard College, in Cullman, Alabama, but gave up his studies to take up a career on the stage. He was successful from the start, and for two seasons played prominent roles with Richard Mansfield and was stage manager of his company. He was in the original Henry W. Savage company that produced "The Devil," and for one season appeared in vaudeville with Minnie Seligman in a sketch entitled, "The Drums of Doom."

PERFORMANCE AT METROPOLITAN FOR FUND A SUCCESS

A remarkable benefit performance, in aid of the Motion Picture Campaign for the Actors' Fund, was given on the afternoon of May 16 at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York. Many of the most famous stars of the musical world were on the program.

Geraldine Farrar, Antonio Scotti, Rita Fornia, Angelo Bada, and Pietro Audisio and chorus presented the second act of "Madame Butterfly." Louisa Villani, A. de Segurola, Luca Botta and Anna Fitziu sang, and Fritz Kreisler and Leopold Godowsky played. The program was complete with the Metropolitan orchestra and ballet, directed by Georgio Polacco.

Thirty screen beauties from the Thanhouser studios sold programs and flowers. Marguerite Courtot, the Gaumont star, was selected to act as head usheress for the occasion.

A great crowd was present, and a large sum was realized for the Actors' Fund. The affair was under the personal direction of Daniel Frohman, president of the Fund, assisted by Samuel Goldfish, the national executive chairman of the Motion Picture Campaign.

HOPE TO FINISH "THROUGH THE WALL" BY JUNE

Special to Motion Picture News.

Los Angeles, May 13.

The filming of "Through the Wall" by Production Manager Rollin S. Sturgeon at the Vitagraph Western studio, is progressing most satisfactorily, and the company expect to finish by the first of June. This is made possible by the fact that practically all the scenes are made with interior settings, it being necessary to build but very few for exteriors. In this five reel photoplay, the same leads used in "God's Country—And The Woman" appear, they being George Holt, William Duncan and Nell Shipman.

Mary Anderson, Vitagraph ingenue lead, has been cast in her first grown-up part for the three reel subject, "The Waters of Lethe." This story has scenes in New York City and the northwest. Miss Anderson first appears as the girl of the wild country, a daughter of a mine owner. There she meets a young man from the city who comes to make tests for her father. Later he returns and is married to a city girl, but in the end he becomes the husband of the mine owner's daughter, who in the meantime has grown to womanhood after securing a college education. William Wolbert is directing the film of the subject.

THREE SUBJECTS IN THIRD RELEASE OF REEL LIFE

The third release of Reel Life, the Mutual Film Magazine, has three subjects for the issue of May 21. The first of these is the Gaumont animal studies which were made at the Bronx Zoo by Edwin R. Sanborn. To students of natural history and biology this release will popularize subjects that have hitherto been dry and uninteresting to the young and old alike.

Open Booking to Stop Closed Box Office—V-L-S-E

At Special Meeting of Big Four Force from New York and Syracuse Exchanges, Held in Metropolis, Delegates Report Favor of This Plan on Increase Among Exhibitors

A SPECIAL meeting of the members of the V-L-S-E sales forces of the New York and Syracuse exchanges was held at the home office of the organization last week. It was attended by executives of the various departments and presided over by General Manager Walter W. Irwin. The meeting had for its object the discussion of the trade conditions in general, the outlining in detail of the organization's policies, and the airing of timely suggestions looking toward increased efficiency in dealing with the requirements of the Big Four exhibitors.

The reports of the representatives present furnished conclusive evidence that the open booking system, and the box office value method of renting features, as evolved and put into practice by the Big Four, are two policies daily gaining increased favor with exhibitors throughout the country.

The opinion was expressed that the moving picture industry is to-day undergoing another radical development such as its change a few years ago, when there occurred the evolution from the nickelodeon, showing short reel subjects, to the more representative theatres showing five reel features, for which ten or fifteen cents is charged.

The trend to-day, it was held, would seem to be not only toward increased artistic beauty, and dramatic strength, but toward multiple features, elaborately and appropriately presented. Necessarily, therefore, it was declared there must be the same adjustment in rental and admission prices for these extraordinary pictures, as there was in the rental and admission prices of the five reel features, as compared with the scale of charges which prevailed for the old time shorter subjects.

Such adjustment, it was asserted, could be made most equitably through considering each release by itself, and pricing each of them according to its drawing power—in other words, by distributing films as the V-L-S-E does, on the open-booking, box office value system.

In this way, all films are priced in accordance with the investment they represent to the producer, and the drawing qualities they possess for the exhibitor, whether these films be of average worth, of extraordinary merit, or of lesser value.

The multiple subjects, it was declared, mean broadening the film horizon and attracting untold thousands of representative people who are not now moving picture patrons, but who, once attracted to the screen, must be cultivated through the exercise of constant care in making the surroundings of the theatre inviting and in seeing to it that stage effects, musical accompaniments, and all the other promotion efforts are worthy of the film.

Stress was therefore laid upon the necessity for being ever on the alert to increase the efforts of the organization in its service to exhibitors in every avenue, which goes toward heightening the appeal of a moving picture entertainment.

Hot Months No Bar to Activity in World Studios

Brady Assigns Work for Twenty Elaborate Features During June, July, August and September—Alice Brady Completes "La Boheme"

THERE will be no diminishing of activities at the World film studios during the forthcoming hot months. William A. Brady, who returned from a short trip this week, has completed the business of assignment and for the months of June, July, August and September, has scheduled twenty elaborate photo dramas of the new-day type. World's greatest stars and stories are to characterize the warm summer months.

Robert Warwick, under the guidance of Chautard, is at work on "Friday, the Thirteenth." The work on this production will carry both star and director into June, when another fictional document will be started. Thomas W. Lawson is responsible for the vehicle, "Friday, the Thirteenth," and it is thought Mr. Lawson can be prevailed upon to create another story for Warwick.

Alice Brady has completed "La Boheme," and is at work on "Her Majesty," which will be seen on the regular program about August 1. Miss Brady and her supporting players will give a private showing of "La Boheme" to a number of Metropolitan Opera singers some night next week. Her appearance in "La Boheme" was at the suggestion of either Caruso or Caveleri that she appear in "La Boheme," and the picture is so promising it will be shown now to the opera stars.

Holbrook Blinn is at work on "The Weakness of Man" and has just completed "The Way of the World," in which he is supported by an all-World star cast.

Kitty Gordon, preparatory to her branching out under the World trade mark in Kitty Gordon features, will be seen on the regular program June 12 in "The Crucial Test," and Mollie King, the little sunbeam of World Film, will star in "Fate's Boomerang," May 29.

Ethel Clayton will make her first appearance on the World program in a co-starring vehicle with Carlyle Blackwell, "His Brother's Wife," a five act drama, which comes on the summer program June 5.

Thereafter Clara Kimball Young, the famous World star, will be seen in "The Story of Susan," an ambitious vehicle amply befitting the importance of Miss Young, to be followed by Alice Brady in "Her Majesty." Gail Kane in "The Other Sister" will be offered July 10, and House Peters and Gail Kane will be seen together during the early summer months in "The Velvet Paw."

Muriel Ostriche, Carlyle Blackwell, Frances Nelson, Robert Warwick, Holbrook Blinn, Kitty Gordon, Alice Brady, Mollie King and all the other World stars will be seen at least twice during the hot months.

FOX PICKS PRETTY SCHOOL MISS AS SCREEN WINNER

William Fox has just discovered a girl whom he considers the most fascinating young woman in America. He proposes making her the greatest young star in the film world.

The name of this girl is June Caprice. She is seventeen years old. Mr. Fox has taken her right out of a New England school, and sent her to photographers and artists for sittings. In a few weeks she will make her initial screen bow in a Fox picture.

Miss Caprice is described as a very fair little girl with sparkling blue eyes and glistening white teeth. Her hands and feet are small and dainty. On the screen she is to be made, according to Mr. Fox's plan, the type of girl whom mothers will point out to their sons and daughters as representing the ideal.

She has had no motion picture experience. But Mr. Fox has sent her to school under his most skilled directors. In engaging her, Mr. Fox imposed some unusual conditions. She will never be seen on Broadway. Her face will appear only on the screen. Her attention is not to be diverted from her work by contact with outside things that could not possibly have any good influence on her career.

She is not to discontinue her education. She will have a number of hours each week at a finishing school in New York and two tutors have been engaged for her.

Plethora of Good Films Coming from General

Next Two Weeks Will Usher in Large Number of Interesting and Varied Pictures, It is Announced, from All the Constituent Companies

GENERAL FILM SERVICE for week beginning May 15 will be featured by films carrying the needful punch, according to advance information from the General Film Company's publicity department.

The week starts Monday with Selig's three-reel production, "The Hard Way," featuring Jack Pickford, Mary's brother, who has a character role. The story presented is that of a high school boy tempted by some of the worldly bright lights.

The Vitagraph comedy, "A Lucky Tumble," "The Perfidy of Mary," a Biograph drama, and a Lubin comedy, "Otto the Artist," give a finishing touch to the day's releases. The Selig-Tribune News Service, of course, is a feature.

Kalem's "The Irish Rebel" will be shown Tuesday, and owing to the unsettled condition of affairs in Ireland at this moment, will command attention. Some of the scenes in this release were made where the recent fighting between British troops and Irish rebels was fiercest. Edison will present its youngest and newest star, Leonie Flugrath, in a three-reeler, "The Littlest Magdalene." Lubin's offering for this day will be "The Beggar King," and Essanay will also provide a feature.

Kalem on Wednesday releases "The Artful Dodger," a comedy, Essanay a feature presenting Essanay stars, and Biograph will furnish "Beverly of Graustark" in three reels. The day's program will be closed by Edison's "Robbing the Fishes," a comedy.

Lubin, Selig and Vim will get the spot light Thursday; Lubin presenting "Jackstraws" in three reels; Selig offering another chapter of the Selig-Tribune News Service, and Vim presenting a comedy, "Thirty Days."

"A Child of Fortune," in two parts, by Knickerbocker, and "An Innocent Vampire," a "Sis Hopkins" comedy series by Kalem, "More Money than Manners," a Vitagraph comedy, and "A Fair Exchange," a Vim comedy, will make up the program for Friday.

Essanay heads the list Saturday with a feature, Lubin is second with a comedy, "The Winning Number"; Vitagraph provides a three-reeler, "Miss Adventure"; Kalem releases "One Chance in a Hundred," an episode of the "Hazards of Helen" Series, and Selig puts a humorous touch in the day's program with "A Boarding House Jam." Sunday, May 21, Knickerbocker will offer its first five-reel feature, "Spellbound."

General Film Service for the week beginning May 22 will carry films of strength and variety, it is announced.

The week will start Monday with Selig's three reel production, "The Test of Chivalry," featuring Fritzi Brunette. Supporting Miss Brunette are Vivian Reed, Edward J. Piel, James Bradbury, William Scott, Frank Clark, Lillian Hayward and several others.

A Vitagraph comedy, "The Cost of High Living," furnishes an unusually strong feature, while "The Mistake," a Biograph drama, helps to round out a day's program. A Lubin comedy, "Otto the Hero," gives a finishing touch to the day's releases.

Edison's, "The Coward's Code," will be shown on Tuesday. Essanay offers on that day an all star drama, while Kalem and Biograph provide the comedies, the former in "Whose Looney Now," and the latter in "Ham's Busy Day."

Kalem, on Wednesday, releases "The Bogus Ghost," a comedy; Essanay a feature and Edison provides "The Cecropia Moth and "Tom the Tamer and Kid Kelly."

Lubin, Selig and Vim will get the spot light Thursday, Lubin presenting "Prisoners of Conscience," a three reel drama; Vim offering "Baby Doll," a comedy.

"The Flirting Bride," a Knickerbocker Star Feature production, "A Baby Grand," a Kalem, "Sis Hopkins" comedy series; "The Battler," by Vitagraph; and "Villains and Violins," by Vim, should keep patrons in good humor Friday.

Essanay heads the list Saturday with a feature; Lubin second with a comedy, "Oh, You Uncle!"; Vitagraph provides "The Primal Instinct," in three parts; and Selig will present the original cowboy film artist, Tom Mix, in "A Five Thousand Dollar Elopement," and Kalem will offer "The Capture of Red Stanley," an episode in the "Hazards of Helen."

Screen Drama Walking Over "Legit" in Minneapolis

With Twenty-One Exchanges, Four Companies Manufacturing Pictures, a Host of Places Handling Accessories, and More Than Eighty Theatres, Minneapolis Forges Ahead

Special to MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

Minneapolis, May 13.

HIGH-CLASS motion picture dramas, high type of business men as theater managers and the heavy investments of the film business in Minneapolis have won for the industry a far greater following and position of importance than was ever enjoyed by the old-time drama.

All of the newspapers give the picture drama as prominent mention and a greater bulk of it than they do the old-style drama, and the Minneapolis Journal recently championed the cause of the industry by showing the futility of official censorship of any but state rights films or those not passed by the national board. The public should be its own censor, the Journal argued.

The day was when club women said that motion pictures were detrimental to the child and that the theaters were "hang-outs" for crowds of boys and girls who wanted to evade the law. That has long since been forgotten, for the Minneapolis theaters do not sell tickets to children after 8.30 p. m.

When the club women recently decided to enforce the curfew ordinance they appealed first to the theater managers. The managers had slides prepared announcing that children would have to leave at 8.45 p. m. or be taken home by an officer.

In every campaign, whether for health or civic betterment, from a standpoint of art or business, the motion picture men are asked to help, and they always come to the front.

With twenty-one film exchanges, four companies making films, a host of accessory houses, and more than eighty good theaters, Minneapolis is stepping ahead.

Northwest Association is With League in Censor Fight

Convention Held in Minneapolis and Attended by 1,500 Exhibitors, the Organization Votes to Let its Directors Decide on Rejoining the National Body—Fred J. Herrington and President Carl Laemmle, of Universal, Are Among Principal Speakers—James Gilowsky Heads New Roster of Officers

Minneapolis, May 13.

A DETERMINATION to support the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America in its fight against national censorship was the most important thing which came out of the remarkably successful convention and exposition of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association of the Northwest which closed here May 6. Fifteen hundred exhibitors were in attendance.

The association voted to let its directors decide whether it should once again join the league, but to support morally and financially the league's effort to head off federal censorship. The association felt that the league should reduce its membership fees, but agreed to go into the fold if the directors thought it wise to do so. It is certain that the association will aid, in every way, the war on censorship.

Fred J. Herrington, president of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, was present at the convention, and was one of the principal speakers. Another was President Carl Laemmle, of Universal, who told how the manufacturers were ready to furnish and are furnishing the kind of films wanted. "The films to-day are clean to those who have clean minds," he said.

The convention demonstrated that the exhibitors and exchangemen are working in harmony for the general good of the business, and hereafter there will be closer affiliation in every undertaking.

In the election of officers, James Gilowsky of St. Paul was elected president; Charles Gates, Aberdeen, S. D., vice-president; William Koenig, Minneapolis, secretary; C. E. Van Duzee, Minneapolis, treasurer. The executive board members are: Thomas Furniss, Duluth; W. A. Scott, Red Wing, Minn.; H. P. Greene, Minneapolis; Frank Nemec, St. Cloud, Minn.; A. Reissman, St. Paul. The executive committeemen were chosen from Minnesota men, so they can be easily reached by the executive officers, who will have their headquarters in Minneapolis.

Each of the states represented in the convention will have state conventions this summer or in the early fall and the state vice presidents of the bigger association will aid in the direction. The state vice-presidents are: Anton Gilles, Breckenridge, for Minnesota; J. E. Sherwood, Madison, for Wisconsin; J. E. Boyle, Dubuque, for Iowa; J. E. Hipple, Pierre, for South Dakota, and J. E. Cavanaugh, Grand Forks, for North Dakota.

One of the sales made by the Bartola Musical Instrument Company at the Minneapolis Convention, was a Bartola Grand to Messrs. Christian and O'Malley of the Palace Theatre, St. Paul. Charles C. Pyle, general sales manager for the Bartola Musical Instrument Company, stated that he was very well satisfied with the result of his exhibit at the Minneapolis Convention. He personally attended this in company with Dan W. Barton, inventor, T. D. Waiss, Harry Awe, Bernard Cowhan and three mechanics.

H. W. Horn, who represented the Nichols-Power Company at the Minneapolis convention, and who has covered all the motion picture conventions since the one in San Francisco last July, stated that in his opinion this was the livest one he had yet seen.

William A. Lochren, president of the Northwestern Weekly, has secured the exclusive agency in the Northwest territory for the small projector put out by the DeVry Corporation of Chicago. He had the various models of this projector on exhibit at his booth at the Minneapolis convention and it created a great deal of interest.

On Wednesday afternoon at the Minneapolis Convention, Valeska Suratt was the guest of B. A. Westcott at the Fox Film Corporation booth. Miss Suratt is to appear in several coming Fox productions, and was enthusiastically received by those in attendance at the Minneapolis Convention.

In addition to the members of Chicago exchange, the Fox Film Corporation was represented at the Minneapolis Convention by Harry Leonhart and H. J. Roberts.

W. J. Dyer and Brothers of St. Paul exhibited the Fotoplayer at the Minneapolis Convention. Leo. Weissenbach, president of the Fotoplayer Company of Illinois, was present for a few days. A. L. Brown of W. J. Dyer and Brothers stated that they had sold six Fotoplayers to the B. B. Theatre Company of Minneapolis for installation in their houses. Also one to H. J. Breilein of the new Victoria Theatre, St. Paul to R. J. Brons of the Elite Theatre, Minneapolis.

J. F. Cubberley of the Zenith Film Company of Duluth, Minnesota, was present at the Minneapolis Convention.

The Independent Film Corporation of Minneapolis which has secured the rights in the northwestern states to "Our Country Series" intend to start booking these within the next few weeks. Then there are a series of fifty-two pictures covering geographically and historically the states and territories of the United States. They are being made under the direction of Judge Willis Brown. J. E. Moore and A. R. Nelson of the Independent Film Corporation state that the first three pictures of these series went very well when shown to the exhibitors at the Minneapolis Convention.

Screen Favorites Will Appear at Rialto for Actors' Fund

Series of Tableaux Presentations of Players for Personal Greetings of Their Admirers Arranged by Rothapfel and Goldfish for May 22

IN connection with the Motion Picture Campaign for the Actors' Fund, a festival of personal appearances of screen stars will take place at the Rialto Theatre, New York, during the week of May 22. There will be a series of tableaux presentations of film favorites for the personal greetings of their admirers. The proceeds will go to the Actors' Fund.

S. L. Rothapfel, manager of the Rialto, is arranging the affair, together with Samuel Goldfish, chairman of the National Executive Committee of the Motion Picture Campaign, and Daniel Frohman, president of the Actors' Fund. Combination nights will be given to the favorites from such studios as Lasky, Famous Players, Pathé, Vitagraph, Universal, Mutual, Metro, and Thanhouser.

The arranging of this treat for film lovers is to be the crowning feature of the three months' campaign. Monday, May 15, was national Motion Picture Tribute Day, and picture theatres throughout the country had agreed to donate a portion of their receipts for the day to the Actors' Fund. Throughout the present week entertainments and special functions are being held in all the big cities, in aid of the Actors' Fund, the most pretentious being a tribute performance at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, where the leading artists of the musical world, including Geraldine Farrar, Antonio Scotti, Fritz Kreisler, and others appeared.

Boston, Philadelphia, Buffalo, Detroit, Omaha, Minneapolis and other cities are also giving elaborate functions for the benefit of the campaign. Elsewhere the activities are equally promising. Sandusky, Ohio, is the latest accession to the roll of honor. A branch committee has been organized there, with the mayor as honorary chairman.

In Des Moines, another big boost is being given to the campaign. At the convention of the Exhibitors' League of Iowa, a grand ball will be staged on the evening of May 24, under the auspices of the Des Moines Screen Club, the proceeds of which will go to the Fund. In Kansas City the active co-operation of theatre owners as well as managers has been obtained by the committee. A sub-committee enrolled the theatres of the city and vicinity for National Motion Picture Tribute Day.

MASTERS OPERATED UPON FOR APPENDICITIS

It is with much regret that we note that E. Lanning Masters, advertising director of V-L-S-E, is confined to his bed at the Flower Hospital, suffering from an acute attack of appendicitis, which made itself felt on his return with the V-L-S-E censorship delegation from Albany, on Thursday last.

The operation was performed by Dr. Von Vonowich of that hospital.

Victor M. Schapiro, the assistant adverising director, will handle his work, while he is away.

TRANS-CONTINENTAL MOTORCYCLE RUN FOR "CIVILIZATION" PUBLICITY STUNT

"Civilization" is to be advertised across the continent by a motorcycle run against time from Los Angeles to Portland, Maine. Two motor enthusiasts, Neil Hardin and Andrew Edison, have been engaged to make the trip on a motorcycle with a side car, they taking turns at driving the machine. The start was made from the City Hall in Los Angeles Tuesday, May 9, at noon, when they were handed a message by Mayor Charles Sebastian to the mayor of Portland, Maine. They expect to reach their destination by June 9. The route is up the coast to Portland and Seattle, and then east through Chicago to New York, and then up the eastern coast.

The motorcycle and side car is gaily decorated with advertising matter concerning the big spectacle made by Ince. Both young men have had newspaper experience, and they will no doubt, plant a great quantity of publicity matter where it will bear fruit. This advertising feature was conceived and planned by Kenneth O'Hara, manager of Mr. Ince's publicity department.

VAN DEUSEN IS SIGNED BY INTERNATIONAL

Cortland J. Van Deusen, one of the youngest directors in the business, has been signed by the International Film Service, Inc. Mr. Van Deusen played for a season in stock and in Shubert productions. Following this he went to California where he was associated with the Kalem, Thanhouser and Kinemacolor companies.

Returning to New York he was employed by the Biograph Company and later went with the Famous Players. Mr. Van Deusen left this organization for a splendid position with the Vitagraph Company, where he was featured for two years. He became associated with Sidney Drew, remaining with that comedian for some time.

Next he directed, "Keyboard Strategy," "Conquest of Constantia," "Between Two Fires" and "In Arcadia."

His last work with the Vitagraph was a Blue Ribbon Feature, "Behind the Curtain," with Lillian Walker.

MARY MILES MINTER ON WAY TO COAST

Mary Miles Minter, the dainty Mutual star, left New York Sunday, May 14, on the Twentieth Century for Chicago, where a big celebration was planned for the youngest star in filmdom. Miss Minter was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Juliet Shelby.

On her arrival in Chicago, Miss Minter was met by J. Casey Cairns and officials of the American Film Co., Inc., who escorted her to the new American film laboratories. After a tour of inspection a reception was held in her honor. In the evening she was the guest of honor at a dinner. She is anxious to get to the Coast to begin work in the first of the special features she is to appear in. Miss Minter and her mother left Chicago for the American studios at Santa Barbara Monday night.

Francis Ford and Grace Cunard Take up Production Where They Left Off—Abraham Stearn, Business Manager of the Company, Takes a Bride

Special to MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

Los Angeles, May 13.

THE making of the Universal serial, "Peg o' the Ring" production, of which was discontinued recently at Universal City when Francis Ford and Grace Cunard left, is now being done at the L-Ko studio, Hollywood, which was the former home of the Universal Film Company prior to its removal to Universal City.

The original scenarios for the fifteen episodes as written by Miss Cunard is to be used, and production was begun where the company left off—completing the fifth episode. The cast will be the same. Besides Francis Ford and Grace Cunard, the cast includes Mark Fenton, Pete Gerald, Gene Hathaway and others.

The management of the production will be in charge of Abe Stearn, business manager of the L-Ko. The first scenes by the reorganized company were made Monday of last week.

Members of the L-Ko Producing Company took a half holiday to greet Business Manager Abraham Stearn, who on that day returned from the east accompanied by a bride, who was Jessie Jacobs of Milwaukee. The wedding was solemnized in the middle west city, and the couple immediately came to Los Angeles. They were greeted at the train by a large delegation of players, and after an extended trip over the city with banners of the "just married" variety flying, were escorted to the studio. Mr. and Mrs. Stearn will make their home in Hollywood.

The most thrilling comedy ever filmed at the L-Ko has been completed and titled "Pirates of the Air." This subject, in which a number of aeroplanes were, is said to have cost a small fortune. It will show a fight between two aeroplanes, aerial attacks on a city with bombs dropped on buildings, automobiles and pedestrians, and some other entirely new thrills. Billy Armstrong, Alice Howell and Joe Moore are the principals of this subject.

Two Australian-Made Films Released in This Country

"A Nurse's Sacrifice, or the Martyrdom of Edith Cavell," is a 4,000-Foot Picture Featuring Vera Pearce—"Sinking of the Emden" is Second Subject

TWO new films, offering striking lessons in preparedness, drawn from actual conditions and events, are to be offered in this country on a states rights basis. Both of them were made in Australia, and have been shown to enthusiastic audiences not only in that country, but in Canada.

The films are "A Nurse's Sacrifice; or the Martyrdom of Edith Cavell," and "The Sinking of the Emden." The former, which is 4,000 feet in length, is based upon the story of Edith Cavell, who was executed in Belgium, and whose fate attracted great attention all over the world. In this picture Vera Pearce, who has won the reputation of "the most beautiful girl in Australia," assumes the role of Edith Cavell, and the whole tragedy is pictured in dramatic form.

C. Post Mason, who has control of the films in this country, reports that "A Nurse's Sacrifice" opened at the Gayety theatre in Toronto, May 8, being presented under the auspices of the 208 Irish Canadians. More than 6,000 tickets were sold for the initial showing. The Famous Players Film Company of Canada in handling the bookings in the dominion.

The "Sinking of the Emden" is 2,000 feet long. It is a series of pictures made with the consent and aid of the navy department, and is an official Australian navy picture. Not only does it show the scene of the conflict between the Sydney and the German raider Emden, off Cocos Island, but the destruction of the Emden, and the landing of its crew are also presented in vivid pictures.

Other features of this film are the recruiting for the Australian Navy, the training of cadets and recruits, life aboard ship, and the measures taken to keep the Australian Navy in a constant state of preparedness.

Mr. Mason is well known in film circles in Australia, Canada and England. He has long been associated with such firms as Williamson, Hugh McIntosh and J. D. Williams.

Big Demand for "Gloria's Romance" in Many Sections

For Theatres Booking George Kleine Serial Featuring Billie Burke—Chicago, Philadelphia and Other Large Cities Give It Enthusiastic Reception

THEATRE managers who arranged for pre-service showings of the new George Kleine novel, "Gloria's Romance," in which Billie Burke is starred, report, in many cases, that the performances of the picture on May 8 shattered previous records for a single day's receipts. The Kleine offices are elated over the results.

In Chicago at the Studebaker, one of Jones, Linick and Schafer's biggest and best theaters, a big crowd was in the lobby as early as ten o'clock, though the performance was not scheduled to begin until an hour later. All day long the seating capacity of the house was severely taxed and Manager Jones, as he closed the box office at night, was able to report business almost double that of normal days.

The Arcadia, in Philadelphia, did a tremendous business all day long and similar reports were received from the Isis in Denver, the New Palace in Minneapolis, the American in Salt Lake City and the Tivoli in San Francisco. Top heavy business was done at the Garden in Washington, D. C., from the opening hour until late at night, while a waiting line was the rule at both Kings and the Columbia in St. Louis. The Willis Wood in Kansas City came close to beating all previous records for a single day's attendance at this theater.

Women's Press Club in New York Passes Resolution on Films

At Special Session the Organization Fires First Gun in National Campaign to Waken Women to Their Responsibilities in Uplift Move

AT a special session of the Woman's Press Club, held in New York City Saturday, May 13, there was fired the first gun in a national campaign to waken the women of the country to their responsibility to their communities and their power to bring about the production and presentation of a higher class of motion pictures than that generally seen.

With the clubrooms crowded to overflowing, Jane Stannard Johnson, a writer and speaker of note and an authority on the photoplay, presented a resolution which will have its effect wherever there is a film theatre. The resolution was passed unanimously, and similar action will be proposed at the biennial meeting of the General Federation of Women's Clubs when 20,000 women, each a delegate from an important center, will convene here.

The resolution follows:

WHEREAS, the Woman's Press Club recognizes that the motion picture is more widely read to-day than any other form of printed publication, and that many millions of people daily in all walks of life are visiting motion picture theaters, our own families among the number; and

WHEREAS, many of these pictures are far from the standard of literature we would have in our homes—sensational melodrama—while others are immoral, unchaste and salacious; and

WHEREAS, some superb pictures are also shown, excellent in all essentials of quality, pictures well meriting the patronage of the educated and cultured; and

WHEREAS, by this evidence we know that producers are in a position to produce and can produce high grade, clean pictures;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, That we, the Woman's Press Club of New York City, do hereby request you [name of company or individual] to devote the efforts of your studio to the production of motion pictures of such quality and character as will merit the support of ourselves and our homes; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that it is the intention and purpose of the Woman's Press Club to support and patronize pictures of this desirable type and to withhold our patronage from unworthy pictures, and this shall be the attitude of the Woman's Press Club and its members in all club, church, school and social activities with which they may be associated;

AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that the names of those producers who will devote their studios to worthy pictures will be published in the club mediums, and every effort will be made to help the producer of high-class films.

FINALLY, RESOLVED, that an official copy of this resolution be sent to every motion picture producer of importance.

In speaking of the desire of many motion picture producers to make pictures of real merit, provided that enough interest can be stimulated in them to make their production worth while, Mrs. Johnson said:

"There is almost always a difference of opinion between parents concerning the same production, and this is where the producers have difficulty in making pictures that are universally praised. It seems to me particularly appropriate that the Woman's Press Club should be the first club to take up the subject as a body, to use its influence by pen and voice to bring about the adoption of a policy by the reputable film makers that will put their industry on a permanent basis, and make it unnecessary for us to see a bill in our local theatre before recommending it to our friends. We must get at the producer. He alone can give the world the higher type of pictures, and he will if he can do so profitably.

"I therefore, think that we should support those producers of motion pictures who are making a sincere effort in this direction. By seeing the pictures shown in your town for a few weeks, you can soon recognize the companies which have already seen the light, and are worthy of support."

TEXAS THEATRE EXCHANGE WILL BUILD FIREPROOF VAULT

The Texas Theatre Exchange, with John D. Fulton as manager, lately merged with the Fidelity Film Company, Incorporated, has taken spacious offices in the Prince Theatre Building, Houston, Texas, where it will conduct an extensive supply business and film exchanges. It will at an early date open demonstration rooms, and erect a new fireproof vault, as it intends to contract for the representation of some prominent film manufacturers in the near future.

A. C. Bernard, general manager, has for years been the cashier of the largest fruit importing concerns in the world, The United Fruit Company of Galveston, New Orleans, and South America, and is well known in all business circles of south Texas and New Orleans.

John D. Fulton, roadman, has been in business and covered the territory in that capacity for the last six years, during which time he has gained the good will of all his patrons in the business.

Mutual-Chaplin Subject, "The Fireman," Nearly Ready

Comedy Is Said to Contain an Unusual Number of Sensational Scenes, Depicting the Burning of Two Houses, Purchased from City Authorities

WORK on "The Fireman," second Mutual-Chaplin comedy, which goes to the public June 12, is rapidly nearing completion at the Los Angeles studios.

Chaplin has worked into this production a number of what are said to be unusually sensational scenes, depicting the burning of two houses, both of which had been condemned by the Los Angeles Fire Department. They were purchased outright by the Chaplin-Mutual studios and destroyed by fire.

Temporarily abandoning his usual make-up, Chaplin appears in practically all the scenes in the garb of a fireman. The entire company of players who were engaged to appear in support of the star when he was signed by the Mutual, appear with him in this production. Edna Purviance has an interesting and important role. Eric Campbell, Charlotte Minneau, Lloyd Bacon, Leo White and others are also in the cast.

In addition, about two hundred extras were brought into play for the filming of the fire scenes, which are said to be exceptionally realistic.

Corporation, has resigned to become advertising manager of the World Film Corporation.

Mr. Miranda is a man of wide experience in the sales, advertising and news service field.

CHAPLIN MOTION FOR "CARMEN" INJUNCTION ARGUED IN SUPREM COURT

Charles Chaplin's motion for injunctio to restrain the V-L-S-E's distribution o the Essanay four reel burlesque on "Ca men," which features Chaplin, was argue before Judge Hotchkiss, of the Suprem Court, New York, on May 12.

Chaplin set forth in his motion t under the contract which he had wi Essanay, he reserved the right to appro or disapprove pictures in which he perso ally appeared and that because the bu lesque on "Carmen" has been distributed in four reels instead of in two, as he had left it, the Essanay Company should be enjoined from presenting it as his burlesque.

The Essanay Company was represented by William M. Seabury, who argued that the contract upon which Chaplin relied had been abandoned by both parties.

TRAVERS USES HIS TWO LEGS FOR LAST LEG OF VAUDEVILLE TOUR

After completing his engagements in several Chicago theaters, Richard C. Travers returned to Essanay for a brief stay and then departed on the last leg of his vaudeville tour. The itinerary includes Cleveland, Buffalo, Syracuse, Rochester, Albany, Detroit, Indianapolis and Omaha.

New Hughes Censor Bill Acme of Injustice to Industry

Its Amazing Restrictions, Preposterously Conceived by Those Responsible for Its Existence, Are Fraught With Grave Possibilities of Tyrannical Application if Made Law—It Bristles With So Many Picture Throttling Requirements That Legislators Themselves View it With Suspicion

Washington, May 13.

AFTER weeks of wrangling with some of the members of the committee, and perhaps only partial consent on the part of others, Chairman Dudley M. Hughes, of the House Committee on Education, has at last obtained the sanction of the committee to the making of a favorable report to Congress on a new bill produced in committee, providing for the censorship of motion pictures.

The new Hughes bill, on its face, appears to be one of the worst measures ever broached. Were it not for Dr. Wilbur F. Crafts, this terrible need for motion picture censorship would never have occurred.

Can Doctor Crafts hoodwink members of Congress to the extent that the bill will be enacted into law? Will all the members of Congress allow themselves to be led blindly into the hole dug for them. If they are sane legislators they will want to know a little bit more than appears in the report of the hearings. It would be a very good thing to investigate the lobby and find out just what is back of the whole proposition. It does not look good on the surface, and throughout there have been misrepresentations—wily maneuvers that have given rise to unwarranted beliefs that the entire film industry is anxious and hungry for the regulation proposed in the Hughes bill. Mr. Hughes has not even taken the trouble to ascertain the cost of administering the proposed law; he does not have any idea of the number of pictures now in existence that would be immediately approved; he does not know whether two dollars per thousand feet will be sufficient to meet the expenses of the commission; all he know is that he wants that bill to pass and to see his name inscribed on the archives of Congress as the author of one bill, at least, that had become a law.

Judge Hughes and Doctor Crafts are apparently panic-stricken at the thought that Congress may adjourn before the bill is acted upon, and accordingly, when these two decided that a favorable report ought to be made upon it, they also decided that four days was ample time to be allowed the opposition members of the Committee on Education to render the minority report. High-handed methods that, perhaps, will not work under Congressional procedure; they will be made the subject of a very wordy protest from the floor of the House if carried into effect. The thought has been advanced on many occasions that Judge Hughes has been practically hounded to death by Doctor Crafts to the extent that the very courtly gentleman, always anxious to please, is willing to do anything to get rid of the millstone around his neck.

Friction Among Members

The threat has been made to have the whole matter investigated from top to bottom, and the friction between the members of the committee is known to be intense.

There is one thing certain, and that is that none of the film companies that have been giving their support to the bill will be able to get in under the wire and have shown to them courtesies that would probably be denied to the present-day opponents of the measure; they will all be its opponents after it is enacted into law, if that ever happens. The minority members of the committee took good care to see to it that the various artful dodges were blocked. As one of these gentlemen said: "We tried to make the act somewhere near to being decent if by any chance it should go through. We had to fight with the proponents of the measure on a number of its provisions, and upon one we spent a whole session in wrangling. We feel that the expense of this proposed law will be something enormous. The authors (Hughes and Crafts) have no idea what it will cost to employ all of the deputy commissioners and other employees that will be needed, for there is no way of telling how many deputies will be required to carry out the provisions of the bill."

The proponents of the measure are alleged to have tried to slip one over in favor of their friends in the film business in the second paragraph under Section 5, which read: "The commission may at any time issue a permit for the entrance into interstate and foreign commerce of any film without inspection thereof * * * " But the opposing members of the committee blocked this by the insertion after the word "film" of the words "portraying current events and not otherwise prohibited by law." There will be no beating around the bush under the paragraph as it now stands; all film companies will be on the same level, and all films, other than the news films, will have to be inspected before permit is issued, providing the commissioners and deputy commissioners do not fall down on their jobs and issue permits under shady circumstances.

The original Hughes bill, as it is remembered, was riddled full of holes by the opponents of the measure at the hearings held here some time ago, a full report of which appeared in the columns of the Motion Picture News. Doctor Crafts and his fellows took advantage of the criticisms and brought in a new proposition to the committee, and this in turn was shot full of holes; but, undaunted, they kept on the firing line until the bill that has just been introduced into the House of Representatives was conceived. How perfect that bill is can be ascertained upon reading.

Section 4, as it is worded, will enable the commissioners and their hirelings to wreak vengeance on the poor misguided manufacturer who may, wittingly or not, cross their path, and Section 4 precipitated one of the prettiest of the committee controversies. This paragraph provides "That the commission shall promptly license for interstate and foreign commerce every motion picture film submitted to it as herein required, unless such film or a part thereof is obscene, indecent, immoral, inhuman, or is a reproduction of an actual fight or prize fight, or is of such a character that its exhibition would tend to corrupt morals or incite to crime. * * * "

Wording of the Measure Too Sweeping

The opponents of the measure held that the word "inhuman" would enable the commission to throw out any films that they might desire to discriminate against, and they also took exception to the words "which would tend to corrupt morals or incite to crime." These clauses, they held, practically bar out of interstate commerce every great work of literature that has ever been produced, and will probably act against all but one of the Shakespearean plays. They wrangled all one morning over this proposition, but the hard-headed majority seems to have prevailed.

Under the new bill, sixty days are to be allowed within which application shall be made for permits for the entrance into interstate commerce of films which have been publicly exhibited prior to the passage of the law.

In the original bill it was provided that any permit, issued where inspection had not previously taken place, could be revoked upon the concurring votes of any two commissioners upon ten days' notice in writing to the applicant. This would jeopardize the chances of the manufacturer in marketing his product. To offset this probable result, the following clause was added, "Thereupon the film may be submitted to the commission for license as though no permit had ever been granted or revoked."

Section 6 provides that any person, firm or corporation desiring a Federal lincense or permit shall first make sworn application in writing in the form and substance prescribed by the commission. The opponents of the measure showed their level-headedness when they forced in an amendment to this paragraph which provides that within one day of the filing of an application a time for the submission of the film shall be set, which time shall in no event be more than three days after the date of the filing of the application. It is also provided that at least one of the commissioners or one of the deputy commissioners shall attend upon and be present throughout the exhibition of the film submitted. The applicant may present such evidence in addition to the film as may be necessary or proper to make clear the purpose and intent of the film. All oral evidence is to be recorded by the commission. Another good point is that "the license applied for shall be granted or refused within one day after the hearing."

Heavy fines are provided for the manufacturers who fail to live up to the requirements of the proposed law, but nothing is said

"NAKED HEARTS"

(Bluebird—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

LORD ALFRED TENNYSON never wrote his beautiful poem "Maud" with the intention that it be employed as a suggestion for a five-reel photoplay. Perhaps if motion pictures had been in vogue at the time when "Maud" was written, its author would have stipulated that it be made into a one-, two- or three-reel subject. Happily, however, the poem inspired a director who is accustomed to make the very best of his opportunities. That director was Rupert Julian, and while he has not been able to totally overcome the material inadequacy of his theme, he has enshrouded the picture in beautiful scenes and set it off by wonderful photography.

Olga Printzlau prepared the scenario from Mr. Julian's story, and we may go so far as to presume that she too, was obliged to stretch a theme tighter than was good for it. The opening scenes dealing with the several characters in their younger years are too long, as they last a full thousand feet. Thereafter the action proceeds with more interest because the characters mature, but even in these phases there are places when repetition of incident occurs and where the story moves after the fashion of the turtle.

When, however, it comes to the artistic side of the production, mere words are not descriptive of its beauty. Some of the most charming light effects that ever graced five reels of film have been secured by the camera man. The settings have been selected with rare taste and the numerous garden scenes are extremely beautiful. These production effects, together with the many appealing moments of the picture, almost entirely discount the thin character of the plot.

The first period of the picture deals with the childish love affair of Maud and Cecil, children of neighboring land owners. In the second period, Cecil, again courts Maud, but against her father's wishes, for he has in mind Lord Lovelace, a rich friend of his son's. The Civil War interrupts the romance. Lord Lovelace is killed in the war and Cecil is reported dead, but he returns. He learns that Maud is about to take the veil and rushes to the convent but is too late.

The cast does fine work. Francelia Billington makes a charming figure of Maud, particularly in the light romantic scenes, while Zoe Bech as the girl in her younger years plays with irresistible charm. Rupert Julian makes Cecil an appealing figure and in striking contrast to his characterization is the Lord Lovelace done by Douglas Gerrard. Jack Holt, Ben Horning, Paul Weigle, Nannine Wright, Gordon Griffith and George Hupp are others.

There are many excellent passages in the picture. The part where Cecil returns to his mother after the war is handled excellently. The battle flashes are good and there is a well-arranged duel scene that excites considerably.

"SINS OF MEN"

(Fox Film Corporation—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY OSCAR COOPER

FROM the title, one might infer that this picture was a sex drama, wholly, done in the effective style characteristic of the Fox forces, but still a sex drama. The sex element does, in fact, figure largely, but the thing which makes the picture an excellent entertainment—one of the most enjoyable we have seen recently—is a remarkably clever infusion of comedy of character, offset by splendid human touches, and an entirely unexpected denouement.

The credit for this must go chiefly to Director James Vincent. His work here shows distinct originality, in the handling of the story, in the maintenance of continuity, and in the introduction of touches of relief. The cast, which is headed by Stuart Holmes and Dorothy Bernard, is superior throughout, and works cleverly in keeping with the tone of the production, which is not permitted to get overserious for long.

An old German philosopher writes a treatise on what he calls the new religion—"Myself," the doctrine of which is utter selfishness and the pursuit of pleasure. He shows the partially completed manuscript to a publisher, who tells him that if he will finish it his fortune will be made. The philosopher, after a Christmas reunion of his family, goes to bed, and dreams of the moral ruin that would be brought to the lives of his family and others, from their reading of the book. His daughter would sin with the son-in-law of the publisher; he would find his servant in the arms of his son; the father of the servant girl would break in his house and kill, out of revenge for the betrayal of his daughter, most of the members of the philosopher's family.

Then the old man awakes, decides to burn the manuscript, and everything ends happily. There is no tragedy. It has all happened in his dream, but the spectator is as surprised as the philosopher to find that this is the case.

All of which is handled in a thoroughly effective way, not the least effective thing being the Christmas dinner scenes, which are delightfully satirical of the types portrayed, and in which are introduced some fine animal touches. Settings are correct. The lighting is generally good.

Others in a cast which is unusually good, are Hattie Burks, Stephen Grattan, Alice Gale, Tom Burrough, Pauline Barry, Alice Gale, Emily Fitzroy, George S. Trimble, and little Kittens Reichert.

STRIKING SCENES FROM "NAKED HEARTS," A BLUEBIRD, WITH RUPERT JULIAN AND FRANCELIA BILLINGTON

"WHO'S GUILTY?"

(Arrow-Pathe—First and Second Issues)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

THE first two numbers of Arrow's series—not serial—prove a number of things that should doubtless interest the exhibitor. Chief among these is that the two stories so far seen are what feature producers would make into five-reel pictures. Condensed to the comparatively short length of two reels there is a most commendable absence of padding. It's all meat.

Then too, the producing company has taken a most bold step, for judging from the conclusions of the first numbers, happy endings are to be an unknown quantity in "Who's Guilty?" This is flying in the face of all motion picture tradition, for again the average producer believes that the public does not like the sour taste of an unhappy ending. However such a manner of closing puts just the right finishing touch of strength on the pictures. The Arrow company is to be commended and we believe that others will commend them as well.

The series is to be a selection of separate dramas, each one of which winds up by putting the ethical question, "Who's guilty for tragic circumstances that may have been brought about by one of several persons?" Whether or not the average audience will care to bother their heads about the guilty fellow or not is a question that matters little. If they feel inclined to puzzle over the matter, all well and good, if not they will be hugely interested by the entertaining stories.

To place players in the leading roles of a series is enough to warrant undying popularity after its completion. In this case the principals are popular already and instead of relying on the pictures for fame, the pictures may well borrow some from the two leads, Tom Moore and Anna Nilsson. Mr. Moore, one of the most experienced of screen stars, will play the leading male part is each number and his first two performances are excellent and promise big things to follow. Miss Nilsson has the two essential requisites of a picture actress, beauty and talent. Her part calls for a number of exquisite gowns which are furnished her by Hickson.

The opening number entitled "Puppets of Fate," takes up the case of Dr. Bullard, (Tom Moore), his wife Esther (Miss Nilsson) and a wealthy widow (Octavia Handworth). Fame and fortune await the doctor but as luck would have it he becomes enamoured of the widow. His wife suddenly developes a malady which necessitates an operation on her head. She pleads that her husband perform it. Contrary to the ethics of his profession he does. In the midst of it he sees a vision of the widow and becoming nervous his hand fails him—he makes a slip and his wife is killed. The widow casts him off and he sinks lower and lower until the question is put, "Who's Guilty?"

"The Tight Rein," the second brace of reels introduces Jack McCall (Mr. Moore) the son of a tight-fisted factory owner. He favors Amy Prentice (Miss Nilsson), a worker in his father's mill. Because of this his father discharges the girl and prevents her securing work in the village. She leaves for the city and unable to secure employment, takes the easiest way. Jack comes to look for her and finds her. He pleads with her to marry him, but in the midst of the proceedings Babson, the cause of Amy's downfall, comes in and in a rage kills them both. A number of persons might be guilty for this tragedy but the spectator is left to decide for himself.

The production, which is in charge of Lawrence McGill and Howell Hansel, is pronouncedly excellent. Realistic atmosphere has been secured for each phase of the pictures and the players have been handled to advantage. The photography is exceptional.

The scenario for the first number was done by E. A. Bingham and Albert S. LeVino. Their work leaves nothing to be desired in the way of clarity, quick action and telling development. Mrs. Wilson Woodrow is writing the fiction stories for syndication while the plots themselves are being contributed by persons whose names are not mentioned.

"THE MARKET OF VAIN DESIRE"

(Kay-Bee-Triangle—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY OSCAR COOPER

"WHAT difference is there between the woman who sells her pitiful body on the streets, and the society girl who barters her beauty to the highest bidder on the Marker of Vain Desire?"

This is the theme of C. Gardner Sullivan's story which arraigns money marriages in upper circles of society; which indicts the church for its connivance therein. And this argument is summed up in a sensational sermon preached in an aristocratic church by the Rev. John Armstrong, who hires a woman of the streets to stand with him in his pulpit that he may use her as an illustration. In his congregation are the Badgleys, whose daughter, Helen, is about to be sold by her mother to a count in exchange for his title.

Needless to say, Armstrong is in love with Helen. His sermon brings Helen's father to his senses, but it also brings the count to the minister's rooms, with the result that a quarrel ensues, and the count strikes the minister, wounding him seriously. The vestrymen, coming to demand the minister's resignation, learn what has happened. They change their minds. Helen arrives also, and the final scene leaves no doubt that the minister has won his battle.

We have given the story in some detail, because it is the most striking thing in the picture. It is handled frankly, in spots, melodramatically, and at times is quite impressive, chiefly because of well-written, dramatically placed sub-titles. The action is exceedingly slow, some of the scenes being virtually without action, as they are devoted to many close-ups depicting the mental struggle of the minister against the hypocrisy of his parishioners.

H. B. Warner gives a forceful portrayal of the minister, and Clara Williams is excellent as Helen. Gertrude Claire draws an admirable sketch of a hard-hearted mother. Charles Miller, as the count, is fair. Leona Hutton does well as the scarlet woman.

The direction was in the hands of Reginald Barker, who has brought out the main points of the story faithfully. The settings, of course, are right. There are some unusual lighting effects, including night photography.

"JACKSTRAWS"

(Lubin-General—Three Reels)

REVIEWED BY OSCAR COOPER

AN old plot has been handled capably by Director Melvin Mayo, under the supervision of Captain Wilbert Melville, to make quite an interesting and, at times, convincing, subject. The players, which include Lucy Payton, Adelaide Bronti, George Routh, Cecil Van Auker, Alan Forrest and Evelyn Page, are competent, while the settings, locations and photography are excellent.

The story tells how a wealthy young girl weds a rake, who is sent to prison for embezzlement after their marriage. She divorces him. Upon his release he joins a gang of counterfeiters. The girl's aunt dies, leaving her the entire estate. When the husband discovers that she is in love with another, he swears revenge, and attempts to persuade the fiance that the girl was involved in an escapade at a questionable roadhouse. Detectives arrive at the right moment, the villain is arrested, and all ends happily.

"A CHILD OF THE PARIS STREETS"

(Fine Arts-Triangle—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY OSCAR COOPER

THE little dramatic touches for which Griffith is famous are used here by Director Lloyd Ingraham to enrich a photoplay, already wealthy because Mae Marsh, Robert Harron and Tully Marshall were chosen as principals in its portrayal. It is one of those pictures in which the players cannot be dissociated from the story and the direction, which is only another way of saying that it is a real photoplay.

THE AMERICAN MEETS THE LITTLE APACHE

Certainly Miss Marsh has never had a happier role than her present one, that of a little Parisian Apache, who is stolen from her parents in infancy and brought up as a thief; certainly Harron is perfectly at home as a young American, who eventually rescues the girl just as she is about to be put to death by the band for treason; and just as certainly Marshall is perfectly cast as the Apache leader. Besides these there are Jennie Lee, Carl Stockdale, Loyola O'Connor and Bert Hadley. Special mention should be made of the excellent character work of Jennie Lee as the Apache "mother."

The settings represent admirably Paris streets and houses, and a particularly pleasing bit of color is afforded by the staging of a fete night. In fact, the externals of this production are worthy to rank beside the acting and Grant Carpenter's story.

It is the scenes between Miss Marsh and Harron, incorporating the touches which we mentioned above, which will delight your audiences most. We have seen Miss Marsh in many subjects, but never have we seen her powers of expression, her natural pantomime, better exemplified. The same thing is true of Harron. The same thing is true of Marshall. If any further praise is needed, we may remark that suspense, adventure and realism are at hand. If the earlier scenes, in which Miss Marsh appears as a child-wife, the mother of the little Apache whom she portrays later, had been omitted, this would have been very nearly a great picture.

But in its present state it is surcharged with merit. And not the least pleasing thing about it is that, while it deals with material which some producers would have made sordid, it is free from any suggestion of sordidness.

"THE FEUD GIRL"

(Famous Players-Paramount—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY HARVEY F. THEW

UNUSUALLY beautiful and striking locations have been selected for this story of the Georgia mountains, in which Hazel Dawn is starred as a wild mountain girl until a sudden metamorphosis brings her into more up-to-date and attractive clothes. Inasmuch as practically the entire picture is shown in exteriors, these locations are important; they have been judiciously arranged, however, and the eye is not allowed to tire of the mountain scenery.

Brilliant photography and excellent characterizations aid in establishing and retaining the atmosphere of the Southern mountains. Charles A. Logue's story, strong in "heart interest," introduces a few novel features, and toward the end provides some real gripping situations.

Hazel Dawn is always beautiful in the camera's eye, even if her emotions are not always convincing. She holds the center of interest well, and in this subject has been cast in a role well suited to her.

As Nell Haddon, daughter of the leader of one of the clans on Iron Mountain, she is loved by her cousin Luke, and has an inborn hatred of the Bassetts, the other clan, who own the second half of the mountain. Northern financiers attempt to buy the mountain, but the clans cannot agree on a survey; so a young surveyor is sent down to aid in bringing about an understanding.

It happens, fortunately, that this young surveyor is one of the Bassetts, the childhood sweetheart of Nell, who ran away from home when a lad because of the feud between the families. No one recognizes him in the old home, and he meets and falls in love with Nell all over again. He wins her away from Luke, and whips the latter in a desperate fight. He marries Nell under the assumed name under which he appeared on Iron Mountain, but later when she discovers the deception she leaves him, and the negotiations over ending the feud are broken off.

Eventually she returns to her husband, they are remarried under his real name, and the advent of a child heals the breach between the Bassett and Haddon families.

The massing of the clans, and their deploying through the forests, are especially effective, and add a real thrill to the picture. The cast is well chosen, and as a rule capable. In it are Arthur Morrison, Hardee Kirkland, Irving Cummings, Russell Simpson, Gertrude Norman, George Majeroni and Edna Holland.

"THE MYSTERIES OF MYRA—EPISODE THREE"

(International Film Service—Two Reels)

REVIEWED BY OSCAR COOPER

IN this episode, entitled "The Magic Mirrors," Dr. Payson Alden, by the use of a huge hypnotizing machine, causes Myra's astral body to separate itself from her, so that she may discover the identities of those who are seeking her death. The Black Order immediately convenes, and attempts to break the astral thread so that Myra cannot awake from the hypnotic spell.

While this is going on, Dr. Alden vainly tries to restore Myra to consciousness. His failure renders him desperate, and, scientific methods failing, he tries prayer, in which Myra's mother joins. This effort proves successful, and Myra awakes to tell Dr. Alden what she observed while in the astral state. Her narration convinces Alden that it is the Black Order which is plotting her death, and he determines to visit its quarters himself.

Howard Estabrook, as Dr. Alden; Jean Sothern, as Myra; Bessie E. Wharton, as Mrs. Maynard, Allen Murnane, as Varney, and M. W. Rale, as the Master, continue their excellent work. The trick lighting effects are fully as good as those in the first two episodes, while the hypnotizing machine, and other psychic appliances, furnish an added interest.

Summed up, this episode sustains, without difficulty, the interest engendered by the first two.

"THE ORDEAL OF ELIZABETH"

(Vitagraph Blue Ribbon-V-L-S-E—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY OSCAR COOPER

THE elements of a thoroughly good picture have been assembled in this. It is strong in love interest, suspense, and a degree of mystery. Fortunate in its featured principals—Lillian Walker and Evart Overton—and in the supporting cast, it is also possessed of typically excellent Vitagraph staging and intelligent direction by Wilfrid North.

Miss Walker is given opportunity to do some emotional work, which she handles in a skillful manner. By contrast, the early action presents her as a carefree young girl of the country, whose hasty marriage to a young artist gives rise to her ordeal, which is not ended until she has been tried for his murder. Evart Overton as the hero gives the best performance we have seen him offer, while Denton Vane is an acceptable villain. There are also L. Rogers Lytton, in an excellent characterization of a district attorney; Ollie Walker, Kate Price, Mrs. M. Storey, Templer Saxe, R. M. S. Putnam, and Walter McGrail.

The story builds up gradually—at times too slowly—to an impressive climax, in which suspense is the keynote. Here the girl is tried for the murder of her husband, and the trial is shown in detail. The hero returns from abroad in time to save her from conviction, by furnishing an alibi, and the mystery is solved by the discovery that it was the girl's jealous cousin who sent the poison bottle.

THE MEETING

Even after the identity of the murderess is revealed quite early in the trial, thus giving the mystery away, the spectator's interest is amply sustained, for he does not know whether the jury will realize that it is the resemblance between the two girls which has caused the whole difficulty. In fact, the spectator is somewhat surprised when a verdict of not guilty is returned, but he is nevertheless immensely pleased.

The management of the trial, as to direction, is excellent. The jury is an admirable collection of types, and Putnam, as the judge, is great.

"The Ordeal of Elizabeth" will undoubtedly please.

"THE GIRL WITH THE GREEN EYES"

(Pathe Gold Rooster—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY HARVEY F. THEW

THE play by Clyde Fitch in which the late Clara Bloodgood made considerable of a hit several years ago, has been done over into a picture which all the lovers of Fitch will immediately recognize as smacking strongly of the master's touch. In fact, the play has been followed quite closely, and the dramatic points which made it a stage success have been carefully retained and presented with their full effectiveness.

There are times when Julian L'Estrange fails to convince. His type is an excellent one, however, and he makes a strong appeal to the sympathies. In his strongest scenes he is uniformly successful, and he makes good use of his long screen experience, showing an expertness and aptness in registering the subtler ideas.

Katharine Kaelred has a difficult part, but she handles it in a finished manner. Her role is that of Mrs. Travers, the wife of a popular actor; she is constantly jealous of the adoration he receives from hosts of women, and a "friend," who has long coveted her secretly, seizes upon this to work upon her jealousies and convinces her that her husband is unfaithful.

Circumstances aid him, for he is seen calling on a girl, who lives alone with her child in an expensive apartment. Convinced that his relations with the girl are improper, Mrs. Travers pretends to flirt with the wooer, until she fears she has gone too far. Then she spurns him, and in revenge he spreads tales concerning her around the clubs.

"DESERTED"

Travers hears these tales, and seeks the "friend," who calls at his dressing room. They grapple, and the intruder fires at Travers, the bullet striking the girl in the case, who has just walked into the room. The wife also appears, and Travers explains that the girl is his sister, who was wronged some time before by a man who since disappeared. She identifies the "friend" as this same man, and Travers springs upon him again, but this time is restrained by the police.

The trouble caused by her unreasoning jealousy, alienates Travers' love from his wife, and she, deserted, attempts to poison herself. She is saved, however, by a maid, who accidentally spills the poison, and refills the glass with plain water. Through the pleadings of his sister, Travers goes back to his wife, and all ends happily.

"THE LION AND THE GIRL"

(Keystone-Triangle—Two Reels)

REVIEWED BY OSCAR COOPER

FOR hazardous stunts, combined with amusing slapstick, it would be hard to beat this Keystone. We have a girl dropped into a lion's cage, to begin with. The lion plays his part by advancing to the spot where the girl is lying. He puts his paws over her face and poses for several minutes, uttering what must be blood curdling roars. The "rescue" is effected cleverly.

At the proper moment in the plot—which, by the way, is neatly contrived—the chase starts, with automobiles, motorcycles, and skyscrapers as accessories during the fact. The hazards include falls from a motorcycle at full speed, the lassoing of an auto on a slippery pavement, and a wild chase up the side of a tall building. This last event looks particularly reckless, especially as it involves a drop of thirty or forty feet in mid-air by one of the players.

In addition to the stunts, there is some clever fooling by Joe Jackson, Claire Anderson, May Wells, Louis Morrison, Clarence Lyndon, Leo Kendal, Billy Hauber and others, who were directed by Glen Cavender. Some aspects of Jewish character are caricatured, but not offensively.

"The Lion and the Girl" is, as a whole, one of the best of recent Keystones.

WATCH FOR THE MAY INDEX OF REVIEWS IN NEXT WEEK'S ISSUE

"THE SUSPECT"

(Vitagraph Blue Ribbon-V-L-S-E—Six Reels)

REVIEWED BY OSCAR COOPER

IN this portrayal of the conflict between oppression and the struggle for freedom in Russia, Anita Stewart reaches new emotional heights. Her work is the outstanding merit of a production which we hasten to recommend to the exhibitor as a superior picture, although we are frank to say that, in our opinion, the ending is disappointing.

It is one of those cases in which profound sympathy is aroused for a character—a young Russian nobleman—only to find that, in the end, he must be killed. We have four reels of an intensely dramatic situation, in which Sophie, leader of the Nihilists, marries Prince Paul, son of Karatoff, the typical Russian official and known as "the butcher," whom Sophie hates with all her soul, because Karatoff had her father flogged to death.

A child is born to Sophie and Paul. They are apparently devoted to it. But Paul discovers his wife's identity. A quarrel ensues. Valdor, jealous of Paul, knocks him unconscious, and throws his body in a half-frozen river. Paul is resuscitated, but loses his memory.

Then an entirely new element is introduced in the shape of a young British diplomat, who meets Sophie and her little son on their way to London. He falls in love with her. Karatoff comes to London, passes himself off as a Nihilist, and goes to a Nihilist meeting in Paris. Paul is brought there also by some Russian peasants. To the utter surprise of the spectator, Paul is killed by a bullet aimed at Karatoff by one of the Nihilists, and Sophie goes back to England to wed the Britisher, while Karatoff takes his grandson to Russia with him.

This turn of events, in view of the sympathy which the spectator inevitably has for Paul, is a little bewildering. It is, however, logical if one judges that Sophie never loved Paul, and in any case, it will cause discussion, and arouse unusual interest.

S. Rankin Drew produced "The Suspect," a guarantee that it is a good picture. He loses no time in creating suspense, the very first few scenes being highly dramatic, as they show the flogging of Sophie's father. The continuity is good, and the atmosphere, two or three locations excepted, fine.

We have already referred to the sterling quality of Miss Stewart's rendition of Sophie. Next to her, Anders Randolf's impersonation of Karatoff, is most impressive. Drew, as Paul, is also excellent. Frank Wupperman gives a convincing portrayal of the Englishman. Others in a capable cast are George Cooper, Edward Elkas, Julia Swayne Gordon, Bobby Connelly and Al Babcock.

"SUDDEN RICHES"

(Peerless-World—Six Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

EVERY exhibitor, if he has been in the business any reasonable length of time, knows the picture that tells of sudden wealth and consequent unhappiness on the part of its possessors. Such a theme has been materially and dramatically elaborated upon in "Sudden Riches," but by reason of an original series of introductory events, the picture takes on a semblance of unconventionality and real strength.

E. Richard Schayer is the author of the story. Mr. Schayer has handled his subject in a most convincing manner. His characters are typical and are intelligently drawn. The strength of the body of his picture relies largely on contrast of scene. He alternates between showing husband and wife pursuing their none too respectable desires and their forsaken little girl, who suffers from neglect and lack of love. These scenes lend great force to the entire piece and it is here that little Madge Evans, who plays the child, demonstrates wonderful ability. Her tears will, without a doubt, meet with response from the audience, for there is nothing more appealing than the suffering of a little child.

The situation alluded to in the opening results from an ingrown hatred of Abner Crewe for his nephew. He tries in divers ways to wreck young Crewe's happiness but is unsuccessful. On his death bed, still with this object in mind, he leaves him a million dollars. With the fortune comes unhappiness. Crewe seeks diversion away from home, his wife does likewise, until at last the severe sickness of their child brings them together, resolved never to again accept a sudden fortune.

Robert Warwick is, as ever, the finished and sincere actor. As Crewe his performance merits warm praise. Gerda Holmes does well as his wife, while Clara Whipple is seen to good advantage as the adventuress. The support is in every instance commendable.

Emile Chautard directed. His work is consistently good throughout, save in the club scenes, when he is apt to exaggerate in the conduct of the members. As a whole, however, he has made a fine picture of a fine story. The scenes in which little Miss Evans appear are excellent samples of the director's art.

The settings are appropriate while the photography, which is poor at first, grows rapidly better with the advancement of the story.

EMILY'S ILLNESS PROVES A MEANS OF REUNION

"THE RECLAMATION"

(American-Mutual Masterpicture DeLuxe—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY WILLIAM C. ESTY, 2ND

ALTHOUGH the differences between the petty farmers and the large landholders of California are not of vital moment to the average photoplay patron, their clash of interests could yet be woven into a very entertaining drama. The material is handled in this picture with so much circumlocution that few audiences will lean forward in the chairs.

One reason for this is that sympathy is not aroused for one faction, and antipathy for the other. Also there are long stretches of film with little action, punctuated by thrilling episodes too obviously put in to remedy the lacking punch.

Praiseworthy features are by no means absent, however. Some of the scenes selected to portray California's scenic glories are remarkably beautiful and are photographed with consummate skill. The acting, especially that contributed by Winnifred Greenwood, Franklyn Ritchie, and Dick La Reno, is excellent. Subordinate parts are taken by Clarence Burton, Margaret Nichols, Harry McCabe, and Roy Stewart.

There is a legal controversy between Phelan, a wealthy landowner, and an association of small ranchers over the water rights of the Esperanza Valley. Powell, Phelan's brilliant young lawyer, loses the case. His defeat is mainly due to Louise McLeod, the daughter of one of the ranchmen, who has acted as Powell's stenographer and has kept his enemies informed about his moves. Louise confesses her strategy to him, and persuades him that her friends are in the right.

Phelan hires an engineer to dynamite the river so that the water will be diverted onto his land. Powell hears of this, and accompanied by Louise, he dashes in an automobile to the place selected by the engineers for the explosion. He puts the fuse out, and takes Louise to the nearest minister.

LIBERTY, OKLAHOMA CITY, USES A GOLD KING SCREEN

A RECENT issue of MOTION PICTURE NEWS stated that the Liberty Theatre, Oklahoma City, had installed a gold mirror screen. This was an error. The Liberty uses a Gold King screen.

"PASQUALE"

(Morosco-Paramount—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY OSCAR COOPER

"PASQUALE" is a vehicle for George Beban's sure-fire ability in the delineation of Italian character. It will win for him increased favor with picturegoers, because its story gives him full scope in the closely associated regions of laughter and tears.

Beban is, without doubt, its strength, and a guarantee to the exhibitor that his patrons will not be disappointed in the picture as a whole. The numerous emotional touches which he manages with great ease and conviction arise naturally out of the story, which Mr. Beban wrote in collaboration with Lawrence McCloskey. He appears as a small town grocer, hard-headed, kindly, devoted to Julie, an orphan, and Colombo, his horse. Around Colombo Beban weaves the psychology of love for dumb animals; and around Julie psychology just as keen, for Pasquale loves her, and silently bears his sorrow when she chooses to wed a worthless young man of the town.

THE WEDDING FEAST

All this is presented in a gratifying way. When Beban holds the screen, there is no doubt about the appeal of the picture, and fortunately we have enough Beban to offset a conventional subplot which depicts a dissatisfied wife in the toils of an affair with a young society man. The subject also suffers from actionless introductory scenes, and repetition of incident. On the other hand, it has some very well directed battle scenes, for Pasquale heeds his country's call, and fights until he is disabled and returned to America. The atmosphere is excellent, save for a single scene which attempts to represent an Italian hospital but fails to do so.

The supporting cast includes Myrtle Stedman, Helen Eddy, Page Peters, Jack Nelson and Nigel de Brullier, all of whom give good performances, with Miss Eddy, in the role of Julie, ranking easily next to Mr. Beban.

Summed up, "Pasquale" is a distinctive film, because of the way in which it has been handled by Mr. Beban. The direction by William D. Taylor is competent at all points.

"THE COURTESAN"

(American-Mutual Masterpicture DeLuxe—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY WILLIAM C. ESTY, 2ND

THE title of this photoplay and its theme, for which William Parker is responsible, are equally frank. While both capitalize the alleged popular interest in fallen women, the production is utterly free from salaciousness.

After some little preliminary vagueness, the spectator is finally carried along by a swiftly-moving story of politics, intrigue and mother-love. The extraordinary coincidences will probably be forgotten in the strong situations they give rise to. Although the good taste of using this kind of material is open to debate, no one can deny that it makes possible many powerful incidents.

Eugenie Forde takes the title part, and it is one of the doleful, heavily emotional roles she seems best fitted for. Hal Cooley is a presentable hero, and Charles Wheelock and William Carroll make a good brace of heavies. Others in the cast are Al Fordyce and Nell Franzen.

Unknown to him, the living expenses of Manley, a young lawyer, are being paid by Mayda, his courtezan mother. She leads a life of sin in order that he may have every opportunity to make a success. Manley becomes a candidate for the office of district attorney, and is opposed by Grandby, the son of a crooked political boss. Realizing that Manley will win unless strong measures are taken, the Grandbys, father and son, plan to involve him in scandal.

A note is sent him, telling him to go to Mayda's apartment. While he is there the Grandbys, accompanied by police, photographers and reporters, go to the apartment to collect evidence. But Mayda shows that Grandby, Sr., is her legal husband, and that Grandby, Jr., is Manley's brother. Having dumbfounded her son's enemies, she dies.

"SHERLOCK HOLMES"

(Essanay-V-L-S-E—Seven Reels)

REVIEWED BY HARVEY F. THEW

THE old classic which seems to hold its youth better than most things reaches the screen in rather extended form, after passing through the various metamorphoses of novel and play. We recognize our hero, but he has been placed amid a medley of familiar surroundings, which we have been accustomed to consider separately. Nevertheless, since the play took the same form, we were ready for the dove tailing together of several of the more dramatic adventures of the great criminologist.

William Gillette, the only Sherlock Holmes the stage has known, appears to good advantage in the screen version. As he is the author of the play as well, he has selected his own surroungings, and has presented them to good advantage. The affair of Irene Adler and her greatly prized photograph, which she threatens to use in compromising a European sovereign, the attempts of Professor Moriarty to take the life of Holmes, and several of the smaller adventures, have been combined to make a good dramatic whole.

The action begins with Holmes's attempts to get hold of papers in the possession of Alice Faulkner. Moriarty and his band are also trying to get the documents. Holmes tricks the girl into giving them up, but returns them to her, with the statement that he believes she will give them up of her own accord. His action is explained by the fact that he has fallen in love with Alice.

Holmes finally gets the papers by having Alice escorted into the next room, and then, in her hearing, delivering a bundle of counterfeit papers to his clients. Rather than see Holmes suffer the anger of his clients, she rushes in and delivers the real papers to him.

This is accomplished after Moriarty's men have made a desperate attempt on Holmes's life, which he discovers and turns against them, surrendering them to the police.

The direction of the picture by Arthur Berthelet, from a scenario by H. S. Sheldon, is excellent and uniform throughout. Mr. Gillette screens well, and is sincere through all his work. The locations have been well chosen, and the atmosphere of London is maintained, with a few slight exceptions.

There is a capable supporting cast, which includes Marjorie Kay, Ernest Maupain, Edward Fielding, Stewart Robbins, Hugh Thompson, Ludwig Kreiss, Mario Majeroni, William Postance, Chester Beery, Frank Hamilton, Fred Malatesta, Grace Reals, Miss Ball, Burford Hampden and Marion Skinner.

"NANCY'S BIRTHRIGHT"

(Terriss Film—Unity Sales—Six Reels)

REVIEWED BY WILLIAM C. ESTY, 2ND

THE plot of this piece might have been lifted bodily from a popular number of a paper-backed library, or from one of the melodramas that flouished before the advent of moving pictures. In contradistinction to some of the "vampire" films, ineffable goodness triumphs over unbelievable wickedness, not only at the final dissolve, but through most of the lurid five reels. All the bad people reform very suddenly at the finale, but their change of heart is too briefly motivated.

The players sincerely try to interpret the author's character conceptions, but the script calls for such unnatural actions and unequivocal traits that the actors necessarily appear more wooden than human. Then, too, the stilted language that the subtitle writer makes them use detracts still further from their human quality. Murdock MacQuarrie, Edythe Sterling and Norbert A. Myles are assigned the leads, while Millard Wilson and V. T. Henderson also appear.

The details of the production have been adequately looked after, the photography being especially commendable. The contrasts between scenes in the slums and in a rich man's mansion are striking and well handled. Since similar plots have succeeded on the spoken stage and in literature, there must be something about them that people like and will pay money to see.

Nancy Levine is the daughter of a drunken father and of a mother who was disinherited by John Martingale, her wealthy father, because she married beneath her station. When Nancy is yet an infant, her mother dies, and she is adopted by the Warners, a kindly mother and her son. Twenty years later Warner is employed in the Martingale iron works, and is engaged to Nancy. In his old age Martingale wants to find his grand-daughter to make her his heir. When he is unable to do this, he instructs Wilson, his general manager, to get a girl from the slums for him to adopt. Wilson hires a band of crooks, headed by Nancy's father, to kidnap Nancy, but her implicit belief in God makes the hardened criminals reform at once, and they let her go. Wilson embezzles the company's funds and makes Warner appear as the thief. Martingale discovers his manager's dishonesty, makes Warner general manager, and finding that Lucy is his grand-daughter, makes her his heir.

"A ROSE OF ITALY"

(Essanay-Three Reels)

REVIEWED BY WILLIAM C. ESTY, 2ND

ALTHOUGH built along familiar lines, this three-reeler deviates enough from the stock specifications to make a moderately absorbing program offering. The players taking the part of Italians are handicapped by their facial unlikeness to that race, but by means of shrugs, gestures and dress manage to approximate the desired effect. The sinister operations of the Mafia as shown in this film might excite incredulity in a Pinkerton man, but will interest most theatre-goers.

LUCIA GOES TO AMERICA

The old device of creating suspense before the explosion of a time-bomb is used, but as it is brought in here it is still effective. The scenes showing a troupe of chorus girls will interest many.

Ann Kirk is excellent in the title role and is given very able support by Edmund Cobb, Patrick Calhoun, Richardson Cotton and Hugh Thompson.

Lucia Lamberti and Luigi Sforza, recent arrivals from Italy, are engaged to be married. Luigi is studying to be a lawyer, and Lucia becomes a coryphee in one of the musical shows owned by Bolano, a rich banker. Lucia is made a featured dancer, and no longer considers Luigi a suitable husband. One night Bolano asks her to his apartment, but when she sees his purpose she escapes. A few minutes later Bolano is killed by a time-bomb placed in the room by the Mafia. Thoroughly frightened, Lucia runs to Luigi to ask his forgiveness and love.

"THE TEST OF CHIVALRY"

(Selig—Three Reels)

REVIEWED BY WILLIAM C. ESTY, 2ND

A WORLD-OLD version of the triangle is here presented deftly and sympathetically. Although the ending has elements of poignant sadness, it is so plainly inevitable that even "happy ending" fiends will not feel cheated. The high-grade acting rather than any merits of production or story, is responsible for the picture's appeal. Fritzie Brunette has one of the wistful melancholy parts she does better than anything else. Edward Piel is a likable hero, and William Scott exercises plenty of plain and fancy villainy in the role of the heavy. In their support Vivian Reed, James Bradbury, Frank Clark and Lillian Hayward appear. Well-chosen locations and good photographic effects add much to the effectiveness of the whole.

THE MOTHER INTERFERES

When Pauline Grey's parents refuse to allow Jack Ashton to pay his attentions to her, he goes West, broken-hearted. Pauline is then forced into a loveless marriage with Morris, an aged but wealthy man. In his new environment Jack is much interested in Eve Wilson, a girl whose husband makes life miserable by his drunkenness and cruelty. Unkown to Jack, Eve's husband dies, and the girl asks to be his housekeeper, saying that her husband has disappeared.

Eve falls deeply in love with Jack, and he, his memory of Pauline fading, begins to reciprocate. Pauline's husband dies, and she writes her former lover to come back and marry her. This letter revives all of the man's latent love, but he replies that he feels it his duty to marry and protect Eve. By chance Eve sees this letter, and she decides to sacrifice herself for Jack's sake. She leaves a note, saying that her husband has returned and reformed. Torn with grief, she stumbles away.

"MY COUNTRY FIRST"

(Terris Film—Unity Sales—Six Reels)

REVIEWED BY OSCAR COOPER

CONSIDERING that preparedness and strained relations with foreign powers are uppermost in the public mind just now, this should prove a timely and acceptable picture. It is purely a story of romantic adventure, characterized by quick action, and an undoubted amount of dramatic interest. Occasionally, the theme disappears under a volley of short scenes, managed by the cut and flash method. The picture could stand a little trimming also.

America is the locale of the story, which tells how certain agents of an unnamed foreign government are attempting to get hold of an explosive invented by a young American, who, upon perfecting it, intends to give it to his government. The spies frame him up, but their plans are spoiled when one of them causes him to be railroaded to prison for a murder he did not commit. They find they will have to get him out of prison, in order to secure the formula, as their own chemist, just as he has successfully worked it out, is killed by an explosion.

They abduct the inventor from prison, holding his escape as a club over his head to make him deliver the explosive to them. He plays with them, and finally, when the showdown comes, refuses to carry out his "agreement," exclaiming "My Country First." Just as they are about to kill him, a band of secret service men, led by the girl with whom the inventor is in love, arrive and overpower the gang.

Tom Terriss gives a convincing portrayal of the inventor, turning aside to do some excellent character work of the chemist and later as the inventor in the disguise of the dead chemist whom he is forced by the foreign agents to impersonate after his escape from prison. Others in a well chosen and entirely adequate cast are John Hopkins, Alfred Heming, Harold Vosburgh, Joseph Sterling, Joseph Baker, Jill Woodward, Helene Ziegfield.

Mr. Terriss also directed the picture, and was unusually fortunate in his selection of settings and locations, all of which are right. A touch of realism is given by showing views of Washington, D. C., the Hotel Biltmore and several easily recognized streets of New York.

as to the damages that should rightfully be paid to the manufacturers who, through physical inability or incompetence of the commission and its employees, fail to get quick action upon their applications, and are thus subjected to delay in marketing their films and keeping large investments tied up.

Scientific films are also to be exempted from the provisions of the proposed law upon the filing of a statement that the films are not to be exhibited at any private or public place of amusement.

Provision for Reviews Upon Appeal

Another matter in which time is an important factor has been injected into Section 9, providing for reviews upon appeal, it being made mandatory upon the commission to render its decision within five days of the filing of the application for review and the submission of the film. It is pointed out that without some such provision as this they could keep reels tied up for an indefinite period. It would practically result where any man not having a pull could not get to the commission at all. As a member of the committee put it, "Pity the fellow who does not stand in with the commission. Without this provision he could be kept waiting forever."

Another life-saver is a new section numbered thirteen, which may prove a hoodoo, for "the commission provided for in this Act shall have the power to issue licenses or permits for motion picture films for adults only, and no such film shall be exhibited to children under sixteen years of age." Perhaps the commission, under this paragraph, will have some fun apologizing to the manufacturers for decisions demanding elimination, etc.

The old Section 13 has been discarded completely. This was a joker, for it provided that if any provision of the act shall be declared unconstitutional, the other provisions shall not thereby become invalid, and in all probability the unconstitutionality of the act will not be confined to any one particular section.

TABLOID REVIEWS FOR THE BUSY EXHIBITOR

PRODUCTIONS FROM ALL PROGRAMS

GENERAL FILM PROGRAM

"A Rose of Italy." (Essanay. Three reels. Sat., May 20.)—Reviewed at length elsewhere in this issue.

"The Condemnation." (Essanay. Two reels. Tues., May 23.)—Not shown for review; the story follows: John Stewart is an unreasonably jealous husband. He constantly misconstrues his wife's actions, and accusses her of flirting, when she is in reality the most faithful of wives. One day he sees a young girl in his house who has just borrowed one of his wife's dresses, and is being embraced by her fiancee. He is about to shoot the girl, thinking it is his wife, but sees his mistake in time. This narrow escape cures him of his jealousy. Nell Craig, Darwin Carr, Edmund Cobb, and Jane Thomas are in the cast.

"Canimated Nooz Pictorial, No. 10.")—An animated cartoon burlesque of the animated weeklies, drawn by Wallace A. Carlson.

"The Schemers." (Essanay. Three reels. Sat., May 27.)—Not shown for review; the story follows: Two boys just out of college, Jones and Barton, decide to be brokers, and open an office with three hundred dollars capital. An alumnus of the college is commissioned to buy two million dollars' worth of munitions for a foreign government. The young brokers persuade him to execute his orders through them, but not having money enough to pay their office rent, they are thrown in jail. The alumns obtains their release, and the three form a company to manufacture the munitions themselves. The cast is made up of John Junior, Harry Dunkinson, Elizabeth Burbridge and Frances Raymond.

"The Tank Town Troupe." (Kalem. Tues., May 9.)—The feature of this Ham comedy produced by Harry Edwards is a chase. Chases seem to be Edwards' strong point, and while he has by no means outdone himself in this reel, the entire fabric, including the furious finale, is sprinkled with a goodly portion of comedy. Ham and Bud as musicians and Norma Nicholls as the sheriff's daughter are the only characters of importance.

"The Bridge of Danger." (Kalem. Sat., May 13.)—This thrilling reel contains one of the most plausible yet most startling sensations because of its entirely obvious execution that the "Hazards of Helen" have yet introduced. It shows Helen Gibson traveling across a rope from an engine to a freight car, while both of the rolling stock are going at high speed. She accomplishes this feat to avert a wreck with the "limited" and, as usual, she ends the picture by proving her own worth and routing the unfavorable parties.

"Sauce for the Gander." (Kalem. Two reels. Mon., May 15.)—Two loan sharks meet with defeat at the hands of Mona and Mary in these exciting reels. The same generous supply of comedy, so subtly brought out in the situations of the plot, serve to nicely balance the picture against its serious underlying motive. Marin Sais and Ollie Kirkby seem to grow more fascinating with each succeeding number of "The Social Pirates" series. There is never a slow moment and the production helps the story along excellently.

"An Innocent Vampire." (Kalem. Fri., May 19.)—While there are certain laughable bits of business in this fifteen minutes of Sis Hopkins comedy, Frank Howard Clark's story could have been much better. The situations are funny to a certain extent, but they are never more than situations—they form no complete whole. The support, particularly that rendered by Henry Murdock and Frank Mizney, is good, while Arthur Albertson and Mary Kennedy furnish the usual love element.

"One Chance in a Hundred." (Kalem. Sat., May 20.)—The camera has been brought into play to deceive the spectator in this "Hazards of Helen" picture, and it accomplishes its mission in thrilling and complete style. The big scene where Helen rides her motorcycle up on a station platform and then onto a flat car which is rushing swiftly by, is enough to deprive the ordinary mortal of his breath. The story built around this thrill is slightly elementary in conception and picturization, but in such a case such shortcomings may be excused.

"The Artful Dodger." (Kalem. Wed., May 17.)—Ethel Teare as a show girl is more ravishing than ever in this comedy. Uncle is opposed to his nephew's marrying an actress but he speedily succumbs when one of her companions works her wiles on him. Besides Miss Teare are Gus Leonard, Jack MacDermott and Victor Rottman.

"The Missing Millionaire." (Kalem. Two reels. Mon., May 22.)—Two crooked brokers who are being crushed by a millionaire, kidnap him and place him in a sanitarium kept by an equally crooked doctor. Mona and Mary succeed after a number of thrilling experiences in securing his release. This episode of "The Social Pirates" leaves nothing to be desired in the way of excitement.

"Ham's Busy Day." (Kalem. Tues., May 23.)—Harry Edwards, again directing Ham and Bud, has staged the greater part of his comedy in a hospital, the favorite stamping ground of many directors. The humor attempted is a little bit too low for whole hearted amusement. Comedy is supposed to be derived from one patient, evidently an idiot, whose makeup is far from pleasing. There are laughs but the other side of the picture predominates.

"A Baby Grand." (Kalem. Fri., May 26.)—Sis Hopkins causes a wild mixup in this reel by informing everyone that a baby has arrived in her house when in reality it is a Baby Grand piano. An old idea but handled excellently with a cast that knows its possibilities. Others are Henry Murdock, Frank Minzey, Richard Purdon, Arthur Albertson and Mary Kennedy.

"The Irish Rebel." (Kalem. Re-issue. Tues., May 16.)—This is one of Kalem's pictures made in Ireland and seems to be particularly appropriate at the present time. It concerns the adventures of an Irish Robin Hood a character that moves in a stirring story of romance and intrigue. The scenes and settings are of course as realistic as they possibly could be.

"Otto the Artist." (Lubin. Mon., May 15.)—More plot than is usually found in Davy Don comedies is present in this release, which, in consequence, is amusing throughout. It was directed by Edwin McKim, with Don, George Egan, Patsy De Forest and Bernard Siegel as principals.

"The Beggar King." (Lubin. Two reels. Tues., May 15.)—An automatic typewriter, which transmits messages to another machine any distance away, figures largely in this, and gives the whole an air of novelty. The atmosphere of a newspaper office is also brought in. A reporter, in love with the girl, discovers that her father is head of an organization of professional beggars but he resigns rather than write the story. The father is conveniently killed by a shot intended for the reporter, and the secret is thus kept from the world. Robert Gray, Jay Morely, Louis Fitz Roy, M. De la Parelle and Eleanor Blevins do competent work. Wilbert Melville directed.

"The Test of Chivalry." (Selig. Three reels, Mon., May 22.)—Reviewed at length elsewhere in this issue.

"A Five Thousand Dollar Elopement." (Selig. Sat., May 27.)—The plot of this Western comedy is ancient and elementary, yet it gives Tom Mix and his cohorts an opportunity to display their well-known riding specialties. In Mr. Mix's support are Victoria Forde, Joe Ryan, Sid Jordan Chet Ryan. Gilmore, a rancher, refuses to let his daughter marry Tom, a cowboy, until Tom captures some thieves who had stolen five thousand dollars from Gilmore.

MUTUAL PROGRAM

"Deteckters." (Falstaff. Mon., May 15.)—Oscar and Conrad, detectives with nothing to detect, are dispossessed by the sheriff. They hear that Adeline, the pride of the footlights is missing, with a reward offered for her recovery. They go after the reward, have themselves smuggled into the theatre in a trunk, but the loud ticking of Oscar's watch gives them away. Adeline, in hiding, thinks it an infernal machine, makes an uproar, and the two detectives grab her. As a reward a grateful press-agent gives them two tickets for the performance. In the cast are Claude Cooper, Frank E. McNish and Gladys Leslie.

"Harmony and Discord." (Cub. Fri., May 19.)—Another lively M. T. Dome comedy, in which Dome figures as a boy in a piano store. He is sent up to the proprietor's house where tuners are at work on the piano. The boss's wife leaves to escape the din, and Dome takes command of the job, succeeding in wrecking things. The boss gets home to find his piano on fire. Dome is fired, but on retreating rapidly down the street, sees the boss's daughter about to be struck by an auto. He saves her, and also his job. Billy Armstrong and Tommy Hayes have the principal roles.

"Steven's Sweet Sisters." (Falstaff. Sat., May 20.)—Several ludicrous situations are furnished in this comedy. Steven is to receive a legacy of $1,000 if he weds before any of his three sisters do. He locks them all in a room, and goes a wooing, with no success. The girls manage to get word to their suitors, who call with a justice of the peace, and the six are married through the barred window, the brides on the inside and the bridegrooms without. When Steven returns, unmarried, he is greeted by three stalwart brothers-in-law, who advise him that the legacy is not for him. Jay C. Yorke, Frances Keyes, Doris Grey, Gladys Leslie and Isolde Illian are in the cast.

"Repaid." (American. Two reels. Mon., May 22.)—The good cast is expertly directed by Thomas Ricketts, but the story is not strong enough or appealing enough to make a deep impression. The motivation is such that Edward Coxen, Harvey Clark, Louise Lester, Lizette Thorne, George Field and Charles Newton cannot make the characters entirely convincing, although their performance is admirable.

Through a series of misunderstandings Jack Hardin is considered worthless by his father, his brother Norman, and Harriet, his sweetheart. When Jack learns that Harriet and his brother are engaged, he decides to move to another state. Before leaving he overhears a conversation that shows his father's partners to be in a conspiracy to oust Hardin, Sr., from the firm. Jack gives them a check to settle for his father's note, and by the time it is discovered that the check is worthless, Jack has torn up the note.

"Rival Rogues." (Vogue. Tues., May 23.)—This slap-stick comedy not shown for review; the story follows. Art and Joe are two pickpockets. Both admire the belle of the alley, and she promises to marry the one giving her the most jewelry. They both pick the same house to rob, and when the owner catches them, Joe explains that he was protecting the house from Art. Joe takes the stolen jewelry to the belle, but when she goes to Art's trial, the gems are recognized by the owner and Joe is also jailed. Appearing in the cast are Rube Miller, Arthur Tavares, Alice Neice and Madge Kirby.

"Adjusting His Claim." (Beauty. Wed., May 24.)—The plot of this comedy is evidently popular with the public, since it has been utilized in various ways in many releases. The cast, which consists of John Steppling, John Sheehan, Carol Halloway, Dick Rosson and Mary Talbot, does excellent work with the material and will cause laughter in audiences not too critical.

Veggie Tibbles, Queen of the Cafeteria, numbers among her suitors the cashier of the establishment and a street-car motorman. The motorman leads in the race until the cashier hits on a scheme to ruin him. He throws himself in front of the car run by his rival, and pretending to be injured, sues the traction company for damages. The motorman is held for negligence. The company hires a moving picture camera and takes a picture of the cashier while he is fighting a thug hired by the company. With this evidence against him, the cashier ignominiously withdraws from the suit.

"Jack." (Mustang. Two reels. Fri., May 26.)—Not shown for review.

"The Pork Plotters." (Beauty. Sun., May 28.)—Not shown for review; the story follows: A broker is on the verge of ruin because he has invested all his money in pork, and the pork market sags every day. One morning his wife tells him to buy some pork at the butcher's, and he writes "Buy pork" on his cuff. Everyone coming into his office sees the message, and thinks it is a broker's order. On that account everybody buys pork, and the broker makes a fortune. Orral Humphrey and Lucille Ward are the leads.

"National Nuts." (Vogue. Sun., May 28.)—Not shown for review; the story follows: Murphy, the twirler idol of thousands; Jeff, a recruit pitcher, and Lord Rawsberry, a bogus nobleman, are all in love with Rena, an ardent baseball fan. In an important game Rawsberry puts arsenic on the ball, and Murphy's pitching becomes less and less effective as he uses his famous spit-ball and gets the arsenic in his mouth. Jeff is sent to the mound and by his marvelous benders baffles the opposing batsmen. By his wonderful performance he wins Rena's hand. Important in the cast are Paddy McQuire, Ben Turpin, Arthur Moon, Ed Sedgewick, Rena Rogers and Jack Gains.

PATHE EXCHANGE, INC.

"The Iron Claw," No. 11. (Pathé. Two reels.)—Poor Margery finds more appalling perils awaiting her in this chapter, entitled, "The Saving of Dan O'Mara." O'Mara is an employee in a wood-working factory. His wife is sick and he starts on a system of theft to provide for her. Legar hearts of this, gets a position in the factory, and then by threats of exposing O'Mara, gets his daughter to lure Margery to the works. When she arrives, Legar seizes her and throws her into the long-mangling sluiceway, where she is being borne down upon the immense knives. Her friend, the Laughing Mask, appears in time to save her by opening the sluice gates. When Legar, infuriated, attempts to expose O'Mara, he finds that the Laughing Mask has removed all evidences of guilt. Creighton Hale, Pearl White and Sheldon Lewis head the cast.

"Beautiful Lake Chuzenji." (Pathé. Split reel.)—Beautiful pictures of the most picturesque parts of old Japan, giving unusual views of quaint and wild scenery. On the same reel is "The Ascent of Mt. Ranier," affording an interesting comparison between mountain vistas in America and Japan.

UNIVERSAL PROGRAM

"Half a Rogue." (Red Feather. Five reels. Mon., May 22.)—Reviewed at length in the issue of May 20.

"Her Celluloid Hero." (Nestor. Mon., May 22.)—The actor playing the crook gets mixed up with a real crook and the cops who are after the latter gentleman become all the more mixed up until the actor discards his makeup. This falls just short of being a fine comedy throughout as it has been slightly stretched for its one-reel purpose. However, the complications and the mixups are plentifully funny and the final effect is good. Robert McGowan wrote the scenario and Al Christie directed Eddie Lyons, Lee Moran and Betty Compson in the principal parts.

"The Woman Who Followed Me." (Gold Seal. Two reels. Thurs., May 23.)—A novel release that has a deal of humor and much suspense. A man dreams of saving an Italian senorita from bandits. Then she pursues him to his American home, haunts him throughout his courtship and annoys him on his wedding day. At night she enters the house and kills his wife—then he wakes up. Ernie Shields, Marcia Moore and Gladys Brockwell, who plays the Italian, are the leads in this. Robert Leonard wrote the scenario and produced the picture.

"Virginia." (Rex. Tues., May 23.)—Rather a gruesome drama portraying the manner in which a girl of the slums made good against heavy odds. Cleo Madison is the girl and her performance is very good. However, the makeup on the actress who plays her fallen sister is repelling. Miss Madison worked on a scenario by Harvey Gates. (This subject was previously listed for release on May 9, but was replaced with "War in Mexico.")

"The Health Road." (Imp. Tues., May 23.)—A semi-educational subject with Bernarr MacFadden teaching health again. The reel also introduces Sanford Bennett, the man who at fifty tried the MacFadden treatment and who now at the age of seventy-six is hale and hearty. This is very interesting although the drama interwoven is hardly convincing. Alan Holubar, George MacQuarrie and Daphne Purcell are the leads.

"The Limousine Mystery." (Victor. Two reels. Wed., May 24.)—There is always room for a murder mystery story of this calibre. It is clearly worked out and although rather obvious after a certain point in the first reel it keeps the suspense up to the end. Captain Leslie T. Peacocke and Lucius Henderson, respectively, furnished the scenario and direction. Mary Fuller, Tony Merlo, Joseph Girard, B. A. Busby and William Welsh are the principals.

"A Busted Honeymoon." (L-Ko. Wed., May 24.)—Ray Griffith does the drunk very well in this and gets himself into a number of ticklish situations. The laughs are plentiful. Alice Howell, Fatty Voss and Anne Darling are the chief support.

"Corporal Billy's Comeback." (Big U. Two reels. Thurs., May 25.)—A veteran of the Civil War is thought even too incompetent to lead the Memorial day parade, but later he makes all the townsfolk sit up and take notice by bringing in an escaped convict. This release is very strong in character delineation and colorful atmosphere. It has comedy and pathos aplenty and makes an excellent Memorial day release, as it differs widely from the general run of such pictures. Calder Johnstone and George Cochrane prepared the scenario from a story by Harry Leon Wilson, while Cochrane produced. Thomas Jefferson, Antrim Short and Mrs. George Hernandez are the leads.

"The Unconventional Girl." (Imp. Two reels. Fri., May 26.)—Little Edith Roberts is one of the best "finds" the films have made in many a long day. Her bright, vivacious mannerisms stamp her as a capable actress who will certainly win a large following before long. Universal is to be congratulated upon the possession of her services. All this also applies in a certain way to "The Unconventional Girl." It offsets Miss Roberts to splendid advantage in the first scenes, but later the film grows stagey and melodramatic and hardly gives her enough opportunities. However, it may be classed as a good picture because of Miss Roberts. Robert Hill directed and the supporting cast includes Sydell Dowling and Stanley Walpole.

"Love and Brass Buttons." (Nestor. Fri., May 26.)—Concerning the love affair of Policeman Harry and the chief's maid, and of Harry's son, Ray, and the chief's daughter, Billie. The entanglements are many and they are up to the usual Al Christie standard in humorous value. Gus Alexander as the maid, Harry Rattenbury, Ray Gallagher, Billie Rhodes and Neal Burns are the principals.

"Harmony in a Flat." (Rex. Fri., May 26.)—Newlywed's experiences in a flat have been handled with a healthy accent on their humorous possibilities in this fine one-reeler. Ben Wilson and Dorothy Phillips as the couple and Charles Ogle as the janitor are the principals. William Addison Lathrop wrote the story, and Ray Schrock produced.

"The Wedding Guest." (Bison. Two reels. Sat., May 27.)—While Harry Carey is a commanding and romantic figure he is hardly equal to carrying the entire burden of a picture. This one casts him in a part that meets no reward at the end and his sweetheart marries a murderer whom he is after, but whom he lets go for the girl's sake. The scenes and photography are excellent and there is a good fall taken by one of the players from a galloping horse. Oliver Fuller Golden, Joe Rickson, William Canfield, Hoot Gibson and Peggy Coudray are others.

"Storming the Trenches." (Powers. Sat., May 27.)—A juvenile comedy with Gordon Griffith and Irma Sorter, in which a group of children separate and do battle. Eggs are employed promiscuously and the closeups of the eggs coming in contact with the children's faces are not exactly pleasant. Otherwise the comedy is good, with its interest directed almost exclusively toward children.

"A Stage Villain." (Joker. Sat., May 27.)—One of Allen Curtis' rube town pictures introducing at first two members of a traveling theatrical troupe who "work" the boarding house keepers and concluding with a fine burlesque on country show house methods. Gale Henry, William Franey and the usual supporting Joker cast appear at their very best.

"The Gentle Volunteer." (Rex. Three reels. Sun., May 28.)—A Civil War story which interests throughout besides carrying a certain appeal, despite a number of flaws. The types chosen for the mulattos, quadroons and octoroons are hardly appropriate, while it grieves us to state that Dorothy Phillips masking as a soldier could hardly fool a blind man. In other respects "The Gentle Volunteer" is very worthy. It is the story of a woman's hopeless love for a soldier and how, when she discovers that colored blood flows in her veins, she sacrifices her own life that he may live. Ben Wilson, Vivian Prescott, Dorothy Phillips, Bill Bailey and Joseph Girard play the leading parts in May Havey's scenario.

"Gamboling on the Green." (L-Ko. Sun., May 28.)—A flirtatious husband and several janitors are used around which to hang the slim idea of this comedy. It will produce some laughs, no doubt, but taking it from the standard of the recent L-Kos it is lacking in many respects. Reggie Morris and Gene Rogers are the principals, while Dave Morris has a small part.

POWER'S CAMERAGRAPH No. 6B

THE PERFECT MOVING PICTURE MACHINE

EFFICIENCY is not of a mushroom growth; it is born of hard labor and study—and wisdom which profits by experience.

Power's Cameragraph represents an evolution extending over a period of sixteen years.

It is the result of ceaseless thought and research of a Master Mechanical Mind.

It stands for the elimination of all the crude and inefficient appliances of the past, and possesses every known feature of worth which present day knowledge affords.

It is manufactured throughout, in the largest and best equipped factory of its kind in the world.

It is used by the great majority of exhibitors in America.

Everything for Theatre, Exchange and Studio

Motion Picture Projection Simplified

By J. H. Hallberg

94—Is it possible to construct choke-coils of different form than those illustrated and described with a single core and with the " U " core as illustrated in Figs. 45 and 46?

Ans.—Yes, there are cases where it is desirable to change the shape of the iron core and then again there are cases where it is of advantage to use two windings or coils, one on each leg of the " U " core.

95—What is the advantage of using two coils, one on each leg of a " U " core, instead of using only one coil of the same number of turns?

Ans.—It is a fact that wherever a magnetizing coil of any kind is used, heat is generated within the coil due to the resistance of the windings to the current flow. It is also a fact, that with A. C. apparatus there is a certain amount of magnetic leakage, which has the effect of increasing the temperature in the copper windings at those points where the magnetic lines of force leak across.

The heat in the copper windings, due to the leakage of magnetic lines which cut through the copper, increases with an increase in the leakage and with the increase in the size of the copper wire. Within the copper there are actually created local currents of extremely low voltage, but of comparatively high amperage which are called or termed Eddy currents or Foucault currents or Local currents which can generate much heat when not properly compensated.

On account of the generation of Eddy current within the copper windings as above referred to, it is advisable where large amperages have to be carried by the magnetizing coils to use two windings, one on each core leg, in parallel of half the cross section or to divide the coil in two sections, placing one-half on one leg and one-half on the other leg of the " U " core so as to increase the radiating surface of the windings, to dissipate the heat generated to prevent injury to the insulation of the windings from overheating.

Then again there are designs for certain classes of apparatus where there is not sufficient room to place all of the windings on one leg and under such conditions the windings may be split and divided on the two legs of a " U " core, without in any other way, altering or interfering with the operation of the device.

Waste in the Operating Room Through Incompetence

" Don't Care " Attitude of the Operator and Inadequate Equipment Make Needless Trouble—Approximately There Is $15,000,000 Worth of Prints Shown in this Country Every Day and Ninety Per Cent Are Improperly Handled or Projected—How to Avoid Waste

WEDNESDAY afternoon, May 10, during the recent exposition of the Motion Picture Art at Madison Square Garden, New York City, was given over to the subject of Projection and how needless waste through the absolute incompetency and careless " don't care " attitude of the operator, together with inadequate equipment, can be avoided.

The speakers of the afternoon brought out some interesting facts which, though in the main are obvious and well known, will bear repeating. We will submit them to our readers in our own words, in the hope that they will take them to heart and mend their ways if it is necessary.

Primarily, the fault lies with the theatre owner or manager. It may be that he is ignorant of the conditions because he does not know the technique of the business, or he may be too lazy or too much absorbed otherwise to look into the conditions which exist in his projection room.

Conditions under which a man works have a great effect upon his ability to produce results. The architect who lays out a theatre and places the booth way up under the rafters above the gallery is doing as much to kill the business as any one else, for he is sacrificing the very object for which the theatre is built, the good projection of pictures. Under this condition every operator is working under the maximum of disadvantage. Also, the architect who plans his theatre and leaves a " coop " 10 by 10, poorly ventilated, from which to project a picture, is doing something which should brand him forever as unfit for theatre designing.

The projection room must be large, as nearly as possible on the same level as the screen, and well ventilated. This will insure the best possible conditions for the operator, and he will have no excuse for bad work if his outfit is right and kept up properly.

Pay Operators What They Are Worth

At the present time theatre managers rent feature films which cost from $8,000 to $100,000 to produce, paying anywhere up to $50 and more per day in rental. These they turn over to an operator to handle who receives the large salary of $15 to $20 per week. " A man is worthy of hire." Yes, but the theatre owner is unwise who will limit his pay to this sum, for with it he can only tempt a man to work for him who is capable of earning it. If the operator could get more than this at some other branch of work, how long would he stay an operator? Just about as long as it would take him to go across the street and get the other job.

The NEWS advocates higher wages for operators, but only as the increased wages increase the proficiency of the men who receive them. Many men who are working now for $15 per week don't care as long as they draw their money at the end of the week and hold their jobs. Many of these same men, with more pay, would put their hearts into their work, and there would be a change which would mean an ever increasing popularity of the screen and ever increasing box office receipts.

We can only give in brief at this time some of the evils of our present system in the operating room and show where the main leaks exist and how they should be taken care of.

A print reaches the exhibitor brand new, worth from $125 to $700 (some one else's property, remember). It goes to the projection room. It is shown to the audience and it is rewound either by the operator or by his assistant. Either one or both are in a hurry. The job is done as fast as the crank or motor can be made to run, instead of taking five minutes to a reel and doing it slowly. The rewinding is not done evenly, slack is taken up by grinding the take-up reel and holding the other fast. Hence scratches and rain. By the time this film has had this done to it half a dozen times fifty per cent of its value is gone, and the following audiences become disgusted with "movies" more every time that print is shown. Whereas the film should be just as good at the end of four months as it was the day it went out. At the end of a month this print should run to empty houses or, better, be consigned to the scrap heap. The fault lies with the theatre owner and with the operator together. Each house should have a motor driven rewinder, and each reel should be set to take five minutes, if necessary, in rewinding, so that it may be tight from the core out. The same thing can be done with a hand driven machine if the proper care is used. There is no excuse for the vandalism.

You all know what an undercut sprocket is, and here again the blame belongs to the theatre manager and the operator equally. The film comes down under the tension springs and engages the intermittent sprocket teeth, which pull it down into place (Fig. 1).

The tension here should be only sufficient to hold the film at a given speed, and no more. If this tension is just right the sprocket teeth will not be appreciably injured, but if it is the least bit too great the film will gradually notch the teeth which grab the sprocket holes in the film and tear them out as the last engaging tooth lets go of the film. (Fig. 2.)

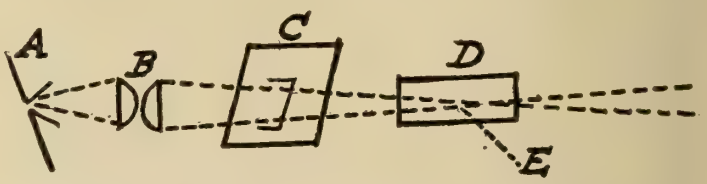
Finally, this action sheers the teeth off entirely, but in the process valuable prints of costly pictures are badly damaged, and with each succeeding show become worse, the deterioration in this case being even more rapid than that of rewinding. These sprockets cost new three dollars and fifty cents, yet a manager, rather than pay a proper salary to a competent operator who knows his business, or teaching his present operator and purchasing new sprockets, goes right along destroying thousands of dollars' worth of other people's property each month, to say nothing of being the cause of ruining the patrons' eyesight by showing a picture which cannot possibly be held steady on the screen.

There is a trouble for which the exchange is somewhat to blame. Through usage a reel with a small hub shaft-hole has become established, whereas one with a hub of one-half inch as a minimum should be in use. From 1,000 to 1,100 feet of film are put on each single reel of 10 inches diameter. This is overcrowded so that when it reaches the operating room it is in no shape to receive the handling which is in store for it in many cases. It is rewound tighter, hence again further scratched. It is dropped on the floor, hence scratched, and on the whole is put through the mill and comes out unfit for further service. If a reel of twelve inches in diameter, with a large one-half inch hub shaft-hole, could be used and be made a minimum standard, rekinding scratches and floor scratches would be eliminated, providing it was done slowly and with care.

Here is a subject upon which there is a difference of opinion, though every one knows that these bills can be cut down materially in the majority of houses. In the first place, whenever possible, direct current should be delivered to the machine. It means a better, steadier, whiter light, which means better pictures. This conversion from alternating to direct current can be done by a number of outfits which are advertised in these pages, and all of which are efficient. This is a cheap investment when compared with the saving obtained, considering also the fact that the outfit always has a good second-hand sales value.

In the average theatre the current necessary to obtain the best possible picture is fifty amperes, though in certain cases less are being used. By using over this there is a needless waste. The average candle power of the electric arc is about 130 per square millimeter, though this may be varied by the size of the carbons, their density and composition, and by the amount of current employed.

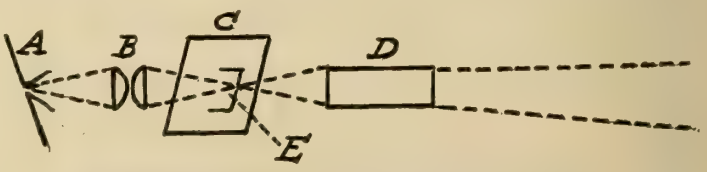
This subject, though it has no definite relation to actual saving of money in connection with the film, has a direct bearing on the box office receipts, for by applying it the operator can actually make money for his employer, and by doing it can properly claim a suitable salary, providing he knows his business thoroughly in other respects.



CORRECT LAYOUT OF PROJECTION SYSTEM

The above diagram shows the correct layout for the projection system. The light rays from the carbon arc at A strike the condensers B, and from them pass through the aperture C, converging within the lense tube D at the point E. The converging rays from B must be of such dimensions at the aperture plate C that they will just pass through without color and with the least possible loss of light.

Should the rays by any chance converge at the point E within the aperture plate C, and after this pass through the lense tube



INCORRECT LAYOUT OF PROJECTION SYSTEM

D, the results on the screen will be absolutely unsatisfactory, as the picture will be materially obscured and dimmed. A hazy reflection of the boiling crater of the carbon will be plainly seen on the screen if the light is thrown thereon without the film being in the machine.

The distance which this must be outside the lens tube must be carefully studied, as an error in this will cause projection which eventually will cause the patrons to go elsewhere. A rather ready means of discovering the proper location of the shutter is as follows: Pass a card, a common visiting card, for example, across the light ray at different distances from the lens (between lens and screen), watching the screen meanwhile. That position where the card casts a dissolving shadow over the screen—that is, where the card shadow seems neither to travel either up or down—is the proper location for the shutter.

With these things in mind, it is easy to figure the enormous actual waste when one considers that there is approximately $15,000,000 worth of prints being shown in this country each day and ninety per cent of these being improperly handled or projected.

Display of Accessories at Garden Is Impressive

Devices for Studio Efficiency, Newly Placed on the Market, Receive Attention of the Exhibitors Themselves—The Majority of Booths Devoted to This Side of the Business Are Ranged Around a Temporary Elevated Floor—Opportunities Offered Prospective Purchasers to Examine Articles on Display

THAT the exposition held at the Garden by the Motion Picture Board of Trade was in no wise a failure, taken from the trade point of view, is fully exemplified by the unanimous verdict of the accessory manufacturers and distributers that "Business was very good, all through the show." In particular has success greeted the exhibits of the accessory studio necessities, newly placed on the market and new devices for the projection machine have met with favor with the exhibitors themselves. Every booth holder in this line of the business is convinced that the Board of Trade show has been a business trade show as well as a means for entertaining the motion picture loving public.

The exhibits were many and varied. The greater part were ranged around the temporary, elevated floor erected around the Garden, and here the prospective purchaser of accessory articles was permitted full room to examine the exhibited goods. The lower floor, with only two or three exceptions, was occupied by the producers and there the general public flocked. This arrangement of the booths resulted in convenient classification of the attendance.

M. J. Wohl & Co. of New York displayed studio equipment, demonstrated throughout the show's run by Messrs. Wohl, Mayer and Leonard. Of special interest were the company's Broadside and Duplex lamps for studio use. These lamps, as well as the others handled by Wohl & Co., are equipped with fine spun glass diffusers, resulting in an unusually powerful light.

The exhibit of the National Carbon Company, managed by A. D. Spear and W. C. Kunzmann, contained a varied line of carbons and a new negative carbon only recently put on the market. This carbon has a very small diameter and is coated with a compound metal mixture which prevents sputtering and flickering. Mr. Spear reports that all operators who visited the National booth were exceedingly well pleased with this carbon.

Kliegl Lights Put to Another Use by Dodd

E. W. Harris represented the Carroll non-rewinding magazine in the National Carbon booth. This magazine, which eliminates the usual rewinder, has met with the approval of exhibitors and operators, and the Carroll company is the recipient of many orders due to its display at the show.

The Universal Electric Stage Lighting Company, of which Kliegl Brothers are proprietors, rented space which was placed under the lively managership of George C. Dodd. Mr. Dodd's favorite pastime during the nine days of the show was searching out restful couples in the top balcony of the Garden with the company's hundred ampere spotlight. It was one of the most powerful lights in the Garden and is capable of using twenty-five, fifty, seventy-five and one hundred amperes. This company also had on hand a portable "burglar" spot light, for use in the studio.

The Motion Picture Scope Company, under the direction of W. J. Patterson, held space where it exhibited a portable motion picture projector suitable for homes, churches and schools.

The Typhoon Cooling System was, as usual, present at the exposition. Two of their fans, one a monster wheel, was erected at the west end of the Garden, while the other, only about half as large but as high as a man, was placed in front of the Typhoon booth. Ernst Glantzberg, in charge of the Typhoon exhibit, was enthusiastic over the company's business.

The National Cash Register Company was at the show in charge of Mr. Dowling. New ticket selling machines were offered for inspection.

Bell and Howell had on view their line of cameras, title machines, film perforators and printers. The Simplex Photo Products Company exhibited under the direction of B. J. Masief and Richard R. Pollard their studio lights, including a powerful side lamp, the Northern Light. Mr. Daly had charge of the exhibit of the Pierson Film Cleaning Machine. Menger and Ring had their usual attractive display of lobby frames, while next to this booth the Eastman Kodak Company had a large portion of space.

The Acme Lithographing Company was the only company of such a class to hold an exhibit at the Garden. This was in charge of John M. Lakin, president of the company. Mr. Lakin also reports that business was good during show time. The Acme Company made the advertising lithos for the Board of Trade prior to the opening of the exposition.

Allison and Hadaway occupied a booth managed by the two members of the firm and in which H. A. Strong of the Novoscope Machine Corporation occupied space. Mr. Strong had on view a home projector of most attractive appearance. Any incandescent lamp furnishes the light for the lamp house. The entire machine, complete with case, costs one hundred dollars and is suitable for home use, schools, clubs, churches and the like. Allison and Hadaway also exhibited the Panchroma Twin Arc Lamps for studio use. This is a strong but small lamp that may be placed in any position without much trouble.

J. H. Hallberg's exhibit was managed by Mr. Hallberg himself and his assistants. He had on display the Baird, Powers and Simplex machines and the Rialto and Satin Gold Fibre screens. The Film Fire Prevention Company exhibited a device for the elimination of chance of fire in the projection booth. Aton Szeliga, the inventor of the device; James R. Gooding, Roger Barstow, Jr., and C. E. Davenport were in charge there.

The machines for the quick and simple dispension of theatre tickets were in exhibition by the Automatic Ticket Selling and Cash Register Company. S. H. DeRoy was in charge of this booth. The Westinghouse Electric Manufacturing Company, besides its usual line of heating and ventilating apparatus, showed a new motor generating set for use of warming the carbons of one machine while the other is in operation. This is employed to prevent the flicker of the fresh carbons when first turned on.

"MUSIC FOR THE PHOTOPLAY" WILL BE OF INTEREST TO PICTURE PLAYERS

EVERY exhibitor, musician, musical director and all others interested in the progressive future of the photoplay theater should make it a point to get a copy of "Music for the Photoplay," just published for free distribution by G. Schirmer, Inc., 3 East Forty-third street, New York City.

The booklet contains contributed articles by the foremost authorities on the photoplay, who will necessarily play an important part in its still greater future. It should be more than interesting to every one interested in Music and the Picture to know the opinions of those who are in a position to know the requirements of the industry throughout the entire country.

Information that is indispensable to the picture musician, orchestra leader and exhibitor will be found in each and every one of these articles. Much could be said in commendation of this booklet. The fact that stands out very clearly in each and every line, is that it is in sum and substance beyond the criticism of the most skeptical thinkers interested in Music and the Picture.

It is a solid foundation of opinion and fact which should form a basis, wherewith to mould a future for picture music, never ending in its upward trend.

The book is clear and clean-cut from beginning to end.

Even were this an advertising medium, nevertheless, great credit would be due to both the contributors and publishers for distributing a book of such musical value at this time.

SEEBURG PIANO COMPANY PUTS TWO ORGANS ON DISPLAY AT MINNEAPOLIS CONVENTION

THE Seeburg Piano Company of Chicago had two of its instruments on exhibition at the Minneapolis convention. These organs made such an impression on the managers there that they were both immediately sold and delivered at the close of the convention. They are now being installed in the Bijou and Jit theatres, Minneapolis houses.

Questions Answered

USE PLAIN PIECE OF AMBER COLORED OR OTHER TINTED GLASS

R. M. S., Lincoln, Nebr.—I read the Projection Department consistently and have benefited by the advice you are giving to operators. This is my first letter and question. I don't quite understand the subject but here is the question I want you to answer as soon as possible, because we are considering a change in our projection system and are naturally looking for the best and most improved machines and equipment.

Will you please tell me what an Amberlux Lens Filter is, and what it is supposed to do. I have a circular which states that it improves the projection 100 per cent. It does away with the eye strain; makes old film look like new; brightens the picture and satisfies the patrons, and that it is endorsed by the projection expert of another paper. If this lens filter is so good, I want to know your opinion of it as an expert on matters of that kind.

ANS.—The word Amberlux is a coined word. In other words, it is a tradename adopted in the sale of a color filter to be applied to a projection lens. The name or trade word, Amberlux signifies that the color filter is of amber or yellow color.

Your question comes at a most fortunate time, because I have just tested an Amberlux lens, and I have had the pleasure of listening to an argument in its favor by a dealer in motion picture apparatus.

Before giving my view, I want to state the argument put forth by the dealer in favor of the Amberlux lens and this is about the line of talk delivered to me by the agent or dealer.

"Mr. Hallberg, you know that in taking photographs where the sky is included, the cameramen and regular photographers, use what is known as a color screen or ray filter and the object of this screen is to exclude certain rays in order to make a more uniform exposure on the negative plate or film and in that manner to secure a negative with details in the high-lights as well as in the shadows. If the ray filter is not used in taking an exposure of a view including sky with clouds, and a dark foreground in order to secure detail in the foreground, the exposure will have to be so long or with such large opening that the beautiful cloud effect is over-exposed on the negative due to the greater actinic value of the light rays from the sky and other high-lights which will appear chalky and almost transparent without detail." Now, in producing the amber lens, this same agent said, "We have taken advantage of this fact. In reproducing the picture upon the screen we modify the rays of light passing through the sky part or more transparent part of the film and in that manner produce a very soft and agreeable effect on the screen."

I was much amused in listening to the argument of this agent on behalf of the Amberlux lens, because I am personally a photographer of quite some experience and I appreciate thoroughly the value of the yellow screen or ray filter in taking a picture on a sensitized plate or film where clouds and other strong high-lights are included and so far, Mr. Agent's statement was perfectly correct. I agree with him in every detail up to this point and will go him one better, by stating that ray filters are available which have a graded tint from top to bottom, being very dark amber at the top and grading into an almost transparent clear glass, near the bottom. Such a graded ray filter is fitted with clips to fasten it in front of the lens on the camera. You will readily understand that when the exposure is made on the negative, the deeper yellow or amber color will shield or modify the rays of high actinic value, which are usually present in the upper zone of a view or picture and as a result, by the use of a properly graded ray filter in front of the lens, an absolutely uniformly exposed negative can be obtained with full details in both the shadows and in the high lights. This would be impossible under normal conditions without the ray filter and amateur photographers usually show lack of detail in sky and cloud effects on this account.

Now, when it comes to the application of a ray filter of amber or any other color in conjunction with a projection lens with all due respect to what may have been said on the subject, I give you the advice that such a ray filter is of absolutely no benefit as a part of the lens system in projection.

The experts who have passed judgment upon the application of an amber ray filter as part of a projection lens, have evidently lost sight of the fact that when you project a picture upon a screen you are no longer dealing with the actinic rays in the high portion of the spectrum and besides you are, when projecting a picture, not concerned about the effect of actinic rays upon a chemically treated glass plate or film.

In projction you are dealing with shadows and high-lights only upon a flat field, unaltered in quality by the color of the light and your eye is the only judge of the result on the screen.

My advice to you is to use the regular projection lens and if your audience prefers an amber colored picture, use a plain piece of amber colored, yellow or other tinted glass in front of your lens, or use a yellow projection screen which will also give you the yellow effect, if that pleases you best.

If the light is too strong from the sky and high-lights, so that it hurts your eyes, use a screen with modified surface, mix a little blue with the white coating as you apply it to the screen, or any other color which may suit you. On the other hand, if your screen is satisfactory but your light is still too strong, reduce the amperage and use smaller carbons, but you should not use permanently a "light killer," such as an amber or yellow screen in your lens, because that represents a great waste of light. There are many beautiful tinted films, the effect of which will be absolutely destroyed by the use of an amber colored filter. You know that if you have a night scene, tinted in blue, and if you apply in projection a lens filter of yellow or amber with such blue tinted film, it will appear a muddy green on the screen which absolutely destroys what the manufacturers intended the effect of the film to be.

Likewise, if you have a film tinted in yellow, it will be doubly tinted with your yellow ray filter which will make your film a perfect brown and very dull.

You must not forget that when you introduce a color screen of any kind in front of your projection lens, you not only reduce the light values in the high-lights as claimed with amber filters, but you likewise reduce in the same proportion, the illumination in the shadows and as a result, if you want as distinct a picture as you had before, you will have to double your illumination and then you still have a yellow picture which is not at all true to nature, under any condition.

I hope I have explained this very interesting subject to you and believe me, it has afforded me a great deal of pleasure to investigate the effect of the color screen in conjunction with a sensitized film as compared with its use in connection with a projection lens when you are projecting a series of shadows like motion pictures are, upon a screen.

It is astonishing how many schemes, to make money out of the exhibitor, are introduced by some dealers and others who have not thoroughly studied the subject they are tampering with.

In analyzing the application of an amber colored filter in a projection lens, I am almost tempted to believe that the scheme is fostered by someone interested in the sale of screens which introduce a glaze where a modification is necssary and I hope that you will not be induced to first produce an extra strong light at your arc and then to kill the light with a color screen between the lens and your projection screen. The subject is so self evident and clear that you cannot fail to now use your own judgment and find many other points against the introduction of a scheme of that kind.

Before closing, I want to remind you that the best clear glass you can get absorbs not less than 7 per cent of the illumination and we know that when we introduce the amber ray filter in photography, we have to expose the picture anywheres from three to six times as long as we would without the ray filter. On this account is not it fairly clear to you that any form of amber screen in front of a projection lens will cut your illumination on the screen at least 50 per cent and I don't wonder that whoever is selling the lens system you speak of, says that it eliminates eye strain and makes old film look like new. With the least illumination there is the least eye strain and the least opportunity of observing imperfections, and as a result you have spoiled your picture rather than to have improved it.

WHEN A MACHINE BINDS, OR LOCKS IN THE STAR AND CAM

A. L. Mitchell, S. D.—In last week's NEWS, I missed your set of questions and answers very much, but as the NEWS stated that you were very busy, we will have to excuse it, but don't do it very often, as we miss the questions.

Now, I am going to ask you a few questions and trust that I may see the answer just as soon as you can make room for same.

What is it that would cause a Simplex to bind or in other words, lock, in the star and cam? I took the whole thing apart the other day and found that it was in the star and cam. The fly wheel would not move. Later on I got it working. Now, please don't say it was due to the lack of oil, as I always keep my machine flooded with oil. This is the first time in my ten years of experience, that I have had this trouble and I will have to admit that I was up a tree. I have run this machine for one year and this is the first stop that I have had. The machine locked just about one hundred feet from the end of the reel on the last reel of the show and on the last show of the night.

What is the difference between a rheostat and compensarc and the actions of same? What do you think would be a good way to connect two machines on to one compensarc, and not do any damage. Would it hurt in your idea to connect two machines on one compensarc and would it shorten the life of same?

ANS.—Many thanks for your expression of appreciation of the Projection Department. I am always glad to know that the department is appreciated by readers, and we shall always be glad to publish any opinion concerning the department which our readers may send in.

Your question concerning the binding of the Simplex machine cannot possibly be answered now, because your machine is running again and you have altered the condition under which the parts mentioned stuck.

It stands to reason that when a machine runs and gives satisfaction for a few weeks or a month there is no structural or material defect in any of the parts and when a machine has run as long as one year, then you are doubly sure that whatever the cause, in your instance, might have been for the sticking of the star and cam, it must have been from an outside source which was removed by your action in taking the intermittent movement apart.

The only possible thing which I can conceive, is that in some manner a sliver or some foreign material, got into your oil can or was attached to the spout of the oil can, or it may be possible that in cleaning the machine, the rag or whatever you used, carried within it some foreign substance which got lodged in or near one of the oil holes and finally worked its way into the intermittent movement.

You must realize that in an intermittent movement where the distance between the surface of the cam and the star wheel is so very small as is necessary to maintain it for proper operation, the very slightest amount of dirt or the presence of any foreign substance would lock the movement, but, of course, when you remove the cover and disturb the parts which you would have to do in making the examination, the small part might have dropped out and disappeared in the bottom of the oil well. Strange things do happen to machines once in a while and unless the cause of the trouble is determined before the trouble is rectified, it is almost impossible to locate what actually brought the wrong condition about. Next time you have trouble of that sort, I would advise you to proceed very slowly and very carefully in taking the machine apart, so that you will discover just what you do the instant the trouble disappears.

I have found that in dealing with people in different parts of the country, often trouble happens, but it disappears without anyone knowing just what caused it, and that is an annoyance, because you don't know what to do to prevent the trouble in the future.

I believe that if you would take your intermittent movement and wash it in gasoline, so as to clean it thoroughly and then dip the parts in oil while keeping the movement in motion before assembling, and last but not least, filling the oil cups properly, you can in that manner avoid the reappearance of your trouble.

If you will look thorugh the past issues of MOTION PICTURE NEWS, you will find, under the heading, "Motion Picture Projection Simplified" much information upon rheostats, choke-coils and transformers. To briefly state the difference I give you the following information:

The rheostat reduces the line voltage to that required for the arc, by absorbing the difference in voltage between the line and the arc voltage which is generally between 50 and 75 per cent, depending upon the line voltage. The energy dissipated in that manner in the rheostat is absolutely wasted and is given off in the form of heat, while on D. C. the rheostat accomplishes the purpose of reducing the voltage with A. C. this form of regulation does not permit you to secure a good light.

Briefly stated, the rheostat is a wasteful and in the present modern age, an unnecessary device for projector arc lamps when operating singly where more than 20 amperes of current is required at the arc.

The compensarc is a tradename, used by one of the manufacturers for a transformer which with A. C. reduces the line voltage to that required for the arc with but a very small percentage of current waste. Therefore, the transformer or compensarc does not give off an appreciable amount of heat and besides, the nature of the device is such as to actually improve the illumination on the screen as compared with rheostat control on A. C.

It is perfectly practical for you to connect two machines in multiple to the lamp leads of your compensarc. You must, however, keep in mind, that when you connect two arc lamps to one transformer like the compensarc, you can burn only one of the arcs at the time. It is, however, true that if you have arc No. 1 burning, you may close the switch for arc No. 2, and the moment you are ready to project with machine No. 2, you can steal the light from the arc in machine No. 1 and establish the arc between the carbon points of lamp No. 2 by merely putting the carbons together and separating them slowly without any injury whatsoever to your compensarc or other similar regulating device.

BLAKELY, ENTERPRISE OPTICAL MANUFACTURING COMPANY, GIVES BANQUET TO DALLAS OPERATORS

SIDNEY B. Blakely, special representative of the Enterprise Optical Manufacturing Company, of Chicago, makers of the Motiograph projector, who has been in the South since the Atlanta Motion Picture Exposition, entertained the members of Local No. 249, I. A. T. S. E., M. P. M. O., with an old-fashioned "Dutch lunch," with all the trimmings, at the operators old meeting room over the Favorite theatre on Main street, Dallas.

In a way, this entertainment was Mr. Blakely's farewell to the operators in Dallas, as he left the next night, May 3, for Oklahoma City, Wichita, and Kansas City. He had been in Dallas for about two weeks and made many friends among the operators and exhibitors; in addition to assisting in placing a number of the new Motiograph projectors.

The affair was strictly informal and as all the operators had met Mr. Blakely, a strong friendly feeling prevailed. Among those who made short talks were Julius Shaffer, president; Mr. Blakely; Joe Jones, vice-president; R. R. Pengilly, secretary; John Hardin, business agent, and H. K. Barnett, of the Barnett Film and Supply Company.

At eleven o'clock, the hour set for the "opening of the keg," every member of the local was present, and many visiting members.

OPERATORS ARRESTED FOR PICKETING BOYCOTTED HOUSE IN KANSAS CITY WIN IN A HIGHER COURT

THE moving picture operators union of Kansas City, Mo., won a victory over J. E. Hughes, proprietor of the Eastern theatre at Ninth and Lister streets, when Presiding Judge Latshaw, of the Criminal Court, decided in their favor in appeal cases brought to his docket with regard to picketing. Hughes is not a member of the union and runs the machine in his own house. He has refused to join the union or hire one of its members, so that body started to picket his place. Each evening two members would start to walk back and forth in front of the theatre, only to be arrested.

In police court the following morning they were fined; and they always appealed. For ten straight nights this occurred, the bonds and fines of the two pickets increasing. They appealed each time, and the final decision of Judge Latshow set aside all fines and ruled that peaceful picketing was lawful. The pickets still continue their vigil.

SIX MOTIOGRAPH MACHINES, INSTALLED IN DALLAS IN 30 DAYS, ENDORSED BY OPERATORS

A LETTER from Robt. R. Pengilly, secretary of Local No. 249, I. A. T. S. E. of Dallas, Texas, states that Sidney B. Blakely, representing the Enterprise Optical Manufacturing Company, Chicago, has just visited Dallas.

Within the past thirty days six Motiograph machines have been installed in the city and are giving perfect satisfaction.

The letter goes on to state that the machine is gaining considerably in popularity and that it has been enthusiastically endorsed by the operators of the city.

SPEED CONTROLLER COMPANY DISTRIBUTES IN ENGLAND THROUGH VITAGRAPH COMPANY, INC., LONDON

THE Speed Controller Company, Inc., 257 William street, New York City, announces that it has arranged for distribution in England through the Vitagraph Company, Ltd., 31 Charing Cross road, London, W. C.

Two new machines will be installed in the office of this company within the next few weeks. There is a daily demonstration of the exhibit.

MOTION PICTURE SUPPLY COMPANY, KANSAS CITY, MOVES TO GLOYD BUILDING

THE Motion Picture Supply Company has opened offices at 317-318 Gloyd building, Kansas City, Mo., handling a complete line of theatre novelty goods, advertising props and all accessories used in connection with motion picture houses. H. G. Gill, an experienced supply man, will have charge of the business and has already installed a large amount of stock. The company is located in the same building with five exchanges, and therefore is right in the midst of the moving picture industry.

A Department Devoted to Motion Picture Photography in All Its Phases, Studio and Laboratory Work

Characteristics of Photographic Developers

Following Pyro, the Next Developer to Attract the Favorable Consideration of Photographers Was Hydrokinone, Which Occurs in the Form of Brilliant Feathery, Needle-like Crystals and Dissolves in a Clear Solution, Even Remaining So After the Addition of Sulphite and the Alkaline Carbonate

Following Pyro, the next developer to attract the favorable consideration of photographers was:

HYDROKINONE

Chemical Name: Paradioxybenzole.

The use of Hydrokinone as a developer was inaugurated by Sir William Abney, the noted British photographic worker, in the year 1880. By reference to the chemical symbol it will be noted that as in the case of Pyro the active groups in Hydrokinone belong to the hydroxyl (OH) class, there being one less of these groups than in the case of Pyro.

Hydrokinone occurs in the form of brilliant feathery, needle-like crystals and dissolves in the form of a clear solution even remaining so after the addition of sulphite and the alkaline carbonate. Solutions of Hydrokinone are easily mixed and exhibit excellent keeping qualties, either with sulphite alone, or in the form of working developers or strong stock solutions. It will be noted that the good keeping quality of Hydrokinone solutions is a point of superiority to Pyro in the mixed form.

Hydrokinone is characterized by its ability to impart great density, which property is greatly influenced by the temperature of the solution, a bath of low temperature showing greatly diminished developing power, while raising the temperature above the normal results in excessive density and hard negatives.

In respect to cleanness of working a Hydrokinone developer will be found to give a considerable degree of chemical fog with many emulsions, which can be remedied by the addition of Potassium Bromide. The addition of the Bromide will make for cleanness of working, but another result will be alteration in the gradations of the negative and the rendition of shadow detail will be considerably decreased.

Obtaining Correctness of Gradation

Correctness of gradation when working with a Hydrokinone developing solution may be secured by correct proportionment of the quantity of water used in making up the bath.

As noted before, the action of Hydrokinone is easily controlled by suitably adjusting the temperature, and considerably overexposed negatives may be largely corrected in development by cooling down the solution. In compounding a Hydrokinone solution the use of carbonate is vastly to be preferred to the use of caustic alkalies, as when the latter are used a non-fogging bath cannot be secured.

Owing to the good keeping qualties of the working solutions there is no stain from an oxidized Hydrokinone developer and the color of the silver deposit of the negative is a bluish black.

Although one of the earliest of the organic developers, Hydrokinone is a popular one and in great demand. It is generally mixed with other developing reagents which are characterized by softness of gradation and good shadow detail such as Eikonogen and Metol. Mixtures of Metol and Hydrokinone are probably more frequently employed in photographic practice today than any other developer.

In the year 1888 another developer of the organic type, superior to either of its predecessors was used in the development of gelatino-bromide, by Dr. M. Andresen, of Berlin, its discoverer. Three years later this developer and its properties were described by Andresen and it is known as:

PARAMIDOPHENOL

Chemical Name: Paramidophenol hydrochloride

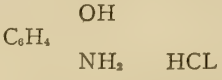
By comparison of its chemical composition with that of Hydrokinone it will be noticed that the only difference is the substitution of one of the Amido (NH_2) groups in place of one of the Hydroxyl (OH) groups which constitute the chemical composition of Hydrokinone.

The combining of the NH_2 and OH groups in Parmidophenol gave rise to new and valuable properties hitherto unobtainable in developing reagents, a characteristic of the $N/_2$ group being that a compound containing it possesses the power to develop to a considerable degree by the addition of sodium sulphite alone, while it will be recalled that Hydrokinone when made up with sodium sulphite only, possesses a very limited degree of reducing power. It is possible when developing with Paramidophenol mixed with sulphite to secure a satisfactory degree of density in the resulting negatives, providing ample exposures have been given.

In regard to cleanness of working Paramidophenol is a most satisfactory developing reagent, the resulting negatives being free from fog and therefore superior to the results had with Hydrokinone.

Another valuable property of Paramidophenol is the perfect shadow detail which obtains with its use and in this point it is again seen to be superior in performance to a Hydrokinone bath. Gradation which goes hand in hand with the satisfactory rendition of shadow detail is obtained in a highly satisfactory manner with Paramidophenol.

As supplied commercially Paramidophenol is a Hydrochloride with the formula:



In such form it may be easily dissolved in water, and when a solution of this Hydrochloride is made with sodium sulphite, or the sulphite with addition of sodium or potassium carbonate the liberation of the true Paramidophenol base is accomplished.

This base while not capable of being dissolved as easily as some of the other developers, possesses a sufficient degree of solubility to permit of developing baths being prepared, having, as before noted, good density-giving powers and being extremely clean working, with consequent freedom from chemical fog.

Keeping Properties of Paramidophenol

The keeping properties of Paramidophenol made up with sulphite only, or as stock solutions or working solutions are satisfactory and due to this fact, the oxidized developer does not stain the gelatine of film or plates. The color of the images yielded by Paramidophenol is a pure and even blue-black.

Music and the Picture

Edited by Ernst Luz

This department is maintained for the exhibitor's assistance with a view of suggesting proper musical illustrations for current photo plays. MOTION PICTURE NEWS will be pleased to help solve any difficulties the exhibitors may have with their musical programs. All communications should be addressed to the Music and the Picture Department.

"Personal Equation" Counts in Playing for the Pictures

Ninety Per Cent of Results Accomplished in Musical Accompaniment to the Films, Either Manually or Orchestrally, Must Be Accredited to the Man in Front of the Screen—The Best Man for Picture Playing Knows Something of Requirements for Opera, Concert, Vaudeville and Dance

AFTER all is said and done ninety per cent of all and any results accomplished in playing to pictures, either manually or orchestrally, must be accredited to the man in front of the screen.

To give the player or conductor an opportunity to do his best it is only fair that we should give him every possible help without trying to overshadow his own personal genius.

The first and most important in picture playing is that the player or musical director should be familiar with the music he is going to play. Synchronizing music to pictures is in itself a simple matter and unless the musician is well acquainted with the music he is going to play the synchronization or the music must suffer. This is not difficult to understand and any exhibitor desiring to waste some time on the matter will have no difficulty in proving that the above is a fact.

Each musician has his own ideas as to how a picture should be played, nevertheless whatever his ideas may be the desired temperament by the producer, remains the same.

When the director takes special pains to have his characters register sympathy, remorse or other pathos on the screen no intelligent man would allow himself to say the music should under any circumstances be allowed to register hilarity or frivolity. The above is a fact which should be solidly embedded in the minds of everyone directly interested in the future of the Motion Picture theatre.

Help from Temperamental Analysis

The only help that we can give the competent and intelligent musician who is enthusiastic in picture theatre work is a temperamental analysis of the music necessary to the picture, together with a temperamental analysis of the action on the picture screen. When the competent musician has these two factors, synchronization is a simple matter.

The above facts are a few of the thousand occurring to me in my picture theatre career hich have convinced me that the only possible method for getting the best possible as well as greatly varied results in picture playing will be found in music plots set up in a fashion, giving the picture musician every possible lattitude to exercise his originality and musical genius.

The musical plots outlined by me, appearing in this department, are often hurriedly set up, nevertheless I am always positive that the musical as well as the screen analysis is correct.

The original intent of these plots was to set the picture musician to thinking, thereby creating an agitation of wits and intellect, having as its purpose a creation of a method whereby the better music in the motion picture theatre can be more easily accomplished.

In these plots the first and last lines, namely, description of music and cue to stop number, are the only factors required by the intelligent picture musician. In my own work the numbers suggested are set in one month after I have seen the picture.

The number suggested in my plots are therefore simply to help those enthusiastic for obtaining and maintaining an excellent repertoire of picture theatre music. The numbers suggested in my plots are always numbers that I have personally played and know that they can be used in picture playing not only a' the points where I suggest them but at a thousand other points to good advantage. I might explain a hundred ways of playing these plots but still your own way is the best if you do it well. A few points are, however, highly essential and should be worked out.

First Is the Method of Seque

The first is your method of seque. The fact that you are synchronizing or playing to pictures is entirely lost to the audience unless your seques are direct and cover several numbers and equivalent picture incidents. Making clean seques seems difficult at first, nevertheless, with proper application on the part of the musician it becomes as simple as playing the scale of C.

In the musical profession the musicians are classified as being capable for certain callings, namely, opera, concert, vaudeville, dance. It is necessary now that we add to this classification "Pictures," remembering that when we add Pictures to this classification that to be competent the musician must be more or less acquainted with all of the first forementioned qualifications. This fact is going to make the picture theatre the most profitable to the capable musician in the future.

It may be true that this occupation may require more of his time than he has previously given to the profession, nevertheless, even that will be to his personal benefit. The only important thing in making seques is that the director has full and flexible control of the man under him.

The second important factor is the playing of the music. To play good music well and synchronize with the screen, care should be taken that the numbers selected are of such a nature that they will allow for temperamental screen changes without making it impossible to give a good musical interpretation.

In playing numbers printed signatures should not be noticed to any great extent, always allowing the screen action to suggest their crescendos, dimuendos, pianissimos, fortissimos, menomossos and accelerendos.

The proof of the above is only possible to those who are enthusiastic in the work and willing to make a personal study of picture theatre requirements. The music plot is nothing more than an assistance for making a prior preparation for playing the picture. The final results are at the mercy of the musician or orchestra leader. Every effort should consequently be made by the exhibitor to interest capable musicians and when doing so explain that he is not only seeking musical results but picture theatre results.

By continually keeping this fact before the minds of his musicians and leader he will soon note that he is agitating something which can only revert to his own personal profit. The only present drawback to picture theatre music is that there are not enough capable men in the business who realize the importance of making picture theatre music a separate and important study.

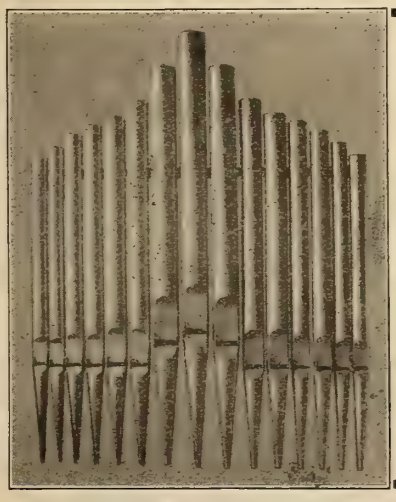
25. Waltz (Leg.)	"La Confession" (Jos. W. Stern & Co.)	To end.

Note:—This picture affords excellent musical effect opportunities. Care should be taken to select lengthy numbers for reels two, five and six. Nos. 4 and 6 are very effective cuckoo clock imitations. Both of them can be made without music, giving a better opportunity for a clean seque.

No. 1 should be a legato theme of romantic appeal. Nos. 5, 11 and 19 should be light descriptive intermezzos. Numbers in 4/4 tempo preferred. Nos. 7, 9, 16 and 25 must all be slow waltzes having a sustained theme and played legato. Nos. 8, 10, 18, 20 and 23 must all be slow legato numbers having a positive pathetic or romantic appeal, with slight dramatic effect.

Nos. 13 and 24 must be slow melodious numbers with pathetic or romantic appeal. Select quiet numbers such as have no dramatic effect. No. 22 must be a decidedly slow dramatic number. Nos. 12 and 21 must be concert waltzes with slow melodious introductions. No. 15 and 17 must be trots such as are used for dancing. No. 14—the chorus of some popular ballad. Nos. 2 and 3 are short melodramatic numbers.

The last two and one-half reels of the picture are very appropriate for the organ.



The only decorative material available for the exhibitor that will both beautify and dignify his house is

PICTURE THEATRES FACTORS IN CULTIVATION OF NATIONAL APPRECIATION OF BEST IN MUSIC

IT would not be surprising if, after the years of up-hill struggle, with its slowly appearing effects and discouraging results, by artists and teachers to inculcate in the American people a taste and a desire for better music, the development of motion picture theatre music should achieve more in the cultivation of a national appreciation of the higher creations of this art than have the music missionaries themselves. The photo-play house has achieved wonders in other directions. Why should it not in this? Custom has determined that there must be music with the picture and keen competition has caused a rapid improvement of the musical program. In the Strand in New York, to mention only one motion picture house as an example, there is a fine symphony orchestra, a remarkable organ and eminent solo artists.

Of course, most film theatres have not approached very close to the musical standard of the Strand, but the majority of them have advanced in this respect, and occasionally, at scattered points in the country, a new photo-play house is projected on a high plane that undertakes to make superior music one of the chief features of its entertainment. An instance is the elaborately planned $250,000 Piccadilly Photo-play theater that is building in Rochester, N. Y. One of the first important steps taken by Director-Manager W. H. Seely, a veteran motion picture man, in materializing the entertainment policy of this theater, was to engage Susan Tompkins, a Rochester violinist, to organize and direct a symphony orchestra of sixteen pieces. Miss Tompkins's career has been eminently successful, as the praise of reputable critics has attested. After study under Professor Grant Egbert of the Ithaca Conservatory of Music and Professors Sevcik and Suchy of the famous Prague Conservatory, she entered the concert field in this country and won marked success. She was soon enlisted by Sousa as a soloist with his famous band, and achieved no little popularity with that organization for several seasons. During its long engagement as one of the chief musical features of the Panama-Pacific Exposition, her violin performances won conspicuous favor. As the Piccadilly is modeled after the Strand, musically and accóustically as well as otherwise, Miss Tompkins is now in New York, studying the Strand orchestra to get into the full spirit and acquire a special understanding of her new work. With a wonderful new pipe organ embodying very recent improvements to vary the offerings, Director-Manager Seely is confident that its musical forces will give the Piccadilly much distinction in the motion picture world. The course of the theatre in this respect will certainly be well worth watching.

RIALTO, NEAR MUNICIPAL BUILDINGS, SAN FRANCISCO, OPENS UNDER CONTROL OF WESTERN THEATRE COMPANY

ON May 6, the Rialto theatre on Market street, near Seventh, facing the Civic Center, San Francisco, with its wonderful group of municipal buildings, was thrown open to the public, following six months' work in virtually rebuilding what was formerly known as the American theatre. This house is controlled by the Western Theatre Company and was planned and is operated under the direction of Howard J. Sheehan and Mr. Lurie, formerly of Vancouver, B. C. So many changes have been made in it that there is but little other than the roof and side walls to remind one of the old structure. The old balcony, with its supporting posts, has been removed and a new one installed, much lower than the former one. Here there is room for about eight hundred people and as many more are seated on the lower floor.

A beautiful marquis has been erected the full width of the building, covering the entire sidewalk, and above this is an electric sign that is one of the largest in the entire city. It is arranged so that it can be seen the entire length of Market street. Music is furnished by a Hope-Jones-Wurlitzer organ of the type that attracted so much attention at the exposition last year, the instrument costing in the neighborhood of $20,000. In addition there is a large orchestra, the musicians being screened from view. The admission price is ten and twenty cents, with a reserved section, where higher prices will be in vogue. The opening program consisted of the Metro production, "Her Great Price," with Mabel Taliaferro; the first of the serial, "The Mysteries of Myra"; Hearst-Selig Mexican war pictures and a T. E. Powers cartoon. The Examiner gave the war pictures a gratis full page write-up. The projection equipment of this house is very complete, with two Power's Cameragraphs of the latest type, with dissolvers and the most modern appliances. Two separate electric services enters the building, and the electric company guarantees a very small fluctuation in voltage, as the theatre is near a sub-station. The distance from the operating room to the screen is about one hundred and twenty feet.

responsible for this picture palace, has received nothing but words of approval and expressions of admiration on all sides from the picture enthusiasts of the city. The Knickerbocker has a seating capacity of 1,200. A large pipe organ has been installed and an organist prominent in his profession has been engaged to play, Buel B. Risinger. Supplementing the organ, and in conjunction with it, is a full orchestra, composed of musicians who have been carefully selected by Mr. Risinger, and have proved themselves to be thorough artists. The first violinist is Mozart Lucier, a graduate of both the French and American schools. For several years he was conductor of orchestras in the largest hotels on the Florida east coast. Mr. Lucier conducted the music at the Grove Park Inn, Asheville, N. C., and has been prominent in concert work for several years. The flute desk is filled by E. Daniel Worland, an artist of ability, and one who has been associated with Mr. Risinger for several years. He went to Nashville from Jacksonville, Fla. S. Cheek, a graduate of Verdi's conservatory at Lesse, Italy, fills the clarinet desk. Mr. Cheek played for several seasons in the principal orchestras of Milan, Mantova and Rome.

DIRECTORY OF NEW THEATRES

CALIFORNIA

THE Navarre theatre, at 738 West Pico street, Los Angeles, has been purchased by Eloise Maier. The Empire theatre, at Pico and Lake streets, Los Angeles, has been leased by Alta M. Davis, which increases the number of women managers in Los Angeles to four. E. L. Anderson has purchased the Keystone theatre, at Western avenue and Pico street, Los Angeles. The Academy theatre, one of the largest in the southwestern part of Los Angeles, has been sold by Ed. Mozart to Hyler and Cornell, who formerly had the Mission theatre, at Monrovia. E. O. Brandt has disposed of the South Park theatre, at 5202 South Park avenue, Los Angeles, and purchased the Queen, at Jefferson and Vermont avenues, of Quinn & Quinn. The Universal theatre on Jefferson street, Los Angeles, which has been alternately closed and reopened for the past two years, is being dismantled, and the building wil be occupieed by a garage.

CANADA

The Famous Players Company, in St. Johns, N. B., has leased the Opera House and after entirely refitting it, opened, using Paramount pictures exclusively. The prices are five and ten cents.

Four theatres in Montreal, P. Q., the Readoscope, Boulvardscope, Domino and Palace Main, have not renewed their license, which was due on May 1. By this action they have signified their intention to remain closed for a time at least. S. B. Taube states there will likely be more closings in the near future.

Ralph Gribble, of the Grand theatre, New Hamburg, Ont., has notified all interested that he is selling out his business in that city next month.

ILLINOIS

Two motion picture theatres are being built at Leroy. One is being put up by Van Atta & West, and the other by Ray Keys. The Van Atta & West theatre will seat five hundred persons. A motion picture theatre to seat two hundred and fifty persons is being built at Pontiac by Edward Longnecker. Gus Kerosotas expects to open his Savoy theatre, at Springfield, shortly. The theatre was damaged by fire several months ago. A. J. Marshall, proprietor of the Empress motion picture theatre, at Springfield, has opened an airdome at Eleventh street and South Grand avenue in that city. He is using a Minusa screen, purchased through the Springfield Co-operative Amusement & Supply Company. C. F. Davis, of Springfield, is planning on opening an airdome at Carlinville.

IOWA

L. B. Marshall, of Cedar Rapids, has purchased the Isis theatre, at Belle Plain, and will open it shortly after a complete remodeling and a series of alterations. Frank Fertig, proprietor of the Dreamland, Oelwine, has changed his policy to features and raised the price from five to ten cents. Julius and Awe, Sioux City, are tearing down the burned ruins of the Empire, recently destroyed, and will build a beautiful new house on the site. It will be ready to open about September 1.

Boysen and Ingledue recently opened the Strand, at Marshalltown, declared to be one of the best and most ornamental houses in Iowa. It has a long foyer, and in the center a large fountain, with interchangeable colored lights. It also has a reception room, with big, comfortable seats. The house seats eight hundred. Summey Brothers have opened the new Star, at Spencer. Thomas A. Brown opened the Strand, a new theatre, at Iowa City on May 7. Squire Jackson has succeeded B. A. Jean as manager of the Pastime, Mount Pleasant. W. H. Bowan, owner and proprietor of the Orient, Oskaloosa, celebrated the completion of his ninth year as an exhibitor by changing to features. Marckers Brothers have assumed control of the Rex, Perry; Long and Company retiring. Joe Gerbacht, owner of the Twin Star, Ames, will open a new house in University place, September 1. Plans for the new theatre have been completed. A. Kahn has assumed charge of the Casino, Mason City, and will open it about the middle of May.

J. L. McClinton, former owner of the Empress, Cedar Falls, will open the Cotton Opera House this summer, showing features.

KANSAS

The Wonderland theatre, at Clyde, has been sold to L. H. Husselman by R. A. Crumrine, former manager.

Otto Fees, of Fees Brothers, of Parsons, has purchased the Elks theatre at that place, and he and his brother now control the two leading houses there, the Elks and the Best. For some time past these two houses have been close competitors and both have had to take drastic measures to keep up with the pace. The competition is now eliminated, but that will not bring down the high standard of both places.

KENTUCKY

Fire in a barrel of waste paper in the storeroom of the Mutual Film Corporation, over the Rex theatre, Louisville, on the afternoon of May 4, did but slight damage and was quickly put out by the firemen Pe.rsons downstairs in the theatre were not aware that the building was on fire.

The Alhambra theatre, Richmond, under the management of Anna Bell Ward, is being enlarged and renovated. The auditorium is being extended and a balcony added which will make the seating capacity about six hundred. Leather chairs are being installed and a ventilation system put in. The management will install two new picture machines and a gold screen.

Manager Tinley of the Lyric theatre, Pineville, has installed a new gold screen in his theatre.

Financial difficulties in which the Strand theatre, Louisville, has become involved during the past few weeks have resulted in the closing of that house. A distress warrant was issued at the instance of the Grand Lodge of Kentucky, F. and A. M., owners of the property, who claim rent is due. John Johnson, who has been employed at the theatre as an operator, swore to a summons against M. A. McRae, treasurer of the Strand company, alleging that a check given in payment of wages had been found worthless. A constable's sale was set for May 13. The property listed for sale included two picture machines, an automobile which had been offered as a prize to the most popular woman in Jefferson county and a grand piano. Officers of the company declare that their difficulties grew out of a recent strike of the operators, who, they assert, stopped persons near the entrance to the theatre and distributed cards advertising the Strand as "unfair." The Strand, formerly the old Masonic, was opened as a motion picture theatre last December by the McRae Brothers, who came to Louisville from Detroit. It was considered one of the best appointed motion picture houses in the city.

MAINE

The new Central theatre, in Old Town, which has been closed most of the time since O. B. Fernandez opened the new Bijou theatre in that city, is to reopen at once under the management of W. E. McPhee. Mr. McPhee operated it very successfully for several years before it passed into the hands of the syndicate which for a time Mr. Fernandez, as manager, represented.

Donald Thayer of South Brewer has opened his theatre after having it closed during the Lenten season.

Arthur Libby, manager of Libby's Rink, of Fort Fairfield, has had installed a 6-B Powers machine with motor attachment. The house has been renovated and is in fine shape to accommodate the large patronage it enjoys.

There is another motion picture theatre being built in Fort Fairfield. This house has not been named yet. This will make two theatres in Fort Fairfield, a town with a population of approximately 4,500.

The new Elm theatre, to be opened in Portland on July 1, will be managed by William Wolf.

MASSACHUSETTS

Manuel J. Senna, Thomas J. Charette and Edward D. Davenport are the new owners of the Vien theatre, New Bedford. The same men already control the Casino, Royal, Savoy and Pastime. It is their plan to make alterations in the future that will increase the seating capacity from eight hundred to 1,700.

The Alco theatre, opened about a year ago in Great Barrington by J. J. Mulhall, has been closed.

Beginning May 8 the Copley theatre, on Dartmouth street, Boston, offered a daily afternoon and evening program of photoplays. Performances will be given daily at 2:15 and 8, with Sunday evening performances at 8. The passing of this house to the pictures marks the closing chapter in the vicissitudes of the various managers of the theatre. Finely equipped for the presentation of drama, seating only seven hundred, comfortable and beautifully furnished—yet the public could not be enticed to go there and thousands were lost in ventures. The theatre could not live down its "highbrow" reputation.

MISSOURI

Mrs. J. E. Hughes has rebuilt an old theatre at Twenty-seventh and Elmwood, and recently opened it, under the name of the Starlight.

Messrs. Lotz and Ellis have purchased the old Ruby theatre at Thirty-sixth and Prospect avenue, Kansas City, and have reopened it, after making various improvements and alterations. This house was not a success for some time, but the new proprietors played to capacity business the opening nights and are confidant that they will make it go.

The Glory theatre, Thirty-ninth and Troost avenue, Kansas City, has been sold by L. L. Van Zandt to Mrs. D. V. Riley, of Butler. A. P. Walker, who has been managing the house for Mr. Van Zandt, will continue in charge. Only the ordinary improvements necessary on such an occasion will take place.

Lowe and Smiley, of Wheeling, are erecting an airdome. Mr. Smiley was recently in Kansas City, when he purchased a Powers' 6-A machine and other necessary equipment. He is also making arrangements to open a theatre in Wheeling in the fall season so that that town will have a continual run of pictures, which it does not boast of at present.

MISSOURI

W. A. Berry, operator of a coal mine, has opened a moving picture theatre at Camden, a mining town of six hundred population, and is putting on features at ten cents. There was already one show in the town.

Dan McCoy, well known to the moving picture industry, is now acting as manager of the new Empress theatre, Kansas City. The former owner filed a petition in voluntary bankruptcy in the United States District Court there on May 4. The liabilities total $15,992 and the assets $6,248, not including a leasehold estimated at $40,000. The petition was filed by Wilfrid Ledoux, president of the firm. At the trustee's sale the assets were purchased by E. P. Kelly, El Reno, Okla., owner of the house, who put Mr. McCoy in charge. The New Empress has been running pictures for some time and it is probable that the same policy will be pursued. The former management was Ledoux and Le Marquand.

Owing to the death of Karl F. Burns, connected with the Ellsworth theatre, at Thirty-ninth and Prospect, Kansas City, that house closed its doors for nearly a week.

The Ritz theatre, on Sixth, near Olive street, St. Louis, has been acquired by J. W. Cornelius, owner and manager of the two Lyric theatres and the Lyric Skydome, all in St. Louis. The name of the Ritz has been changed to Royal. The Royal opened Sunday, May 7, with the admission price at ten and twenty cents. The double bill for opening the house was Geraldine Farrar in "Maria Rosa," and "The Little Shepherd of Bargain Row," accompanied by an orchestra of seven pieces with harp and organ. All the Cornelius theatres are run in a very systematic and efficient manner, and although the Royal is just one short block away from the downtown Lyric the attendance has far exceeded the expectation of the management since the opening.

The Hamilton Skydome, Easton and Hamilton avenues, St. Louis, opened for the summer season on May 11. The Hamilton, formerly with a seating capacity of 4,000, has increased to 7,000 for this year. The airdome has been painted and redecorated. A pretty and ornamental Chinese pagoda encloses the protection booth, with a rest room beneath, and little porticos running around it which are sometimes brought into use as reserved seats when the crowds are large. The program of the Hamilton is divided about equally between pictures and vaudeville, and the admission is ten and twenty cents.

The Eighteenth street airdome, adjoining the theatre of the same name, on Eighteenth street between Lafayette and Geyer, St. Louis, opened for the summer on May 7. The airdome is just in the rear of the theatre, and with its pretty entrance and tastily arranged vines and plants the fact that it is enclosed by the walls of tall buildings is scarcely noticed. Wm. O Reeve is the proprietor and manager of both houses and airdome.

The Columbia theatre, Sixth and St. Charles street, St. Louis, closed its regular vaudeville season on May 7, and opened as a picture house on the next day, with the Kleine serial featuring Billie Burke as the chief attraction.

The St. Louis airdome, at Prairie and St. Louis avenues, St. Louis, opened on May 13 as one of a string of outdoor theatres operated by the Warner Brothers. The Warners own six of these airdomes and are continually adding to the number. Because of the artistic trend of Mr. Charles Warner, manager of the firm, none of the places have any wires overhead, either for lights or machine, but ornamental posts for the lights and concealed wires for the projection booth.

The O'Fallon Park airdome, St. Louis, under the same management as the theatre of the same name and situated nearby the house, opened on May 7, with a program of features and serials.

A new theatre, which will be known as the Kingsland, is being erected by the Kingsland Theatre and Realty Company on Grand avenue and Meramec street, St. Louis. The theatre will be built of red matt brick and stucco, and have a red Spanish tile mansard roof with decorative towers. The side walls will be of large swinging sashes, which may be opened in hot weather and eliminate the closing of the house during the summer. Besides these convertible walls, an air cooling device will be installed, which will have all the advantages of an outdoor theatre without the disadvantage of having to miss a show on a rainy night. The building will contain two stores on the ground floor besides the theatre, and two modern four-room apartments on the second floor, and will cost approximately $35,000. The officials of the Kingsland Company are Harry W. Lohrum, Richard Zeppenfeld and Joseph Schneider, Sr. The theatre, which will be an all picture house with a seating capacity of 1,600, will be under the personal management of Mr. Lohrum, who for several years managed the Hippodrome and the Gem, when those two theatres were under the control of Frank Talbot.

Sam and Jacob Sigoloff have leased the Union theatre, at Union and Easton avenues, St. Louis, for a term of nearly five years, from the Union Theatre and Airdome Company. The Union is a large modern theatre and was one of the original Crawford neighborhood houses to be built in various parts of the city a few years ago.

NEBRASKA

A new moving picture house has been opened by I. V. Conner at Kearney. Cooper and Johnson are the new owners of the Plaza, at Hastings. R. W. Blakeslee opened the Dome theatre, at Nebraska City, May 4. S. Hawalis has taken over the Palm, at Minden.

NEW JERSEY

A syndicate is to erect a large picture house at the southeast corner of Broadway and Carman street, Camden.

William Mears, Thomas Leavey and Alfred Hintelmann will operate an airdome in Rumson when property is acquired.

The old G. A. R. hall on East Jersey street, Elizabeth, is to be converted into a picture theatre.

Plans were filed on May 13 with Building Inspector Thomas Brennan for the construction of a motion picture playhouse at the corner of East Jersey and First streets, Elizabeth. Plans were drawn by Ben Beatty, architect, and call for the expenditure of $50,000. The structure will have a frontage of sixty feet and will be one hundred feet deep. It will be of tapestry face brick and will be trimmed with terra cotta. The front will be of the most approved theatre type and will be three stories in height. A section will be used for offices. There will be a large foyer leading into the auditorium, and this will be tiled. The ceiling and side walls will be of metal as will the proscenium arch, and composition floors will be installed. The latest type of ventilating system, it is announced, will be placed in the theatre and the entire structure will be heated by the vacuum system. The seating capacity will exceed 1,500.

NEW YORK

The building at the southwest corner of Second avenue and First street, New York City, is to be altered for stores and a picture theatre. A 1,200-seat house will be erected on the Lawson and Bauer Block, Rockville Centre, by Messrs. Lawson and Bauer. Work on the theatre at 122-124 South Pearl street, Albany, to be known as the Regent has commenced. The structure is to cost $25,000 and will seat 1,000.

DeWolf Hopper in Mr. Goode, the Samaritan

For the week of May 28th TRIANGLE Exhibitors are again offered the opportunity of presenting to their patrons that famous star of the speaking stage ---DeWolf Hopper. For years he has been a great favorite and now he is rising to fame as a screen player. This week he repeats the success he made in two other TRIANGLE Productions, "Don Quixote" and "Sunshine Dad."

"Mr. Goode, the Samaritan" is a real comedy drama that gives Hopper every opportunity to display his great ability as a laugh-maker, and in it he more than lives up to the reputation he attained on Broadway. Just for a moment imagine the comical situation of Hopper, thrown into jail for buying a stolen car, entertaining a bunch of jailbirds by furnishing cigars, magazines and arm chairs. Don't you think this would amuse your patrons?

"ONCE a crook, always a crook," some people say, so when the two former guests of the city visited Hopper's home just at the time of a big house party, and then the jewelry began to disappear there was nearly a riot—an old fashioned scramble for stolen property. How the crooks were vindicated is highly amusing. For your patrons to appreciate this play they will have to see it themselves, and when they have seen it they will know the reason why TRIANGLE PICTURE PLAYS are in a class by themselves.

H. B. WARNER
IN
"The Market of Vain Desire"

For the other drama this week H. B. Warner, whose reputation was established by his characterization on the stage in "Alias Jimmy Valentine" appears in "The Market of Vain Desire"—a strong play based on that all-important question "Shall a woman marry for position?" It took a radical move for Warner to convince her that the step she was about to take was a mistake. The way he did it will strike right to the hearts of your patrons.

ARE YOU A TRIANGLE EXHIBITOR?

BIG FOUR'S OPEN BOOKING POLICY OFFICIALLY COMMENDED BY EXHIBITORS

Brooklyn, N. Y., April 23rd, 1916.

V-L-S-E,
1600 Broadway,
New York City.

Dear Sirs:

At a meeting of "The Associated Motion Picture Exhibitors of Brooklyn" the following resolution was unanimously passed.

"Whereas, The majority of feature film concerns are releasing their output on what is known as a program contract system, and

"Whereas, Some of these concerns bind the exhibitor by demanding a cash deposit as security on this contract, and

"Whereas, The exhibitor is forced against his will to take as part of these programs, film, that is good, bad and indifferent, and

"Whereas, The bad films the exhibitor has to show as part of these programs, not only do him incalculable harm, but have a tendency to hurt the entire industry, therefore,

"Be it resolved, that 'The Associated Motion Picture Exhibitors of Brooklyn' in meeting assembled, go on record as emphatically endorsing the open booking policy of the V-L-S-E which eliminates contracts and cash deposits and permits an exhibitor to show what he pleases, indicating this policy as being a fair and liberal one,

"Be it further resolved, that, the members of this Association heartily commend this policy and pledge their moral support and cooperation to V-L-S-E and recommend that all other exhibitors do likewise,

"Be it further resolved that, a copy of this resolution be sent to the main office of V-L-S-E."

Yours very truly,

Tom Brandt.

By order of the President. Executive Secretary
Associated Motion Picture Exhibitors of Brooklyn.

Gentlemen:

I have run a number of your features and my patrons were pleased with every one of them. They surely must have pleased or I should not have signed up for thirteen weeks more.

I think your policy of allowing the exhibitor to pick his own program will please the exhibitor more than anything else, as the exhibitor knows his patrons, where the exchange does not.

Dear Bill:—

I've ben in New York three days now an' its sure some big town. I seen the fight a few nights ago, but there wasn't much class. The big feller was too big an' the little feller was too small for him.

You tell John Tompkins he'd better keep his butcher shop and not take up prize fightin' for a business.

I've ben gettin' along fine since I've ben here, 'cept for the trains. They have 'em under the street and three or four stories high in the middle of the street and cris-cross an' every which way.

Last night I got a letter from Lucie and she sed to me that you had bought the Savoy pitcher theatre. An' speakin' of pitchers, I sure did see the funny man last night. His name is Daniels. I don't remember wether his name's Jim or Frank but he sure is one funny fellew. His face looks like a cross between a sun burnt turnip an' a big ben alarm clock, an' the way he does act is grand. I just laughed until my left side hurt me an' I would be laughin' yet, but a girl next to me got hystericle and got choked on the gum she was chewin'. She was some pretty girl and I would like to have helped her, but I was laughin' so darn hard that I couldn't be of any use. Just as I did get ready to help her the feller she was with took her out.

You better see if you can buy a pitcher with that feller in it. He's sure one funny guy.

I've order the cultivators and they're dandies.

Good luck.

Your friend,
Jed Hawkins.

WORLD FILM CORPORATION

WORLD PICTURES

I will give $5,000 in prizes for good stories to use in making scenarios for World Pictures.

William A. Brady

I invite the co-operation of the writers of the country—amateur and professional—in the work of producing better scenarios for picture plays.

As Director-General of World Pictures, it is my ambition to heighten the standards of the silent drama. Frankly, I am convinced that one of the first needs is much better scenarios. There has been too much trash!

So I have deposited $5000 at the Mutual Bank, New York City, to be awarded to those who present interesting stories, ideas or scenarios that I select for making photo plays. Contest closes at 6 P.M. Sept. 15th, and the prizes will be awarded Jan. 1st, 1917.

Of course, I am now receiving most of the choicest scenarios on the market, and they are being made into World Pictures. Included in them, I believe, are some of the greatest film dramas so far.

But I want to continue buying better-than-usual stories for every new World Picture. I cannot stand mediocrity.

Surely there are hundreds of people—yes, thousands—who have ideas which could be worked up into first-class photo plays, to meet the new standards set for World Pictures.

$1000 for the Best Story

For the best story, idea or scenario, I offer $1000; for the second best, $750; for the third best, $650. The stories taking fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh place, each will receive $500, $400, $300 and $200 respectively. The next twelve successful stories will be paid for at the rate of $100 each. We will therefore accept nineteen stories.

You need not submit a technically perfect scenario, such as are prepared by experts. You may submit merely the story in narrative form. Of course finished scenarios by professional writers will be welcomed.

To give you an idea of the kind of material we are seeking, I have prepared a chart showing what will please and what to avoid. If you wish a copy, write to me for it.

Let me suggest here, however, that the World Film Corporation is interested in unusual plays of present-day life, full of human interest and realism, with plenty of action and with tense, dramatic situations. People seem to like the love element and some comedy in each play.

Please avoid stories of the underworld and of war. Nor do I care to handle anything that is sordid or gruesome. I want clean, wholesome stories for the entire family to see and enjoy. Each story should make a five-reel picture.

What I Seek

Probably you have seen either House Peters in "The Closed Road" or Clara Kimball Young in "The Feast of Life" or Kitty Gordon in "Her Maternal Right." If not, see these pictures and you will get an idea of what we like. At present, thousands of people everywhere are enjoying and applauding the first of our new-day pictures.

Not long ago I stopped loaning my name to screen productions and entered personally into the supervision of World Pictures from start to finish. And now I am surrounded by the combined artistic and financial resources of two great organizations—World and Equitable.

These double resources, together with a reduced schedule of productions, permit me to carry out my most cherished ambitions. For thirty years I have been presenting stage plays to the people of eleven nations. Now I hope to win new friends in Filmland through greater triumphs.

See World Pictures

To further study what appeals to us, see some of the coming World Pictures which will be shown at first-class theatres everywhere. They include: Robt. Warwick in "Sudden Riches," Alice Brady in "Tangled Fates," Carlyle Blackwell and Ethel Clayton in "His Brother's Wife," Kitty Gordon in "The Crucial Test," Holbrook Blinn in "The Weakness of Man," Edna Wallace Hopper and Frank Sheridan in "The Perils of Divorce," Mollie King in "Fate's Boomerang" and Gail Kane in "The Other Sister."

Send your stories or scenarios to me personally. If you wish them returned, include postage. Your name and address should be plainly marked

Gentlemen:

Forty-one and one-sixth (41-1/6) pages more paid advertising were carried in Motion Picture News during the past six weeks than in the picture trade paper that carried the second largest amount.

One hundred forty-five and three-fifths (145-3/5) pages of paid advertising appeared in Motion Picture News EXCLUSIVELY during that time.

The final test of a magazine's success is the amount of advertising it carries.

Very truly yours,

BETTER THAN PROGRAM PICTURES

As the French opera singer, Beatriz Michelena plays a role to which her type and temperament are particularly well adapted. In this part she is convincing and true and big and reveals new powers of screen interpretation—a great actress in a great role.

All Star Cast including Andrew Robson, William Pike and Albert Morrison

Here is a production that bristles with intense situations. Climax follows climax with gripping continuity until the story reaches its big culmination. The plot in its revealment makes most exacting demands for emotional powers to which Beatriz Michelena responds supremely.

BIG FOUR FEATURE PLAY V L S E

The Woman on the Cross!

The half naked troglodyte stalked forth from his cave in search of a mate. He clubbed her into submission. When she proved untrue the remedy was easy, for she was the weaker. He killed her.

Civilized man stalks his mate by cajolery and many promises. When she proves untrue, he slays her.

He does not cleave her with a stone hatchet as did the troglodyte. Civilization has devised more subtle methods. He makes of her an outcast; he tears her own flesh and blood from her arms; he turns a deaf ear to the agonized cry of motherhood robbed of its young; he crucifies her on the cross of convention.

It matters not that he himself has sinned. The woman is the weaker and she must pay.

But must she alone pay?

This question now is stirring the civilized world. Every woman is vitally interested; it is a potent force in the life of every man.

"That Sort," Essanay's five act feature, deals with just such a problem. Warda Howard depicts the agonies of the woman on the cross with a dramatic intensity that strikes straight to the heart. She is ably supported by Duncan McRae, Ernest Maupain and John Lorenz.

This photoplay is taken from the drama of Basil McDonald Hastings, produced under the direction of Charles J. Brabin and released through the V. L. S. E.

"For the Good of the Motion-Picture"

"IT is for the good of the motion picture interests, as well as the public welfare, that I am pressing this measure for early passage."

With these words of paternal benevolence, Congressman Dudley M. Hughes, of Georgia, chairman of the House Committee on Education, closes a pleading paragraph of his report, recommending to the House of Representatives the passage of the Hughes-Smith-Paramount-Crafts censorship bill.

OUR thanks to Congressman Hughes, and to his honorable coadjutors in the framing of the measure! If that gratitude is not as spontaneous nor as cordial as these gentlemen believe it should be, let them remember that good intentions, when qualified by pernicious acts, merit no more than cold and formal thanks.

The well-intentioned author of the Federal censorship measure—probably the worst of all the bills that the committee has considered, in many respects—fails utterly to make his point—that "this measure is for the good of the motion picture interests."

"It will make unnecessary the local boards by meeting the public demand for regulation of motion pictures," the worthy Georgian declares. "It is the one way open to the producers to protect themselves from the ruinous effects of state and municipal censorship."

IN justice to Congressman Hughes, we refuse to believe that he believes this statement.

First, because he is a Southerner—which means that he has been bred and raised in the atmosphere of the doctrine that no Federal regulation of any question which materially affected the persons, lives or concerns of the people of the several states was sufficient, at any time, to abolish or supersede state or local statutes or bodies for the regulation of the same question.

Second, because he knows—or should know—that the "public demand" for censorship is the result of the deliberate and mercenary agitation of three men—Crafts, Chase and Barbour—who by a system comparable to the sleight-of-hand performances of vaudeville magicians have created the illusion of a national outcry for censorship that has never, in reality, been made.

THESE same men could, if they so desired, manufacture the same sort of "public demand" in any situation in which they chose to meddle—and it would be just as artificial, just as false, as the illusion they have evoked in the present instance.

Mr. Hughes asserts that such a Federal Commission will make local boards "unnecessary." Assuredly it will. If they can be made any more unnecessary than they are at the present time, a Federal motion picture commission may be relied upon to do it.

But if you ask Mr. Hughes whether a Federal Commission will supersede, will eliminate local and state censorship boards, you will find that usually eloquent gentleman at a loss for a definite and satisfying answer.

And yet, unless state and local censorship boards are eliminated, a Federal motion picture commission, instead of remedying matters, will only more intolerably confound and aggravate them.

DOES Mr. Hughes offer any assurance that state censorship boards will disappear, as the dew under the morning sun, upon the rise of Federal censorship? Hardly. Mr. Hughes is too good a politician to commit himself on that point.

Mr. Hughes has heard of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and of the blessings it was supposed to rain down upon the heads of the ungrateful railroads of the country.

And Mr. Hughes is quite well aware that the less said about that situation, or about the outcome of any similar situation, the better.

OUR Congressional "Good Samaritan" is also alive to the jealousy with which states and municipalities in this country guard their right to regulate the moral welfare of their people. He hails from a section of the country where that spirit is more intense, possibly, than in any other quarter of the Union.

Does he sincerely believe that the state of Georgia, which is notoriously fastidious about the observance of its moral customs and traditions, and almost maniacal in the avenging of a transgression of them, will complacently take the say-so of a body of Federal commissioners, located at Washington, ruling for the entire nation, as to the wholesomeness of any given picture—assuming, of course, as he does, that the state of Georgia is convinced that motion pictures need inspection?

IF he does, let him refer to the telegrams from the governors of half a dozen states, received by J. W. Binder of the Board of Trade, submitted at the Congressional hearings in January, and published in the report of those hearings, in reply to that very question.

Those telegrams were sent, by design, to the Chief Executives of states where censorship then existed—and still exists. In every case, the expressed attitude was that the state would resent the creation of a Federal censorship board, in so far as it was intended to supplant state boards, as an act of unwarrantable interference in state affairs.

"We can safeguard the morals of our people; we don't need Federal assistance. Hands off!" That was the substance and spirit of the replies.

MR. HUGHES, we repeat, is thoroughly aware of these things.

He reveals that in the "extreme unction," so to speak, which he offers the hapless motion picture interests in what he has already vividly pictured as their hour of peril.

"In any event," says Mr. Hughes, with the air of a priest consoling a condemned man, "at any rate, the National Board will be considered the leading motion picture commission, and its decisions will carry the weight of leadership."

In spite of the gravity of the situation, it is impossible to restrain a laugh. Having built up his beautiful dream of one, and only one, censorship board, our esteemed Congressman, sublimely unconscious that he is making a ridiculous spectacle of himself, shatters it with his own words, and begs the whole question.

WHAT will it profit the motion picture producers that "the National Board will be considered the leading motion picture commission," if the producers must, in spite of that, go on paying fees to every state that chooses to set up its own censorship board in defiance of or regardless of the Federal Government?

But why expose the fallacies and sophistries of Hughes & Company any further?

We do not believe that Congress will pass this or any other censorship law. There must be more than one Dallinger in the halls of the nation; more than one man who believes that "the regulation of local amusements by national legislation is entirely unnecessary and unjustifiable"; more than one man who sees clearly the unmistakable dangers of establishing the precedent of pre-publicity censorship of anything in this republic.

SHOULD the unexpected and the highly improbable come to pass and such a law be placed upon the statute books—then our sympathy is entirely with the producers, who have mistakenly (however sincerely) advocated and espoused the measure, and who will discover, to their cost, for what a mess of pottage they have sold their birthright.

Strange Bedfellows

"SOMEBODY is always taking the joy out of life" is a pat phrase of very broad human application. Newspapers as guilty parties are not exempt.

No sooner do we arrive at a pretty solid feeling that the motion picture is generally understood for what it really is than we get a savage jolt from some quarter; and most always the jolt comes from our friend the newspaper.

"TOBACCO, Drugs and Movies" is a newspaper caption, given wide circulation last week. Just because some prominent officers and stockholders of the American Tobacco Company have entered the directorate of a picture producer it is at once assumed that the move means chains of theatres in combination with the merchandising of drugs and tobacco products.

The suggestion, of course, is humorously absurd. The popular conception to-day of the American Tobacco Company is chains of retail stores. When any of its stockholders, therefore, invest in any other enterprise the headline writers immediately assume that the enterprise will be "store-chained" just as when members of the Standard Oil Company invest in any outside concern, the latter is automatically stamped as a trust. There is. of course, quite as much reason for assuming that theatres are to be placed upon street cars just because a traction magnate becomes a stockholder in a picture producing company.

IT is obviously absurd: But it does a grave business injustice to the producing company concerned which has not the slightest intention of owning theatres in chains or otherwise; and it tags motion pictures with an outrageous misconception.

There is nothing degrading in an association with cigars and packages of pills. But motion pictures are not "movies," nor are they made and sold like cigars and pills, nor will they ever be. Some people who have regarded them purely as merchandise have lost vast sums of money through their false judgment. They have found indeed that the production of pictures has horns, like the drunken farmhand who tried vainly to get a horse collar over a cow's head and exclaimed in desperation: "Why the horse's ears are frozen!"

An Excellent Step Forward

GEORGE KLEINE'S "Cycle of Film Classics," recently issued, and which was reviewed in a previous issue, is deserving of more than passing notice.

This exceptionally rich and tasteful brochure should do much to crystallize the movement for the genuinely educational picture, a movement always glittering in potentialities, but only now taking form and substance.

Eight historical novels are presented, covering, in chronological order, a cycle of nineteen hundred years, and the interesting and attractive volume closes with a citation of three plans by which the pictures may be viewed, as a course of study, by societies and organizations through co-operation with the exhibitor.

This is an excellent and practical step forward.

Minority Protests As House Gets Censorship Bill

Opponents in Committee Point Out That a Law for the National Regulation of Pictures Would, Instead of Destroying or Superseding Local Supervision, Have the Opposite Effect by Encouraging Authorities in Communities Where Censorship Does Not Now Exist, to Mulct Industry

Washington, May 20.

THE enactment of the so-called Hughes Motion Picture Censorship Bill, which has been favorably reported to the House by a majority of the Committee on Education, would serve to defeat the very ends to which the reformers who advocate its passage, are said to be working.

This and similar charges are contained in the report of the minority of the Committee and an accompanying statement by Representative Frederick W. Dallinger, of Massachusetts, who, at the request of Representatives William W. Rucker, Caleb Powers and Edmund Platt, the other objecting members of the House Committee on Education, prepared the report which they have signed and presented to the House.

At the same time, Representative Dudley M. Hughes, of Georgia, chairman of the Committee and father of the bill, issued a statement to the press of the country, just prior to presenting the majority report to the House. Mr. Hughes, advocating Federal Censorship, makes the dire prediction "that should this bill not be passed at the present session, the great majority of motion picture producers will come to Congress—as the Famous Players, Paramount, Lasky, World and Equitable companies have already come—at its next session, demanding the passage of the bill to save them from the tremendous costs and hardships of local censorship."

Minority Report Sees Evil Effects of Bill

The minority report denies that at the hearings before the whole committee any real evidence was shown that any significant proportion of the films now being exhibited are objectionable. The report also points out that the proposed law would place in the hands of five men a power which could be wielded to advantage for evil. "The extraordinary power vested in the commission proposed to be created by this bill," says the Dallinger report, "will not only prove ineffective to protect public morals * * * but it is utterly un-American in its character and in the highest degree dangerous from every point of view."

It is pointed out that pre-publicity censorship in England has not been successful. A committee of Parliament has recommended its abolition. In showing how ineffective the law would be, as well as how detrimental it would be to the extension of motion picture production, Congressman Dallinger states:

"There is nobody who is more bitterly opposed than I am to the exhibition of indecent and immoral pictures. I believe, however, as pointed out in the minority report, that the proper exercises of the existing police power of the several states supplemented by an amendment to the Federal Criminal Code prohibiting the interstate transportation of objectionable films, is more than adequate to remedy any evils that may exist. That the regulation of local amusements by national legislation is entirely unnecessary and unjustifiable is, in my opinion, too plain for argument.

"Having been engaged all my life in reform work, I cannot understand how the official representatives of organizations which are striving to remedy some of the evils in our American life can advocate this legislation. From the beginning of time the most effective weapon of reform has been the portrayal of the evils of existing conditions, whether that portrayal has been by word of mouth, as in the days of the Prophets, through the printed page of poet and novelist, by means of the artist's canvas or upon the stage. The motion picture art affords the most effective means of propaganda yet devised and to cripple its usefulness as is proposed by this bill would be most unfortunate and dangerous.

"The effect of Harriet Beecher Stowe's 'Uncle Tom's Cabin' in bringing home to the American people the evils of human slavery is a matter of history. How much more quickly and more effectively the same result would have been accomplished if the moving picture art had been in existence at that time? And yet does anyone doubt if such had been the case and a Federal Censorship Board had been in existence with the slave power in control of the National Government, that the film depicting the scenes portrayed in 'Uncle Tom's Cabin' would have been refused a license on the specious ground that it was inhuman and tended to corrupt morals?

Law Would Work Harm

"I am firmly convinced that if this bill should become a law it is not only possible, but extremely probable that, under some conditions, motion picture films setting forth the need of national preparedness or portraying the evils of the white slave traffic, of intemperance and even of child labor, might be refused a license. In my opinion, those who are interested in progress and reform are the very ones who should be most vitally interested in keeping absolutely free from arbitrary control this latest and most powerful instrument of free thought expression.

"The enactment of the Alien and Sedition Laws utterly destroyed the great Federalist party in the early days of the republic. These laws, however, merely punished the author of objectionable written or spoken words after they were written or uttered and then only after a trial by jury. This bill seeks to set up in this country pre-publicity censorship, one of the most effective instruments of European military despotism and I cannot believe that any political party is willing to assume responsibility for its enactment."

In contrast to this cogent argument, the statement by Representative Hughes confines itself to glittering generalities, and the very weak argument that Federal Censorship would eliminate state and local censorship.

"The report which I am submitting to the House fully explains the bill," says Judge Hughes. "The Committee has endeavored to so frame the measure that it will safeguard the public welfare and at the same time work no unnecessary hardships on the motion picture industry. I believe we have accomplished not only this, but have presented a measure which will vastly benefit the industry in relieving the producers in a large measure from the oppressive weight of the growing local censorships. The bill is the one way open to the producers to protect themselves from the ruinous effects of state and municipal censorship, for it will make unnecessary the local boards by meeting the public demand for the regulation of motion pictures.

"The sooner the bill becomes law the better it will be for the industry," he continues, "for it will be much easier to prevent the formation of a state or city board of censors by showing that there is already in existence an efficient Federal regulation than it will be to have a local board abolished which was created before the Federal law became effective. In any event, the National Board will be considered the leading motion picture commission and its decisions will carry the weight of leadership. Should a picture be passed by the National Board, a local board would have to give good reasons to the public for prohibiting the exhibition of the picture.

"It is for the good of the motion picture interests, as well as the public welfare, that I am pressing this measure for early passage."

Will Not Do Away With Local Censorship

Opponents of Federal censorship point out, in reply to this argument, that instead of destroying or superseding local censorship, Federal censorship will have precisely the opposite effect. It will open the eyes of the authorities in communities where censorship does not now exist to the excellent opportunity for fattening the exchequers of their towns; and there is no more reason to suppose that Federal censorship will replace local censorship than the creation of the Interstate Commerce Commission elminated the state railroad commissions."

Probably the most astonishing statement in the Hughes report itself is a reference to the brief filed by the so-called Paramount-World group, advocating Federal censorship. After remarking that the vicious picture brings the larger return to exhibitor and producer, the report says: "This statement of conditions is made in the brief filed by the representatives of four of the ten manufacturers who produce ninety per cent. of the motion pictures in the United States," apparently attempting to give the impression that the four manufacturers are the ones who produce the ninety per cent.

That the work of the commission would be enormous, and that the expense of its maintenance would be a distinct burden on the producers is an easy deduction from the Hughes report itself. In addition to the five commissioners, there is to be a supplementary force of deputy commissioners to be appointed by the commission. It is estimated that 200 original reels of 1,000 feet each are produced weekly, and that there are 25 copies of each original. The income to the Government from the originals at $2 per 1,000 feet would be $28,000 per annum, while the duplicates would bring in $130,000 yearly.

The report containing the minority views, says in part:

"This bill proposes to regulate by a Federal Commission the principal amusement agency and what is rapidly coming to be one of the chief educational agencies of the people of the United States. It is not proposed to censor the plays or operas produced at the high-priced theatres throughout the country, but it proposed to give five men at Washington the absolute power to determine beforehand what the great mass of the American people shall be permitted to see upon the motion picture screen. Before the National Government undertakes to thus exercise the local police power hitherto reserved to the States, and to regulate purely local amusements, thus stretching the implied power of the Interstate commerce clause of the Federal Constitution to the breaking point, it is incumbent upon the proponents of such legislation to show that a widespread evil exists with which the State and local authorities are unable to cope.

Hearings Fail to Reveal Widespread Evil

After declaring that the hearings at Washington failed to reveal any such widespread evil, the report continues: "In the last analysis, it appears that what the proponents of this legislation really desire is to prevent the exhibition through the agency of the motion picture film of any book or play which in any way depicts crime or immorality or paints the vile side of human life, on the ground that such scenes tend to corrupt morals and incite to crime. It is obvious that any such test as this would prevent the great mass of the American people whose limited means will not permit them to patronize the high-priced theatres, from seeing depicted upon the motion picture screen practically all the great works of literature from the beginning of time. Judged by any such standard most of Shakespeare's plays and even many parts of the sacred Scriptures would be barred.

"That there are occasionally indecent and obscene motion picture films exhibited here and there, is perfectly true, just as there are obscene and indecent plays produced in high-priced theatres and indecent and immoral books published. Such productions, however, are already prohibited by the laws of the several States, and their transportation from State to State is also prohibited by Federal statute under severe penalties. In our opinion, an amendment to the United States Penal Code, including motion picture films in the list of objects barred from interstate transportation, will answer every purpose and is as far as Federal legislation should go. Such an amendment is proposed in a bill introduced in the present Congress and now pending before the Committee on the Judiciary.

"The overwhelming weight of opinion amongst those producing motion pictures is against the proposed censorship bill. The opposition to the bill represents more than 85 per cent. of the total number of motion picture films produced. Those manufacturers who favor the bill represent a very insignificant proportion of the output. The attitude of this inconsiderable minority is naturally and frankly selfish and commercial. They believe that it would be less expensive and troublesome to deal with and perchance control a single Federal Censorship Commission than to deal with or control the several State authorities acting under their already ample police powers. The notorious effectiveness of the pre-publicity censorship of theatrical productions in England has undoubtedly influenced this minority of the moving picture manufacturers to believe that a like National pre-publicity censorship as provided in this bill willl have a similar effect in this country. * * * A censorship commission under the influence of a rival could thus absolutely ruin a producer by exercising corruptly or even with unconscious partiality the arbitrary power vested in this commission to condemn a film.

"But we regard the balance of interests between those several small producers catering to high-priced houses who believe in censorship because it will relieve them of the necessity of deferring to local standards of decency on the one hand, and those large producers who want to leave the industry free to develop still greater fields of usefulness on the other, as of little moment compared with another and very grave phase of this question.

Most Serious Objection to the Measure

"The most serious objection to this bill lies in the power it seeks to give to an executive commission to trammel the moving picture art, the propagandist power of which is already marvelously developed, and the potential power of which seems limitless. It is in this rapidly developing power and use for propaganda that the moving picture film has taken its place beside speech and press as a thing to be kept free from arbitrary control in the interest of free institutions."

A striking parallel is then drawn between the attempt to trammel the picture, and a similar attempt to muzzle the theatre in England in the time of Walpole's ministry. "Walpole, whose government was the most corrupt England ever knew, found his power threatened by a popular play exposing the venality of his political followers, and he learned that another play was about to be produced. It was to stop this second play that he caused to be enacted, the present censorship law in England.

"If we keep in mind that the vital thing in speech and press which was sought, on the one hand, to be restrained, and, on the other hand, to be kept free, was the power of propaganda, we shall understand more clearly the importance of bringing the moving picture film within the constitutional guaranty of a free speech and a free press, because the analogy in principle and necessity is complete. Indeed, the history of the attempt to censor moving picture films bears a close analogy to the history of the attempt to abridge the freedom of speech and of the press."

In presenting the censorship bill to the House, Judge Hughes submitted the following assertions in the majority report:

"The necessity for the regulation of motion pictures is apparent. It has been acknowledged by a large majority of the film manufacturers by their voluntary submission of their films to unofficial boards for approval. That the public demands this regulation is demonstrated by the scrupulous regularity with which the producers exhibit such approval at the end of each picture.

"This bill has the earnest support of the leading moral and religious organizations of the nation. A similar bill was unanimously reported to the House from this committee in the last Congress.

"With the acknowledgment of the need of regulation both by the motion picture interests and the public they serve, the question arises as to what shall be the regulation and who shall do the regulating. The National Board of Review, at New York City, is composed of representatives of various moral and civic organizations. It is estimated that more than 95 per cent of all pictures produced in this country are passed upon by this unofficial board.

Local Boards Rapidly Multiplying

"In addition to this voluntary board, there are numerous official censors, both State and municipal. The establishment of such large numbers of these local boards, which are rapidly increasing, clearly demonstrates the inadequacy of the so-called National Board of Review, which by its very character cannot exercise effective supervision. Though it were to exercise a careful and intelligent supervision, over 95 per cent of all pictures, still there would remain 5 per cent which could be immoral and unfit to be shown. It is only fair to assume that those pictures, which are most objectionable, will not voluntarily be submitted for review.

"An unofficial board which has not the right to examine 100 per cent of the pictures is not in reality a board of regulation, but a board of recommendation and approval. As a matter of fact, evidence before the committee discloses that a very considerable percentage of the pictures approved by the unofficial board are declared by the local boards unfit for exhibition. The decision of the National Board of Review is not binding. Pictures which have been disapproved by it are shown to the public.

"The character of the motion picture industry renders State and municipal regulation inadequate. Motion picture films are essentially articles of interstate commerce. * * * Inumerable inspections by local boards work great hardships on the industry.

Ince Is in New York Arranging for "Civilization" Premiere

Triangle Abandons Open-Air Studios for Transparent Stages, From Hot House Idea That Choice Pictures, Like Fine Plants, Are Best Obtained "Under Glass"—Inceville Will Be Used for Making of Special Features, While Society Dramas Will Be Staged at Culver City by Six Companies

THOMAS H. INCE, accompanied by Barney Sherry, veteran actor who has been with the producer for more than five years; Barney Bernard, assistant to Kenneth O'Hara in the publicity department, and a number of others, are in New York making arrangements for the Broadway premier of "Civilization." Before Mr. Ince returns to the coast, he will consummate deals for the presentation of this spectacular production in Chicago, Washington, Philadelphia, Boston and other big cities. A representative of Ince is now at San Francisco arranging for the showing of the picture there.

Since the first showing of "Civilization" in Los Angeles, a material change has been made which places the spectacle more in the class of a heart interest drama. This was accomplished by the removal of a number of scenes, and an addition of approximately twenty-four hundred feet. The change does not in any way alter the original version of the subject, but it adds greatly to the romantic values of the picture, which the producer believes will add to its popularity.

Since the subject has been shown in Los Angeles, the inquiries regarding the picture have been increasing daily, and now Business Manager E. H. Allen has found it necessary to add to the office staff at the Culver City studios, a department, the purpose of which will be to answer inquiries regarding "Civiization." This also leads to the conclusion that Ince will retain all rights in the picture, and present it throughout the country as a theatrical attraction.

"We have what I believe is the finest plant for the taking of motion pictures that you can find in this or any other country," said Thomas H. Ince shortly after his arrival in New York the other day. He was making his first visit to the new offices of the Triangle Film Corporation in the Brokaw Building, and was asked just what the new Culver City studio plant meant to the motion picture business.

"It is going to mean a great deal," said Mr. Ince. "We moved because we felt that there was good reason to believe that by the construction of a new and modern plant, built upon intelligent manufacturing lines, some of the enormous overhead expense of taking motion pictures could be eliminated, with the result that bigger and better pictures would be made. Culver City is the last word in studio facilities. It is good commercial planning that has produced it, and then it won't do any harm that close to a half million dollars expended in a tract of sixteen acres—with another sixteen lying alongside it for future development—makes some considerable showing in buildings.

"We have practically abandoned the open-air studio for the taking of our pictures," Mr. Ince went on. We have come to the conclusion that the best results are to be obtained under glass, and we have equipped all our studios with the best lighting system that we could find anywhere, one that makes possible results that would have been impossible six months ago, even. We have five glass stages, and have the facilities and equipment to add more at short notice. Culver City, I believe, is the top notch in studio work. We have taken what I feel is a large step forward, and the keynote of the whole of the new plant has been something that is sadly lacking in motion picture making heretofore.

"I mean efficient manufacturing methods and proper administration in the layout of the work. I don't pretend to say that we have reached the point where no further improvements may be made, but we have taken a long step forward.

"I think that what we are doing now at the Culver City studios will be sure to have its effect on the motion picture industry, and I am reasonably certain that Triangle exhibitors and patrons will have no reason to complain when they see the steady gain that is now becoming apparent. What we are doing at Culver City is going to have its effect elsewhere; it will have to. There is little doubt that the great things that have been accomplished in the motion picture business have been due to the hard and imaginative work of the men who have performed that work, but we have reached a point of industrial development that makes it imperative that we should begin employing intelligent commercial methods to our work.

"No industrial corporation would stand for a minute the things that have been done in the name of motion picture production. We have got to make the most of our resources; we have to eliminate waste, and we have to cut our corners in order to maintain high standards and produce better pictures without sacrificing any of the artistic standards we have established. That is spoken for the whole motion picture industry.

"Triangle pictures have established themselves, and there is little need for us to do anything now but put the best ideas, the best people and the best work of which we are capable into them. That means, of course, that we will have taken the essentia steps for continued success along these lines. The time has come when big things are expected of the motion picture; when it has become really an integral part of the national life, and as such has come to assume a position of dignity. An industry that has risen to fourth place is truly deserving of the best equipment we can give it, and we have made a long step in the direction of industrial efficiency at the new plant.

"The move to Culver City does not mean that we have abandoned the Inceville studios. They will be used for the taking of special features, and all the W. S. Hart pictures will be made there exclusively. Inceville, with its 18,000 acres of western landscape and hundreds of head of horses and cattle, lends itself better than any other studio in America to the making of western pictures."

All the Ince society dramas will be made at Culver City, where he will have six producing companies. Bigger and better pictures is the Culver City slogan, and Mr. Ince assures Triangle exhibitors that he will hold up his end.

BURGER ON TRIP TO PITTSBURGH, CHICAGO AND ST. LOUIS

J. K. Burger, manager of exchanges, of the International Film Service, Inc., is off on a week's trip to Pittsburgh, Chicago, and St. Louis, where he is called on business matters in connection with the booking of the "Mysteries of Myra."

On a recent trip to Boston Mr. Burger booked additional business to the amount of thirty-nine thousand dollars.

VAN RONKEL SEES BLUEBIRDS IN NEW YORK

I. Van Ronkel, manager of the Chicago Bluebird Photoplays, Inc., returned to New York with Mr. Hoffman from the first lap of his little exchange inspection tour. In the two days which he has now spent in New York he has looked at six Bluebird Photoplays, which have not yet been released.

They are "Naked Hearts," "The Eye of God," "Bobbie of the Ballet," "The Three Godfathers," "Shoes," and "Yellow and White," and the excellence of the six, piling one upon the other, convinced him that there was room in the Chicago office for at least two more prints on all Bluebirds. Mr. Van Ronkel has had charge of the Chicago office for the past two months.

COLLEGE GIRL MAKES RECORD AS BOOKER IN PITTSBURGH

Effie L. Ross, a woman booker in the Pittsburgh office of the V-L-S-E is pronounced one of the most efficient bookers in the business by E. O. Child, Pittsburgh manager for the company. This commendation has been sent recently in a letter to the home office.

Miss Ross, a college graduate, came to the V-L-S-E a year ago in a stenographic capacity. Her advancement has been rapid.

PATHE PUBLICITY TO WORK WITH NEWSPAPERS

A publicity department, to work with the country newspapers and the exhibitors, is to be established in the Pathé Exchange at Kansas City, Mo. C. S. Edwards, jr., manager of the exchange, has developed a constructive idea with reference to such a department, and will probably give it much of his personal attention in the first stages.

Lyons and Moran Stay with "U"; Christie with Horsley

Oldest Producing Company on Pacific Coast, Nestor, Justifying Title by Its Age, Will Continue to Turn Out Funmakers, with the Two Comedians

EDDIE LYONS and Lee Moran, for almost five years the mainstay of the Nestor-Universal Comedy Company, completed arrangements while in New York City last week to continue in the employ of the Universal Company as actors and co-directors. As yet the rest of the company has not been decided upon, but in all probability it will be composed of members of the stock company at Universal City.

Al. Christie and all the other Nestor players, with the exception of the two stars, have severed connections with Universal, and it is reported will make comedies for David Horsley. Mr. Christie's company includes, Horace Davey, director, and Ed. McMillan (once known as Burns), Neil Burns, Dave Morris, Billie Rhodes, Betty Compson, Ethel Lynn, Harry Rattenberry, Stella Adams, Gus Alexander and others.

The Universal, however, is not to lose its Nestor brand mark nor the comedians that helped materially to make it famous. Thoroughly familiar with the style of Nestor comedies, it is believed that Mr. Lyons and Mr. Moran will be fully capable of jointly directing the future Nestors.

Let Mr. Moran speak for the two. "Lyons and I," he says, "have appeared together in Nestor comedies for almost five years, and we know our work from every angle. As co-directors for the new comedies we will be able to employ our past experience to good advantage. We are to produce one reel every week, with a double thrown in now and then. The style will be the same in the future as it has been in the past. Situations and not slapstick is our aim, with burlesques on typical dramatic plots as another variety."

Mr. Moran will, he says, appear in eccentric character parts almost totally. Many are acquainted with his ludicrous creation of Detective Potts, and more parts like this will be written for him. Mr. Lyons is to do the hero parts generally.

This breakup in the Nestor Company separates the oldest producing company of the coast colony. The three, Christie, Lyons and Moran, were together before the film industry was taken seriously. Lyons was the first to join the Christie organization, and later Moran was discovered in musical comedy and induced to take up work on the screen. The company has made a record not paralleled by any other organization, having averaged more than one reel of comedy per week.

House of "Iron Claw" Shows Good Hand for Two Weeks

Eight Reels of Serials, Two of Slapstick, a Goldberg Comedy Ani(mated) with Four Pathe News and Five Scenics and Educationals Make List

WITH eight reels of serials, two reels slapstick comedy, a Goldberg animated cartoon, four issues of the Pathe News, and five split reel scenic and educational pictures, the House of Pathe shows its hand to the exhibitor for the next two weeks (up to and including June 17).

In the week beginning June 5, "The Double Resurrection," an episode of "The Iron Claw" will be released. A mysterious veiled lady furnishes the thrill in this. The fifth drama in the "Who's Guilty?" series produced by the Arrow Film Corporation and entitled "Sold Out," with Anna Nilsson and Tom Moore, makes its appearance at the same time.

"Luke Laughs Last," featuring Harold Lloyd, will be the slapstick one reeler released the week of June 5, while the Goldberg cartoon is entitled "The Fatal Pie." Attached to the latter is a part reel, "Some Fresh Fishes," an educational. On this same program is another educational, "The Zinc Mines of Lang Hit," an educational of French Indo-China, which will be presented with "Around Mount Fuji," a scenic of Japan. Two issues of the Pathe News round out the week's program.

For release in the week beginning Monday, June 12, Pathe offers "The Unmasking of Davy," another episode of "The Iron Claw." Next follows "Sowing the Wind," a drama of the "Who's Guilty?" series. "An Awful Romance" is the title of a one reel slapstick comedy produced by Mittenthal for Pathe, slated for release in the week of June 12, and featuring James Aubrey, of "Heinie and Louie" fame.

There is also a split reel educational and scenic, "France's Canine Allies" and "The Gorges of Colorado." The week's program is complete with two releases of the Pathe News.

Morosco Banquet for Miss Ulrich Before She Leaves for West

Company Gives a Theatre Party to the Trade Press and Their Friends at the Lyceum, Where Actress Was Starring in "The Heart of Wetona"

THE New York representatives of the Oliver Morosco Photoplay Company tendered another of its welcome parties to the trade press and their friends, on Friday, May 19, when they gave a theatre party at the Lyceum playhouse where Leonore Ulrich was starring in "The Heart of Wetona."

The affair was in the nature of a farewell to Miss Ulrich before her departure for the west coast, where she is again to take up work with the Morosco producing forces. After the theatre a sumptuous repast was served at Wallick's Hotel.

Later in the evening after the cabaret performance was completed, a painting of Miss Ulrich was put on view on the small stage in the restaurant, which was greeted with rounds of applause. Balloons were produced bearing the lines, "Leonore Ulrich, Oliver Mososco Photoplay Company," and there wasn't a soul in the restaurant who was not acquainted with the identity of the guest of honor at the supper table.

"The Heart of Wetona" closed the next night and the following week Miss Ulrich departed for Los Angeles to take up the studio work. The play has had a most successful run in New York. Miss Ulrich's appealing rendition of Wetona the Indian girl and the superb work of the supporting cast gave it a successful run.

Those present at the entertainment were Mr. and Mrs. Carl H. Pierce, Julian M. Solomon, Jr., Pete Schmid, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Blank, Wallace Thompson, Charles E. Moyer, Irene Page Solomon, Mr. and Mrs. Harold F. Rendall, Marjorie Seagrave, Dickson Watts, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gunning, Estelle Murphy, Charles Condon, C. P. Smaney, Bernard P. Fineman, Margie Ganss, Mr. and Mrs. James Hoff, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Edwards, Dorothy Kelly and Peter Milne.

PACIFIC PICTURES PRODUCING ORGANIZED

The Pacific Picture Producing Company is the name that hangs over the door of a studio at 1776 Allesandro Street, Los Angeles. The sign also bears the name "Sunshine Films." This company was organized with Josh Binney, formerly at the Keystone, as its head. Horace B. Cornish is scenario editor, and another member of the staff is Jack Leonard.

SOUTHERN AUDIENCE PETITIONS FOR RETURN SHOWING OF "RAVEN," ESSANAY

So popular was the Essanay, Big Four feature "The Raven," a picturization of the life of Edgar Allan Poe, when it played at Jacksonville, Fla., that the patrons of the Imperial theatre voiced their approbation by drawing up three petitions duly signed, and presented them to Manager N. W. Redmond of the Imperial theatre, asking him to secure a return engagement of "The Raven," with Henry B. Walthall in the leading role.

The Jacksonville, Fla., Times Union, ran the story as a front-page news story.

UNIVERSAL IS IN THE MARKET FOR ONE, TWO AND FIVE REEL SCRIPTS

Helen Starr, scenario editor of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, announces that she is in need of regular scripts. She is not interested in embryo amateur efforts. Work from established photoplaywrights will be welcomed. The Universal Company is in need of one and two reel comedies, one, two and five reel dramas. The scenario department at 1600 Broadway, New York, buys for both the eastern and western studios.

Metro's Got Him—Who?—Charley Chaplin of Birdland

He Is in a Study of Animal Life, Part of Weekly Travelogue Releases—State Biologist of Oregon Responsible for Intimate Glimpses of the Feathery World

METRO Travelogues, a weekly feature, will have its first release on May 29. under the auspices of the Metro Pictures Corporation. These features embrace a wide range of subjects, including studies in animal and bird life and glimpses of interesting and picturesque locales throughout the world.

Unlike similar travelogues heretofore presented upon the screen, the Metro weekly features will carry a predominating element of humor in the animal and bird studies. The seemingly impossible has been obtained in the humorous "close-ups" of bird life.

For example, one of the early releases shows a scene that a mother pelican has with her obstreperous baby. The baby insins on having its way in all things. The mother struts around indifferently. The baby wants to be fed, but the mother will not heed his appeal. In sheer desperation, and acting for the world like a spoiled child, the baby pelican throws himself down on the ground, feigning starvation and pretending that it is dying. This evidently touches the mother's heart, and she gives into the "young 'un."

William Lovelle Finley, biologist for the State of Oregon, is the genius responsible for these intimate pictures of bird and animal life.

There are laughs aplenty in the introduction of a comical old sea parrot, the Charles Chaplin of the bird world. He seems to be conscious that motion pictures are being made of actions, and consequently he "shows off." Then there are the "Waders of the Marsh," shown in their favorite pastime and also "at home."

The rest of the animal kingdom also comes in for its share. It is difficult to give an adequate description of the fun created by the antics of two clumsy, good natured brown cub bears. They are seen at play with three cougar kittens, beautiful specimens, and the tricks they perform are the kind one never tires of seeing. The bears are shown at their dinner hour, they are bottle fed, and then seeking to take a nap after a full meal. But the cougar kittens will not allow this, and they proceed to make the cubs miserable.

In one of the Metro Travelogues considerable material is shown that will not only prove of intense interest to all anglers, but to the general public, because of its novelty. It is a chapter called "The Life History of the Salmon." The salmon is shown on its long and tiresome journey up the Columbia River, when at a certain season it swims and leaps high in the air, up rapids and cascades, in its progress to the spawning ground. Other touches dealing with trout life are shown, as well as glimpses of the fisherman's life along the great rivers of that country.

Among scenic beauties presented in the Metro Travelogues, is the feature dealing with the gigantic construction work being carried on under government supervision in the construction of the Elephant Butte dam and irrigation project on the Rio Grande near El Paso. All these films are edited by the United States Department of the Interior, before being released by Metro.

There are many scenic offerings in the Metro Travelogues, including an automobile trip over the Lincoln Highway, showing picturesque localities of that route.

Ivy Close Arrives from England for Work in Kalem Films

Star Will Spend Few Weeks in Combined Rest and Sightseeing Before Posing for the Camera—She Will Also Appear in One-Reelers

IVY CLOSE, the English beauty, engaged as a screen star by the Kalem Company, arrived in New York on May 14 on the St. Louis to begin her work. Stories written especially for Miss Close, around the characteristics which have made her a favorite in London and Paris, are now being prepared by Kalem. They will present Miss Close in one-reel comedy subjects. The supporting cast is also being selected. Meanwhile, the star will seek a few weeks of combined rest and sightseeing, probably making her debut before the Kalem camera about June 1.

On her arrival at Quarantine, Miss Close was bombarded with questions by reporters on subjects ranging from pictures to the Irish rebellion.

"No, I had no fear of submarines," she laughed in response to one interviewer's question. "Not after those excitnig days in Dublin. A submarine is a harmless toy compared to a fight in the home of fighters.

"It seems to me that all my friends who come over usually tell you how they like America in these first interviews, but as I haven't seen any more than the Statue of Liberty yet I'm afraid I'll have to be daringly original and not answer that question.

"I am all enthusiasm though over the prospect of my motion picture work with Kalem. I have always felt that when I decided to enter motion picture work seriously it would be with an American company. We have had some very fine British productions, but on the whole, you Americans seem to be far ahead of us in the cinematographic art."

Coincident with the star's arrival Kalem announced that one-reel comedies would be the vehicles for her screen work. William Wright, of the Kalem Company, who was among the party meeting the American Line boat St. Louis, immediately had a long consultation with the star.

TRACY, ENGLISH CELEBRITY, WILL WRITE "GRIP OF EVIL" FOR PATHE

J. A. Berst, vice president and general manager of Pathé, last week entertained in his office Louis Tracy, the English novelist, and persuaded him to lend his talents to screen work.

As the result of the meeting of Messrs. Berst and Tracy, the author is to write "The Grip of Evil" for Pathé, a serial story which will be picturized and released probably during the early summer.

Mr. Tracy's works are tremendously popular, and he may be said to be the man with a million readers. Among his books are "The Wings of the Morning," "The Pillar of Light," "The Silent Barrier," "Karl Grier," "A Son of the Immortals," and "The Great Mogul." A man of strong personality, he is of an extreme reserve. Born in Liverpool and educated in France, he ran away from home to join the British navy, only to find that it was not his vocation. So he drifted into journalism, and later through his novels became an international celebrity.

Los Angeles Mayor Will Not Appoint Film Commissioner

Sebastian Will Ignore the Provision of the Ordinance Passed by Council Some Time Ago, Which Gives Him Power to Put the City Under Censorship

Los Angeles, May 20.

FOR the first time in six years, Los Angeles is without motion picture censors, and it is the general opinion that the city will remain in this condition, as Mayor Charles Sebastian has announced that he has no intention of appointing a film commissioner, as provided by the ordinance recently passed by the city council.

The passing of the ordinance late in March provided for the abolishment of the board of censors, and also that a commissioner be appointed by the mayor to inspect the films shown here, and see that only those passed by the National Board of Review be projected in public theatres. The appointment of the commissioner by this ordinance was placed within the power of the mayor, and this statement coming from the chief executive of the city, points out that he believes no censorship of the films is necessary.

Mayor Sebastian, in speaking of the intention of the present administration with respect to censorship, definitely stated: "I have no intention of appointing a film commissioner." The civil service commission of the city has called an examination for the position of film commissioner, which will afford the mayor opportunity of selecting a candidate for the appointment, should the administration come to the conclusion that a commissioner is necessary.

This change in Los Angeles most emphatically brings out the uselessness of censorship with respect to motion pictures, inasmuch as this was one of the first cities in the country to draft and pass an ordinance establishing legalized censorship of films. From the first the board of censorship was not in harmony with public opinion. Every film that has been condemned by the censors, has later been shown, after the case had been carried through one or more courts at considerable expense to the city, and still more to theatre men, exchange owners, and motion picture manufacturers. The board of censorship in Los Angeles was conducted along the most economic lines. No member was paid a salary except the one that served as secretary, and the monthly salary for this office was seventy-five dollars. Annually $8,000 was appropriated by the city to cover cost of light, heat, rental, salary for projecting machine operators, and incidental expense. No fees were charged for examining the films, but each exchange or film owner was compelled to deliver the film to the office of the board, and later have it returned to the exchange after it had been examined.

In the three or four instances where the board condemned a subject, nine out of ten who saw the subject had no hesitancy in going on record with the statement that they thought the film should be shown and the public act as the jury. Finally a very large percentage of the civic organizations, clubs, business and professional men signed petitions asking for the abolishment of censorship, believing that it was unconstitutional and un-American. The city council caused an exhaustive investigation to be made, and later set dates for public hearing for and against censorship. At these meetings a protest against the abolishment of the censor board was made by three or four ministers, a representative of the Humane Society, and the W. C. T. U.

The city council before taking definite action with respect to the censorship matter, found that if the question was put to a vote, the censorship would be defeated by an overwhelming vote of perhaps ten to one. This condition in Los Angeles is no doubt due to the fact that the voters have had opportunity to see censorship tested and have taken it upon themselves to investigate, and thus have found censorship unnecessary. This bears out the statement of many of the film industry who are working to kill censorship in any legalized form, that if the people are informed—educated with respect to film matters—they will be ardent supporters of the anti-censorship movement.

Arrangements for Sixth Convention Nearly Completed

Coliseum in Chicago Is Ideally Suited for the Housing of the National Exposition, set for July 10-18—Committees for Handling Event Are Appointed

Chicago, May 20.

ARRANGEMENTS are fast being completed for the sixth national exposition and convention of the motion picture industry to be held under the auspices of the Motion Picture Exhibitors League of America at the Coliseum in Chicago from July 10 to 18. The Coliseum, which contains 31,000 square feet of floor space on the main floor, and 15,000 in the balcony, is ideally suited for the housing of the exposition. Twelve thousand square feet of space has already been spoken for, and from the rate things are going it is anticipated that all the space will be subscribed for by the middle of June. The rush of business incidental to launching this convention has forced the Chicago branch of the Motion Picture Exhibitors League to secure quarters additional to those they are occupying at 1413 Masonic Temple.

A committee consisting of William J. Sweeney, chairman of the convention committee; Louis H. Frank, general manager of the exposition, Fred W. Hartman, secretary of the convention committee; Fred Schaefer of the finance committee, attended the two shows in New York to get ideas for the conducting of the Chicago convention. This committee reports that they have been very successful in interesting the eastern manufacturers and have already signed all the leading concerns for space.

Chicago, with its temperate lake cilmate, its unsurpassed hotel facilities, its accesibility from all other points of the country, and its many points of interest, offers an ideal place for the holding of this convention. The entertainment committee is working night and day so that the visiting exhibitors will be shown the time of their lives.

Plans have been made to start a nationwide scenario contest to secure a scenario which will be enacted during the convention; also the selection, through the newspapers, of the most beautiful girl in the country to act as the leading lady of this film. The one chosen will be given a week's contract and the opportunity to display her talent, which will probably result in a permanent position with some producing company.

The committee chosen to handle the convention consists of the following members: William J. Sweeney, national vice president and chairman, convention committee; Fred W. Hartman, secretary, convention committee. Exposition and finance committee: Louis B. Frank, chairman; M. A. Choynski, secretary; John H. Frundt, August Zilligen, Jr., and Fred Schaefer. Printing and badge committee: H. Lieberthal, chairman; Sidney Smith, secretary, and M. S. Johnson. Press, entertainment and reception committee: George M. Laing, chairman, C. C. Whelan, secretary; Harry Hyman, Julius A. Alcock and Robert R. Levy.

YOUNG SIGNED TO DIRECT MABEL NORMAND

Los Angeles, May 20.

A change has been made with reference to the Mabel Normand Feature Film Company, as Richard Jones who was to be director, has decided to remain with Mack Sennett and the Keystone organization. James Young, who came to the coast to direct two pictures for the Lasky Company, has been engaged, and as soon as a suitable story is secured, the filming of the first subject will be taken up. Wheeler Oakman, who for a long time was with the Selig Company, and there played leads in many important subjects.

TWO SCENARIOS FOR FAY TINCHER, A FOIL FOR HOPPER IN TRIANGLES

For the first time since De Wolf Hopper arrived in California last September to begin his motion picture work for the Triangle, Fay Tincher has had a vacation. It proved a most profitable rest, too, because when she returned to Fine Arts two scenarios were waiting for her. When the pictures are completed and released Fay Tincher's name will appear in the big type.

This promotion is in recognition of the diminutive comedienne's faithful work at Fine Arts. She has been in the films less than three years, but when Hopper arrived in California she was selected as a foil for the huge comedian. Then followed her Dulcinea in the Chester Withey version of "Don Quixote," the Widow Marrimore in "Sunshine Dad," and soon she will be seen as Shortie Sal, a crook's "steady," in "Mr. Goode, the Samaritan." Her first appearance in the films was in Griffith's "The Battle of the Sexes." Subsequently she played in a series called the "Komics."

During her brief vacation Miss Tincher lived in her bathing suit at the various California beaches. She recently dived forty-five feet into the Pacific.

OMAHA GETS READY TO LOOK AFTER 7,500 AT ITS CONVENTION

Omaha, May 20.

Arrangements have been completed to entertain between 5,000 and 7,500 people at the Nebraska-Iowa Exhibitors' convention and ball to be given at Omaha, May 25, by the Omaha Screne Club and Photo Play Managers' Association. The advertising, under the direction of live wire exhibitors and exchangemen, has reached into every city and town in the state and even people in some of the rural routes have become interested. Manager C. W. Taylor of the general exchange in Omaha, treasurer for the event, and in charge of the ticket selling, has established ticket centers in every drug store of importance in the state.

The plan is to get the exhibitors and motion picture fans together for a good time, to see private exhibitions, special vaudeville acts, hear a one-hundred-piece band, and to spend the evening dancing with their wives and sweethearts, together with as many film stars as can be secured. Part of the proceeds will go to the motion picture actors' benefit fund.

Plot of Kellermann Picture at Last Made Public by Fox

Story is a Delightful "Arabian Nights" Medley of Ancient Fable and Modern Story So Wide in Scope it Admits of Fanciful Treatment for Matter-of-Fact Spectators

FOR the first time, the Fox Film Corporation announces, in brief, the plot of its new million dollar Annette Kellermann picture, made by Herbert Brenon in Jamaica. The spectacle will be ready for the public in a few weeks.

Summarized, the story of the photoplay tells how little Katherine, a Roman child, has a canary which she idolizes.

She releases this unhappy bird to join a joyous sparrow living free in a nearby wood. One day the sparrow falls victim to a barn dog and the canary, desperately in love, flies out to sea and dies on the waves. Little Katherine dies of grief.

Sunrise on a wonderful palm-fringed beach reveals a flock of mermaids arising at the sound of a morning call sounded by their queen. As they glide into the sea they carry with them a baby mermaid with the face of a little angel. This little mermaid is the child who had died of grief over the death of her bird. The sparrow that died is transformed by a fairy queen into a youth and the canary, by the wave of a wand is made into a perfect woman of great beauty. She is borne shorewards on a wondrous shell by the mermaids. Over the universe the good spirit waves her wand and then into the picture comes a wonderful colorful garden in an Eastern kingdom where these two fairy-made creatures (William E. Shay and Annette Kellermann) are to enact a drama surrounded by thousands of people.

After the mermaid and mythological scenes you pass into the episodes dealing with the Sultan and his harem of oriental beauties. You see the loss of his four-year-old son at sea; of his terrible anger and melancholy that later makes him known as the Mad Sultan. Then into the picture comes Dragona, the witch, who will make evil descend upon the land and who plots to wreak the downfall of the dream-maiden.

Unity Service Meets with Hearty Response from Exhibitors

"Consistency in the Standard of Our Pictures and Strict Supervision of Every Print Is Not Least Part of Our Plan," Says Cobe

THE announcement last week of the plans of the newly formed Unity Sales Corporation to consolidate in an economical and efficient manner the interests of the independent manufacturer of pictures and the independent exchangeman, have met with instant and gratifying response from the industry at large, according to Charles W. Allen, president and treasurer, Andrew J. Cobe, vice-president and general manager, and Arthur Rosenbach, secretary of the organization.

"Our policy of service and co-operation to the manufacturer and exhibitor on our new system of mutual understanding, has resulted in an instant response," said Mr. Cobe. "Consistency in the standard of our pictures and strict supervision of every print and every feature is not the least important part of our policy as exchangemen, exhibitors will realize. I intend to see to it personally that our slogan 'The concern with a conscience' is no idle phrase; but one which will be lived up to in everything it implies. In the near future I have some plans to announce which will be, I hope, of immense interest to every wide-awake exhibitor and exchangeman."

The Unity Sales Corporation is at the present time distributing, besides other pictures, "My Country First," a feature made by Tom Terriss for the Terriss Film Corporation and in which Mr. Terriss is starred.

Another feature distributed by the Unity is the "Pursuing Vengeance," in which Sheldon Lewis is starred. This feature, which was directed by Martin Sabine, employs in addition to Mr. Lewis and a cast of artists, the services of Jane Meredith and Henry Mortimer, who both furnish remarkable characterizations. The subject matter of the photodrama, which is based upon Burton E. Stevenson's mystery novel, "The Boule Cabinet," one of the series of stories in which Crochard, the polished "bird of prey" figures.

WIL REX DIES SUDDENLY IN NEW YORK

Wil Rex, one of the most popular of the younger men in the film world, died suddenly at his home in New York April 12 of septic spinal meningitis. He was twenty-four years old.

Wil Rex

A graduate of Stevens Institute, Mr. Rex began his career in pictures at an early age, attracting attention in 1915 when he appeared with Al Ray, his chum, in "The Adventures of Smaltz and Fish." He retired from screen acting as the result of an unfortunate accident, which disfigured his face. He then began to direct dramas for Associated. His health failing, he gave up directing to write scenarios and magazine articles, and became associate editor of the Picture Play Magazine, where he remained until two weeks before his death.

JAKE WELLS SENDS CERTIFIED CHECK FOR $3,200 TO KLEINE FOR "GLORIA"

Lynchburg, Va., May 20.

Jake Wells has obtained the rights for George Kleine's new serial, "Gloria's Romance," featuring Billie Burke, and will exhibit the picture at his theatres in Richmond, Norfolk and Lynchburg. Sixteen thousand dollars was offered by Mr. Wells for the rights in these cities, and the New York office acknowledged his certified check for $3,200 covering twenty per cent of the film rental.

One hundred and sixty thousand people will have to witness this picture before the amount paid by Mr. Wells will be reflected in the box office. Richard B. Tant, of Augusta, Ga., who was sent to Lynchburg by Mr. Wells to open the Isis theatre, has returned home and the big photoplay house is now in charge of Janet Allen.

Vim Comedies Lynch Mr. Censorship at Garden Exposition

Victim Is Portrayed as Western "Badman" Who Starts to Shoot Up the Town—Sheriff's Posse Gets Him and He Is Strung Up with Short Shrift

A NOVEL and effective treatment of the censorship question afforded much amusement to the crowds at the Madison Square Garden on Friday evening, May 12, when three clowns representing Vim comedies lynched Censorship in the glare of spot-lights thrown on the big ventilating fan near the roof of the building. The victim was portrayed as a western desperado who started to "shoot up" the unoffending citizens in his vicinity. Word of this was carried to the sheriff, and a posse was sent in pursuit of the marauder. After an exciting chase, in which toy pistols were pitted against the big "forty-five" of the desperado, he was captured and strung up in approved western style.

The event was advertised in advance in the New York morning papers, and considerable speculation was aroused by the form of the advertisement, which ran:

LYNCHING

That varmint, Censorship, has been maraudin' round too long—an' we're goin' to get him Friday night at the Garden an' string him up. All law-abidin' citizens invited to be present at the obsequies.

The Vigilance Committee.

Following the lynching, the corpse was cut down and placed in a box. Quicklime was then thrown in, and the lid nailed down, after which the remains were addressed to one Breitinger in Philadelphia, with the compliments of the Vim Film Corporation.

The Vim comedy clowns, who executed the offender, were in evidence throughout the week, and attracted attention with their "circus" stunts.

Asher Gets World Rights to San Francisco Fair Negatives

Picture He Obtains Will Be Released in 800 Foot Lengths, Including Sculpture and Statuary, Gardens and Buildings, and Night Illuminations

GEO. A. COLLINS, president of the Exposition Players' Corporation, arrived in New York from the Coast last week, at which time a deal was consummated whereby E. M. Asher takes over the world's rights for seventy-five thousand feet of negative, which covers the complete history of the world's Fair, which closed in San Francisco last December.

The Exposition Players' Corporation controlled the exclusive and only franchise which permitted the taking of scenic pictures inside the exposition grounds, and this it is announced, is in full effect until July, 1917.

The compiling of the negative, which is due to arrive in New York next week, required almost two years of preparation, none of which has ever been released, but now through the watchful eye of the motion picture camera it is made possible to show the world's fair achievement to millions who were unable to journey to the Coast.

Asher announces that the pictures will be ready for release in about two weeks, and after being cut to ten thousand feet will be marketed as a serial in eight hundred feet lengths at the rate of one each week, as follows: A Story, Gardens and Buildings, Palaces, Architecture, Sculpture and Statuary, Aviation, Lighting and Night Illuminations, and Natives from Foreign Climes.

Each subject will be handled in a thorough manner, and the spectator is taken from point to point with a continuity of understanding.

Selznick Reports Increased Demand for Young Subjects

Exhibitors Seek Franchises for the Pictures Featuring the Star of Many Successes—Berman, Mastbaum, Smith and Garson Taking Many Contracts

THE general headquarters of the Clara Kimball Young Film Corporation and Lewis J. Selznick Productions, Inc., in the new Film Building at Forty-ninth street and Seventh avenue, New York, reports increasing demand from exhibitors seeking franchises to present the future pictures of Miss Young in their theatres, beginning with the first of the new company's releases, "The Common Law," by Robert W. Chambers.

With the opening of the New York Exchange in charge of Sol J. Berman, late of Bluebird and World Film, a large number of franchises have been applied for by local and up-state exhibitors. In Philadelphia, Stanley Mastbaum and W. B. Smith, Mr. Selznick's partners in the distribution of Miss Young's pictures in Pennsylvania and southern New Jersey, are taking care of applications, while in Detroit, Harry I. Garson, the Michigan representative, is equally busy. Mr. Selznick is negotiating with film men to conduct his exchanges in the different territories and has practically closed with a number of them. Meanwhile, his personal representatives are making a systematic tour of the Eastern States, closing franchises with individual exhibitors.

JACK SHERRILL ATTENDS A COWBOY DANCE

Jack Sherrill, who played Steve O'Mara, opposite Alice Brady in "Then I'll Come Back to You," the Frohman Amusement Corporation's last release, who is on a visit to California, attended a cowboy dance given by Douglas Fairbanks in Los Angeles. Numerous screen celebrities were present and all helped to make the dance a success.

While in Los Angeles, Jack Sherrill met, through William Hurlburt, Charlie Chaplin, and saw him do some of his work before the camera.

Jack Sherrill has had several offers from large producers in California, and while there, will investigate their possibilities and continue his work out there.

CLAIRE ALEXANDER IS SIGNED BY HORSLEY FOR LEADS IN OVEY COMEDIES

Claire Alexander has been signed by David Horsley and in the future will be seen in leading feminine roles, in support of George Ovey, star of the Cub Comedies on the Mutual program.

Director Milton H. Fahrney, who has supervised the Cub Comedy Company ever since that brand of pictures was produced at the Horsley studios, became interested in the young woman and consented to give her a trial.

Claire Alexander, of the Cub Comedy Company, in the Costume Which She Wore During the Venice Bathing Parade

"The Traitor" was the first picture in which Miss Alexander was cast. A small part was assigned to her and her work and general understanding of what was wanted impressed her director as well as everyone else around the studio who witnessed her performance.

In "Preparedness," the next Cub Comedy to be filmed, Miss Alexander was seen in a larger part and she was given even a bigger role in Mr. Ovey's next picture, "Jerry's Perfect Day." Then came "Jerry's Big Lark" and at the conclusion of that Director Fahrney was convinced that he need go no further in his search for a leading woman.

Photodrama Develops A New School of Writers, Says De Mille

Newspaper Men and Women Seem Especially Well Qualified for This Work—Why, He Does Not Attempt to Explain, Merely Pointing Out the Fact

CECIL B. DEMILLE, director general at the Lasky Studios in Hollywood, dropped in at the Lasky offices in New York last week, on the first visit he has made to the east in six months. His stay was short; several large productions are in hand simultaneously under his supervision, and it was necessary for him to get back "on the job." From New York he went to Georgia, where he will spend a week in search of "atmosphere" for one of the new pictures on the way.

Mr. DeMille stopped long enough to say that he has found so much more in the photoplay, in the matter of possibilities for dramatic expression, than he ever had in his long experience with the stage, that he has erased from his mind most of his stage recollections. "I know nothing about the stage—any more," he said to MOTION PICTURE NEWS. "The picture is much more fascinating, so much bigger, with so much more room for development. It is not so hide-bound as the stage.

"The protodrama is bringing forth a new school of writers, those who can tell their story by the movements of the actors rather than by their utterances. This new school of writers is being rapidly developed, but it is still young. It is hard to impress distinguished novelists and dramatists that the same care is necessary to make good photoplays as is required to make a good novel or good drama, but it is true, nevertheless.

"The story is the one essential thing of the whole picture. A good story, badly cast and badly produced will hold its audience, whereas a poor story perfectly produced will not create a single response. And we get a lot of bad stories—I should say about 997 out of every thousand submitted are bad.

"The new school of dramatic writers seems to be coming from the younger generation. Newspaper men and women seem to be especially well qualified for this work. I cannot set my finger on the exact reason why this is so, but such seems to be the case. Our two best photodramatic authors are still in their twenties, and they are both graduates of the newspaper college.

"Many, many stories are better not told. If they are worth telling at all they are worth telling well. As to the length—I wish I knew the proper length of the photoplay; I would say that it depends on the story itself."

SUCCESSFUL PUBLICITY WORK FOR ACTORS' FUND BY HARVEY

The remarkably successful publicity of the Motion Picture Campaign for the Actors' Fund was handled by E. L. Harvey, who left the assistant city editorship of the New York Evening Journal to take up the work. The campaign is now drawing to a close and Mr. Harvey is undecided whether to return to newspaper work or remain in the film business.

NEWSPAPERS TAKE UP MICHELENA CRUSADE AGAINST FAKE SCHOOLS

As the result of the publicity given the interview which Beatriz Michelena (who is now working in a seven-part film adaptation of "The Woman Who Dared" for the California Motion Picture Corporation), had with Governor Johnson concerning official legislation against fake schools of motion picture acting, influential newspapers in many cities are taking up the crusade.

YOUNG WOMEN DONATE SERVICES AS USHERS IN ST. JOHN

The Imperial theatre, the finest photoplay house in St. John, N. B., will have lady ushers. The fact that these young women are working for nothing is distinctly odd. The facts are these. The young women are members of a patriotic association and as many of the regular male ushers in the Imperial had enlisted, they proposed to the management of the theatre that they take the places of the men and be paid the same amount as the regular ushers, but the money to be paid into the club treasury.

The girls will hold these positions until the end of the war, or until the former occupants come to claim them, the positions being held for the former holders, as is the case all over Canada, in similar situations.

EXCELLENT ADVERTISING SCHEME FOR OPENING OF THEATRE

When The Muse, Omaha's newest motion picture theatre, opened recently it took a whole page in the three big daily papers of the city. The firm who did the galvanized iron work on the ventilation system took part of the page; the drug store on the corner nearest the theatre; the motion picture machine installed in the Muse; the Omaha General Iron Works, which did the structural steel work on the new picture house; L. C. Thrane, who did the outside galvanizing; Rogers' buffet, "on the way to the Muse"; and the various exchanges took up other parts of the page. In the center was a large picture of the theatre, with the announcement in big type of the first picture and the show's other attractions.

Any exhibitor can utilize these in advertising the opening of his new theatre.

LOUISVILLE EXHIBITOR RUNS FILMS OF LOCAL PAGEANT

Motion pictures of a Shakespearean pageant which was held in Central Park, Louisville, May 6, were taken by a Cincinnati photographer, whom Manager Lee Goldberg of the Mary Anderson Theatre brought to Louisville for that purpose. Pictures were also taken by Joseph Howard, actor-song writer, who was filling an engagement at Keith's Theatre. The pictures enjoyed a successful run at the Mary Anderson, Keith's and the Alamo theatres. They will also be shown at other Louisville houses.

How the Parkway Theatre, Baltimore, Has Made the Children's Performance a Success—List of Films Shown

SPECIAL children's performances are attracting much attention in Baltimore just at present. A number of theatres are conducting children's performances at irregular intervals, making it, in most cases, a Saturday morning performance. One local theatre, however, makes a specific feature of a Saturday morning children's performance.

The latter theatre is the Parkway, one of Baltimore's largest and most exclusive motion picture houses. Each Saturday morning, between 10.30 and 12.30, pictures that appeal particularly to children are shown. There is always a feature reel consisting of a fairy story or some scenario that is bound to hold the attention of the children.

This is shown in conjunction with travel pictures, a trick film, and other educational or juvenile productions. The performances are always well attended. The Parkway has found the special children's performances not only profitable, but a big source of advertising.

It has been proven that by carefully selecting the class of film to be shown, the house has gained the confidence of the parents, and they do not hesitate to send the children to any of the special children's performances, nor at the regular matinee or night performances, when the scheduled program is presented.

Among the feature reels presented at the Parkway at the children's performances are the following:

Mary Pickford in "Cinderella," "Alice in Wonderland," "Little Mary Sunshine," "Good Little Devil," "The Girl of Yesterday," "Patch Work Girl of Oz," "The Magic Toy Maker," "Golden Locks," "Rumpelstiltskin," "The Wishing Ring," "The Little Dutch Girl," "The Old Homestead," "Rip Van Winkle," "Treasure Island," "The Foundling," "Wild Flower," "The Prince and the Pauper," "Molly Make-Believe," "Loyalty," and "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

The accompanying picture gives an idea of the popularity of the children's performances. This picture was taken of the crowds that were unable to get in to the first performance one Saturday morning. It was found necessary to run two performances and the house was filled to capacity for each.

ASK MAYOR TO DECLARE HOLIDAY IN CHAPLIN'S HONOR

Lawrence Stuart, manager of the Old Mill, Dallas, put over an ingenious publicity stunt in connection with his showing of the first Charlie Chaplin-Mutual release. He wrote a letter to the Mayor of Dallas, suggesting that a holiday be declared "in honor of the most popular man in America."

The letter was printed by the newspapers, and attracted a great deal of attention.

NOVEL PROGRAM FOR ANNIVERSARY OF 'FRISCO FIRE

J. L. Partington, manager of the Imperial theatre, San Francisco, took advantage of the tenth anniversary of the Frisco fire to present a program that proved of intense interest to his patrons.

A series of moving pictures which had been taken just before the great conflagration was secured after a diligent search and as a glowing comparison pictures showing Market street as it is today were also placed on the same program.

The stage set used with the anniversary program showed San Francisco's crowning achievement, the Panama-Pacific International Exposition as it appeared at night, together with a night flight of aviator Art Smith.

The production of this scene was made under the direction of W. Austin, who built some of the spectacular scenic features of the exposition.

BALLOON KITE HERALDS SHOWING OF "MYRA" IN BOSTON

Frank D. Stanton is responsible for filling the Franklin Park theatre, Boston, to its capacity for the initial release of "The Mysteries of Myra." Suspended above the playhouse was a huge balloon kite with the title of the feature picture showing boldly on all sides.

Mr. Stanton's idea of giving away souvenirs to the children succeeded in filling the street to the extent that the police were required to keep the traffic open. The souvenirs in the form of toy balloons were distributed to the kiddies, and went a long way towards increasing Mr. Stanton's popularity with the little tots.

Announcing the appearance of Blanche Sweet in "The Ragamuffin," the Auditorium, Coatesville, Pa., sent out a neat card, with a character pose of Miss Sweet on one side, and a short sketch of her career on the other. Besides being an attractive piece of advertising, it is also a souvenir.

FIGHTS CENSORSHIP IN HIS HOUSE ORGAN

The Granite Square theatre, Manchester, N. H., lines up on the side of the enemies of censorship. It fights censorship in its house organ, which, you remember, we have urged all exhibitors to do.

The Granite Square News is only a small four-page circular, but almost half of one of its pages is devoted to creating among its patrons an attitude hostile to censorship. If this small theatre can give so much valuable space to the question, what excuse is there for failure to do so on the part of larger theatres with larger house organs? We commend the management of the Granite Square for what it is doing. We hope it will continue the fight.

FREE TAXI HOME FOR PATRONS AT MIDNIGHT PERFORMANCE

In order to draw the largest possible patronage to a midnight performance of "The Dumb Girl of Portici," at the Princess theatre, Evansville, Ind., Manager A. J. Merrill advertised that each patron would be given a free taxi ride home within the 25c limit. The Princess couldn't accommodate the crowds.

Manager N. B. Maysmith of the Columbia theatre, Victoria, B. C., attracted general attention to the inauguration of Trangle pictures at that house by the use of a full page ad in the Daily Colonist. A coupon was printed in the ad, good for admission to the Columbia at any time during the first two weeks of the Triangle policy.

CHILDREN'S PROGRAM FOR OWENSBORO, KY., THEATRE

A special children's program was given April 29 at the Queen theatre, Owensboro, Ky. The show was arranged by Manager Bleich upon the solicitation of Mrs. Frank Rounds, acting for the Woman's Club, and in answer also to a request from Miss Bomar, a teacher in the public schools. More of these special shows at the Queen theatre will be put on at intervals.

HOSPITAL BENEFIT NIGHT WINS FRIENDS FOR THEATRE

The management of the Imperial theatre at Chilliwack, B. C., on one night each month donates the use of the house for a benefit for the local hospital, and has made many new friends in this way. The regular program of pictures is shown, and local people assist with songs, playlets, and musical selections.

Looking Ahead With The Producers

"Iron Hand," with Bosworth and Jane Novak, from "U" in Week of May 29—Same Date, "All Over a Stocking"

"THE IRON HAND," the Red Feather feature of the week of May 29, will be released on that date with Hobart Bosworth and Jane Novak in the principal roles. On the same date Eddie Lyons, Lee Moran and Betty Compson disport themselves in "All Over a Stocking," a Nestor comedy.

On May 30, the feature of the day will show Bob Leonard and Ella Hall in the Gold Seal two reel mountain drama, "The Silent Man of Timber Gulch." The two reeler will be followed by the Laemmle drama, "The Fur Trimmed Coat," in which Rupert Julian, Elsie J. Wilson and Francelia Billington play the leads, and by "A Double Fire Deception," an Imp comedy in which Matt Moore and Jane Gail share honors.

"The Attic Princess," a Big "U" drama featuring Thomas Jefferson with little Zoe Bech, opens the program of the day of May 31 and is followed by "Tough Luck on a Rough Sea," a two reel L-KO comedy featuring Dan Russell. Animated Weekly, No. 22, will be released on the same day.

On Thursday, June 1, the feature will be "Two Mothers," a two reel Laemmle society drama in which Emory Johnstone and Dorothy Davenport play the leading roles. The Big "U" drama, "Brother Jim," follows with Thomas Jefferson and his little co-star again appearing in the principal roles. The Powers comedy, "It Can't Be True," with Ernie Shields and Marcia Moore, closes the day's program.

King Baggot in "Jim Slocum No. 46-393," a two reel heart interest drama will be released under the Imp brand on June 2. Edna Hunter supports Mr. Baggot. On the same day Neal Burns and Billie Rhodes will cavort and disport in the Nestor howler, "Good Night Nurse."

On June 3, "Tammany's Tiger," a two reel Bison animal comedy, leads off the day's program with Marie Walcamp and Lee Heel in the principal funmaking roles. On the same day Ben Wilson appears with Dorothy Phillips in the Rex drama "A Cad," and William Franey and Gale Henry split the fun between them in the Joker comedy "A Dark Suspicion."

"As In a Dream," an unusually strong three reel human interest drama featuring Sidney Ayres, Olive Golden and Dorris Pawn will be released on June 4 under the Rex brand. It will be followed on the same day by Herbert Rawlinson in the Laemmle comedy. "The Wire Pullers," in which Mr. Rawlinson is supported by charming Agnes Vernon.

The fifth episode of "The Adventures of Peg o' the Ring," entitled "The House of Mystery," will also be released during the week of May 29. Grace Cunard and Francis Ford, despite all reports to the contrary, will play the leading roles in "The Adventures of Peg o' the Ring" to the end of the serial.

THEDA BARA, VIRGINIA PEARSON, MME. KALICH AND FARNUM IN FOX RELEASES EACH SUMMER MONTH

Notable among the William Fox releases for the month of June is Theda Bara in "East Lynne." There is hardly a person of the present generation who has not sympathized with the trials of Lady Isabel. In "East Lynne," Miss Bara is cast in a role distinctly different from those which she has played so consistently in the past. Miss Bara is supported by Stuart Holmes, Claire Whitney, William H. Tooker and Stanhope Wheatcroft.

Jose Collins is presented in the June releases as a William Fox star for the first time. She will be seen in "A Woman's Honor." Mr. Fox has also planned that a photoplay by Miss Bara, Virginia Pearson, Mme. Bertha Kalich and William Farnum shall be released each month during the summer. With releases of photoplays each month of these four stars of the first magnitude, exceptionally attractive programs are assured.

The June releases announced are: on the fifth, Virginia Pearson in "Hypocrisy," a play dealing with social conditions and ambitions; on the twelfth, Jose Collins in "A Woman's Honor," a photoplay of the trials of a young woman; on the nineteenth, Theda Bara and an all star cast, including Stuart Holmes, Claire Whitney and William H. Tooker in the old favorite, "East Lynne."

SPOOR ANNOUNCES "THAT SORT" AS ESSANAY'S FIRST JUNE RELEASE

George K. Spoor, president of Essanay, announces "That Sort," a five reel photodrama from the play of Basil McDonald Hastings, as Essanay's first feature release for June. Warda Howard will be seen in the principal role, with Duncan McRae, Ernest Maupain and John Lorenzo as her principal support.

Some exceptionally beautiful scenes are promised, showing the cliffs of Dover, an English fox hunt, scenes on the Spa, along the Riviera, Monte Carlo, and the Imperator in mid-ocean and docking in New York. These were taken by Director Brabin before the outbreak of the European War, it is announced.

"OH, YOU UNCLE," FROM LUBIN ON MAY 27

"Otto the Hero," a new one in the Davy Don series of one-reel comedies, is released May 22 by the Lubin Company through the General Film Company. The story as written by Jack O'Neill and screened under the direction of Edwin McKim, devises new ways of making Mr. Don suffer on the screen for the entertainment of audiences. The supporting cast includes Patsy DeForest, Florence Williams, George Egan and Bernard Siegel.

"Prisoners of Conscience," a three-reel drama, directed for the Lubin Company, is released May 25, through the General Film Company. The story is by L. V. Jefferson and Josephine McLaughlin, produced under the direction of Melvin Mayo. A young minister is thrown into love's crucible and is assyed pure gold. A physician errs through carelessness and death ensues. The act includes Adda Gleason, Lucy Payton, Evelyn Page, Alan Forrest, Cecil Van Auker, George Routh and Ben Hopkins.

"Oh, You Uncle," is written by Bide Dudley and produced in one reel by Clay M. Greene, is released by the Lubin Company, May 27, through the General Film Company. A festive bachelor with a sporty nephew seeks to conceal their proclivities from each other with a gay soubrette taking an active hand in the game. The cast includes June Dane, Lenore Peacock, Edithe Pierce, Francis Joyner, and Kempton Greene.

FOR THIS WEEK'S PLASTIQUE MILLER HAS A COW ELASTIC

"Did Sherman Say Law or War?" will be the second of Ashley Miller's "Plastiques" on the Paramount Program to be released among the short reel subjects, from the J. R. Bray studios. The characters in these scenarios are introduced to the audience by evolution on the screen.

Two farmers, a lawyer and a cow constitute the cast of "Did Sherman Say Law or War?" For plot this drama is sculpture depends on the squabble of the farmers over a cow, claimed by both. The rightful owner engages a lawyer to defend his rights, but the litigation drags out through the courts until the cow wastes away to a skeleton. At the final settlement one farmer is awarded the cow's tail and the other the horns. To the lawyer himself goes the cow as payment for long and faithful service.

CAMPBELL LEAVES FOR VICKSBURG, MISS., FOR "CRISIS" SCENES

Director Colin Campbell, of the Selig Company, has closed his work at the Selig Chicago studios and on Wednesday, May 17, left with his company of players for Vicksburg, Miss., where on or before May 23, Mr. Campbell expects to start work on productions of battle scenes in "The Crisis." The interior scenes in the film dramatization of Winston Churchill's novel have all been completed. It is planned to complete the work at Vicksburg by June 1, when the company will visit St. Louis for special work.

A staff of scenic artists and stage carpenters left in advance of the Selig director and stars for Vicksburg, where special properties were prepared in anticipation of the arrival of the players. From St. Louis, it is the present plan to escort the Selig players to the Pacific Coast.

Allegorical Subject Featuring Audrey Munson Is Completed by American Film Under Personal Supervision of Hutchinson

THE "Flying A" forces have about completed the filming of an allegorical subject featuring Audrey Munson, under the personal supervision of Samuel S. Hutchinson, president of the American Film Co., Inc. The name and release date will soon be announced by the Mutual Film Corporation.

On the green of a beautifully laid out and well groomed lawn overlooking the Pacific Ocean, two hundred nymphs recently took part in the allegorical dance in this picture.

Chosen for its magnificent scenic splendor from the numerous finely kept and appointed estates of millionaires' homes in Santa Barbara and Montecito, "La Chiquita," the estate of Francis T. Underhill, a noted landscape architect, made a striking frame for this great outdoor scene.

Acting as an assistant to Director Rea Berger in this seven reel feature, Geneva Driscoll, a former pupil of Ruth St. Denis, drilled the dancers for weeks. The dance began far away at the ocean's edge, at the end of a wide, wooded avenue, an exquisite pastoral picture as the nymphs posed for the dance. Draped in flowing veils, the oncoming dancers, most of them girls between the ages of fifteen and eighteen, barefooted and bare-legged, danced over the grass carpeted lane and swept out upon the great lawn. There a spectacle lasting five minutes spread itself to view, the premier dancers being the characters of Pandora and Evil, portrayed by Josephine Phillips and Mons. Dumont.

Three cameras were used by the "Flying A" squad of photographers to take the big scenes, and the costumes were designed by drapers under the supervision of Ed Langley, art director.

Notable poses in which Miss Munson will be seen in this allegorical masterpiece, will be that of "Descending Night," posed on the lawn of another handsome Montecito country home. The piece of statuary "Descending Night," posed for by Miss Munson, attracted wide attention at the San Francisco Exposition. In this picture she is seen posing for the same statue in life.

Output of Gaumont in June Is Practically a Program in Itself; "Armdale" on May 25

THE promised output of the Gaumont Company for June is practically a program in itself. The first in quantity are the new three-reel photodramas which have begun with the release of the film version of Wilkie Collins' "Armdale" on May 25. General Manager F. G. Bradford has had Scenario Editor George D. Proctor on the watch for some time for three-reel photoplays that would meet requirements.

Two photoplays have been announced by Gaumont for June. The first of these three-reel productions is "Flames of Vengeance" by Paul M. Bryan. Mr. Bryan is responsible for "The Isle of Love," "The Idol of the Stage" and "Lessons in Love." "Flames of Vengeance" stars Gertrude Robinson, with Iva Shepard featured in her support. The photoplay has been directed by Edwin Middleton. In the cast are John Reinhard, John Mackin, Birsha Shepard, Albert Macklin and James Levering.

The second three-reel release is "The Spatulate Thumb." This was written by Lionel Barrymore and Wright Huntington. The identity of the mysterious criminal in this play is established by the fact that his thumbs differ; one is conic, the other is the spatulate thumb of a murderer. "The Spatulate Thumb" will be released June 22.

The single-reel releases of the Gaumont Company reach the public weekly. In this connection, it is interesting to note that The Mutual Weekly, the motographic news reel manufactured by Gaumont, is being shown at the three leading Broadway, New York, theatres showing pictures. These are the Rialto, the Strand and the Palace.

In the new Gaumont single-reel, "Reel Life," the Mutual Film Magazine, the subjects for June have not been announced. The Gaumont Company has its own cameraman at work, and until he has been some time in the field there will be no authoritative statement of what this film will contain.

"See America First," manufactured by the Gaumont Company, has been selected by the United States Government itself as a medium for informing Americans concerning some of the wonder spots of this continent.

On the same reel with "See America First," the Gaumont animated cartoonist, Harry Palmer, releases his Kartoon Komics. "Nosey Ned" and "Escapades of Estelle" will alternate.

RELEASES, UNDER MELVILLE'S SUPERVISION, FOR LUBIN THROUGH GENERAL

Releases by the Lubin Company during May include several noteworthy subjects from the company studios in California under the personal direction of Captain Wilbert Melville. Among them are: "The Candle," two reels; "None So Blind," three reels; "The Wheat and the Chaff," three reels; "The Beggar King," two reels; "Jackstraws," three reels; "Prisoners of Conscience," three reels; "The Final Payment," two reels, and "The Code of the Hills," three reels. This series is released in the order named through the General Film Company.

Four Vitagraphs: (Left to right) "Carew and Son," "The Lonelies," "The Rich Idler," and "Kernel Nutt the Chauffeur"

NO LIGHT TALK EXPECTED TO GREET "THE DARK SILENCE"

Five stars of the World Film Corporation have been assigned important roles in productions and will begin work shortly under the supervision of various directors. Holbrook Blinn is working in "The Weakness of Man," while Clara Kimball Young, under the direction of Albert Capellani, is about to begin work on "The Dark Silence," a new and original play.

Muriel Ostriche, co-starring with Carlyle Blackwell, is well along in "Molly o' Pigtail Alley." Alice Brady, starting work under the direction of Harry Knoles, is beginning the first scenes of "Miss Petticoats," which will follow "Mimi," based on Murger's book, "De La Vie De Boheme," and which comes on the program June 26.

Maurice Tourneur is directing Gail Kane and House Peters in "The Velvet Paw" and Gail Kane and June Elvidge in "Reparation."

In addition to these players, Frances Nelson and June Elvidge will play opposite E. K. Lincoln. Alma Hanlon and Eleanor Woodruff are in support of Holbrook Blinn in "The Weakness of Man," and Mollie King is being starred in "Contrary Mary," with Arthur Ashley.

"Lights of New York" is Vitagraph Blue Ribbon Feature for Week of May 29; "Rich Idler" Features Mary Anderson

"THE Lights of New York" is the Vitagraph Blue Ribbon Feature for the week of May 29. Other photoplays on the list are: "The Rich Idler," "Kernel Nutt the Footman" and "The Lonelies;" one-part comedies, and "Carew and Son," a three-part Broadway Star Feature.

"The Lights of New York" is a five-part drama featuring Leah Baird. It shows how an East Side gunman works his way into the "upper ten." The crook reaps a fine harvest among the society buds, but is prevented from marrying a debutante when his true character is revealed and he is sent to jail by his half-sister, whom he had entirely forgotten. Walter McGrail plays the part of the gunman, and Adele de Garde is seen as the half-sister. Arthur Cozine and Don Cameron also appear in this photoplay, which was produced by Van Dyke Brooks.

In "The Rich Idler," Mary Anderson takes the role of the proprietor of a small notion goods store, who, when the landlord calls for rent, thinks he is looking for employment and gives him a job. Webster Campbell is also seen in this comedy. Its filming was supervised by William Wolbert.

Frank Daniels in "Kernel Nutt the Footman," is seen as one of the army of the unemployed. He finally lands a position as footman in a millionaire's home. After sampling his master's wine and finding it to his distaste, he spills a few quarts over that grouchy gentleman and is given the "grand bounce." John T. Kelly and Alice Washburn assist in the fun making. C. Jay Williams produced this comedy, which is the latest of the "Kernel Nutt" Series.

Can anyone imagine Lillian Walker being lonely? Perhaps not, but in such a condition she is seen in "The Lonelies." She despairs of ever having any friends until Evart Overton as a cub reporter becomes interested in her—than things take on a different appearance. William Shea and Edwina Robbins make up the balance of the cast. Wilfrid North directed the action of the story.

"Carew and Son" is the story of the machinations of an adventuress to obtain possession of the fortune of young Bob Carew. When she is told that he will be unable to touch the money for two years, she is surprised to find that she feels no remorse, as she has really learned to love him regardless of his wealth. Charles Kent, Mary Maurice, Walter McGrail and Belle Bruce portray the leading roles. Harry Davenport is responsible for its production.

Five Productions Will Come from Famous Players in June; "The Evil Thereof" is Morality Play by Pollock and Wolf

FOR the month of June, the Famous Players' Film Company will release five productions.

The list is as follows: "The Evil Thereof," a morality play written by Channing Pollock and Rennold Wolf, is for release on June 5. Chief in the cast is Frank Losee, whose work in many Famous Players' productions, notably in Denman Thompson's own role in "The Old Homestead," has made him a popular figure on the screen. Grace Valentine, Crauford Kent and others of equal prominence are in the cast. The story deals with the evils of money.

On June 12, Marguerite Clark will star in "Silks and Satins," a combination of comedy and drama, which opens in the present and goes back to mediaeval times. The latter portion of the play is invested with all the romantic glamour of the days of old when the rapier commonly settled all disputes.

Appearing with Louise Huff in "Destiny's Toy," which is to be released on June 15, is William Courtleigh, Jr., who has been seen recently with Marguerite Clark in "Out of the Drifts," and with Valentine Grant in "The Innocent Lie." The exteriors for this play of romance and adventure were taken on picturesque Block Island. As the locations of the settings suggest, the picture opens as a sea story. The action later moves to the city.

"Susie Snowflake," Ann Pennington's introductory vehicle, will be released on June 22. This is a comedy-drama of musical comedy life which is peculiarly suited to the diminutive star, in view of the fact that her whole theatrical career has been devoted to this branch of stage activity. Susie is a little country girl whose musical comedy success does not exactly meet with the approval of her family.

Pauline Frederick stars in "The World's Great Snare," an adaptation of the well known novel by E. Phillips Oppenheim, on June 26. This deals with the elemental life of a western mining town. Of the big scenes perhaps one of the greatest is the fight in the Montana Cabaret, in which Irving Cummings and Riley Hatch engage.

GYPSY O'BRIEN SIGNS WITH VITAGRAPH

Gypsy O'Brien, who created a reputation for herself in "Devil's Garden," a recent metropolitan production at the Harris theatre, in West Forty-second street, New York, has joined the Vitagraph Company under the direction of Wally Van.

Miss O'Brien, whose work as leading woman for Lynd-Harding, now playing in Henry the Eighth with Sir Herbert Tree, at the New Amsterdam theatre, is considered one of the most beautiful and talented of the younger American actresses.

A native of Ireland, she possesses a large amount of that charm and beauty which have made its women famous the world over.

In the "Scarlet Runner" she will have an opportunity to display her dramatic talents to the fullest extent.

In and Out of West Coast Studios

By J. C. Jessen

Los Angeles, May 20.

RICHARD STANTON, who has been with the Universal for the past nine months, and during that time produced the "Graft" serial in forty reels, and a number of other subjects, has resigned to accept the directorship of a Fox company now being organized. Production will be taken up within a few days, and it is the present intention that Mr. Stanton will direct the filming of western subjects. Previous to his connection with the Universal Mr. Stanton was for about two years actor and director for Thomas H. Ince at Inceville. Fred Granville, who has been cameraman with Stanton at Universal, will accompany him to the Fox studio.

Clifford Elfelt, who has been assistant to Director Campbell at "U" City, has been placed in charge of a company, and is filming a one reel subject entitled "Muggins," from a scenario by Harvey Gates. It is a drama pertaining to a child reuniting its parents. Gretchen Lederer is the wife, and Norbert Myles the husband.

Another addition to the "U" producing staff is George Marshall, who served for the past year as assistant to Director Jaccard. Marshall has been placed in charge of directing Harry Carey and a company of western players, and the first subject is entitled "The Bludgeon Man." A woman leaves a war ridden nation and comes to western America. Shortly after her arrival, a baby is born. Through boyhood and in young manhood, he shows a disposition to fight at all opportunities. This mania, however, is overcome when he meets the right woman.

Allen Holubar, Universal director of the eastern studios, has been transferred to "U" City, and last week took up the making of the first subject here, a one reel picture entitled "Any Youth." Director Holubar was accompanied by Dorothy Phillips who has been the star of his company in the east. "Any Youth" is of an allegorical nature which deals with the conflict between the better and baser self of the average human being. Holubar, Hector Sarno and Dorothy Phillips are the principals.

Director Robert Leonard has taken up production of an adaptation from the book by Elenor Hollowell Abbott, "Little Eve Edgarton," with Ella Hall playing the ingenue lead. Thomas Jefferson has been cast to play the part of her father, a scientist, and Robert Leonard appears as the city man who has tired of social butterflies.

A Bill of Fare of Greens from a Fair Hill of Beans

The Sinclair Lewis story, "Nature, Incorporated," has been adapted for the screen by Ben Cohn, and is now in charge of the direction of William Worthington. Herbert Rawlinson appears in the role of a dashing young real estate agent, who locates a professor who desires to establish a health reviving colony where vegetables, peanuts and beans will be the principal dishes of every bill of fare. After the colony is established, the real estate man pays it a visit, is surprised at the coarse sacks worn as clothing by the close-to-nature patients, and meets the daughter of the professor. The meeting results in the real estate man becoming a member of the colony and the professor's household. After three days at the colony following the wedding, he induces his bride to return with him to the city. Upon his return he finds cafe and club life a hollow mockery, and returns to his daily morning plunge in the ocean and his peanuts and beans. Agnes Vernon is the daughter, and William Canfield the professor.

"Uncle John's Money" is being filmed by Director George Cochran at "U" City. George Berrell is the uncle, Malcolm Blevins and Burton Law the nephews, and Margaret Ellison and Linnie Gee the wives. The scenario is by Fred Myton.

A Universal company has left for the lumber region in the vicinity of Eureka, Cal., and en route by boat, will make the exteriors for a one reel sea story by Ben Cohn which has been titled "On the High Seas." It is a story of mutiny of the crew at a time when the captain's only friand aboard, the mate, is preparing to leave the ship to return a stowaway girl to shore, following a battle with the captain to protect her. The mate returns to duty, and in the fight in which he aids the captain, the captain is killed. Albert MacQuarrie, Jack Holt and Lucille Young play the leading parts in this. Ben Cohn accompanied the players, and will write several stories around locations in the timber region. One scenario has already been prepared, the title of which is "The Wilderness Creed."

The scenario entitled "Not By Faith Alone," adapted from the Bob Wagner story of the same name, is to be made into five reels instead of two as first planned. This is under the direction of Lloyd B. Carleton. It is a story of the early mission days in southern California, and the scenes will be made on the exact locations described in the story.

A small village made up of members of a religious sect known as "The Seekers," be cause their object was to find the needy and give aid, serves as the locale of a five reel subject entitled "The Seekers," being made by Director Otis Turner and a company composed of Flora Parker DeHaven, Paul Byron, Charles Mailes and Edward Hearne. The story is by Olga Printzlau.

Fay Tincher Garbed in the Bathing Suit Worn by Her at the Venice, Cal., Carnival; Douglas Fairbanks Poses with the Fine Arts Star

Number two of the "Timothy Dobbs" series by Bess Meredyth, being produced by Wallace Beery, takes the Centerville protege to a motion picture studio, where, after many difficulties, he secures a pass and becomes an extra player. A number of scenes are destroyed when Dobbs fails to follow instructions, and finally he is thrown off the lot. Carter DeHaven is featured in this, with Robert Mylash as his valet and Vola Smith as his sweetheart.

An Undaunted Pair

"It's Liable To Happen" is a one reel comedy made by Wallace Beery while waiting for sets. The director plays one leading part, and others in the cast are Helen Leslie, Victor Potel and Gretchen Lederer. The story concerns a couple who were estranged and they each marry. One becomes the wife of a widower with seven children, and the other the husband of a widow with six. At the end of a year, both are single, and begin life as husband and wife with a very good start of thirteen.

Director Allen Curtis and his Universal Jokerites are making "She Was Some Vampire." This is a burlesque in which Gale Henry wins the hearts of many and ultimately brings upon herself her own downfall by flirting with a policeman. The usual Joker players including Milburn Moranti, Charles Conklin, William Franey, Lillian Peacock and Gale Henry appear.

An invalid, mortgage, mysterious disappearance, supposed murder, betrothal and elopement, all serve to make up the plot for "The Deacon's Demise," now being filmed by Universal Director Lynn Reynolds. This photoplay will consist of five reels and has for the principals of its cast, Myrtle Gonzalez, Val Paul, George Hernandez, Frank MacQuarrie, Fred Church, Lule Warrenton, Jack Curtis and others.

The last consignment of Nestor comedies to be made by Al. E. Christie has been turned over to the Universal Company. There are three in all, the titles of these being "What Could the Poor Girl Do," "Almost a Widow," and "Wanted — A Husband." Two were produced by Horace Davey, and one by Eddie Lyons.

Members of the Scream Club, friends, and a number of celebrities of the film colony, were guests at a western dance given by Douglas Fairbanks, at a dance hall of a decided western type located in the foothills north of Los Angeles. Approximately fifty cowboys and cowgirls and a number of Indians were present wearing costumes of the early west, and these together with a three piece orchestra gave ideal atmosphere for the occasion. One large section was devoted to the serving of refreshments which greatly added to the merriment of the evening. Indians gave their native dances, and cowboys entertained with roping and difficult lariat feats. The host was there in chapps and a sombrero. Among the guests were De Wolf Hopper, Elda Furry, William Collier, Marie Doro, Charlie Chaplin, William Farnum, John Emerson, William Hurlburt, Mary Alden, Oscar Apfel, Elliott Dexter, W. S. Hart, Dustin Farnum and Winifred Kingston.

Complete Three Fine Art Subjects

Three Fine Art Triangle plays were completed last week, two of which were of but two reels. One stars Fay Tincher and has been titled "The Two O'Clock Train." The Douglas Fairbanks subject of two reels is known at the studio under the working title of "The Detective." It is a burlesque which deals with the secret service detective who exposes a gang of Japanese smugglers. DeWolf Hopper for the last time had on the make-up of Casey for the film version of "Casey at the Bat."

Fairbanks has been cast to play the star part in the film version of the Bret Harte story "In the Carquinez Woods," and he with a large number of other players are now in the Sequoia Park district making exteriors for this subject. Alan Dwan is in charge of the direction. The players went by automobile to Calaveras County, four hundred miles north of Los Angeles, in central California, where they will find most of the locations needed. In traveling in this section they will all go by mountain burros, the roads being too narrow for automobile or wagon travel. Supporting Fairbanks in this are Jewel Carmen, Sam de Grasse, Alma Ruben, George Beranger, Frank Brownles, Art Rosson, Tom Wilson, together with twenty-five cowboys and Indians.

The southern story starring Lillian Gish as the daughter of a strict southern gentleman, has been titled "An Innocent Magdeline," and is now ready for release. Spottiswoode Aitken plays the leading character part, and others in important roles are Sam de Grasse, Mary Alden and Jennie Lee. The scenario for this was by Merton Merrill Burtin.

A third two reel subject has been taken up at the Fine Arts studio in which Fay Tincher is starred. It is a farce comedy wherein a father sends his daughter to a girls' boarding school to break up a case she has with a certain youth, and to prevent her from eloping. The sweetheart arranges for an elopement, and it is carried out when cupid picks the lock on the door of happiness. Supporting Miss Tincher in this will be her new style bathing costume of black and white, Harry Fisher, Kate Toncray, Max Davidson and others.

The "mystery" Fine Art film made several weeks ago with Mae Marsh, Wilfred Lucas and Bobbie Harron in the principal parts, has been titled "The Wild Girl of the Sierras." The scenario for this subject is by Anita Loos. Miss Marsh and Harron are now working on an Irish story laid in Wexford County, Ireland. The plot of this unnamed play is said to depend more on characterization than on complications. The "heavy" lures the peasant girl away with a promise to marry. She is rescued by her peasant sweetheart following a thrilling hand to hand fight between Harron, as the sweetheart, and James O'Shea, as the heavy. Paul Powell is directing this subject.

Director William Christy Cabanne is now at work with the filming of a symbolic drama. Much action takes place in the garden of life where all is in bloom in youth. Temptation overpowers the couple, and the flowers of the garden gradually fade and die. William E. Lawrence, who has played juvenile parts in many productions from the Fine Arts studio, and has been with the organization since its inception, plays the lead opposite Lillian Gish. Spottiswoode Aitken is the grandfather who attempts to keep the young people from falling into the power of temptation. The story was written by Granville Warwick.

Arrangements have been made with the school authorities for the making of scenes at Sunland school. Twenty children in addition to the Fine Arts juveniles will take part in this, and the scenes will be used for the Fine Arts subject "The Schoolma'am" which features Dorothy Gish in the name part. The principals in this photoplay besides the children are Elmer Clifton, Jack Brammall, George Pierce, Hal Wilson, Josephine Crowell, Alberta Lee, Millard Webb and Glen Williams.

Signal Company Off for Honolulu

The Signal Film Company's producing organization left Los Angeles on Monday evening, May 15, for San Francisco, where on the following Wednesday they embarked for Honolulu for a trip of about four weeks. A week prior to the departure, Director J. P. McGowan took up the filming of a five reel story entitled "The Diamond Runners," which was written by himself from first hand knowledge of life in the Kimberley region of South Africa, where he spent several years. Helen Holmes appears in the stellar role, with Leo D. Maloney opposite. Others in the part who will take part in the production are Paul C. Hurst, Thomas D. Lingham, William Brunton, J. E. Perkins and Chance E. Ward.

The company worked on scenes for this up until the last hour of sunlight prior to their departure, and also made a number of scenes in San Francisco. During their absence from the Pasadena Avenue studio, a number of sets will be constructed for the filming of "Judith of the Cumberlands." One particularly large set will represent a street in a southern town. This includes a court house about which much of the action of the story centers.

President Samuel S. Hutchinson of the American Film Company, arrived in Los Angeles the latter part of the past week from the east, and spent several days at the studios of the Signal, Vogue and Chaplin companies, while on his way to Santa Barbara, where he will remain several weeks. Upon his arrival, special private showing of the ten reels of "Whispering Smith" and "Medicine Bend" was arranged, and he witnessed the projection of this at the Signal studio. Later he saw the first print of the second Chaplin comedy "The Fireman," which an hour or two later was shipped to the factories with the negative.

The making of a three reel Selig picture entitled "The Preacher," was begun last week by Director Robert Daly. The title part is taken by Charles West, late Biograph player, who was specially engaged for this role.

Vernon Snively, son of Chief of Police Snively of Los Angeles, and late of Universal Company, has been engaged as assistant director for the T. H. Heffron Selig Company.

The E. & R. chimps, Napoleon and Sally, are again working in a one reel comedy, which has been given the working title of "The Sailor's Mascot." In this, Charles Carter, as a sailor, returns from the African tropics with the two chimps as pets. He wooes the daughter of the man who lives next door, and is kicked out, whereupon he turns loose the chimps. They find the girl's father in a wheel chair propelled by a burro. The chimps never did love burros, and they administer a beating so strenuous, that the motive power of the wheel chair runs away. The blame for this is fixed by the father on the favorite suitor for the girl's hand, and the sailor wins by catching and stopping the burro and saving the old man's life. Lillian Brown Leighton appears in the part of the girl's mother, and the direction is by J. J. Franz. Preparations are now being made for the making of an E. & R. subject in which a majority of the trained animals of the zoo will take part.

A Wright Story for Clune

Production Manager Lloyd Brown, and Director Donald Crisp of the Clune Film Producing Company, are now with Harold Bell Wright, the author, at his ranch on the border south of Tucson, Ariz., where they are preparing the scenario from Wright's story "The Eyes of the World," which is to be filmed next by the Clune Company. They will also select locations for a number of the exterior scenes for this photoplay. The two men expect to have a complete scenario before they return to Los Angeles.

Juanita Hansen in a Scene from "The Secret of the Submarine," the New American Serial

The Kalem Glendale studio players are making the final scenes for "The Music Swindlers," fourteenth episode of the "Social Pirates" serial, and during the coming week will make the fifteenth and last episode, which has been titled "Black Magic." With the completion of this, filming of another serial will be taken up by Director James Horne and the company. Particulars concerning this have been withheld for the present, but scenes about the studio indicate that extensive preparations are being made which will add materially to the new release. Special sets and many novelties will be introduced. "The Music Swindlers" gave the players opportunity to display their hidden musical talents, as there were a number of singing and musical numbers, taken part in by Marin Sais, R. E. Bradbury and Frank Jonasson, also ballroom and fancy dancing introduced by Olive Kirkby with Frank Jonasson as her partner.

Marjorie Wilson (Triangle)

The Kalem Company has a thrilling comedy completed which was produced by Harry Edwards. The story pertains to the constant rise of the price of gasoline, and the misfortune which befalls every car that Ham buys, each one being blown up by some mysterious explosion effected by revengeful Bud, because of the attention shown to Norma Nichols, his sweetheart. The comedy ends with a machine occupied by three dashing off a hundred foot embankment into the ocean. The three players in the comedy are said to have occupied the car when it made the dive.

Railroad officials last week prohibited employes in charge of a train leased by the Kalem "Hazards of Helen" company, from carrying out the orders of the producing organization, because they felt the stunt being staged too hazardous. One attempt was made by Helen Gibson to climb across a rod from a car on one track to a car on another while the trains were in motion. This being prohibited, a scene in which Miss Gibson leaped from one car to another was substituted. No title has been given this subject, which will be released as one of the "Hazards of Helen."

Aviator Runs Into Wire

In attempting to make a scene for the current "Hazards of Helen" subject, to be known under the title "The Spirit of the Rail," Aviator Christofferson, who was carrying Helen Holmes so that she might drop from the aeroplane to a moving freight train, ran so close to the train that he could not escape colliding with a wire stretched from one telephone pole to another on the opposite side of the track. The machine was badly wrecked. The actress dropped from the aeroplane. but as it had not gained the right position over the train, she alighted in the sand along the track and was not injured. The damage of the aeroplane made it impossible for a re-take, and additional scenes will be taken so that the action photographed may be used.

Another Kalem Comedy company is filming a woman police story. This tells of Ethel Teare's refusal of John, who joins a bachelor's club, which requires making a vow to ignore the weaker sex. Ethel joins the police force, and is detailed to arrest all men who flirt with her. The arrested ones are practically all members of the bachelors' club, her last victim being her former lover. Others in this are Victor Rottman, Jack McDermott and Gus Leonard. The uniform worn by Miss Teare and the beribboned gun she carries will be features of this picture. The direction is Harry Millard.

A visit to a Los Angeles employment agency to secure types for a one reel comedy known under the working title of "Ham's New Job," caused a Kalem comedian to be booked for labor on a moving van at two dollars per day. The manager of the department judging from Lloyd Hamilton's make-up assigned him to the first job open. Hamilton then explained his mission to the place.

A mention of the word versatility to any Vitagraph player will immediately bring out the story that Corrine Griffith worked in three different subjects for three different directors within an hour. She made a new scene for one, a retake for another, and then played the remainder of the afternoon in the Blue Ribbon feature "Through the Wall," for Director Roland S. Sturgeon. Each part required a different costume and make-up, the first being a costume comedy, the second a shop girl lead, and the last a gay young widow of the vampire type.

A Gasoline Tragedy

Gasoline plays an important part in a comedy being made at the L-Ko studio by Director Craig Hutchinson, as it is a fireman's story, and the members of the tank town department make the mistake of attaching the hose to a spigot from a gasoline tank instead of a hydrant. The fire occasioned by burning down a specially constructed building, afforded some very realistic scenes, and endangered practically every member of the company. Billy Anderson and Jean Rogers play the important parts.

M. Morris, business manager of the William Fox studios, and their west coast auditor for the Fox Company, is making a tour over the territory, and is now at Seattle.

The first subject of the B. & L. Company, with studios at San Mateo, Cal., has been completed and titled "The Strangest Man in the World." Scenes are laid in the city and also a western country. The leads in this are taken by Neva Gerber and Ed Cecil. The direction was in charge of Ben Rothwell, late of the Universal.

Rehearsals have been started at the Lasky studio for filming of "The Storm," with Marie Doro as star. This will be made under the direction of William C. deMille. The photoplay was especially wirtten for Miss Doro.

Another new picture will be started the first of the coming week by Director Frank Reicher, in which Blanche Sweet will play the star part. No name has been selected for this.

Director George H. Melford's desire for securing realistic effects for Lasky subjects, caused Wallace Reid several moments of worry this week which the actor thought were hours. A scene was being made in quarries near the city, and it was Reid's duty to jump and get out of the way of gravel dropped by a steam shovel. He stumbled, and the entire load fell upon him. Reid proved to be a human mole, and shortly had dug himself out. Pictures of his strenuous work were made by the cameraman, Percy Hilburn, which were shown at the studio for the members of the organization.

Wyckoff Perfects Film Polishing Device

George Foster Platt, Lasky scenario editor, who was injured in an automobile accident last week in which two others lost their lives, has sufficiently recovered to resume his work at the studio.

Alvin Wyckoff, director of photography at the Lasky studio, has perfected a new film polishing device which does away with any strain on the sprocket holes of the film, and at the same time polishes the film as thoroughly as any method now used. Application for letters of patent on the new device has been made, and already four machines are being built for use at the Lasky studios. It is very probable the Lasky Company will finance the manufacture of these machines. Mr. Wyckoff is responsible for a number of devices which have aided in the betterment of photography for Lasky subjects, and the company has furnished him with a completely equipped experimental laboratory.

A number of the Horsley studio animals last week worked in pictures for the last time for many months, when they took part in scenes for the two reel Centaur drama, "The Star of India," produced by Director Charles Swickard. The scenario is by Francis Doughty. The title refers to a large diamond discovered about two hundred years ago, and which was stolen recently. The locale of the photoplay is Europe and East India and the plot pertaining to the theft and recovery of the gem, is an oriental mystery. William Clifford and Margaret Gibson with Fred Montague and A. D. Blake make up the principals for this cast.

The David Horsley Cub Comedy Company is filming "Jerry's Elopement" with the usual cast.

Photoplayers' Day at San Diego Exposition Draws Crowds from All Parts of the State

Special to Motion Picture News.

San Diego, Cal., May 15.

Photoplayers' Day at the Panama-California International Exposition is now a thing of the past but the memories of it will linger long with the motion picture people.

Many of the visitors arrived by train and automobile from the north, and in the evening the Cristobal Cafe at the exposition was the scene of a ball. The dance program contained numbers named for different prominent actors and directors, such as a Bosworth one-step, Myrtle Stedman waltz, Ruth Roland fox-trot, Tom Mix gálop and the like, while others were named for companies, such as the Universal slow drag, Morosco one-step, N. Y. M. P. elephant's prance, Balboa glide, Lubin gavotte and Lasky one-step. In recognition of the military people in the boxes, there was an army and navy trot.

One of the most prominent of the boxes which had been arranged for the evening had above it in large letters the word Lubin, and in this sat Capt. Wilbert Melville and his companies from the Coronado studio. Hobart Bosworth, who was director-general of the occasion, also had a box. With him sat Robert Z. Leonard and Ella Hall. J. Warren Kerrigan sat in a box with Kenneth Croft and friends. Mr. Croft is manager of the Cristobal Cafe, as well as of the Hawaiian village on the Isthmus, the amusement section of the exposition. Ruth Roland, Victoria Forde, Eugenie Forde, Cleo Madison and others well known on the screen were seen in other boxes.

President G. Aubrey Davidson and other officials of the exposition were among the guests of the evening. John D. Spreckels, one of the millionaires of the coast, had a party of friends in a prominent place in the ball-room.

There was a large attendance on Photoplayers' Day. At the big music pavilion one of the features of the day was the singing by Ruth Roland and Myrtle Stedman, both of whom received vociferous applause, winning even a stronger hold upon the affections of their many friends who have seen them on the screen. They were introduced by Robert Leonard, the Universal Star.

On the wide veranda of the United States government building the stage force from the Lubin studio had placed four sets, and here the immense crowd which gathered on the Plaza de Panama had the interesting experience of watching the filming of four different scenes, just as made in the studio. In the first, a dining-room scene in which a husband is surprised by his wife as he is in the act of kissing the maid, Miss Hall, Myrtle Gonzales and J. Barney Sherry participated, with Robert Leonard directing.

In the second scene, set as a drawing-room, Henry King directed as well as acted, with Ruth Roland and Miss Wilson. A stockbroker's office, with Hobart Bosworth as the broker and Robert Leonard as a client, formed the third scene. A comedy scene was the fourth, with a kitchen as the set, and in this Tom Mix and Virginia Forde furnished the fun.

Following these Mr. Bosworth and Miss Stedman gave an excellent reproduction of a love scene, with the shrubbery and the pillars of the building as a background. The length of this scene, with a fade-out, caused some of the young men in the crowd to vow that, if there was much of that sort in the work, they would immediately take up the profession of acting before the camera.

Capt. Wilbert Melville, manager of the Lubin studio at Coronado, entertained a party of photoplayers from Los Angeles on board his private yacht Sunday on a cruise to La Jolla.

Catherine Marie Eppinger, secretary and treasurer of the American Motion Picture Company, is a visitor in the city, having recently returned from an extended trip through Ireland.

FANNIE WARD IS GUEST OF THEATRE CLUB IN NEW YORK

Fannie Ward, the Lasky star, who has been spending a few weeks' vacation in New York, after seven months of constant acting before the camera in Hollywood, was the guest of honor of the Theatre Club of New York, an exclusive society organization, at its meeting May 16 in the Hotel Astor ballroom.

JUST TO MAKE TALK

By LONGACRE

WHEN a great metropolitan newspaper—great in the sense of capital and resources—establishes a flat rate of $35 a week as the salary of its copy-readers and headline writers, it is fair to assume that it wants $35-a-week men in these important positions. It is also fair to assume that it will get them, and that only occasionally will it get anything better. Very little in the way of good taste is to be expected from either editors or men around a desk where such a standard prevails. Therefore, the headline: "Tobacco, Drugs and 'Movies' all Under One Roof," appearing in a New York newspaper last week, could not have been much of a surprise to the readers of the paper in question. Neither reader nor copy-editor is expected to delve very far into the story, and thus by inference, a deliberate slur is cast on the picture industry. If, in spite of the head-line writer, the reader should peruse the whole, he will find that the $35 man has himself read merely enough of it to get material for his sparkling "head," which is about as far as the mind of this price goes.

In this same building, occupied entirely by the newspaper in question, we know a man, who for the sake of a ten cent piece, has been served with the vilest whisky to be found east of Bucyrus, Ohio. In the same room he has been allowed to spend $2.65 a week on a gambling pool, which was operated systematically, with elaborate paraphrenalia for years. It now occurs to us that he might have made a great "hit" with the brain trust of the concern by writing a headline something like: "Bulletins, Booze and Bridge in Same Building." And again, he might not have been appreciated.

Between the office of the newspaper mentioned and our own, we know of six theatres, none of them devoted to motion pictures, which house either drug-stores, cigar-stores or barrooms under the same roof. Yet the writer of snappy head-lines has never seen fit to cast inferential odium upon the drama on that account. It is true that tobacco is sold in the Rialto theatre building; that drugs are sold in the Knickerbocker theatre building; that liquor is sold in the Strand theatre building, but so were they in the Casino, Knickerbocker—yes and in the sacred Empire long before celluloid was ever run through a camera. We blush for the depravity wrought by the "movies." We are forced to confess that cigars are on sale even in the very building where these lines are written.

The real reason J. K. Burger, head of the International Film Service exchanges, is affectionately referred to as "Simon Legree Burger" is just this:

Last week Mr. Burger received a long and laudatory telegram from one of his exchangemen, ending with the statement: "I look upon you as the Simon Legree of the exchange business." Well pleased, Mr. Burger showed the telegram to E. A. McManus. "Very good," said the latter, "but do you know who Simon Legree was?" Mr. Burger said he had been too busy selling the "Mysteries of Myra" to keep abreast of Civil War literature, but he was sure it was something nice. So Mr. McManus told him. Mr. Burger changed his views on the telegram, and wrote to its author to that effect—in fact, the reply was so sharp that the exchangeman instinctively reached for his hat and coat as he read it. Then it developed that he, too, had neglected his literature, and was of the opinion that Simon Legree was one of the twelve apostles. He lost no time in looking it up, and the next time the messenger dropped in to Mr. Burger's office he delivered a long and sincere apology.

A certain important film concern, whose offices are located in the district between the Battery and Harlem, takes an inordinate interest in all modern "efficiency" methods. When a dreamy looking man wandered into the office, obtained an interview with the boss, and gave him some figures on the miles wasted by the stenographers in walking from their desks, etc., he was well received and given a job putting things on a more efficient basis. Two days later a brisk individual walked into the same offices.

"Is Mr. Brown working here?" he demanded.

"Yes," said the Boss; "he's been here for the last two days, and has given us several brand new ideas. Want to see him?"

"I would," replied the visitor. "I'm the head keeper at the Islip Insane Hospital. Brown escaped three days ago, and we've just traced him here."

Harold Lloyd, the "Lonesome Luke," of the Rolin comedies, released through Pathe, is credited with one of the best stories of the season. We have delayed printing it for several weeks because we have been telling it with such good effect ourselves. Harold, it seems, became annoyed at the start-at-the-bottom stuff handed out by successful men, and evolved a little anec-

The Bayside Bugle

"Bigger, Busier, Brighter Bell Ave." Bayside, L. I., June 3, 1916.

EDITORIAL

We think it is a shame more directors do not take note of the beautiful scenery around Bayside and on Little Neck Bay, as scenes for producing their pictures. To be sure, many pictures have been taken here, such as "The Battle Cry of Peace," by Comm. Blackton, and "Body and Soul," by Geo. Irving, and many others, but we hold this section does not get the attention it deserves. With nature so bountiful in her gifts to this region, including beautiful hills and valleys, mansions and Yacht club and Bay, not to mention Fort Totten, and the glimpse of the sound, with Great Neck beyond, and all inside the city limits of New York, it should prove a popular spot and of great benefit to producers, in our opinion. "Come one, come all," is the Bayside spirit, and the BUGLE will be on hand to welcome them.

dote illustrating the value of perseverance.

"Perseverance is a great thing," he said to Pop Parsons. "Why, ten years ago I knew a man who didn't have a nickel; nor did he have any talent or ability for earning money. But he believed in persevering; he said he would persevere until he made his pile. So he started in to collect old bones. Soon he found there were more bones to be gathered than he could carry in his hands, so he went to a grocer, told his story and got a market basket on credit. That was ten years ago. What do you think that man is worth today?"

"Millions, I suppose," ventured Parsons.

"No, not exactly," replied Harold. "He still owes for the basket."

The time has been when even we, with all our debonair esprit fell for these tales of highly-fabled salary; how actorettes and actorines were fed on multi-thousand beans, collected from the orchestra and the gallery. But now we count our wage and laugh, while offering this photograph (which, like our own emolument, is funny), because we note that little Doug indulges in a "bunny-hug" on nothing more than artificial money. If you will take the time to trace the words on bills about his face (which now, as it has ever been, is sunny) you'll note that Doug is just as gay as if he didn't draw his pay in greenbacks plainly reading "real stage money."

A casual glance at the latest issue of the Pictures Magazine, gives the impression that it has arranged for a "great series" of stories based upon the lives of noted actresses. From the first thirty-seven lines of the first column of the first page, we cull this:

"In just two issues from now we will begin the greatest series of stories ever presented to the public. We refer to the life series written exclusively for the Pictures Magazine by Viola Dana * * * May Allison's great series of stories from life are in preparation * * * Mme. Petrova's own story, written by herself and filled with the wonderful experiences of this wonderful woman, is to be published in forthcoming issues," etc.

Brady Offers Big Money Prizes for Scenario Material

In June 1st Saturday Evening Post, Producer Will Institute Contest for Public—First Award is $1,000, Second, $750, Third, $650, Fourth, $500, and Fifth, $400

WHAT should prove to be a far-reaching scenario contest will begin in the Saturday Evening Post, June 3, under the direction of the World Film Corporation with the sole judge represented in the person of William A. Brady.

Mr. Brady, who instituted the contest and who will devote his personal attention to every scenario or story submitted, will give, to the writer of the best story or scenario, $1,000.

In addition to the capital prize there will be nineteen other cash awards. The first prize of the one thousand dollars will go to the winner, of course, with those fortunate enough to write material sufficiently interesting, awards will be made in the following manner:

Second prize, $750; third prize, $650; fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh prizes will be $500, $400, $300 and $200, respectively, with prizes of $100 each to the next twelve best stories or scenarios accepted by Mr. Brady.

The first announcement runs in a full page statement in the Saturday Evening Post on June 3. It is an expression by William A. Brady of the fact that in his opinion the stories and scenarios submitted and actually visualized during the past several years, have been in the majority thrash. He wants live, present day, society and human interest stories and that almost everyone has had incidents and experiences in life which, if elaborated upon and built up into a plot or series of plots, would make interesting screen material.

With its vast circulation, its great home influence and the great diversity of readers, Mr. Brady confidently hopes to receive fifty thousand scenarios or stories.

The five thousand dollars in prizes has been deposited in the Mutual Bank of New York, there to remain until the final judgments and awards are made.

Six secretaries will handle the incoming scripts. They will be divided into four classes, the logical, illogical, impossible and probable, and will be turned over to Mr. Brady when the absolutely impossible have been eliminated.

The contest will close with the issue of the Saturday Evening Post dated September 15 and the awards made as soon after that as the material can be read.

The contest is open to writers of all kinds, professional, amateur and those who can only jot down their series of incidents. The scenarios do not have to be in regular form, so long as they form a basis for the picturizing of the story.

As the stories are for the World Film stars such as Robert Warwick, Alice Brady, Kitty Gordon, Ethel Clayton, Carlyle Blackwell, Muriel Ostriche, E. K. Lincoln, June Elvidge, Holbrook Blinn, Doris Kenyon, Alec Francis, House Peters, Mollie King and Arthur Ashley, Mr. Brady is suggesting in his first announcement that aspirants for the prize go see the World stars and then write their stories to fit the players' personalities, which makes good sales talks and an exhibitors' help.

MR. WOOLWORTH, WHO MADE BIG FORTUNE SELLING MANY LITTLE THINGS, VISITS "U" CITY

One of the most interested of visitors at Universal City in the last week was F. W. Woolworth, the well known merchant prince and owner of the New York skyscraper which bears his name.

It was the first time he had ever visited a motion picture studio and he declared it was one of the most interesting of his many experiences in all parts of the world.

The New Yorker went over many of the big stages, met directors and performers, posed for a photograph and even enjoyed taking part in one of the big scenes of a photoplay.

With Woolworth were Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Allbright and Miss W. Salter, of New York, and Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Rand, Jr., of San Francisco.

E Richard Schayer, the man who was handed $50 by the Detroit Ball Committee, to pay for the meals of the New York delegation on the way home, and Harry Reichenbach, the man who saw to it that none of the fifty was left—even to the point of ordering champagne, returned from Detroit last Wednesday. With Mr. Reichenbach on the special train were Lewis J. Selznick, and others.

We have a little spike just abaft the starboard side of our desk, consecrated to a collection of the stories of the dog which should have bitten the soldier with his tail as an indication of the fact that he wanted the butt instead of the muzzle of the rifle used on him. We collected three last week.

"The condition of the film industry," said Arthur James, opening a fresh box of Richmond straight cuts (advt.), "is well indicated by the number of persons now running around in circles and crying 'bloody merger.'"

IN AND OUT OF TOWN

Among the prominent visitors to New York from out of town during the last week were:

John Greenbaum, Alhambra theatre, Cleveland.

E. Beatty, Cameraphone theatre, Pittsburgh.

Harry Garson, Broadway Strand theatre, Detroit.

Joseph Grossman, Standard theatre, David Adler, Strand theatre, Cleveland.

Thomas H. Ince, Kay-Bee Studios, Los Angeles.

Fulton Brylawski, Washington, D. C.

Cecil B. DeMille, Lasky Studios, Los Angeles.

Johnny Ray, Ray studios, Cleveland.

Lee Moran, Universal City, Los Angeles.

Eddie Lyons, Universal City, Los Angeles.

THE EASTERN STUDIOS

ELIZABETH LE ROY, who plays the part of Mrs. Gallagher in the new Metro-Columbia production, "Notorious Gallagher," has had an interesting career of twenty-two years on the stage. In the early days she traveled over much of the West and Southwest by stagecoach, crossing the Mojave Desert and going to the very tip of Lower California.

No longer than two years ago, Miss Le Roy played the part of a child twelve years old, in a stock company in Oklahoma City. She is able to make up for any age from ten to one hundred, but she greatly prefers the extreme age limit, and Lovisa in "Thelma," was her favorite part when on the speaking stage.

Harry O. Hoyt, chief of scenario writers at the Metro-Rolfe studio, has added another mark to his versatility record by his apearance before the camera in the role of the Warden at Sing Sing in "Notorious Gallagher." William Nigh, the director and author of the production, and Marguerite Snow, are starred in this five part feature.

Lawrence McCloskey has sold to the Universal, through the Amalgamated Photoplay Service, Inc., his latest feature scenario, called "Souls in Darkness," which is to be filmed on the West coast. McCloskey was formerly scenario editor with the Lubin Company, is devoting his time to free-lancing. His two latest releases are "Pawn of Fate" and "Pasquale," both of which he wrote in collaboration with George Beban.

Francis J. Grandin, the well-known director, who recently completed "The Soul Market" and "Playing With Fire," with Mme. Olga Petrova, for Popular Plays and Players, is to go with the Universal Film Manufacturing Company. Negotiations were arranged through the Amalgamated Photoplay Service, Inc., No. 220 West 42nd Street, New York. Mr. Grandin will direct Violet Mersereau in Bluebird Features for Universal. Previous to his engagement with Popular Plays and Players, Mr. Grandin was with D. W. Griffith at the Fine Arts Triangle Film Company.

Sara Alexander Joins Fox

Sara Alexander, who is now past eighty years of age, has joined the Fox forces and will shortly be seen in her first photoplay. Miss Alexander was a protege of President Brigham Young of the Mormon Church and was the leading lady of the Salt Lake City Stock Company, which he owned, in the early sixties. The story of her life is almost a history of the American stage.

In the new feature film in which Madame Bertha Kalich is appearing for William Fox this star has been surrounded by a cast of well known players. Her leading man is Kenneth Hunter and among the other players are William H. Tooker, the lively Kittens Reichert, W. W. Black, Barrett-Greenwood, Frank de Camp, Fay Tunis and May Price.

Virginia Pearson, Fuller Melish, Stuart Holmes and other members of Miss Pearson's company are now in Savannah making portions of a William Fox picture. Among other things they will do will be to act in the church where John Wesley preached his first sermon in America and also in the house from which were released the first English sparrows ever set at liberty in the United States.

The entire ground floor of the Hotel Astor in New York was used last Sunday as a motion picture studio and several important scenes for Thomas W. Lawson's "Friday the 13th" were staged there.

Lawson's story is one based on finance and Wall Street. Post and Flagg, whose brokerage offices occupy the entire south wing of the hotel, turned the offices over to World Film and had their staff of clerks and assistants report for work just as on a business day, thus Director Chautard of World Film was enabled to get a faithful representation of a Wall Street institution.

In addition to Robert Warwick, who is starring in the picture, the other principals and three hundred extra people took part. The scenes were staged at seven o'clock in the morning and work continued right on until noon. Hundreds of curious passers-by stopped to watch operations and without knowing it became part of the crowd supposedly gathered outside the broker's office.

Mr. Warwick, Director Chautard, the other principals and the producing staff, under the direction of William A. Brady, made a record job of wiring the office and lighting the various entrances and removing the installation before the day's business began. The Astor management was willing and anxious to co-operate and did so, even lending a helping hand in the wiring and other arrangements.

Two New Essanay Features

Two more Essanay feature productions, one presenting Henry B. Walthall and the other Edna Mayo, which will be released on the V-L-S-E program, have been announced by George K. Spoor, president of Essanay.

"The Little Musketeer" was written by Charles Mortimer Peck especially for Mr. Walthall. It is in five acts. Mr. Walthall, who is making a short visit to his home in Birmingham, Ala., will return to the Essanay studios in a few days and take up work on this new feature.

This is a story of Southern chivalry and romance during the reconstruction period,

From the Essanay Studios: "Putting It Over," William Gillette in "Sherlock Holmes," and a Scene from "Police," with Charles Chaplin

although it does not touch on any phase of the North and South controversy of that time. It also carries a crime mystery which nearly wrecks several lives.

"The Return of Eve," also in five acts, is the vehicle in which Miss Mayo will next appear in feature productions. It was written by Lee Wilson Dodd, and adapted by H. S. Sheldon.

It is the story of the Garden of Eden brought down to date. A boy and girl brought up on a desert island, finally taste civilized life. It disgusts them, but when they go back to their island they find that they have eaten of the fruit of the tree of knowledge and their Eden is an Eden no longer. They are barred as effectually as were Adam and Eve by the flaming sword.

Essanay's short reel releases, which it is producing with as much care as it does its features, have been booked through July and are just announced by Mr. Spoor.

Among the two reelers is a fable by George Ade, that of the Fearsome Feud Between the First Families. This is the first of Mr. Ade's fables to be released in two reels. The one reel releases for the month consist of a Canimated Nooz Pictorial, cartoons on events of the day by Wallace A. Carlson, Vernon Howe Bailey's Sketch Book of New Orleans and two of Ade's fables.

The three reel releases consist of "The Regeneration of Margaret," presenting Warda Howard and John Junior; "Power," featuring Sydney Ainsworth and Nell Craig; "Secret of the Night," featuring Sydney Ainsworth, Lillian Drew and John Lorenz, and "The Grouch," presenting Harry Beaumont, Harry Dunkinson, John Cossar.

Lillian Drew, with whom picture patrons are most acquainted in heavy leads, has another such part in "Secret of the Night." Her last picture was a comedy drama, "A Return to Youth—And Trouble," and she demonstrated her versatility by packing it full of laughs. Sydney Ainsworth and John Lorenz also appear in the new piece.

Edith Storey and Antonio Moreno will soon be seen in a five-part Mexican story. Miss Storey plays the part of a dancer and Mr. Moreno that of a Mexican gentleman, her lover. Besides producing the picture, George D. Baker, also conceived the plot. Mr. Baker selected an all-star cast to support the Vitagraph pair.

Frank Daniels Working in a Comedy

Frank Daniels, the Vitagraph comedian, is working under the direction of C. Jay Williams in a one-part comedy which comes from the pen of Mark Swan.

Marc McDermott, now a recognized Vitagrapher, is busily engaged on his first picture to be released by the Vitagraph Company. It is a five part dramatic story by Louis Joseph Vance and is being filmed by Director William Humphrey as a Blue Ribbon feature. Naomi Childers, Robert Whitworth and Josephine Earle play important characters in its enactment.

Hughey Mack, Vitagraph's heavyweight comedian is now appearing in "The Battler," a one-part comedy by Lawrence Semon and C. Graham Baker. Hughey, as a boxer, introduces something entirely new in the "squared circle," when he uses gas bombs in his line of defense. Lawrence Semon, besides being co-author also directed the action of the story.

Harry T. Morey, who supported Edna May in "Salvation Joan," is now working in a three-part Broadway Star Feature. Eugene Mullin, author of many Vitagraph successes, is supervising the filming of the story.

Earle Williams is still having numerous experiences in the C. N. and A. M.

Alice Hollister (Kalem)

Williamson story which Wally Van has well under way. It will be released in fifteen episodes, one episode a week.

No more striking instance of the remarkable growth and development of the art of photoplay construction could be found than in the setting—over one hundred feet in depth—which has just been erected in the Famous Players studio for a few scenes in "Silks and Satins," in which Marguerite Clark is to star.

The scene represents the great hall of a mediaeval castle and has at the far end a massive stairway which sweeps across three sides of the hall. The whole is a representation of gray stone and so massively constructed, that several persons promenade down the stairway from the gallery without causing the least vibration anywhere in the scene.

Turning Back the Clock

The wisdom of the popular European pastime of advancing the clock one hour in order to take advantage of the earlier dawn in the summer months, has been appreciated by the Famous Players Film Company to such an extent that the stars at the company's studio are being called earlier than heretofore when the day's schedule includes outdoor photography.

Without good clear sunshine the motion picture producer is helpless when working at "exterior" scenes. Of course he seldom uses natural light in the studio, preferring to rely upon the mathematical certainty of the perfectly regulated artificial light rather than to run the risk of having to re-photograph a large percentage of his scenes because of variations in the light.

Al this may be very interesting from a scientific standpoint, but, as Marguerite Clark remarked when she learned of the advanced hours, "It does not in the least restore my lost hour of sleep and that final sixty minutes is all that really counts in the whole night's rest."

Police Cannot Act as Censors Is Ruling of Judge in "Damaged Goods" Case; Exhibition of Picture Is Allowed

UPON the presentation of affidavits declaring that Chief of Police Michael Long has expressed himself as opposed to the performance in Newark, N. J., of the picture dramatization of Eugene Brieux's play, "Damaged Goods," and threatened to prevent its being shown there, on the grounds that it is objectionable morally, Vice Chancellor Howell has issued an order restraining the police from interfering with the presentation of the picture. The exhibition of the picture has been set for next week at the Orpheum theatre.

The vice chancellor expressed himself strongly in granting the order, going so far as to say that the police have no right or authority to interfere with dramatic productions, but may bring an alleged objectionable production before the grand jury in due order. He declared that an indictment and trial was first necessary to determine whether an exhibition was of an illegal nature.

This is the third time efforts of the Newark police to prevent or stop the production of theatrical performances have been interfered with by the courts. It is however the first time the issue has turned upon a purely moral question. In the case of "The Birth of a Nation," the only other instance in which an order restraining intereference in advance of production has been issued in that city, the position of the court was taken upon the allegation of the police that the film would lead to riot and disorder. It was asserted by the police that disorder would follow the presentation of the film and the court in issuing the restraining order declared that such an assumption could not hold, but the police must wait the actual outbreak of disorder, following production, before they could take action.

The other instance of court restraint upon the police assumption of censorial powers over public entertainment in Newark, was that which occurred a few weeks ago, when Chief Long's prohibition of the performance of "Marie Odile," at the Newark Theatre was overruled, the objection having had rather a religious than a moral issue.

The application for the order was made by Arthur F. Egner, of McCarter & English, in behalf of Emanuel Schiller, of Bayonne. It was represented that Mr. Schiller had rented the Orpheum theatre for a week at a cost of $350, with the privilege of renewal for two weeks more, for the purpose of producing the picturized Brieux play there. The vice chancellor expressed surprise when informed by Mr. Egner that Chief Long had put his official veto upon the production. He said:

"He has no authority whatever in the premises—not even a semblance of authority. Suppose the play is immoral, the chief can't stop it in advance. The producer has the right to have the matter go before a grand jury and after indictment to trial by a petit jury. The right of censorship is not vested in the chief of police."

SMOKING LAW INTERPRETED MORE LIBERALLY IN NEW YORK

An employee of the Renfax Film Company, 110 West Fortieth street, New York, who was arrested for smoking in the hallway of the building, was adjudged not guilty at a hearing before Magistrate Appleton last week. The defense was conducted by DeWitt Fax, vice president and counsel of the company.

Magistrate Appleton upheld Mr. Fax's contention that, under the provision of Chapter 10, Section 8, of the Code of Ordinances, smoking is permitted in the offices, halls and every other part of a building separated by a self-closing door from rooms in which films are kept.

CENSOR ORDINANCE IN ST. LOUIS DEFEATED

At a meeting of the Board of Aldermen in St. Louis last week, a censorship bill was brought up again for consideration, and Alderman Barney Schwartz talked with eloquence and conviction upon the uselessness and futility of local censors. Several exchange managers and others interested in the film business helped to convince the law makers that St. Louis does not need motion picture censorship, and the bill was defeated.

PROPOSE HEAVY BILLBOARD TAX IN OAKLAND

The Oakland section of the California Art Association recently held a discussion at Oakland, Cal., on the subject of billboards, which are widely used there as an advertising medium by motion picture houses. The use of these was condemned and it was suggested that a very heavy tax would aid materially in eliminating a large number of them.

CINCINNATI JUDGE ASKED TO AID CURFEW PLAN AGAINST PICTURE HOUSES

Interests of motion picture exhibitors of Cincinnati, O., are in jeopardly it is believed there as the result of an appeal made recently to Judge Charles W. Hoffman of the Court of Domestic Relations by the Federation of Catholic Societies. This organization requests that the Juvenile Court over which Judge Hoffman presides take steps to have children under sixteen years of age excluded from all motion picture theatres in which are displayed sex problem photoplays. This followed a meeting at which prominent Catholic social workers deplored the fact that the sex problem theme is prevalent in a large percentage of pictures shown in Cincinnati.

The resolution by which the matter was brought to the attention of Judge Hoffman has not yet been acted upon, either by the Court or by the Motion Picture Exhibitors League, but comment on the action of the society has been freely given. It is believed that the request for Juvenile Court action while not so bad as it applies to the sex problem picture, will have a tendency to increase the official and legal surveillance by which the exhibitors are already handicapped in the State Censorship system. In addition to this the Catholic Federation addressed a communication to Archbishop Henry Moeller, asking him to issue a ban on all motion picture theatres. The Archbishop so far has taken no action in this respect and is considering the claims of the society that there is a prevalence of pictures exploiting questions of sex.

INDIANA ENDORSES CAMPAIGN FOR CHILD LABOR RELIEF

Following a conference with Kate Davis, of Cleveland, president of the International People's Aid Association, Frank J. Rembusch and Dr. J. M. Rhodes, president and secretary, respectively of the Indiana Motion Picture League, and Ike Beitman, president of the Indianapolis Motion Picture Association, the motion picture men indorsed the federal legislation on child-labor problems.

Miss Davis asked the co-operation of Indiana exhibitors in a campaign on the federal child-labor legislation, and asked that the exhibitors of Indiana show slides calling attention to the proposed legislation and urge patrons to write their representatives in Congress in favor of the bill.

NO GRUMBLING OVER THEATRE TAX IN ONTARIO

The past week has been one of confusion among exhibitors in Toronto and Ontario generally. Ever since the notification went out that the new one cent amusement tax would be effective on May 15, exhibitors have been hsutling about making arrangements to suit the new legislation. The government has also insisted that a chopper be installed in every theatre to mutilate the tickets as they are used. This, too, has been a source of worry to the theatre men, for many of them do not own a chopper.

The Canadian Universal Company has made arrangements with the government to stock the tickets and they will supply them to their customers, thus saving the theatre men the time and expense necessary to secure them from the government. The new tax provides a one-cent ticket tax for every ten cents of admission; thus a dollar admission is subject to a ten-cent ticket tax. Some of the theatre men have suggested that the admission rate be dropped to nine cents, or ten cents including the tax rate, thus doing away with the necessity of using choppers. It is generally conceded that the new tax will be a great bother, but the theatre men are very loyal and so far no great grumbling has been heard.

NO MONEY WHACKS FROM AMUSEMENT TAX; WILLING PUBLIC MEETS THE CENT ON SEATS

There comes a wail from Toronto regarding the one cent Amusement tax. According to reports emanating from the Queen city, the smaller exhibtors fear that this new tax will so affect their business that they will be obliged to close. That this fear is ungrounded is shown by the result of the amusement tax in Montreal. Since the inauguration of the tax over a year ago, the vast majority of houses have been doing bigger business than ever. As a general rule Mr. Average Public is quite willing to pay an extra cent for a worthy cause.

NO FILMS CONDEMNED IN LAST REPORT OF DALLAS BOARD

What film men say is the first report to come from the Division of Censorship of Commercialized Amusements of the City of Dallas, Tex., without a film being condemned or a request that "This film must be shown to the Board before action is taken," is the report of May 5. The report comes out weekly, and the one on the fifth, in addition to "Films for which permits are granted" and "Films approved without change," mentions only minor eliminations for a few subjects.

Aims of Political Advocates for Censorship in San Francisco Revealed in Fight Against Passage of Bill

THE fight against the passage of a moving picture censorship ordinance at San Francisco has been enlivened by the injection of a political issue and now that some of the adherents of this ordinance have come out and publicly announced the real reason for their stand on this question those opposed to it have been given fresh ammunition for the battle, as well as an added incentive. After several months of dilatory tactics, during which time a covert attempt was made to secure the passage of the measure without the knowledge of film interests, the fight has become open and developments of late have been very rapid.

The revival of the censorship question came about through an opinion rendered several months ago by City Attorney Long that the board that has been supposed to be in existence for several years is an illegal body, as appointments are made by organizations having no appointive power in the city administration. The new ordinance now under discussion is the signed to abolish the old board and create a new one of five members, three of whom are to be appointed by the mayor, one by the board of education and one by the police commissioners. One must be a woman and one a member of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League.

On May 8, the board of supervisors considered this question for the first time, all previous hearings having been held before the police committee of three, which had recommended the passage of the measure. One of the members of this committee outlined the decision that had been arrived at in a speech that for sheer frankness might be classed as a classic. He failed to mention in a single instance any desire for a board of censorship to protect public morals and unintentionally threw a boomerang into the ranks of club women and others who have been working for censorship in the belief that this purpose would be accomplished. He declared that he had not formally favored censorship but had recently learned that William Randolph Hearst intended to use moving pictures in a campaign for prohibition in California and that he was for a board of censors that would suppress such pictures. It is a well known fact that Mr. Hearst is not in favor of prohibition and has no intention of using moving pictures in such a campaign, and it requires no great effort to penetrate the illuminating address of the supervisor who made the speech. He told what has long been suspected in San Francisco, that the sole reason why a board of censors is desired by certain interests is that such a board could be used for its power in a political way. A board of this kind could be used to stop any film that attacked corruption of any kind, particularly in municipal government. It could stop films exposing rascality or any designed for public enlightenment. The supervisor acknowledged at a meeting of the city lawmakers that it was wanted to aid the liquor interests in their fight against prohibition. He is to be thanked for his free expression of just what a board of censors is intended to mean in San Francisco and the state of California.

The film interests of San Francisco have heretofore refused to take any part in the prohibition fight now being waged in California. A number of prohibition films have remained unused on the shelves of exchanges and liquor propaganda has also been rejected. If the liquor interests insist on this issue being brought into the censorship fight, exhibitors will know what action to take and in case the ordinance is passed they will no longer be neutral.

Evidence has been piling up in splendid fashion during the past week to show that the general public in San Francisco does not want censorship. Almost one hundred thousand names have been secured to the petitions circulated among the patrons of picture shows opposing the proposed ordinance and others are being added steadily. The Carpenter's Union, one of the strongest labor organizations in that city, has adopted resolutions opposing the ordinance, as has the Iroquois Club. Committees from the Exhibitors' League and the San Francisco Film Exchange Board of Trade are interviewing prominent business men, addressing clubs and improvement organizations and such a sentiment against censorship is being created that it is believed that the battle has been won.

CLAIMS AGAINST ASSOCIATED ARE TO BE FILED WITH SHELBY

In pursuance of an order of the Hon. M. Warley Platzek, one of the Justices of the Supreme Court, New York County, notice is hereby given to all persons having claims against the Associated Film Sales Corporation, lately doing business at 110 West Fortieth street, City and County of New York, to present the same, with the vouchers thereof, duly verified, to the undersigned, who had been duly appointed assignee of said corporation for the benefit of its creditors, at his office, 60 Wall street, City and County of New York, on or before the 15th day of June, 1916.

CHATTANOOGA WOMEN'S COUNCIL ASK FOR MORE DRASTIC CENSORSHIP

At the regular meeting of the Chattanooga, Tenn., Women's Council, talks urging the need of more drastic censorship in the city were made and a censorship committee consisting of Mrs. C. C. Huntington, Mrs. F. K. Rosamond and Mrs. H. Goodman, was appointed.

Some of the most prominent women in the city spoke in favor of the censorship proposition. The posters shown in front of the picture theatres were commented upon and it was suggested that these be less disgusting and suggestive. The pictures that have been exhibited here recently also came in for comment.

The Universal Program
The Greatest on Earth

REASONS why the Universal Program reigns supreme are offered in the following review of the seven feature releases which head the daily programs for the week of June 12. Read and learn why the Universal dominates them all. Remember the balance of the week's bill includes one reelers that other producers would pad to two or three. It includes animated cartoons: frequent novelties, juveniles, specials galore; it is the one supreme varied program that never fails of interest. Get full particulars from your nearest Universal Exchange. If you cannot get the Universal Program NOW—watch your chance and get it at the very first opportunity. In the meantime book these features and bolster up your show.

"What Love Can Do." With Adele Farrington, C. H. Hammond and Mina Cunard. Story by Gertrude Nelson Andrews. Directed by Jay Hunt. Twentieth Red Feather Production. Released June 12. A theme that stirs a responsive chord in the heart of every lover of moving pictures forms the basis of the strong photoplay reviewed here. That theme is the course of a great love that suffers all, gives all, conquers all—thereby proving itself true. Adele is a newspaper woman who for five years has given her love—her very life—to the owner of the paper. She is loved by the City Editor—"Old Grouch," who is ignorant of her liason. The "man" in the case thinks he is tired of Adele, and only her wonderful loyalty through a dangerous strike, and great mental trouble bring him to the realization of his true feeling for her—that of undying love and devotion. Strong situations; a big strike scene; emotional moments of tense dramatic power, mark this as a fine play—one that will please your audiences at every performance.

J. Warren Kerrigan in "The Melody of Love." Three Reel Gold Seal Heroic Western Drama. Produced by J. Warren Kerrigan. Released June 13. Fortunate, indeed, are the Universal Exhibitors, who recognize the box office power of J. Warren Kerrigan in plays like "The Melody of Love." Fortunately for them here is one of the best this great actor ever did, released at a time when he is at the height of his power—in constant demand for features of greater length. It was in this stirring style of drama that he made his first bid for fame, and the present release is worked out with all his old time swing and dash that captivates every man, woman and child who sees it. This is an opportunity that happens once in a lifetime. If you are not showing the Universal Program, book this and be happy.

"How Stars Are Made." With Alice Howell and Ray Griffith. Two Reel L–KO Komical Absurdity. Released for laughing purposes only June 14. Alice has an ambition. She will be a movie star. She interviews the studio watchman. She sneaks into the star's dressing room and swipes a costume. There's a grand carnival in town that day and the star is to ride on a float as a queen—of something or other. Alice beats her to it and the fun is fast and furious. The street parade is a scream and the finish is typically L–KO—that means an absolute surprise with the laughing punch that will leave your audience breathless.

"Her Soul's Song." With Dorothy Davenport and Emory Johnson. Two Reel Laemmle Heart Interest Drama. Directed by Lloyd Carleton. Released June 15. The varied nature of the Universal Program has made it the greatest on earth. The recognition of what people want, and that they don't want the same thing all the time, keeps the U. P. at the top of the heap all the time. Here's evidence. The stars of this beautiful little drama have shown what they could do in heavy emotional work time and again. In this story of an opera singer who gave up her career for love, and who lost her voice when the baby came; who regained it under the most peculiar conditions, is so absorbingly human that it is positively universal in its appeal to the finer emotions of the heart. Abounding in heart throbs, it will please any audience.

Hobart Henley in "The Devil's Image." Two Reel Dope Drama. Directed by Henry Otto. Released June 16. Every lover of Universal moving pictures enjoys handsome Hobart Henley's every moment on the screen. Clean, wholesome, young, good-looking, with the frank, engaging manner that makes everyone like him, he has made millions of friends among the fans. In this fine picture his friends will get something of a shock. They will realize that Hobart Henley is an emotional and character actor of fine ability as well as a handsome man well fitted for heroic parts. Here we see him as a dope fiend deprived of the drug, and in one of the wierdest situations, where in a dream he fights with himself, is acting of the highest order. The thrills in this will hold 'em on the edge of their seats. The double exposure work of Mr. Henley has rarely been equalled.

"A Railroad Bandit." Two-Reel Railroad Drama. With Lee Hill and Marie Walcamp. Directed by Henry McRae. Released June 17. Judged by their plays you would think that Director McRae lived on railroad wrecks; that Lee Hill would rather risk his life than eat, and that life held nothing for Marie Walcamp unless there were a few death defying stunts served to her every so often. This realistic portrayal of a Western hold-up, love rivalry, and the ensuing complications is a great picture. No living man, woman or child could sit through this marvelous film without being moved to their depths. A picture that will please everyone and that will stand a lot of boosting—in fact all that you can give it. Don't fail to book this if you are not showing the regular Universal Program.

Ben Wilson in "The Finer Metal." With Dorothy Phillips. Adapted for the screen from the play by E. E. Kidder. Produced by Raymond L. Schrock. Two Reel Rex Emotional Drama. Released June 18. Pure drama of the most intense and emotional sort marks this photoplay which was originally written and produced for the Actors' Fund Benefit with Henry Kolker in the lead. Among others the unusual situation is presented of a husband coming to the room of his wife's lover to save him from arrest on a charge of embezzlement while the guilty wife learns of his magnanimity while hiding behind a curtain. Big in theme, in acting, and in production this is a big offering which fittingly closes the big Universal Program for the week.

Box Office Attraction Unparalleled, is the true way to describe this remarkable picture that packed the Globe Theatre in New York City to capacity for weeks

This is the only moving picture production that blocked Broadway traffic—that crammed, jammed and packed 'em in . . . that caused a sensation—and that returned real profits to the owners of the Greater New York Territory. This production from the world's most brilliant screen genius Lois Weber, produced by The Smalleys, is tremendous in its influence—powerful in its appeal and pronounced "Society's mightiest weapon against the criminal destruction of the unborn."

Press—Public and Clergy have united in one huge endorsement of this remarkable production

Such prominent people as The Rev. Dr. Parkhurst—the Rev. Thomas A. Daly—the Superior Paulist Father of the United States—John J. Hughes—the New York Newspapers—the Trade Press and the public at large have pronounced this "marvellous." One newspaper described it as "A smashing daring subject done in a smashing, daring way." The possibilities and profits of this great subject are limitless, modified only by the manner and method employed in the way it is put on. AMONG THE EXCHANGES

Quaker City Exchanges, Avoiding a Dead Halt in Sales, Make Their Work Hum With Live Efforts

MANAGER H. M. Osborn of the Pathé Exchange, Philadelphia, took in the Motion Picture Exposition in New York, when he went over to attend the banquet of the Pathé Club held recently at the Hotel McAlpin.

The first Goldberg cartoon the Boob Weekly ran a whole week at the Stanley Theatre. There are already thirty-five bookings on this release.

Manager Harry Scott of the Kleine branch has installed Rudolph Berger as manager of the newly formed Washington office. Mr. Berger was formerly salesman in the Philadelphia exchange. The Washington address is 204, Bank of Commerce Building.

A. G. Steen, manager of the Unicorn Film office has three Mary Pickford releases for the fourth week of the service. These are already proving very popular in this territory. There was a private exhibition of the Unicorn program at the Regent Theatre in Scanton, Penn., on a recent Sunday to which exhibitors and their friends were bidden by Mr. Steen. Not only was much enthusiasm manifested, but many bookings obtained through this showing. This was for the up-state exhibitors, but a showing for the Philadelphia exhibitors is also arranged for at the Family Theatre on Market street. Several Southern exhibitors, old friends of manager Steen, stopped in the Philadelphia office on their return from the New York Exposition and booked Unicorn.

Amongst these were F. D. Hofheimer, general manager of the Strand, Palace, Arcade, Manhattan of Norfolk, Va., and W. H. Harris, owner of the Broadway of Hopewell, Va. This theatre which was burned when the town itself was wiped out by a disastrous fire is being rebuilt and will open up with Unicorn service. Amongst the Philadelphia theatres that have booked the program are the Rittenhouse, Dreamland, Imperial, Walnut, Franklin of the neighborhood houses and the big Manheim of Germantown.

The International Film Service Exchange is now cosily established in its roomy three-story building at 1335 Vine street.

Extensive improvements were made on the property before the new exchange moved in. Manager Earl Sweigert has appointed as roadman for Pennsylvania. C. R. Mailliman, formerly representing the Red Feather and Bluebird releases.

The V-L-S-E exchange reports unabated vigor in the bookings on the Essanay Chaplin-"Carmen."

The Vitagraph "Battle Cry of Peace" continues more popular than ever, being booked solid until June 15.

Leon D. Melter of the Masterpiece Film Attractions at 1325 Vine, booked the twelve-reel edition of "The Spoilers" at the Forrest, one of the large legitimate theatres for a two weeks' run. This was put on with the usual accompaniment of symphony orchestra, and regular theatre service, the prices being 25 and 50 cents. Prof. Richard Smith is orchestra leader. As soon as the run of the "Spoilers" is completed, the "Ne'er-Do-Well," the big Selig production will be put on at the Forrest.

The Monarch Film Exchange, Edward Krupa, proprietor has moved from 1220 to 1223 Vine street. The new quarters are more accessible, being on the first floor of the building.

William P. Haslett, special representative of the Kalem Company on the "Social Pirates," reported a very successful trip all through his territory on this release.

Mutual Manager of W. Pope has just returned from an important business trip to Kansas City.

On May 15 the first Mutual Chaplin picture, "The Floorwalker," had its initial showing at the following Philadelphia theatres: Germantown, Alleghany, Victoria, Locust, Alhambra, Forepaugh's Palace. Twelve prints of the picture are in use by the Philadelphia office, in spite of the big figure asked for the subject.

Rosenthal Puts on Novel Stunt for "Peg" When Circus Strikes St. Louis; Kleine Opens New Exchange There

A NEW exchange has been opened by the George Kleine Film Company in the Empress Theatre Building at 3618 Olive street, St. Louis, to distribute the output of the company to the district of which St. Louis is the centre. The wide circle of acquaintance and his experience in all branches of the distributing end of the film business makes Manager Rosenberg a fitting person to be placed in charge of the branch office.

Joseph Levy, manager of the Fox Film Exchange, at 3632 Olive street, St. Louis, was visited during the week of May 8 by Harry Leonhardt, special representative of the corporation.

The St. Louis office of the Bluebird Photoplays, under the management of S. J. Baker, won the $100 prize for the month of April, for the best proportionate increase of bookings of all the Bluebird offices. Mr. Baker and his assistants, Messrs. Levy and Shurman, feel very proud of their accomplishment, especially when the keen competition that prevails in the St. Louis territory is taken into consideration, and the work necessary to close a contract.

A private showing of new World Film features was given at the New Grand Central theatre on May 16 by George W. Fuller, manager of the St. Louis branch. Many local exhibitors and out of town theatre managers attended the exhibition.

Barney Rosenthal, in charge of the Universal Exchange in St. Louis, put on a very neat live wire stunt in an advertisement of the "Peg o' the Ring" serial. Just the week before the first chapter was released, the Ringling Brothers Circus came to St. Louis. Rosenthal secured a former circus bareback rider, furnished a "Peg" costume modeled after the costume worn by Peg in the pictures, and a white horse upon which the rider stood, while a ringmaster in full regalia attended the lady, leading the horse. Another attendant followed with a large banner setting forth the merits of the circus serial, and a large bag of capsules containing strips of paper with the words: "Good dope; a sure cure for all grouches" visible through the celluloid. The rest of the advertisement read: "Take one episode of 'The Adventures of Peg o' the Ring' each and every week at your motion picture theatre. Fifteen weeks of thrills, adventure, love and laughter. By order of Francis Ford, M. D., and Grace Cunard, M. D." The trio traveled all over town during circus week and drew innumerable comments of approval on the unique advertising stunt.

MONTHLY INDEX OF REVIEWS IS ANOTHER VALUABLE HELP IN "NEWS" FOR EXHIBITORS, SAYS NORTH

Says Tom North, manager of the Seattle V-L-S-E Exchange, in the May 6 issue of "V-L-S-E Pals":

"The current issue of 'Motion Picture News' carries a Monthly Index of Reviews. All releases reviewed during the month are listed, with the maker, releasing date and company, title, nature, size and date of issue. This is a fine idea and will be a big help to the exhibitor who is wise enough to study the reviews.

"We are glad to see the constant effort being put forth by the publishers of the 'News' to get into their pages all that is interesting and instructive."

No Friends for "Mr. Care" in Buffalo, Where Dry-eyed Joy Reigned Without Alloy of Gloom in Elmwood Music Room

WITH Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Arbuckle, Mignon Anderson, Earl Metcalfe, Helen Green, John Hines, Jessie Bonstelle and her associate players, and Corrine Farren Parquette, the beautiful girl who won the popularity contest in Rochester, conducted by the management of the Victoria, as guests, the Buffalo Screen Club held its first annual ball at Elmwood Music Hall on Monday evening, May 15.

The outstanding fact about the whole affair is that it was "The Big Success" of the year in Buffalo, despite the fact that several stars who were promised by their companies and who were advertised big in the press as among those going to the ball, were not able to appear. This part of the Buffalo's Screen Club ball was its only disappointing factor. But these things were not known to the public, which however, had been told that the stars would appear.

The ball was attended by over 2,000 dancers, including many of Buffalo's leading citizens and officials. Norman E. Mack, owner of the Buffalo Times, who is also interested in the motion picture business, encouraged the club in many ways, not only by liberal space in his paper, but by attending the ball with his family, buying a box and taking a large advertisement in the program and in addition to all this bringing Earl Metcalfe and Ethel Green to Buffalo.

Elmwood Music Hall never presented a more inviting appearance, the decorations were beautiful, the music excellent, the atmosphere cordial. The affair lasted from 9 P. M. until 6 A. M. and everybody expressed himself as having a great time.

The music was furnished by a band of fifty pieces, under the direction of John W. Bolton, and an orchestra of the same number of men under the direction of Herman E. Schultz, director of Shea's Hippodrome orchestra.

The club feels that it can never repay the kindness of Mr. Arbuckle for the way he entered into the spirit of the occasion. "Fatty" remarked as he entered the hall, "We are going to put this ball over big." He did! Mr. Metcalfe, also a "prince of good fellows," did his share in keeping the people in a good humor. "Fatty" conducted the orchestra and band as did Mr. Metcalfe and almost "stopped" the ball with their amusing antics.

Mr. Arbuckle was the guest of Manager Farren of the Victoria in Rochester on Sunday before the ball and went to Buffalo with Miss Parqutte, who was the winner of the contest held there. He took Miss Farren to New York with him where she will appear in forthcoming Triangle pictures.

So delighted were all the stars who did attend the ball, with the fine time they had in Buffalo that they all promised to go again, when the club holds its next ball. As "Fatty" stepped on the train he said, "Boys, I've had the time of my life in Buffalo. I will come all the way from Los Angeles when you hold the next ball." The members of the Screen club took Mr. Arbuckle and the other stars to Niagara Falls on Monday, and as Mr. Arbuckle had never seen the Falls he greatly enjoyed the trip. Mr. Arbuckle made a big hit in Buffalo and he will always be remembered there and given a royal welcome if he ever returns.

So successful was the ball that a large sum was realized after all expenses were paid. The event was the talk of Buffalo for a month in advance and the attendance greatly exceeded the wildest hopes of the club.

In view of the great success of this year's ball, the club plans to hold one next winter.

The grand march took place at midnight, led by "Fatty" and Miss Anderson, and from that moment until the wee sma' hours care was thrown to the winds and joy reigned supreme. Everyone of the thirty boxes was occupied. All the Buffalo exchanges purchased boxes.

The notices in the papers the morning following the ball were most laudatory, in fact the press did a large share in bringing about the success of the affair.

The Screen Club ball is over, but the club is already planning a housewarming in its clubrooms, which are being elaborately furnished. This event will be held in two weeks. A river party and a Screen Club day at Crystal Beach are also being planned. From this date on Buffalo's Screen Club is going to be heard from and it is rumored that in the fall a big motion picture exposition will be held under its auspices in the Broadway Auditorium, extending over a week.

W. B. EMRICH MADE MANAGER OF BLUEBIRD IN KANSAS CITY

W. B. Emrich, formerly traveler for the Bluebird Photoplay Company out of the Kansas City office, is now manager of that company in Kansas City, succeeding A. G. Hull, who recently left for the East. Mr. Emrich was given this appointment because of the great work he has done while on the road, much of the success for the Bluebird pictures in that section being due to his untiring efforts.

One instance of his excellent record is shown by this fact: out of six contests held by the Kansas City Bluebird office for a weekly five dollar prize to the traveler turning in the largest number of contracts, five were won by Mr. Emrich. Before coming into the employ of the Bluebird exchange, Mr. Emrich was connected with the Chicago and Kansas City offices of the Fox Film Corporation

TRIANGLES IN TWENTY OF FORTY THEATRES IN BOSTON

Manager W. H. Bradley of the Triangle exchange in Boston has put on a night force and is using conveyances of his own in addition to the express companies, for the purpose of preventing lost time in delivery. Out of forty-nine theatres in Boston, the Triangle pictures go into twenty of them. In the district Manager Bradley has booked over ninety contracts in four weeks. Billie Burke is now on her eleventh week in "Peggy" and all the prints are at work. And it is the repeats that are doing the business, according to Mr. Bradley. The Triangle opened at Keith's Lowell theater last week.

Shapiro Is Appointed Manager for Triangle in Detroit; Floor Added to Mutual Exchange

PAUL MOONEY, district manager for the Fox Film Corporation, when in Detroit on May 15, announced the appointment of Marty Brennan as assistant manager of the Detroit exchange. Mr. Brennan is a newcomer to the film business, but not to the amusement business, as he was for several seasons with leading musical comedy productions. He is a young fellow with lots of personality and pep, and should make an excellent Fox representative.

Fire on Friday, May 18, practically destroyed the building at 183 Jefferson avenue, Detroit, occupied by the Universal Film Company on the first floor and the Metro Film Corporation on the second floor. The loss was thousands of dollars to the building and to the film exchanges.

The Picture Playhouse Film Company, Detroit, has leased space at 92 Griswold street, where it will conduct an exchange for Michigan. The business is in charge of A. Lee, who has appointed W. W. McEwen as special representative.

Abe I. Shapiro, for several years connected with the Fox Film Corporation, and for sometime in charge of the Detroit exchange, has been appointed manager of the Detroit branch of the Triangle Film Corporation, which is now conducted at 183 Jefferson avenue. The branch will be moved within a few weeks to larger and finer quarters at 73 Broadway, where an entire floor has been leased. "Shap," as he is familiarly known, is certainly welcome back to Michigan. L. W. Foster will continue with the Triangle Company as special representative.

G. Spencer Trask, manager of the Detroit branch of the Mutual Film Corporation, announces the appointment of H. W. Smith as special city representative. Mr. Smith was formerly manager of the Garden theatre for John H. Kunsky, and was also manager of the Empire theatre in Detroit for nearly a year. The men at the Garden presented him with a handsome silver loving cup when he left there May 6.

Another floor has been added to the Detroit exchange of the Mutual Film Corporation, which will be for the advertising and poster department. This will give more room for the general handling of the business on the second floor.

LUX BUYS RIGHTS TO "DUMB GIRL" FOR TWO STATES

Edward T. Lux, for several years manager of the Cincinnati-Buckeye Film Company, the Universal branch in Cincinnati, has resigned. He has purchased the state rights for the Pavlowa film, "The Dumb Girl of Portici," for Kentucky and Indiana.

Middle West Is Right in Middle of Good Business; "Peg o' the Ring" Helps Roadmen to Win Prizes

C. S. EDWARDS, JR., manager of the Pathe exchange at Kansas City, Mo., has instituted a series of salesmen's meetings, for Saturday evenings, at which experiences will be exchanged and problems of the business threshed out. The purpose is to find out what special service is winning in each territory, and extend the successful methods to all. Each of the salesmen has his own methods of co-operation with the exhibitors, besides the general policies dictated by Mr. Edwards. It is well known, however, that the "chief" gives his men a tolerably free hand, and this policy has been very successful in developing salesmen. Now steps are being taken that will cause a distribution of all the good plans throughout the territory.

J. S. Stout, who for the past six or eight months, has been traveling out of the Kansas City office of the World Film Corporation, has been promoted, and left there the middle of May to take charge of the Salt Lake City branch of this company. Mr. Stout was, previous to his connection with the Kansas City office, in the employ of a film company in Chicago and is an experienced man. He has made an excellent record in his territory. His manager, Richard Robertson, is high in praise of Mr. Stout's ability and predicts a very successful career for him. His position as traveler in the Kansas City branch has not yet been filled.

J. Erwin Dodson, Universal traveler, won the fourth and last contest held by the Kansas City Universal office, for the traveler getting the most business during a period of four weeks, and was awarded the twenty-five dollar prize. Of the four series held, "Red" Jones got two, Dodson one and C. W. Potter the other. Each traveler reports that much of his success was due to "Peg o' the Ring."

Harry C. Drum, assistant general manager of the World Film Corporation, spent one day with Richard Robertson, Kansas City chief, recently, but promised to stay longer when he returns in June. Mr. Drum was making a tour of the World's offices and this was one of the points of his journey.

A new traveler for the Bluebird Photoplay Company traveling out of the Kansas City office of D. O. Reese. In 1915 Mr. Reese distributed Paramount pictures, traveling for the Kansas City Feature Film Company. Previous to that time he was with the Baker-Dodge Amusement Company, managing theatres in various parts of Oklahoma and Texas. Recently he has been acting as manager of the Hetrick and Peoples theatres at Chanute, Kans. Mr. Reese has been actively connected with the promotion of several successful stock companies in the Southwest, but desired to get back in pictures in which he is an experienced man. He has a wide acquaintance all over the territory and is looking forward to a good season.

Walter S. Quade is the latest addition to the force of the Unicorn Film Service, acting as traveler in Kansas and Oklahoma. Mr. Quade recently relinquished the position of manager of the Bonaventure theatre, previous to that being connected with other houses in that territory. His work in the Kansas City territory dates back for some time, as he was a former manager of the now demolished Olympic theatre, which held forth on Grand, between Eleventh and Twelfth streets for some years.

G. B. Howe, assistant manager of the Kansas City office of the Universal Film and Supply Company, and Leola McMillin, assistant booker in the same office, were married there on May 18. Previous to their marriage, the young couple fitted out their apartment and the ceremony was held there. The event was a surprise to most people up until a week before it occurred, when it became public property. Mr. and Mrs. Howe are well known in the Kansas field, Mrs. Howe becoming known for her excellent work in the booking department of various companies. The employes of the Universal office presented Mr. and Mrs. Howe with a large floor lamp. The affair was to be a quiet one, but the Universal office force took a part in the entertainment, with the result that it was far from what the "newlyweds" had planned.

On the resignation of Leola McMillan, formerly assistant booker at the Kansas City office of the Universal Film and Supply Company, Mrs. W. B. Emrich was given that position. Mrs. Emrich gave up her place at the Fox exchange to take this one. Her husband is W. B. Emrich, the newly appointed manager of the Bluebird Photoplay Company in the Kansas City territory.

Changes in Coast Exchanges Mean No Bartering of Chances by "Moving" Picture Men, Who Refuse to "Stand Still"

N. E. LEVI, who has been connected with the Los Angeles Mutual Exchange for the past year as salesman, following work in the same capacity at Phoenix, Ariz., has been transferred from the Los Angeles office to that at San Francisco. Prior to his departure a luncheon was given him at a popular downtown cafe by a number of exhibitors, exchangemen and trade paper representatives. Levi has been very popular with the exchangemen and exhibitors in Los Angeles and the luncheon given him was an unusual distinction.

Officers of the San Diego Exposition hope to secure considerable advertising for the Fair by the aid of motion pictures, and to this end have engaged Charles Marley as commissioner of distribution and Robert A. Brackett as cameraman.

The plan to be followed is that of making from one to two hundred foot subjects of the nature of news contributions, which may be used by film companies to complete a short reel or subject. It is the intention of the Exposition to furnish such prints free.

With the acceptance of this position, Marley resigned as secretary and general manager of the Los Angeles Film Exchangemens Board of Trade, which place he had held since the formation of the board. It is not known at this time whether a successor will be selected by the exchangemen, as the Board of Trade has accomplished the purpose for which it was organized; namely, the discontinuance of credit to exhibitors for film rental and a strict cash-in-advance policy. Such a policy has been inaugurated by all Los Angeles exchanges.

Bracket is a cameraman of many years' experience, his first work having been done for Lyman Howe in the early days of this traveling organization. Recently he has been making the Los Angeles and southern California contributions of the Pathe Weekly.

Through arrangements completed by C. L. Theuerkauf, manager of the Los Angeles Bluebird Photoplays department of the California Universal exchange, and Messrs. Mock and Rickard, owners of the Columbia theatre, Phoenix, Ariz., a private preview was given the Violet Mersereau photoplay of prison reform, "The Great Problem," for Governor Hunt and his staff at the Phoenix theatre on May 12. Governor Hunt is known nationally as the leading worker for prison reform, and he was glad to accept the invitation to attend a showing of this picture upon learning that it dealt with this subject.

Manager S. N. Robinson of the Los Angeles Fox Exchange has just returned from the first trip into the Imperial Valley, which is the reclaimed desert of southern California. Several months ago representatives of the company made that territory and secured contracts from theatres in practically every city. Hardly had the Fox representatives returned to Los Angeles than an earthquake affected the section and paralyzed business, with the result that contracts were canceled. Manager Robinson secured contract for Fox service in the four principal cities, El Centro, Holtville, Brawley and Calexico. This is the hotest section in the United States and the temperature frequently rises to as high as 115 degrees during the summer months.

W. E. Cree, manager of the Denver General Film Exchange, has been transferred to the Los Angeles branch and is now in charge at the latter place. William Hepburn, who was assistant manager at the Los Angeles office, has been selected for manager of the Salt Lake branch and has gone to that city.

Ernest Silcocks, late of Kansas City, has been selected manager of the Los Angeles office of the George Kleine Attractions, and has arrived and opened an office on the second floor of the Knickerbocker building, 645 South Olive street.

Manager Harry Lustig of the Los Angeles Metro Exchange has started something new by moving to the beach and becoming a commuter.

J. J. Unger, special representative of the Metro Pictures Corporation on the coast, whose headquarters are at San Francisco, spent the past week at Los Angeles. He found conditions very satisfactory for the Metro, the exchange supplying service to twenty-eight theatres in the city and a large number in the small towns outside of Los Angeles.

V-L-S-E BOOSTS MORE ENERGETIC EMPLOYEES

In line with the policy of V-L-S-E to promote its members from the ranks to make for stability and permanency within the organization, so that the exhibitor will be dealing with the same people whenever he comes to the office, the company announces the promotion of H. E. Stillwell, who has been bookkeeper for the Atlanta branch. He will now cover the territory in Georgia, Alabama and Tennessee as salesman.

L. E. Schaffer, who has been with the Denver branch since it was made a buying office, and who has covered the territories in Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Colorado, New Mexico, Wyoming, Utah, Idaho, Montana, west Nebraska and western South Dakota, has been promoted to assistant branch manager of the Denver exchange.

In Montreal, the constantly enlarging scope of activity which business has necessitated in that territory, has meant the addition of a new salesman. Patrick Doyle, who has had extensive experience with the Fox Film Corporation, and the World Film Corporation, now becomes associated with the Montreal office.

Mr. Hayden, a former exhibitor, automobile salesman and driver of racing cars, recently resigned from the Denver Locomobile agency, becomes affiliated with the Denver office of the Big Four.

VOLUME OF FOX BUSINESS IN SAN FRANCISCO IS ON THE INCREASE

In speaking of the business of the William Fox Film Corporation in the San Francisco territory, Manager William J. Citron states that a feature that stands out foremost is its steady volume. Since the policy of putting out one release a week was adopted and of requiring a deposit from exhibitors, there has been a steady gain in business and practically all of the customers who signed for the service in the first place are still talking it. The result is that a large volume of business is done with a much smaller force than is the case with most exchanges.

But few solicitors are employed, it being unnecessary to maintain a regular traveling schedule, as almost every town of any size in California has an exhibitor taking Fox service. Manager Citron has been busy of late receiving visitors from out of town points, the local exchange being a gathering place for exhibitors whether they are Fox customers or not, the location being a central one, with a spacious reception room. Mr. Citron has also been devoting considerable of his time to the fight against censorship, co-operating with the Film Exchange Board of Trade in this work.

BERMAN GOES FROM KANSAS CITY TO CINCINNATI FOR UNIVERSAL

H. M. Berman, for the past year Kansas City, Mo., manager of the Metro Picture Service, has resigned and is now located at Cincinnati, Ohio, where he is acting as manager of the Universal. Mr. Berman has been in Kansas City but a short time, but during that period the Metro office has taken many steps forward. He was an active worker in the betterment of the moving picture industry and in addition to this his connection with Metro acted as a member of the adustment committee of the Kansas Association of Exhibitors, in which organization he was a very strong worker.

Cresson E. Smith, manager of the Metro exchange at Des Moines, Iowa, has been in Kansas City the past week taking temporary charge of the office. It has not been decided who will succeed Mr. Berman, but the fact that Mr. Smith was sent to relieve him would indicate that he would be given the office.

Ten Loving Cups for Exchange Managers Pushing Picture Depicting Spiritualism and Hate, "Mysteries of Myra"

The Ten Trophy Cups Awarded to Branch Managers of the International Film Service

J. K. BURGER, manager of exchanges for the International Film Service, was responsible for an arrangement by which each of his branch exchange managers will receive a loving cup as a testimonial to their success in handling first-run booking for the International serial, "The Mysteries of Myra."

The ten trophy cups were designed and manufactured by Black, Starr and Frost, New York. The International claims that the "Myra" series enjoyed a greater first-run booking than any other similar series ever produced. Part of its popularity is attributed to the extensive advertising and publicity campaign which is being promoted in the Hearst newspapers and publications throughout the country.

MANAGER ATWOOD ADDS TO STAFF OF INTERNATIONAL IN LOS ANGELES

Manager G. H. Atwood of Los Angeles International Film Corporation exchange, has now completed his staff which includes William R. Dunlap as city salesman, E. L. Lamson, Charles P. Miner and Bert Sacre, salesmen in the territory; George Wilson, bookkeper, and O. W. Rheinhart, cashier.

The first release of "The Mysteries of Myra" by this organization, was booked at the Symphony theatre, 614 South Broadway, and for the first time in the history of the theatre, which has a seating capacity of seven hundred, nightly there have been waiting lines of patrons. The Powers and Harriman cartoons have been booked for one year at the Alhambra theatre on Hill street, Los Angeles.

WILLIS IS IN CHARGE OF MERIT, THE OUTLET FOR IVAN, AT BUFFALO, NEW YORK

F. J. Willis, well known to the film trade as a manager of exchanges for various film manufacturers, has ben placed in charge of the new Merit Film Corporation's office in Buffalo, N. Y., which is located at 39 Erie street. Frank Wykoff has been transferred from the New York office as his assistant. All Ivan features will be handled from this base for the northern part of New York state.

The Merit Film Corporation has also acquired the exclusive franchise as distributors of Ivan productions for New England and Harry Samwick left New York for Boston for the immediate purpose of opening an office there, from which point exhibitors desiring Ivan features will be supplied.

I. Goetz of the Merit sales staff is now covering Connecticut and accepting bookings on Ivan features.

THIRTY-NINE NEW ENGLAND ACCOUNTS FOR UNICORN

The New England office of the Unicorn Company has opened thirty-nine accounts during the two weeks of its existence, according to an announcement by Fred B. Murphy, Eastern manager. These include the Fenway theatre, Boston, the Park theatre, Taunton, and the Colonial, Pittsfield.

Film News from Foreign Parts

Australian Daily Devotes Two Pages to Film News

Special to Motion Picture News.

Sydney, N. S. W., May 1.

PERHAPS one of the best programs of pictures yet presented in any Sydney photoplay theatre was that of the Triangle last Saturday. Opening with "Fido's Fate" (Keystone), then "Jordan Is a Hard Road" (Fine Arts), and lastly, the "one and only" Billie Burke in "Peggy." The Lyceum theatre could not accommodate the number who were waiting for admission. From the moment Miss Burke appeared on the screen until the conclusion of the picture, the audience responded to the various elements of comedy and drama depicted in this fine feature. No picture has received finer criticisms in the Sydney papers than "Peggy." William Duncan, who played the role of the "Meenister," appeared here on the stage in "Alias Jimmy Valentine" about two years ago. Recently Sydney has been given two phases of Scotch humour: Harry Lauder in song, Graham-Moffat on the stage, and now Billie Burke in "Peggy" makes the third.

Marie Tempest in "Mrs. Plum's Pudding" (the first Broadway Universal feature to be screened in Sydney), and Haddon Chambers' (the Australian dramatist) story, "The Idler" (Fox), are the two features at the "Royal" this week.

Walter Bentley, well known as a Shakespearian actor, and also secretary of the Actors' Association of Australia, has opened a school for teaching "picture acting." Mr. Bentley has for years been a prominent figure on the stage, but it is doubtful if he can successfully conduct such an academy as he has now opened.

Film Australian Armies

The New South Wales Recruiting Association has, with the assistance of the Department of External Affairs, and Mr. Bert Ive, commonwealth photographer, prepared a series of pictures depicting the organization and training of Australia's armies. Up to the present time the commonwealth of Australia have sent nearly two hundred and fifty thousand men to the "front."

Theater Magazine has received a very newsy letter from Wilton Welch, husband of Louise Carbasse. This team of artists were very popular when playing through Sydney theatres, and their first picture will no doubt be duly appreciated.

The Haymarket theatre, under the management of Fraser Films, Ltd., will open next week as a first-class photoplay theatre with a seating accommodation of two thousand. The opening bill will consist of "Scandal" (Universal) and the first episode of "The Broken Coin."

Current features this week introduce a variety of old favorites—Carlyle Blackwell and Blanche Sweet in "The Secret Orchard," Bushman and Beverly Bayne in "Pennington's Choice" (Metro), and Vivian Martin in "Little Mademoiselle" (World). Two continental pictures are also showing at Waddington's theatres. "Alsace," with Mme. Rejane, and "Money," by O. H. Northern.

"The Christian," written by Hall Caine, and adapted and produced by George Loane Tucker for the London Film Company, is the feature at the Crystal Palace this week. Derwent Hall Caine appears in the role of John Storm, and his performance throughout is entirely unsatisfactory. Elizabeth Risdon, Mary Dibley, Gerald Ames and Charles Rock do some very fine work. The picture has been well produced and some very fine photographic effects add greaty to the interest. The religious theme has been well brought out and is not, as in the case of most pictures dealing with this subject, unintentionally ridiculed.

Metro Advertising Striking

One exhibitor advertises a Metro as follows: "A Yellow Streak," five thousand feet long. Apparently it's some streak.

Another new theatre opened last week, "The King's Cross," under the Waddington management. "The Secret Orchard" was the star feature. His new house holds sixteen hundred, and is situated in one of the largest suburbs in Sydney.

"Pearl of Great Price," a story of the South Sea Islands, from the pen of Randolph Bedford, a noted local author, is the next production of the George Willoughby Photoplays. "The Woman in the Case," Clyde Fitch's drama of the stage, has now been completed. "Joan of Arc of Loos," this company's first production, is on the open market.

During the "Nation" season at the Royal, Fox pictures will be shown at Waddington's theatres.

Australasian Films, Ltd., announce the following forthcoming features: "Iris" (Hepworth), "One Day" (Moss), "She," and the "Ne'er Do Well" (Selig.)

Pathé's serial, "New Adventures of Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford," is having a good season at the Emu theatre, Sydney.

A representative of the "Mutual Movies" arrived per the "Niagara" last week. Recently Mutuals have been conspicuous by their absence, except for an occasional masterpicture.

The Clement Mason Cinematograph Company of Sydney, who have the exclusive rights to Essanay-Chaplin comedies and numerous other brands of imported film, have decided to extend their business to Victoria. Cecil Mason will shortly proceed to the Victorian capital in the interests of the firm.

Sun Devotes Two Pages to Film News

The "Sun" newspaper now devotes two pages exclusively to timely news connected with motion pictures. This is the first daily paper in Australia to adopt this course, and the character of the department reflects the highest credit on the editor.

Special programs have been announced for Good Friday, and William Farnum will be seen in a revival of "The Sign of the Cross" at Waddington's theatre.

PAYS $175,000 FOR AUSTRALIAN RIGHTS TO CHAPLIN SUBJECTS

The sum of $175,000 was paid on May 16, in royalties for the right to release the new Mutual Chaplin comedies in Australia, according to an announcement made from the offices of John R. Freuler, president of the Mutual Film Corporation and president of the Lone Star Corporation which holds the $670,000 contract for Chaplin's year's services.

The Australian business is but a small fraction of the total foreign revenue to be earned, according to Mr. Freuler. The royalty was paid by Henry J. Brock, film exporter. Above and beyond this, each Chaplin comedy print will be sold for the Australian market at a price not given out by Mr. Freuler. A total of $1,300,000 in bookings on Chaplin-Mutual comedies for the United States has been reached. This is said to establish a record for similar operations in the film trade.

ENGLISH GUINEAS ADDED TO AMERICAN DOLLARS FOR ACTORS' FUND

The interest in the Motion Picture Campaign for the Actors' Fund has extended to England. The canvass of the heads of the film industry to raise $500,000 for the endowment of the great charitable Fund, having spread into every corner of the United States, is now attracting attention abroad. Samuel Goldfish, Chairman of the National Executive Committee of the campaign, received Saturday a check for ten guineas from Larry Trimble, of the Turner Films, Ltd., Hurst Grove, Walton-on-Thames.

ALICE JOYCE SIGNS WITH "V" FOR "BATTLE CRY OF WAR"

Announcement is made by Vitagraph that the famous screen star, Alice Joyce, has signed with the company.

Since Miss Joyce's statement a few weeks ago, announcing her intention of returning to the screen, after a year of private life, much interest has surrounded her, and those who have watched her excellent work on the screen for years, will welcome her return.

Vitagraph states that this famous player will be starred in the leading female role of its new film masterpiece, "The Battle Cry of War," which is a sequel to the world-renowned "Battle Cry of Peace."

This role will afford Miss Joyce excellent opportunities in which to display the talents which endeared her to the public before her retirement.

Extensive preparations are under way for the filming of this production and it promises to rival "The Battle Cry of Peace," in every phase of excellence. Miss Joyce begins work at the Vitagraph studios on Monday, May 29.

PUBLIC TO HAVE CHANCE TO CRACK THEIR RISIBLES ON THE "KERNEL NUTT" SERIES

With the completion of the Frank Daniels "Mr. Jack" series of comedies, the V-L-S-E announces another set of ten one-reel comedies, which will treat of the escapades of Kernel Nutt, in the person of Frank Daniels.

These single reel comedy plays, will be released at the rate of one each week, the first having been released on May 15.

Each release has a distinctive plot and has no connection with the other plays of the series.

The first comedy, released on May 15, was "Kernel Nutt, the Janitor," followed by "Kernel Nutt Wins a Wife," "Kernel Nutt, the Footman," and "Kernel Nutt and the Hundred Dollar Bill," to be released on May 22 and 29, and June 5, respectively, with six others to follow.

Screen Club Dance Held in Detroit Brings Out 2,500 People

Clara Kimball Young, Claire Whitney, Alice Brady, Gertrude McCoy and Other Stars Arrive on Special Train and Are Escorted to the Arcadia by Entire Club Body

A Glimpse of the Guests at the Detroit Screen Club Dance

Special to MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

Detroit, May 20.

THE Screen Club of Detroit held a successful dance at the Arcadia, Monday evening, May 15, the attendance being close to 2,500 people. Among the stars present were Clara Kimball Young, Claire Whitney, Alice Brady and Gertrude McCoy; others were Mr. and Mrs. Lewis J. Selznick, E. Robert Schayer, publicity representative for Miss Young, and Harry Reichenbach, publicity representative for Miss Brady. The stars arrived in Detroit on a special train, Monday morning, accompanied by Harry I. Garson, of the Broadway-Feature Film Company, Detroit; George Weeks, manager of the Universal exchange in Detroit; Abe Shapiro, the new manager of the Triangle Film exchange in Detroit; and John H. Kunsky and George Trendle of the John H. Kunsky enterprises. There was breakfast for the entire party at the Hotel Pontchartrain; at noon there was a luncheon and in the afternoon motor car rides, Miss Young stealing away for a few minutes to address the audience at the Broadway-Strand theatre where her latest picture "The Feast of Life" was being presented for the week.

The dance at the Arcadia was all that the press agents said it would be—it was a gorgeous affair—a great spectacle—one that everybody present will long remember in Screendom. It was more than just successful—it was much better than was anticipated. Everything went like clockwork—there wasn't a single hitch—and as for a good time—they all had it. There was a thirty piece orchestra at one end of the room and a twenty piece band at the other end; they alternated the dance music—but there was never a long intermission between dances; no sooner would the band stop when the orchestra would tune up for action. Everything from the one-step to the waltz and fox-trot was played.

About eleven o'clock the stars arrived and were escorted to their special box by the entire membership of the Screen Club. Each was introduced by A. J. Gilligham, president of the club. The grand march followed immediately and was led by Clara Kimball Young, the Mayor of Detroit, Alice Brady and a city official. Following the grand march, people swarmed around the stars to get a good peek, incidentally to ask questions and to get them to autograph photographs. Alice Brady's press agent, Harry Reichenbach pulled a good stunt by having Alice wear—what he said—was a million dollars' worth of diamonds—she was accompanied by several detectives in plain clothes. The dance lasted until long after midnight.

The Screen stars, members of the Screen Club and invited guests, then adjourned to the green room of the Hotel Pontchartain where a banquet was in waiting. The affair started at 1:30 in the morning; the banquet lasted until about three and the crowd danced until nearly six o'clock. Cabaret and vaudeville entertainers galore were on the program and they surely did give the crowd a good time. The stars remained over in Detroit until Tuesday afternoon, leaving for New York on the flyer at 7:10.

The photograph shown herewith tells the rest of the story, but let it be said right here that the screen dance was a success and so was the banquet afterwards.

Daudet's "Sapho," with Theda Bara, for Fox Draws Big Crowds

Grossman's Standard in Cleveland Records Its Largest Week with This Picture, and Zorn in Toledo Touches Highest Mark with Film in His Exhibiting Career

REPORTS to the Fox Film Corporation from its first run exhibitors in all sections of the United States indicate that the appeal of Theda Bara in a modernized version of Daudet's "Sapho" was big.

In Cleveland Joseph Grossman's Standard theatre did the biggest week's business in the history of the house, exceeding the record formerly set by "The Serpent" and "Carmen"—both Bara films. In Toledo at the Temple theatre, Manager Zorn did the biggest business on the week in his entire career as an exhibitor.

In Philadelphia the Broadway theatre reported the top attendance the house has ever handled in a single week. Miller's in Los Angeles telegraphed that he had done "a landslide business." In William Fox's own first run New York house, the Academy of Music, "The Eternal Sapho" broke every existing house record and it became necessary to have a police detail handle the crowds on all the days of the showing.

Incidentally William Fox himself reports on the success of "Blazing Love," his first picture starring Virginia Pearson. The film in its first run at the Academy broke all records of the current spring up to the date of its release; in Cleveland Manager Grossman likewise had a big week with Miss Pearson's picture.

MITCHELL TAKES PLACE OF BERSHON

Dave Bershon, who has been at the head of the California Universal Exchange booking department, has resigned, and Exchange Manager J. V. Bryson has placed Dan Goldbert and D. S. Mitchell in charge of this department.

"LOIS WEBER directed the marvelous photo-drama—"The Eye of God," announced on the preceding page as the latest BLUEBIRD release.

To those familiar with the work of this remarkable woman, the statement is big with promise. Producer of the wonderful spectacles, "Hypocrites," Pavlowa in "The Dumb Girl of Portici," "Scandal," "Jewel" and "Where Are My Children?" —to mention only her most recent work, Lois Weber today outranks any and every other director in the moving picture field.

Her breadth of vision; her innate humanity; her sense of the dramatic; the scope of her artistry unified by her long experience as both actress and producer, are shown in every script which finds its way to the screen through her hands.

"The Eye of God," in which Miss Weber plays opposite that eminent American actor, Tyrone Power, was written by her, staged, and directed by her, and is the strongest possible evidence of the new and higher standard set by BLUEBIRD Photoplays.

Such dramas are giving to moving pictures their rightful place in the field of entertainment—that of dignified, worthy and thoughtful presentations of subjects of universal human interest, capably acted and lavishly produced.

UNICORN WILL OFFER $1,000 TO EXCHANGEMEN FOR BIGGEST SALE SCORE

The first gun announcing the entrance into the film field of the Unicorn Service was sounded but a month ago. In the short period of four weeks this new organization has established itself in every part of the country.

General Manager Ike Schlank in reviewing the situation, said: "I am particularly pleased with the manner in which the Unicorn Service has been received by the exhibitors.

"I have endeavored to muster a selling organization that would be fully acquainted with the needs of the exhibitors in their respective territories, and I feel very confident that my efforts have been fruitful.

"To encourage the exchange men to keep up the good work that they did during the first four weeks, and to give them an incentive to put forth even a greater amount of energy during the month to come, I have arranged to offer a prize of $1,000 in gold to the exchange man showing the largest increase in business.

"A territorial schedule has been arranged. This schedule will take into consideration the possibilities of securing business in the various territories. In this way each exchangeman will have equal chances and a lively contest is bound to result."

LAUNCHING OF THE MUTUAL FILM COMPANY'S "SUBMARINE" SET FOR MAY 22

The Mutual Film Corporation has announced the postponed release of "The Secret of the Submarine" for May 22.

Mr. Justice Hotchkiss in the Supreme Court of New York decided that the injunction should not be issued in the event that bond be furnished to protect the plaintiff, Mr. Barry, in the event that the final judgment after trial on the merits of the suit should determine whether he was entitled to recover damages. Bond has been furnished by the American Film Company.

The publication of the syndicated novel version of the story by E. Alexander Powell has been begun in several hundred newspapers.

EVA UNSELL ON WAY WEST TO JOIN LASKY

Eva Unsell, well known scenario writer and continuity editor, for a long period with Famous Players and other feature companies, left New York last week for Hollywood, Cal., to join the photodramatic staff of the Lasky Company.

Miss Unsell has to her credit a number of screen successes, among them adaptations for "The Man from Mexico," "Wildflower," "The Morals of Marcus," and "The Dawn of a Tomorrow." Her original photoplays include "The Warning," "The Ransom" and "The Reapers."

WEST, INCE STUDIOS, TAKES FIRST VACATION IN SIX YEARS

Raymond B. West, the oldest subordinate of the Ince Culver City studios in point of association with Ince, is off on his first vacation of a month since he first accepted employment under Ince, six years ago. Mr. West is spending the time on a boat trip to and from the Orient.

Making of Pictures Is Vitagraph's Only Aim, Say Officers

Deny Newspaper Rumor That Company Intends to Operate Chain of Drug and Tobacco Stores and Theatres—Hampton, Vreeland and Ryan Enter Corporation

OFFICIALS of the new Vitagraph Company of America, chartered May 16 at Albany under the laws of the State of New York, and capitalized at $25,000,000, deny emphatically newspaper statements to the effect that the company will operate a chain of drug stores, tobacco shops and theatres throughout the United States.

"This report is absolutely unfounded," said Commodore J. Stuart Blackton, vice president and secretary of the company, to a representative of MOTION PICTURE NEWS. "It is evidently a myth that the newspapers eagerly seized upon as reliable. The Vitagraph Company is a picture company solely and has nothing to do with the distribution of drugs and tobacco.

"Ever since the recapitalization of the company, reports have been circulating to the effect that Vitagraph intends invading other fields of trade. The company is emphatic in its denial of these rumors. The recapitalization was effected so that we might produce more and better pictures. Our program, as to short subjects, features and specials, will be doubled before long."

It is also announced that the new Vitagraph will not be a distributing organization. It wil confine itself to the production of pictures exclusively. It will continue to release its features through the V-L-S-E, Inc., and its program pictures through the General Film Company. The new concern does not involve any of the other producing companies which release through the V-L-S-E.

The new organization was chartered under the name of the Smith-Blackton Company, with a capitalization of $25,000,000, divided into $10,000,000 seven per cent preferred stock, and $15,000,000 common stock. There is an additional $1,000,000 first mortgage six per cent one to five-year notes. Hornblower and Weeks, a Wall street brokerage firm, announces that they have purchased the entire issue of notes. None of the stock is to be offered to the public.

Immediately upon the issuance of the charter, the company took over all properties of the old Vitagraph organization in the United States, England, and France. The properties in this country include the Vitagraph studios in Brooklyn, Bay Shore, and Santa Monica.

After the charter was issued the Smith-Blackton Company changed the name automatically to the Vitagraph Company of America, with the following officers and directors:

Albert E. Smith, president and treasurer; J. Stuart Blackton, vice-president and secretary. The directors are: Albert E. Smith, J. Stuart Blackton, H. H. Vreeland, formerly president of the Metropolitan Street Railways Company; Clendenin J. Ryan, son of Thomas Fortune Ryan; Benjamin B. Hampton, a vice-president of the American Tobacco Company, and Walter W. Irwin, general manager of the V-L-S-E.

A further denial of newspaper reports regarding the new company was telegraphed to all exchanges managers of the V-L-S-E by General Manager Irwin. It reads as follows:

"Absolutely contradict the ridiculous story that the Vitagraph Company intends to establish its own theatres and go into the exhibiting end of the business. Such stories are void of foundation and contrary to the history of the past, present and future policy of the company."

Vim Companies to Come Up from Jacksonville in June

Burstein, Managing Director, Is in New York Conferring with His Partner, Dintenfass, Regarding Summer Plans of the Four Producing Organizations

LOUIS BURSTEIN, managing director of Vim comedies, arrived in New York from Jacksonville, Fla., last Thursday to confer with his partner, Mark M. Dintenfass, regarding the summer plans of the four Vim producing companies.

The companies will leave the Jacksonville studios early in June and will spend the summer months in a studio near New York. Mr. Burstein and Mr. Dintenfass have several studios and locations under consideration, and the matter will be decided within a few days. The directors engaged in production under the supervision of Louis Burstein are: Harry C. Myers, director and co-star with Rosemary Theby; Walter H. Stull, of the "Pokes and Jabbs" comedies; Will Louis, directing Hardy and Ruge in the "Plump and Runt" series; Harry Naughton and Bert Tracy.

Mr. Burstein waxed optimistic in speaking of the market for Vim comedies. He said:

"I hear a lot of talk about over-production, but I am here to say that there never has been, and never can be, an over-production of quality films. So much footage is being turned out at present that the picture of high quality shines out like a star of the first magnitude. And as the exhibitor has the advantage of the market, he is in a position to reject what he does not want and take only the best—something he has not always been able to do. The consequence is that Vim comedies are going strong, and we are ready to increase our output whenever the demand is made."

Mr. Burstein brought with him a number of films, just completed at the Jacksonville studios, which will probably be exhibited privately before a selected audience of exhibitors and exchange managers.

PARAMOUNT PROGRAM FOR WEEK OF JUNE 5

Completing the Paramount Program for the week of June 5, the three short reel subjects will be the eighteenth of the Burton Holmes Travel-pictures, "Visiting the Sultan of Sulu," Paul Terry's "Farmer Al Falfa's Tentless Circus," and the weekly edition of the screen magazine, the Pictographs.

LINCOLN IS NOW A WORLD FILM STAR IN WORK UNDER THORNBY

E. K. Lincoln, one of the youngest photoplay stars and until recently the head and principal star in the concern producing under the E. K. Lincoln banner, joined forces with the World Film Corporation last week and will begin under the direction of Robert Thornby at the Paragon Studio.

Lincoln's first production will be entitled "The Almighty Dollar," and in the production he will have as fellow players Frances Nelson, last seen in "Human Driftwood," and June Elvidge, whose work in "The Hand of Peril" and "The Closed Road" created a favorable impression upon picturegoers.

For years Mr. Lincoln was the leading male star with the Lubin concern, located at Philadelphia. When features became a vogue, immediately Lincoln demanded that he be cast for long subjects, being quick in seeing the advantage and looking into the future, and so certain was he of the success of the multiple reel that he incorporated his own company and produced several highly successful features, including "The Littlest Rebel."

TODD AND MISS JOSLIN FOR ROLIN FILM COMPANY

Los Angeles, May 20.

Manager D. Whiting of the Rolin Film Company, has seen fit to increase the stock company by the addition of Harry Todd and Margaret Joslin, late of the Essanay which produced Snakeville comedies. This action on the part of Manager Whiting is spoken of at the studio as the first step toward the organization of the second producing company, which will make comedies for Pathe. Others of the regular company are Harold Lloyd, Bebe Daniels and Harry Pollard.

DAVIS TAKES 40 FOX PLAYERS TO SAVANNAH

Director Will S. Davis has taken about forty Fox players to Savannah, Ga., to make a picture in which Virginia Pearson will be the star. The picture will be a multiple reel subject with a strong dramatic theme, it is said.

Chasm Between Lowbrows and Highbrows Bridged at Last

Missing Brain Link Between Harvard Professor and the Gent With the Twilight Dome Is To Be Supplied by Pictographs on Paramount Release, Its Editor Declares

"THAT world-old gap between the 'highbrow' and the 'lowbrow' has been bridged at last. The missing brain link between the Harvard professor and the man of the masses is to be supplied by motion pictures in the weekly Pictograph releases of the Paramount Pictures Corporation."

So declares the editor of the weekly Pictograph features.

Not the least of the claims which its editor makes for the Pictograph is this—that the book-loving public which has hitherto spent its evenings in an easy chair beside the library reading lamp with some favorite periodical is now found in the audience of motion picture houses.

"The Pictograph is going into subjects which heretofore, of necessity, have been closed books to the people," he asserts. "Three years ago I declared that Harvard professors would be writing scenarios for motion pictures. My prediction came true when Professor Hugo Munsterberg started his psychological tests in the Pictograph releases. Professors at Harvard and Yale have been propounding new ideas for years. The masses have usually scoffed at them because they did not understand what the college man was talking about. Intellectually, the world has been divided into two classes—the 'highbrows' and the 'lowbrows.' The Pictograph will bring these two brows together as they have never been able to get together before.

"The possibilities of the Pictograph can be developed so that it will become one of the greatest influences in the world," he continued. "Hitherto much of the best thought has been accessible only to those who had access to colleges and universities or to those who are constant readers of the highest class of magazines. Motion pictures are going to reach a far larger audience than magazines and newspapers ever can. Pictograph releases—the first attempt ever made to take up various important subjects in such a manner—will take up all the important topics of the day and show both sides of the question, so that the day laborer in the small country town will be just as conversant with it as the college graduate.

"There must be something in motion pictures which will take the place of the magazines. The Pictograph fills this need, but it appeals, not to the more or less limited public of the magazine, but to an universal audience. Our policies on news are to be sharply defined. We will picturize subjects uppermost in the minds of the people as we have done in the Preparedness films, which have attracted national interest, and in the Better Babies' releases, which are attracting the attention of every mother."

"Fall of a Nation" Will Get New York Premiere at Liberty

Date Is Set for June 6 in the Same House Occupied by the "Birth of a Nation"—National Drama Company, Marketing the Film, Takes Offices in Heidelberg Building

THE National Drama Corporation will present Thomas Dixon and Victor Herbert's musical film spectacle, "The Fall of a Nation," for the first time on any stage Tuesday evening, June 6, at the Liberty theatre, New York. The playhouse is the same at which the Griffith-Dixon spectacle, "The Birth of a Nation," was first presented March 3, 1915. Mr. Dixon has described the new offering as a sequel to the earlier work.

The alterations now making at the Liberty by the new management will include some striking new changes in the technique of picture presentation. Original costumes for the attaches will be in keeping with the atmosphere of the play. The complete grand orchestra for Victor Herbert's musical score is now being drilled by its conductor, Harold Sanford, under the personal supervision of Mr. Herbert himself.

About two weeks later than the New York opening, namely, on Monday, June 19, "The Fall of a Nation" will be presented in Los Angeles. Clune's Auditorium has been leased for the summer, and a production rivaling the one in New York will be made. The Los Angeles orchestra will be directed by Harold A. Levy, one of the most valued members of the Victor Herbert musical staff. Mr. Levy has directed "The Only Girl" and many other Herbert operettas. He was extremey popular as the conductor of the big band at Brighton Beach last summer.

While continuing to occupy its offices at 720 Longacre Building for promotion and booking purposes, the National Drama Corporation has taken a large executive suite in the Subway Central (formerly the Heiledberg) Building on the south side of Times Square. Here the offices of the president, vice president, secretary and treasurer will be located. The corporation expects to utilize the exterior for a great electrical display.

Next Few Months Will Bring Five Features with Miss Holmes

"Whispering Smith," by Spearman, Is First of These Productions—"Medicine Bend" Follows—Others Are "Manager of the B. & A." and "Diamond Runner"

FIVE feature productions, starring Helen Holmes, directed by J. P. McGowan and produced at the Signal studios, will be released in the next few months by Mutual.

"Whispering Smith," from the novel of railroad life by Frank H. Spearman, will be the first of these productions. The release date will be announced shortly. McGowan, Leo Maloney, Paul C. Hurst, Thomas G. Ingham, Belle Hutchinson, Walter Rodgers, and others appear in support of Miss Holmes.

Subseqeunt features will be released under the following titles, and in the order named: "Medicine Bend," another railroad story, with members of the "Whispering Smith" company recast for important supporting roles; "The Manager of the B. & A.", from Vaughn Kester's story of the same name; "Judith of the Cumberlands," a picturization of Alice McGowan's story of the South and West of several decades ago, and "The Diamond Runner," based on the illicit diamond trade in South Africa. Each will be in five acts.

To secure the proper realism for "The Diamond Runner," Director McGowan will take the company to Hawaii, where they will be engaged for several weeks in filming big exterior scenes. The itinerary also calls for a jaunt to Japan and the Philippines.

HOOSIER POET IN THE INDIANA HISTORICAL FILM

James Whitcomb Riley recently posed for motion pictures at his home in Indianapois, Ind. The picture was made under the direction of the Indiana Historical Commission, by the Selig Polyscope Company, which is making films to commemorate the history of Indiana as a State.

When Mr. Riley returned from his morning automobile ride he found a battery of cameras and also a small army of children from homes where the poet is known as a friend. The Indiana Centennial Picture is nearing completion under the direction of the Selig Company.

Pictures Magazine, 100,000 Readers, Is Distinctive

Publication Issued Weekly and Now in Its Eighth Month Reaches Notable Circulation Achievement Under Direction of James and Crawford

THE PICTURES MAGAZINE, a weekly publication devoted to motion pictures and their activities, which started about seven months ago with a circulation of approximately 100,000, has now reached and passed the million mark. The marvelously rapid growth of this publication's circulation is a most notable achievement, and is much discussed in screen and magazine circles.

Arthur James, the editor of the Pictures Magazine, explains, in a word, the cause of the magazine's enormous growth in such a short space of time. He says that motion pictures are the entertainment of the masses and that next to seeing motion pictures the public likes to read about them. He declares it has been the aim of the Pictures Magazine to present each week a variety of stories, well balanced with artistic photographic layouts and illustrations. Mr. James' editorials are always pointed and written in a style all his own. Merritt Crawford, formerly managing editor of MOTION PICTURE NEWS, and before that connected with several New York daily newspapers and other publications, is the managing editor of the Pictures Magazine. Mr. Crawford was a frequent contributor of fiction and special articles to the leading magazines before he directed his talents to the motion picture field. For a time, also, he was associated with Mr. James in an executive capacity on the Sunday Magazine section of the Morning Telegraph.

Arrangements have been completed for a noteworthy series of articles from the pens of the foremost artists now appearing on the screen. These will include a group of personal stories written by Mabel Taliaferro, who was the first recognized stage star to venture into motion pictures.

Another series will be from the pen of Viola Dana, who will be best remembered by theatre-goers for her excellent performance in "The Poor Little Rich Girl," the most successful play on Broadway three years ago. May Allison will also contribute a series, written in her best style. Mme. Petrova will have a series of articles, presenting her advanced ideas on a host of subjects including "Feminism."

There will also be special features from time to time by Francis X. Bushman, who will also contribute a series of articles on physical culture of which he is one of the foremost exponents on the screen; Harold Lockwood, Lionel Barrymore, Ethel Barrymore, Emily Stevens, William Faversham, Irene Fenwick, Ralph Herz, Grace Valentine and other well known stars.

The regular contributors to the Pictures Magazine include Townsend Black, Duane J. Kertyn, Lloyd Llewellyn, Eileen Mack, Tom J. Geraghty, Janet Priest, and other writers of distinction. Miss Priest is a well known contributor to the magazines and was formery dramatic critic on the Minneapolis Tribune. She has also had considerable experience on the stage. Mr. Geraghty is a former member of the New York Herald staff, and worked for seven years on both the daily and Sunday Herald.

Lambert Guenther, formerly art director of the New York Tribune, and counted one of the best artists in this country, is art director of the Pictures Magazine, which is a guarantee of its artistic quality. Henry James, formerly with the Mutual Film Corporation and who has been connected with several successful magazine enterprises, is business manager of the magazine. He is a brother of Arthur James, the editor, who was formerly Sunday Editor of the New York Telegraph.

Benefit Performance at Metropolitan Nets $9,000 for Fund

Next Event in Canvass for the $500,000 Endowment Will Be Actors' Fund Week at Rialto Theatre, New York, Beginning June 5—25 Per Cent. of Proceeds for Indigent Players

Marguerite Courtot, the Gaumont Star, and the Thanhouser Girls Who Sold Programs for the Actors' Fund Tribute Performance at the Metropolitan

THE grand tribute performance held last week at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, netted $9,000 for the Motion Picture Campaign for the Actors Fund. The next event of importance in the canvass for the $500,000 endowment will be an "Actors Fund Week," beginning June 5, at the Rialto theatre, with elaborate special features. Twenty-five per cent of the proceeds will be donated to the campaign.

The returns from the percentage donations of exhibitors all over the country on May 15 are coming in slowly and it will be some time before Samuel Goldfish, executive chairman, will be ready to announce the total. The day was observed with great gusto in many parts of the country. Aaron Jones, chairman of the Chicago branch committee, lined up nearly 400 theatres in that city and vicinity. Ten per cent of their receipts will be sent to the Fund. John Kunsky, the big Detroit theatre owner, came on personally from the West to confer with Mr. Goldfish about the celebrations in his district and took back with him on a special train a delegation of screen favorites, including Clara Kimball Young, Carlyle Blackwell, Emmy Wehlen, Valli Valli and Alice Brady.

In New York screen stars made personal appearances at the principal film theatres during the evening. Hazel Dawn appeared at the Strand and Fannie Ward and Jack Dean at the Broadway. Other stars, who appeared at other theatres, were received with equal acclaim by their admirers.

The event at the Metropolitan attracted a great crowd. The offerings ranged from Puccini to Berlin in music, and from Bernard Granville to Edna May in the specialties. Geraldine Farrar, the principal attraction, sang the second act of "Madame Butterfly," assisted by Antonio Scotti, Rita Fornia, Angelo Bada, and Pietro Audisio. Georgio Polacco, with the full Metropolitan orchestra, acompanied all the operatic selections. Others who appeared were Anna Fritziu, Leopold Godowsky, Fritz Kreiser, Andrea de Segurola and Louisa Villani.

There were several beautiful ballet numbers, including the appearance of Eva Swain, former premiere danseuse at the Metropolitan. Annette Kellermann did a novelty dance, and Edna May sang her famous "Follow On" song from the Belle of New York." A bevy of young women of the screen, many of them from the Thanhouser studios at New Rochelle, sold programs.

The success of the huge benefit was acknowledged by all who were present.

BRADY PLEASED WITH TRIP

William A. Brady made another flying trip to the various Metropolitan centers between New York and Chicago, returning here Thursday. He visited a large number of important picture theatres, studying conditions, sizing up audiences, interviewing house managers and operators, and in general, reports a satisfactory trip.

His presence at Chicago was essential because of the opening of Grace George in her repertoire, and the third big week at the Colonial theatre of World, Brady-Made Pictures.

Unity Buys Rights to " The Yellow Menace " from Serial Film

Picture Featuring Edwin Stevens Is in Sixteen Chapters and Deals with Helplessness of America if at War with an Oriental Power Under Present Conditions

THROUGH negotiations conducted by Vice-President and General Manager Andrew J. Cobe, the Unity Sales Corporation has purchased a new serial, entitled "The Yellow Menace," written by Louis Tracy, and produced by the Serial Film Corporation under the direction of William Steiner. Edwin Stevens is the star.

"The Yellow Menace," which is in sixteen chapters, deals with the helplessness of America under the present conditions to combat an Oriental foe. In support of Mr. Stevens appear Margaret Gale, Florence Malone, Gerald Griffin, Marie Trendor, Armand Cortez and J. A. Hall. The scenes range from China to New York, and are said to employ in their enactment hundreds of people.

Edwin Stevens in " The Yellow Menace "

Mr. Cobe announces that rights to the picture in practically every territory in the country have been disposed of. The novelized version of "The Yellow Menace" will appear in eleven hundred newspapers simultaneously with its screening.

Florence La Badie Featured in New Role in " The Fugitive "

Subject is Set for Release on June 15—Second Thanhouser Classic for the Month is " Hidden Valley," by Emmet Mixx, Who Recently Joined the Staff

JUNE will find the new plans of the Thanhouser Company well under way and the release list will bear the evidence. The program will carry two Thanhouser Classics, the first releases of the new feature edition.

The first of these is " The Fugitive " on June 15. This features Florence La Badie in a new role, supported by Ethyle Cooke, Hector Dion, George Marlo and Robert Vaughn. In this title role, Director Frederick Sullivan has woven Miss La Badie's art with a tense series of incidents, from the pen of Philip Lonergan. From a society girl reared in luxury she suddenly faces financial difficulty and later becomes involved in a murder committed by her sister.

The second Classic comes at the end of June, on the twenty-ninth. This is " Hidden Valley " written by Emmet Mixx, who recently joined the New Rochelle organization. It is an entirely different production from " The Fugitive " and indicates the scope of variety that may be expected from the Classics. The Baroness Dewitz, known to the screen as Valkyrien, is featured, with Boyd Marshall as her main support. Made in Florida, the picturization of the interior of Africa is treated with unusual realism by Ernest Warde, who directed the production. The Baroness is the prisoner of a tribe of savages who hold her for a ritual sacrifice. The plot revolves around a drought in the fertile valley which Boyd Marshall stumbles across in his adventures in the Belgian Congo country. He discovers the problem to be one of engineering instead of Divine interference and he manipulates matters so that he becomes a demi-god among the natives and eventually departs for civilization, taking the beautiful captive with him.

Another five-reel release, although not a Classic, is " Other People's Money," on June 1. This is by Lloyd Lonergan, inspired by Emil Gaboriau's story. Directed by William Parke, magnetic little Gladys Hulette takes up another piece of work that explains her rapid rise to stardom. Miss Hulette, has the role of a girl whose fate is to be buffeted about on the waves of high finance. Fraunie Fraunholt, J. H. Gilmour, Yale Benner and Kathryn Adams are in the supporting cast.

The shorter releases from New Rochelle introduce " A Flaw in the Evidence," " Brothers Equal," " John Brewster's Wife " and " The Window of Dreams," all two-reelers except the last, which is in three.

In the comedies, Riley Chamberlin's series, where he stars as Conductor 786, will begin to issue on the seventeenth of June. The Oscar and Conrad edition, in which Claude Cooper and Frank E. McNish cut up, will be released under these unique titles " Real Estaters," " Musickers " and " Romeoers."

SOCIETY FOLK TO SEE MISS YOUNG IN " COMMON LAW "

A private showing of Clara Kimball Young's production of the Robert W. Chambers novel, " The Common Law," will be given to society folk of New York in the Italian Gardens of the Hotel Biltmore this summer. The date will be governed by the progress of the work of producing the picture, which will begin in July.

The hotel management is arranging to engage a symphony orchestra to render the musical accompaniment to the picture. Miss Young and Mr. Chambers will be present.

DE MILLE LEAVES COAST FOR 3-WEEK STAY IN EAST

Special to Motion Picture News.

Los Angeles, May 13.

William C. DeMille departed Tuesday for a trip of three weeks in the east. He will spend a week in New York City. It is understood Mr. deMille's trip is made to attend conferences relative to the merger of other producing companies with the Triangle Film Corporation.

ADELAIDE WOODS JOINS PALLAS PICTURES

Adelaide Woods, known among patrons of the screen through her portrayal of the character leads, has been engaged by Pallas Pictures to appear in important roles.

Miss Woods has appeared on the screen some three years, having been identified with Biograph for two years. After six months with Balboa she returned to Biograph, where she remained until the closing of the West Coast studio of that concern. Her greatest work on the screen was evidenced in "Paths That Crossed" in which she scored a personal triumph. Preceding her affiliation with motion pictures Miss Woods played on the concert stage in so many successes for four years.

Adelaide Woods

As Mrs. Cleave in "The American Beauty" a forthcoming Pallas Pictures subject starring Myrtle Stedman, Miss Woods will make her initial appearance before patrons of theatres showing Paramount productions. In this character she is given a particularly difficult part.

NIECE OF SECRETARY DANIELS SIGNS WITH THANHOUSER

Unknown to but a few of her intimate friends Louise Daniels Wirth, niece of Josephus Daniels, secretary of the navy and prominently connected with the social and diplomatic life of Washington, has become a motion picture star. Miss Wirth, who was engaged by the Thanhouser-Mutual studios several months ago, after negotiations extending over several weeks, will make her premier as a cinema player in "For Uncle Sam's Navy," a two-part drama to be released by the Mutual Film Corporation the latter part of this month.

TAYLOR RESIGNS FROM WORLD FILM

S. E. V. Taylor, who has been producing some of the successes on the World Film program, resigned this week from the World organization and the resignation was accepted with regrets by Mr. William A. Brady.

For the past several weeks, Mr. Taylor has been directing Clara Kimball Young. Among some of the best known of his late productions are Miss Young in "The Story of Susanne," Charles Cherry and Mary Charleson in "Passers By" and Mollie McIntyre in "Her Great Hour."

Mr. Taylor said that he would shortly announce what his future plans would be. In the interim he is going to take a much deserved vacation.

SECRETARY OF WAR BAKER PRAISES "HOW GREAT BRITAIN PREPARED"

"A most wonderful set of motion pictures. I have never seen any more interesting. It has been a most instructive as well as entertaining evening for me, as I am sure it must have been for every one else present."

So Secretary of War Baker expressed himself when he saw the British official war films entitled "How Great Britain Prepared," made under the direction of Charles Urban, which were presented to the American public for the first time last week in Washington, D. C.

"The most impressive object lesson that could be offered in behalf of Preparedness!" was the comment of Admiral Chester who made an address on Preparedness at the recent showing of the picture.

These are the motion pictures which will be shown for the first time in New York on Monday evening, May 29, at the Lyceum theatre.

HUNTER IS FOX LEAD FOR BERTHA KALICH

Kenneth Hunter, an actor whose work in the Amelia Rives play, "The Fear Market," has attracted much attention in New York and other parts of the East, has joined the Fox organization and become leading man with Madame Kalich in her newest picture, now being made by Director James Vincent.

PARAMOUNT PROTEST TAKES IN MIDDLE WEST

Los Angeles, May 20.

The Paramount Pictures Corporation's idea of circulating a "motion picture protest," has made quite an impression in the middle west. In a talk at a recent convention of ministers and laymen at Osceola, Ia., the campaign of the Paramount Corporation for better, bigger and cleaner pictures was mentioned favorably by a speaker, and at a meeting of the Council Bluffs Christian Endeavor union the same campaign was mentioned. Stuart C. Wigg, president of a similar union in Omaha, Neb., at a convention a few days ago remarked about the big advertisements the concern was running in the World-Herald, an Omaha newspaper.

"We are talking about censoring the motion picture theatres, while right here is a chance for us to do our part," he said. "We may not be able to declare what pictures shall or shall not be shown in this or that theatre, but we can all sign this protest and show we will support such a movement." A number of the young people declared their intention to sign the protest.

Omaha film men said this method of the picture makers themselves promoting better and cleaner pictures would do more than anything else toward heading off censorship.

GADEN IS PICKED AS STAR IN GAUMONT SERIES OF 3-REEL RELEASES

Alexander Gaden has been selected by the Gaumont Company to star in its series of three-reel releases, the first of which is "Armadale," a screen version of Wilkie Collins' novel of the same name. Gertrude Robinson will co-star with Mr. Gaden whenever the scenario provides a part suitable for her.

Alexander Gaden

Mr. Gaden has been seen in several Gaumont-Mutuals, among them "As a Woman Sows," "The Drifter," "I Accuse" and "The Quality of Faith."

KOPFSTEIN WILL AGAIN HANDLE IVAN PUBLICITY

Jacques Kopfstein, the advertising expert who was in charge of the publicity and advertising department of the Ivan Film Productions from the re-organization of that company to about six weeks ago when he resigned, has again accepted the incumbency of that office.

GILMORE REPRESENTS MELIES IN EAST

W. J. Gilmore, former manager of the Twenty-third street branch of the General Film Company, has been appointed Eastern representative of the Melies Manufacturing Company, and will make a tour of the Eastern states in behalf of Knickerbocker Star Features and Vim comedies. Mr. Gilmore left New York on Friday, carrying with him sample prints of several forthcoming productions.

Mr. Gilmore's experience in film marketing extends over fourteen years. Graduating into the General Film Company from successful management of a chain of theatres, he entered the Twenty-third street branch and worked his way up until he became assistant manager. His assumption of the management of the branch was marked by a large increase in the volume of business done.

EDMONDS MAKES TRIP TO KLEINE'S SEATTLE OFFICE

William Edmonds, who has established exchanges on the Pacific Coast for George Kleine, is making a trip to Seattle to inspect the branch opened there a few weeks ago. The headquarters at San Francisco are finished and releases are now being made.

Money Level of Scenarioists with Dramatists Realized

Dixon, Whose "Fall of a Nation" Opens in New York on June 6, Will Pay Royalties to Author Furnishing Script of a Theme Warranting Picturization by His Company

WITH the production of his new picture, "The Fall of a Nation," at the Liberty theatre in New York, on June 6, Thomas Dixon, jr., will add the role of producing manager to the others in his remarkably versatile career. Preacher, author, novelist, playwright, scenario-writer and director, Mr. Dixon has also taken executive charge of the National Drama Corporation, which not only has produced the "Fall of a Nation," but aims to produce other vital photodramas, provided they can be found.

The "Fall of a Nation" is based on the serial of the same name, by Mr. Dixon, which has been running for several months in a number of newspapers. It has been altered, adapted to the screen, and fitted with a prologue which is described as a remarkable reel in itself, furnishing the key to the entire drama.

"The Fall of a Nation" is not only historical, but looks into the future, and writes a vivid warning to complacent America of the dangers which threaten it from the outside. It might be described as a sequel to Mr. Dixon's "Birth of a Nation" which New York first saw a little more than a year ago, and which is still showing to great audiences in many parts of this country and Europe.

Mr. Dixon, this week, told MOTION PICTURE NEWS something of his plans regarding this new picture, as well as the aims of the National Drama Corporation.

"Our program is built on a unique idea," he said. "The idea is that we will do one great play at a time, whenever we have the play. If we don't find such a play we don't produce. Our studios in Los Angeles are closed at the moment; but we are looking for a good play by some other author. Personally I want a little rest from writing, and if we can find a play with a big, vital dramatic idea, we will produce it; all our producing will be on the basis of a royalty to the author. We are not manufacturing film; we are producing plays with the cinema as the means of artistic expression.

"Our aim is to combine the cinema with the highest form of musical accompaniment, and every piece we produce will be furnished with original music, prepared especially for it. By this I mean a high type of orchestration, without voices or other theatrical adjuncts. I believe the attempt to combine the picture with other features of the theatre, aside from instrumental music, is a mistake.

"As regards the 'Fall of a Nation,' we have been working on the picture in California since April. A few scenes were taken in Boston, but out in our Hollywood studios we have reconstructed many New York streets, and in the surrounding country have found landscapes which represent well the scenery of Long Island. We have taken 270,000 feet of negative, but the picture as presented will run about 11,500 feet. A great deal of naval material which we photographed has been thrown out as unessential.

"We have made a number of spectacular scenes, but in this play I am depending on the dynamic quality of the ideas rather than on spectacles or tricks of photography. The first reel of the play is a prologue, detailing the origin of the American republic. This covers the period between 1620 and 1905; it shows the causes which led the settlers to these shores from Engand and other European countries, and I believe it will teach more American history in fifteen minutes than the average schoolboy picks up in his whole course.

"I am aiming at a new effect in this prologue; it is to color the minds of the audience so they can only see the play through the perspective of this historical review. The balance of the play is laid in the present and the future.

"Victor Herbert has written 1,285 pieces of original music for the production. He will conduct the orchestra at the New York opening, and after that the direction will be in charge of Henry Sanford.

"Another word regarding our future productions. Any play with a big dynamic idea, without regard to its location or period, is what we want. A play that's worth a man's time to produce will be given a production; no other can be considered."

The Generals for May 29-June 3 Effervesce with Comedy

"A Bunch of Flivvers" Suggests Anything But a Serious Picture, While There Is a Serious (and Probably Successful) Attempt to Be Funny in "Pickles and Diamonds"

GENERAL Film Service during the week of May 29-June 3 offers abundance of comedy.

Beginning Monday, May 29, Selig releases "The Hare and the Tortoise," in which Fritzi Brunette is featured. "The Rich Idler," a Vitagraph comedy precedes "The House With Closed Shutters," a Biograph drama; and Lubin's "Frilby Frilled," a comedy, and the Selig-Tribune News Service adds to the day's program.

Essanay, Tuesday, offers an all star two reel drama; Kalem suppies a comedy, "A Bunch of Flivvers," and Lubin strengthens the day's releases with "The Final Payments," a two reel drama. Edison provides "Helen of the Chorus," featuring Sally Crute and Herbert Pryor.

"A Smokey Adventure," Kalem, is the first offering Wednesday. Essanay provides a one reel drama that remains to be christened and Edison supplies a one reel comedy. Biograph releases a three part drama "Woman Against Woman." The gentler sex is again represented in the feature of the day a Biograph release in five parts, "The Woman in Black." In this, Lionel Barrymore and Millicent Evans have stellar roles.

Lubin for Thursday offers "The Code of the Hills," in three parts. Vim comes forward with "Schemers," a comedy, reinforced by the Selig-Tribune animated news of the day.

"Shadows," a three part Knickerbocker Star Feature ushers in the Friday program, with "Sis, the Detective," a Kalem comedy of the "Sis Hopkins" series as a follow-up. "The Lonelies," by Vitagraph, and "The Land Lubber" by Vim, each a one reel comedy, will be given to the public.

For Saturday, Essanay provides a three part drama, "Our People," featuring Bryant Washburn; Lubin comes forward with a one-reel comedy, "Pickles and Diamonds." Vitagraph adds to the day's program with "Carew and Son," in which Charles Kent is starred. Then follows an episode of Kalem's "Hazards of Helen" series, entitled "The Spiked Switch." The week will be closed with the Selig one part drama "Crooked Trails."

SALLY CRUTE PLAYS ROLE OF VAMPIRE TOO FICKLE TO BE PLEASED WITH ANYBODY

Sally Crute, for several years a leading portrayer of heavy roles with the Edison Company, has just completed her first picture under the Ivan banner. It is entitled "Her Husband's Wife."

Miss Crute appears as a vampire, who deceives not only her husband and her lover, but also proves false to her second husband. Co-starring with Miss Crute are Mignon Anderson and Augustus Phillips. In the supporting cast are Edward Mackey, William Bechtel and Brinsley Shaw.

HERE'S "THE ANSWER" ABOUT THAT THANHOUSER PICTURE

Through an error, a Thanhouser drama entitled "The Answer" was advertised as being in one reel instead of two. This production is the first release of Emmet Mixx, the popular short-story writer who has just joined the Thanhouser scenario staff.

STOP AND LOOK AT FOX, THEN "LISTEN" FOR HIM IN "GASOLINE GALLOPER," INTERNATIONAL

Harry Fox, fresh from his triumph in "Stop, Look and Listen," is making his debut as a screen star in a two-reel comedy entitled "The Gasoline Galloper." This is the first episode of a series of comedies in which Mr. Fox is to be starred, the series to be called "What Happened to Harry." They will be released by the International Film Service.

Cortlandt Van Deusen, who is directing Mr. Fox, has found that comedian has taken as readily to screen work as a duck to water.

Harry Fox

The International Film Service has engaged a supporting company to assist Mr. Fox, including Mabel Morrison, who was with him in "Stop, Look and Listen," Albert Riccardi and numerous other well-known players.

COBB GIVES SPECIAL SHOWING OF RAY COMEDIES

Under the direction of C. Lang Cobb, Jr., whose offices are in the Columbia Theatre Building, New York, a special showing of the first four Ray comedies was given to a selected audience at the Broadway theatre, May 22. Johnny Ray, the noted comedian of the vaudeville circuits, appeared in person, and spoke from the stage, giving a number of incidents connected with the production of the comedies at the new Cleveland studios.

Both Mr. Ray and his comedies were enthusiastically received by an audience of several hundred persons. The comedies shown were "Casey's Dream," "Casey's Kids," "Casey's Servants," and "Casey the White Wing." These are to be released at the rate of one a week to exchanges all over the country. Mr. Cobb, who is head of the Reserve Photoplays Company, is distributing the films direct to exchanges, and is not dealing with individual exhibitors.

MORRISON HOTEL HEADQUARTERS FOR CHICAGO REEL FELLOWS

The "get together" meeting of the Reel Fellows' Club, held at the Morrison Hotel, Chicago, Thursday evening, May 18, was a very successful one from the standpoint of the enthusiasm shown by those present. After the dinner, future plans of the club were discussed, and it was decided to make the Morrison Hotel the headquarters.

Two large rooms on Floor B have been donated by the management of the hotel to the club, and these will be fitted up for its exclusive use. The secretary had on hand ten new applications for membership, which will be passed upon at the next meeting of the board of governors.

SPECIAL MEETING OF FILM MEN IN CINCINNATI CALLED

Special to Motion Picture News.

Cincinnati, May 20.

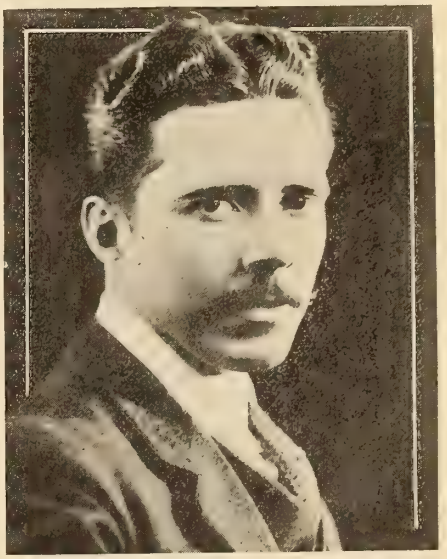
A special meeting of all exhibitors of the Cincinnati district to consider certain phases of censorship, which may culminate in an alignment of forces to take an active part in a state-wide campaign has been called by President F. L. Emmert of the Motion Picture Exhibitors League of the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce, for May 22. The members of the league have been making a strenuous endeavor to secure better films. Max Stern, president of the Motion Picture Exhibitors League of Ohio has been invited to attend this meeting.

POWERS JOINS "MAC" AT NATIONAL DRAMA

Sanford Stanton, formerly editor of the Metropolitan Section of The World and more recently with Selwyn and Company, has joined the publicity department of the Triange Film Corporation, succeeding Wallace M. Powers. Mr. Powers, who has been associated with the Triangle since last summer, will rejoin his old chief, Henry MacMahon, at the National Drama Corporation, sponsor for the Thomas Dixon-Victor Herbert opera-cinema, "The Fall of a Nation."

S. RANKIN DREW IS YOUNGEST DIRECTOR IN CONTINUOUS EMPLOY WITH "V"

S. Rankin Drew, director for "The Suspect," a new Vitagraph Blue Ribbon, released on Monday, May 22, is the youngest director regularly employed in the direction of motion pictures in any photoplay production studio in the country.



S. Rankin Drew

A nephew of John Drew and son of Sidney Drew, S. Rankin Drew comes legitimately by his extraordinary ability in the dramatic field. Not only an actor and a director, Mr. Drew is a playwright and scenarist as well, and has been the successful author of several productions in both classes of dramatic writing.

In "The Suspect" Mr. Drew plays the part of Paul Karatoff, son of Karatoff, the military governor of Moscow. Being wounded, he is nursed by Sophie, the daughter of a nihilist, who falls in love with him, and whom he marries.

EXHIBITORS WILL BE RELIEVED OF SEAT TAX

Washington, May 20.

The Administration forces in Congress have decided to abolish the stamp and special taxes, including those which must be paid by motion picture exhibitors. The taxes will be abolished July 1. They would otherwise have expired in December by reason of statutory limitation. The theatre tax is that based on seating capacity.

FEATURES MADE BY BIG FOUR IN COOL MONTHS FOR BUSINESS IN HOT SPELL

The four companies which make up the Big Four, present for the month of June an array of features to assure exhibitors that their summer business will be up to the same standard as that of the cool months.

The four features that the Vitagraph Company has contributed to the June program, consist of the first appearance of Lucille Lee Stewart, the new Vitagraph star, in "The Destroyers," a dramatization of James Oliver Curwood's dynamic novel, "Peter God." "The Destroyers" was directed by Ralph W. Ince, and will be released in five parts.

The other Vitagraph releases will be "The Redemption of Dave Darcey," in which James Morrison is featured, and supported by Belle Bruce and Billy Billings; "Winifred, the Shop Girl," which features Edith Storey and Antonio Moreno; and "Fathers of Men," which features Robert Edeson and Naomi Childers.

Edgar Lewis has produced a drama in which Nance O'Neil is featured. "The Toilers," written by Daniel Carson Goodman, will be released in five parts.

The Selig contribution to the June program, will be a heart appealing drama, "The Valiants of Virginia," which conveys the spirit of the hospitable South to a very pronounced degree.

The Essanay release for June, features Warda Howard supported by Ernest Maupain, Duncan McRae and John Lorenz in "That Sort," a drama which gives a glimpse of the beauty of the Riviera.

IT'S ALL GRIST THAT COMES TO THE MILL OF BIG FOUR IN BOSTON

The Big Four New England exchange, George Balsdon, manager, claims the greatest diversity of buyers for their films of any exchange in the business. They sell to state prisons, reformatories, army posts, colleges, navy yards, churches, women's and civic clubs, schools, and have many other customers.

Manager Balsdon states that the prisoners at the state prison in Rhode Island are just as appreciative as are the students at Harvard, where in the preparedness course the students are allowed to take three hours a week to study evolutions of troops in close formation work with the aid of the pictures.

UNIVERSAL FILM IN KANSAS CITY STARTS A JUVENILE PERFORMANCE DEPARTMENT

Under the direction of "Marty" Williams, one of the representatives of the Universal Film and Supply Company in Kansas City, Mo., that firm is now sending out circular letters to exhibitors in that territory boosting juvenile programs, and offering such pictures as will be useful for such exhibitions. The plan adopted by the Juvenile Performance Department, as the new section pleases to call itself, is different from most plans as this in that it suggests Saturday morning shows for children.

Suggestions as to money-making schemes are included in this letter. No report is as yet available on the new move of the Universal, but it is expected that such action will be very favorably received by those concerned.

PRODUCING COMPANY ORGANIZED BY WOMEN TO MAKE "SAUL OF TARSUS," A 10-REELER

Special to Motion Picture News.

Los Angeles, May 20.

Women have invaded the film industry to the extent of organizing a producing company, owned and managed exclusively by women. It has been named The American Woman Film Company, and the first production to be made will be a ten reel feature "Saul of Tarsus." The company has been organized for several months, but production was not started until during the past week. J. Farrell Macdonald, maker of several of the Oz Company productions, and with the Biograph as director for eighteen months prior to their closing, has been engaged to direct the making of this picture.

He will have the co-operation and aid of the president, May Whitney Emerson, a writer of national reputation, Alice L. McCalden, vice president of the organization, and society women of Pasadena. The cast for the first picture includes Mabel Van Buren, Arthur Maude, P. C. Hartigan, James Warnack, Jane Star, Roxanne Roth, Frank McDonald, Sydney Dean, and Kathrine Buckingham.

EASTERN GOLD DIGGER STRIKES IT RICH IN "PAY DIRT"

"Pay Dirt," a drama of the gold fields, is announced for release by Knickerbocker Star Features on the General Fim program, June 18. This is the second five reel feature under the Knickerbocker brand, following "Spellbound," to be released May 17.

Henry King plays the leading role of a "drifter" from the East, who has staked out a claim that is coveted by Peter Gardner, an "old-timer." Gardner invokes the aid of Dick Weed, a gambler, and the two attempt to cheat the Easterner at cards. He is an inveterate gambler, but the influence of a woman, herself an outcast because of her passion for gambling, helps him to conquer himsef.

Marguerite Nichol is again cast as the female lead. Others in the cast are Mollie MacConnell, Daniel Gilfether, Gordon Sackville and Charles Dudley. Henry King, assisted by Reaves Eason, directed the production, which is from the Horkheimer studios.

LASKY'S "MARIA ROSA" WILL BE SHOWN AT DES MOINES CONVENTION

When Iowa exhibitors meet at Des Moines for the annual convention, May 22-25, the Lasky production, "Maria Rosa," in which Geraldine Farrar is starred, will be shown to them for general discussion from the standpoint of the exhibitor. A. D. Flintom, of Kansas City, distributor of Paramount pictures over a large section of the Middle West, has arranged for the showing of the photoplay at the Omaha convention of Nebraska exhibitors as well as attending to other matters.

In making "Maria Rosa" the subject of free discussion, it is believed many helpful suggestions will be made by exhibitors to one another.

"A MAN'S SOUL" FROM AMERICAN FILM ON MUTUAL PROGRAM

Two five reel dramas to be released as Mutual Masterpictures, De Luxe, two three reel features and seven two reel subjects are undergoing completion at the American studios in Santa Barbara.

The five reelers are "A Man of Soul," with Winifred Greenwood and Franklin Ritchie, and "The Guide," starring William Russell.

EDYTHE STERLING IS CAST FOR LEADING ROLE IN "NANCY'S BIRTHRIGHT"

Edythe Sterling has one of the leading roles in "Nancy's Birthright," a five part Signal-Mutual Masterpicture De Luxe, released on May 22. Miss Sterling appears as a girl who is a believer in the goodness of God, and His power to overcome all evil. The picture was produced by Murdock MacQuarrie, with Norbert A. Myles, Millard K. Wilson, Francis J. MacDonald and MacQuarrie in the cast.

Through a typographical error, the review of this picture in MOTION PICTURE NEWS last week credited the production to another manufacturer. It should have been listed, of course, as a Signal-Mutual Masterpicture De Luxe of five reels.

INTERESTING PHILIPPINE SCENES IN 16TH "BURTON HOLMES"

Views of the Philippine Archipelago are shown by Burton Holmes in the sixteenth of his "Easy Chair" journeys, "Cruising Through the Philippines to Cebu, Iloila and Zamboanga."

Through a land of contrasts this trip is made in the Coast Guard Cutter "Scout" with Uncle Sam as host. En route to Cebu the party goes ashore to see the polyglot population and American colony of Ramblon with its little land-locked harbor. Industries of the Visayans of Tacloban on the island of Leyte attract interest when the next stop is made and the games here are amusing, but the most entertaining of ports is Zamboanga on the Moro's Island of Mindanao.

EFFICIENT EMPLOYEES ARE PROMOTED BY GENERAL

Efficient employees of the General Film Company are receiving promotions for exceptional service, under the policy established by President George Kleine. H. H. Buxman, who has just been placed in charge of the New York exchange, has been with the company several years. He is promoted from the managership of the Philadelphia branch.

Announcement is also made of the promotion of C. C. Knapp to the managership of the Minneapolis office, succeeding J. T. Van Meter, resigned.

"Power of Mind," from American-Mutual, Features Coxen and Lizette Thorne; "Fate of the Dolphin" Is Sea Story

IN ADDITION to the allegorical picture featuring Audrey Munson directors at the American-Mutual studios are at present engaged in the filming of numerous features, running from five to two reels in length.

Included in the short length features in work at the American-Mutual studios are one three and five two reel subjects. "Power of Mind" is the title of the three reel feature and in it Edward Coxen, Lizette Thorne and George Field are the principal players. It is from the pen of Anthony W. Coldeway and is being screened under the direction of Thomas Ricketts.

"The Fate of the Dolphin," a sea story that smacks of the salt air and deals with the loves, romances and tragedies of the fisher folk, leads the two reel features now well under way at the American-Mutual studios. A cast of playrs, numbering among them several favorites of Mutual followers, appear in the important characters of the piece, among them Edward Coxen, Harry Von Meter and Lizette Thorne. "The Gentle Conspiracy," of which Charles Mortimer Peck is the author and Carl M. Le Viness, the director, is a thrilling two reel feature starring Vivan Rich, Alfred Vosburgh and George Periolat. In this release, Miss Rich essays a dual role, something she has hitherto never attempted, despite her long connection with the studio.

Life as it exists among the floating population of the cow country is presented in "The Pilgram," third of the two reel subjects in work at the American-Mutual studios. Edward Kaufman prepared the scenario. It is being staged by Frank Borzage, who also appears in the chief role. In his support are Anna Little, Jack Richardson and Dick La Reno. "The Pilgrim" will be released under the Mustang brand.

Among the other two reel features now being filmed at the Santa Barbara studios are "A Man's Friend," a story written about the friendship of a dog for his master, and "Jealousy's First Wife," in which Vivian Rich is the feature player, supported by Alfred Vosburgh and George Periolat. It is being screened by Carl M. Le Viness from a scenario by C. M. Peck.

Four Months' Work Required for "The Lotus Woman," a Kalem Starring Alice Hollister and Released on June 20

WITH Alice Hollister, who is said to be the "original screen vampire," in the title role and Harry Millarde playing opposite, "The Lotus Woman" will be released by Kalem on June 20. The feature production will be issued in the regular service of the General Film.

Over four months of labor was necessary before the final touches could be put to "The Lotus Woman" as the action of the story carries the characters from New York to Latin America. Close to five hundred soldiers were used in the scenes showing the battles of a Central American revolution.

Harry Millarde, producer of many of Kalem's multiple reel successes and now in charge of the Ethel Teare comedy company, was the director of "The Lotus Woman." Miss Hollister, in the title role, is seen as Juana, the tempestuous daughter of an exiled Don, who has brought her up without ever having glimpsed the sight of a man other than her father and the aged servant on his estate.

On the morning set for his execution Lopez, the rebel leader, is saved by his white-clad men, who engage the government troops in battle to cover the escape of their chief. Nightfall finds the rebel seeking shelter at the gates of the Don's estate. A flirtation with Juana over the evening meal results in arrangements for a clandestine meeting in the garden. The Don comes upon them, there is a quick exchange of shots, and in a few minutes the Lotus Woman has fled with Lopez leaving her wounded father on the ground.

Jerry Mandeville, an American soldier of fortune, next enters the story. Having lost out to his friend, Everett Chase, in his suit for the hand of Dagmar, he comes to the unnamed Latin republic and is the chief aide of Lopez in the overthrow of the government. A business trip later brings Chase to the republic, where he falls under the spell of the Lotus Woman.

Most of the work of staging "The Lotus Woman" was done around St. Augustine, Fla., and Jacksonville, Fla.

Governor Whitman Vetoes the Cristman-Wheeler Bill

New York Chief Executive Declares That No Tax Shall Be Saddled on Pictures When It Would Cripple the Industry—He Objects to a Measure That Would Interfere Unjustly With a Form of Entertainment Catering to a Large Extent to Persons of Limited Means

GOVERNOR WHITMAN has vetoed the Cristman-Wheeler bill, which provided a remarkable burden of censorship on motion picture films in the State of New York, and threatened irreparable injury to the industry, not only in this state, but all over the country. He vetoed it in a clean, clear, decisive way, which settles the fate of this measure for good, and provides a valuable check to the spirit which prompted it.

The Governor's action is a complete victory for the interests of the motion picture industry and the public which it serves. It was not unexpected; the most prominent men in the several branches of the industry, backed by a delegation of several hundred men and women directly interested, appeared before the Governor at a public hearing on the bill, and presented the most convincing revelation of the threatened injustice of the new law. That the prompt action of this delegation was the principal agent in deciding the Governor is shown by the language in which he killed the measure. He pronounced it unconstitutional, unnecessary, and a carelessly framed attempt to throttle the motion picture business through the imposition of taxes which no industry could support.

As has been the case with similar legislation everywhere, immense political pressure was brought upon the Governor to ratify the bill. This pressure came from persons either with "axes to grind" in a political way, or ignorant of the conditions which exist in the motion picture field.

Daily Press Endorses Governor's Action

Governor Whitman's fearless and courageous defiance of this pressure has won him countless new friends. His repudiation of the Cristman-Wheeler bill is favorably commented on this week by newspapers in all parts of the state. The black cloud which threatened the industry has been cleared away, and the solid business interests behind the making and distribution of pictures are assured that sanity and justice still rule at Albany.

In order to make his stand more impressive, Governor Whitman delayed action of the censorship measure until the eleventh hour. He took no action until 6:30 in the evening of Saturday, May 20, when the other bills before him had been disposed of, and all eyes were upon this one. When he announced his decision, both Senator Cristman and Assemblyman Wheeler, the authors of the bill, were in the executive chamber.

Never has the picture industry been so united as it was in opposition to this bill. At both the big trade expositions in New York, gigantic petitions were prepared and forwarded to the Governor, urging him to repudiate censorship. The newspapers took the matter up, and the eyes of the whole country have been on New York's censorship fight. To this unity in the industry is to be laid the chief credit for the sweeping victory won.

As indicating the impression made by the Governor's action, this editorial from the New York American is significant:

Bill Branded Unconstitutional by Hearst

"The American has decidedly disagreed with Governor Whitman more than once, and has freely and frankly spoken its mind at such times. The American decidedly agrees with Governor Whitman's treatment of several important bills, since the adjournment of the legislature, and is glad to say so, frankly and emphatically. . . . As a capsheaf to this well-doing, the Chief Executive has just killed with his veto the mischievous and unjust and unconstitutional bill establishing a censorship over the moving picture business.

"This veto we look upon as one of the wisest and most commendable exercises of executive authority which the state has seen in a long time. For we feel sure that the censorship of moving picture films was meant to be the beginning of censorships of other mediums of entertainment and publicity—a dangerous precedent for subsequent attacks upon the liberty of speech and the liberty of printing.

"We congratulate the people of the state upon their Governor's good sense and moral courage. We thank Governor Whitman in the name of the people of the state for his sensible and courageous use of the authority of his great office."

Accompanying his veto, the Governor issued a positive and definite statement of his reasons, in which he said in part:

"The framers of this bill seem to me to have disregarded two very important considerations: First, where a tax is imposed upon an industry in which our people are engaged, under ordinary conditions such as prevail to-day, great care should be taken in determining the amount of the tax, to the end that the industry itself shall not be crippled or its development hampered, or that those who use or enjoy the product of the industry shall not be deprived of such use and enjoyment as a result of excessive taxation. Second, that in all legislative acts imposing a tax, the right of redress or appeal in all cases should be preserved to those who will be affected and who may be aggrieved.

Imposes Unnecessary Tax

"The first objection noted, namely, that it appears to place an unnecessary and onerous tax upon the activity which it proposes to regulate, results in part from apparent carelessness in drafting. The bill requires that films be submitted for examination of the censors, and by making them a part of the censors' official report transmitted to the Regents, precludes their return to the owners. The films after examination would be of absolutely no value to the State, would occupy costly space in preservation, and would impose an expense upon the industry, as stated to me at the hearing, of over a million dollars during the first year of the act if it becomes a law, and over $400,000 annually thereafter.

"To remove any doubt that the bill in its present form would require the retention of films submitted for examination, and in reply to the declaration of one of the speakers at the hearing that the bill could not be so interpreted, I quote the following from an opinion of the Attorney General submitted to me on the measure.

"Contention was made at the hearing that a copy of the film must accompany the report to the Regents and that there was no provision made for the return thereof to its owner. My reading of the statute leads me to believe this would be the necessary interpretation of the statute."

"Before the actual examination of the films the applicants are required to pay the equivalent in trade measurement of ten dollars apiece for original films, and five dollars apiece for duplicate films examined. Based on the number of films examined annually by the Board of Review, and on the estimate that twice the annual number of films examined are in use in the State at any one time, the tax for the examination for the first year is estimated at over a million dollars in addition to the loss by failure of the law to permit the return of the films after examination. The estimated annual tax for examination after the first year is approximately three hundred and fifty thousand dollars.

Comparison of Fees

"As compared with the proposed fees for examinations under this bill of $10 for original films and $5 for duplicates, my attention has been called to the censor fees in other States of the union where a moving picture censorship exists.

"As there are approximately sixteen hundred places for the exhibition of moving pictures in the State (I am dependent for all of these statistics upon statements made at the hearing, and not there disputed) the amount of financial burden imposed the first year by the bill under consideration would represent an average actual cost upon each owner of these places of exhibition of between thirteen and fourteen hundred dollars.

"My second and most important objection to the form of the bill is to that provision which permits the State Board of Regents to review the acts of the Board of Censors when the latter approve a film, but does not permit a review by the Regents when the censors reject a film. The language of the bill relating to the powers of the Regents in this matter, is as follows:

Regents With Oppressive Power

"'The Regents may, in their discretion, by majority vote, revoke such approval of any such film or reel at any time. Such revocation shall be complete upon personal service of notice of such application upon the proprietor of such film or reel or upon any agent of such proprietor having charge of the leasing, sale or exhibition of any such film or reel.'

"This provision would give the Regents, acting on their own

SCREEN EXAMINATIONS

"SWEET KITTY BELLAIRS"

(Lasky-Paramount—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY HARVEY F. THEW

THERE is an undoubted charm about the costume play when properly handled. This one seems to us to be well handled—at any rate the charm is there. Possibly it is Mae Murray who is responsible, for she certainly carries the centre of interest on two rather small and narrow shoulders, and maybe it is the general atmosphere created and maintained by the director.

The picture is Edgar Castle's and David Belasco's famous play, which held the boards for years, some few seasons ago. The picturizers have taken a number of liberties with the original, as they had every right to do, and as they should have done in order to demonstrate the superiority of the screen over the stage in the expression of many lines of action.

Kitty Among the Officers

A number of bewitching women (headed by Miss Murray) are assembled, costumed and disported in such manner as to make a success of almost any story. In addition, this has the story, and furthermore, the settings, which will hold the eye, and the sympathies of any audience.

The action is laid at Bath, which was the greatest watering place of English fashion late in the eighteenth century. Lady Julia, the bride of Sir Jasper, is heartbroken over her young husband's attentions to Lady Barbara Flyte. She calls in Kitty Bellairs, who is Lady Barbara's rival as the reigning beauty of the season, to help her, and Kitty advises her to flirt with the officers of the barracks.

Lady Barbara, jealous of Kitty, induces Capt. Spicer, one of her suitors, to disgrace her publicly, and this Spicer does by following Kitty and Lady Julia to the apartments of Lieut. Verney, with whom Kitty has suddenly fallen in love. Kitty's visit really was undertaken to prevent a duel between Verney and Sir Jasper. Spicer leads a party of officers to call on Verney, knowing Kitty to be in his apartments, and when they invade the rooms, Kitty aids Lady Julia to escape, by revealing herself, and taking all the blame.

There is great scandal, and Kitty is shunned by the other women. In the end, Lady Julia straightens matters out, but not until Verney has been obliged to resign his commission and accept the scorn of his brother officers.

The piece is especially well-cast. Belle Bennett and Lucile Young not only show to advantage in the costumes of the period, but do some excellent work as well. Joseph King, James Neil, Tom Forman, Lucille Lavarney, Horace B. Carpenter and Robert Gay are also able members of the cast. The scenario and direction are the work of James Young.

"THE GORGONA"

(Authors' Film—Four Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

THE Authors' Film Company will shortly offer to the trade via the special showing route, "The Gorgona," a four reel spectacular picture made in Italy by Ambrosio. Exhibitors will do well to look this picture over because from a spectacular standpoint its like has never been seen in the same length. It is besides, a costume drama as the action is laid in the twelfth century.

The Ambrosio Company has taught the exhibitor time and again what to expect from film exposed in Italy. "The Gorgona" abounds in marvelous photography and superb lighting effects. The cameraman has caught scenes of unusual depth, with the same clarity and distinctness resulting in the background as in the close foreground. The scene is never out of focus.

The picture has obviously been staged by a master of stage technique. The mob scenes have been managed to wonderful effect. The director has gone ahead adhering strictly to the art of the stage. The flashback and the closeup were evidently unknown to him, and although these ommissions result in loss of force at times, the significance of the story is well brought out.

The story tells of Lamberto, a warrior who with his father is obliged to stay behind and defend the city of Pisa while "The

The Pisa Fleet Departs

Coscetto" departs to win laurels fighting in the Balearic Islands. Lamberto languishes under his inactivity and for revenge on "The Coscetto" he steals his bethrothed, the Gorgona. She is quite willing to accept Lamberto's love.

Lamberto's father has forbidden any of his men to leave the barracks, under penalty of death. Lamberto is caught visiting the Gorgona and is sentenced to die. His father allows him a night's freedom in which to visit his love, but stipulates that if he returns not at sunrise, he will die in his place. Lamberto forgets the time and then, remembering his father's words he kills himself. His father is saved from death by the return of "The Coscetto" and he is obliged to lead the Gorgona out to become the bride of his victorious warrior.

The ending of the picture is the most powerful part in it. It is tragic and handled to very good effect. The main part of the piece runs along at an even gait and relies for interest on the beauty of the settings and the impressiveness of the mob scenes. The settings are really astounding. Long corridors, the expansive interior of a church and several exceptional exteriors are viewed time and again. "The Gorgona" appeals throughout to the eye and in the end to the emotions as well.

"GOING STRAIGHT"

(Fine Arts-Triangle—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY OSCAR COOPER

THIS picture grips, because it is an unusual combination of child stuff, thrills, and strong dramatic interest. Not everything about its story is easy to believe, but the material is handled in a distinctive way, and the result is an absorbing subject.

The theme concerns the struggle of a husband and wife to "go straight," after they have abandoned their old life as crooks. Three children are born to them—the cause of their reformation. They rebuild their lives, and reach an estate of prosperity, when along comes Briggs, one of their old accomplices, who blackmails the husband. One of his demands for money meets with a refusal from the husband, with the result that Briggs threatens to have the wife, who had never served time, sent to jail unless the husband assists in a new job which Briggs had planned. To save his wife, the husband consents.

It happens that on the night of the job the wife takes the children to the house of a wealthy friend, which is the very house selected for the job. Briggs is disposed of a little later, when the husband throws him off a window ledge. Whether the husband is ever held to account for the death of Briggs we are not told, but we do not much care because our main interest is in seeing the shadow eliminated from the lives of the husband and wife.

In the telling of this, C. M. and S. A. Franklin, the directors, have developed splendidly the high lights of a tense central situation. They have staged a series of thrilling fights in the crooks' headquarters; have selected some beautiful exteriors to tone up the production; and they have given the players every opportunity to render their parts convincingly.

Briggs Is Overpowered

Norma Talmadge has never done anything better than her portrayal of the wife. It is a refined, appealing visualization of an unusual character. Miss Talmadge makes the wife very human, but she plays always in the proper key. Ralph Lewis is a tower of strength as the husband, and Eugene Pallette is admirable as the villain. Others are Ruth Handforth and Kate Toncray.

There are six children in the cast. It is their presence and their unfailing naturalness which have most to do with making the picture thoroughly distinctive. These youngsters are Nino Fovieri, Francis Carpenter, Fern Collier, Carmen De Rue, Violet Radcliffe, and finally George Stone, as a waif.

Imagine a little ragged waif who is forced by a crook to aid him in crime. Imagine this child stealing through a house at midnight to open a window so that his master may enter. And then imagine the waif meeting unexpectedly three children who have left their beds to invade a pantry, and you have some idea of the human touches with which this picture has been reinforced.

"TANGLED FATES"

(Peerless-World—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

THE seeker of variety will find it in "Tangled Fates." There are scenes in a fashion shop where the models display the latest styles and there are glimpses of Alaskan snow fields, while the action corresponds to the locale in each of these instances and all others besides. Taken as a whole, the picture makes an average impression, although it does not reach that plane where it may pass without a few criticisms, which are brought forth by obvious errors.

Jane Arrives in Alaska

Take for instance that scene in which the hero pockets a package of bills and leaves Alaska for some southern city. He arrives in the city with the money in the self-same pocket, evidently just where he had put it in the scene before. An audience has gone beyond the time when such slips pass unnoticed. While this flaw must be chalked up against the director, the editor or scenario writer is equally at fault in several places where important incidents in the action have been disposed of in a subtitle. It seems evident that this occurred in the assembling of the film. But after all, these points may be of less import than the hypercritical reviewer believes. Our perspective may be distorted.

The story tells of Jane Lawson, daughter of straight-laced parents, who, because she takes the blame for her younger sister's entirely innocent caprice, is turned out of her home. She finally secures employment in the city as a model and later she marries Will Rogers, the dissolute son of her employer, refusing George Blake, the man she really loves.

Rogers embezzles the firm's money and Blake, because of his love for Jane, gives the husband a new start and ships him off to Alaska. Here Rogers goes on wasting his life, but Blake, not wishing to spoil Jane's happiness, lies to her and tells her that he is making good. However, Jane finally goes to Alaska and arrives just in time to see her husband hanged for shooting a man in the back. She realizes the worth of Blake and there is little doubt as to the ultimate ending.

Alice Brady is featured as Jane. Miss Brady is fond of "emoshing" straight into the camera's lens, but she makes a strong impression whenever she appears.. Arthur Ashley as Blake and George Morgan as the husband do creditable work, while others are Helen Weer, Ed Kimball and Doris Sawyer.

"MR. GOODE, THE SAMARITAN"

(Fine Arts-Triangle—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY OSCAR COOPER

HERE is another De Wolf Hopper subject, equipped with a story of both humorous and dramatic appeal, an exceedingly clever supporting cast, and excellent direction. Mr. Hopper, who appears as a gullible philanthropist, is mildly amusing, but it is the situations, rather than his own acting which make him so. In our opinion, picture-goers will be entertained by "Mr. Goode, the Samaritan," but they will hardly be convulsed with laughter.

Fay Tincher and Edward Dillon are excellent as Sal and Ed, a couple of crooks who become entangled in Mr. Goode's philanthrophy, causing all sorts of excitement when Mr. Goode makes them members of a fashionable party at his home. Chester Withey, as Monte Fox, another crook, is also in the party, his design being to capture Mr. Goode's daughter, any money that may be lying around, and various valuables from the guests.

Mr. Goode's all-consuming belief in the goodness of human nature causes Sal and Ed to reform, but they don't get the credit for it. Suspicion is directed to them by Monte, who makes his getaway with Miss Goode. Sal manages to escape from the house, and follows the pair, breaking in upon them just as Monte and the girl are in a struggle. Through the joint efforts of Sal and Ed, Monte is revealed in his true light.

Probably the most amusing thing in the picture is a series of jail scenes, in which Mr. Goode attempts to reform his fellow prisoners, after he has been arrested as the owner of a stolen car. He has the jail fitted up as a club, provides the keeper with cigars, and otherwise conducts himself as an easy mark.

The settings, lighting and photography are up to the best Fine Arts standard. With Margaret Marsh, Lillian Langdon and Max Davidson the cast is complete.

"THE EYE OF GOD"

(Bluebird—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

IT takes an abnormally strong story and a cast of great ability to retain the interest of a picture that gives its ending away in the first scene. "The Eye of God" commences in such a fashion—to be specific, with a man in the cell of the condemned, doomed to die in the morning. This man, Olaf, by name, had committed murder and deserted his wife to be near the woman he loved, Renie. But he was discovered finally and sentenced to death. All this and quite a bit more, Olaf tells the spectator through subtitles that he writes in diary form and through pictured action.

It is not an unusually marvelous story, but thanks to the author, Lois Weber, the spectator is unable to forsee its important incidents even though he is acquainted with the conclusion. In a fadeout quickly following the first scene, Renie is shown with a man and Olaf writes the words, "While the woman I love is in the arms of another man." Such a subtitle seems to define Renie as just the common run of vampires, and later on when she accepts the attentions of Olaf this conclusion seems substantiated, but it is quite the contrary. Renie is the wife of the man who is languishing in jail for Olaf's crime and is merely playing a game to free her husband of the false charge.

With such a twist as this "The Eye of God" manages to make five interesting reels, although it must be admitted the interest never becomes gripping or absorbing. The film, however, has the other essentials spoken of above—good acting. Tyrone Power as Olaf makes an exceedingly strong figure of the part. Mr. Power is an actor every inch, and his expressive rendition of his role never fails to convince. Miss Weber, or if you will, Mrs. Smalley, appears as Renie and she gives an appealing interpretation of a part that keeps one guessing. Charles Gunn and Ethel Weber are the others in the cast.

The Smalleys have produced the picture with their usual good taste. The settings are so different from the ordinary in their breadth and depth that they almost startle. The photographic effecs achieved are excellent and the straight camera work is equally good. There are some scenes in which Olaf is haunted by the Eye of God and the eye itself is shown. It is as large as a man's head and usually appears in the corner of the scene, shedding a spotlight on the unfortunate victim of a guilty conscience. This effect, while done with considerable skill, makes hardly the impression that the actor would have made by himself.

"THE IRON HAND"

(Red Feather-Universal—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

HOBART BOSWORTH, who essays any role from a minister to a gangster with equal ease, appears in "The Iron Hand" as a political boss, first as a mere ward leader, but later as undisputed ruler of the entire city. Mr. Bosworth has the tough swagger of his character in the early stages of the picture down to perfection and as a mere gentleman politician in the closing scenes he is equally effective.

Mr. Bosworth's vehicle, written by George Edwards Hall and scenarioized by F. McGrew Willis, presents a very strong outward appearance, although if it was analyzed and each character individually taken up it would be found considerably lacking from a dramatic standpoint. What concerns us more specifically is the likely expression it will make with the audience and it can conscientiously be said that it keeps the attention over all its length.

The several climaxes of the film are nicely reached and throughout there are not a few touches administered by Mr. Bosworth that go to the general good effect of the production.

A ward boss holding stern sway over his district is finally bested by his political enemy and sent to jail. He is released, shorn of his power. He is entrusted with the care of a little boy, son of one of his old pals. Unable to educate the child in the right way he places him in charge of a social worker. The boss finally gets another foothold and starts up the ladder again. After twenty years he is the ruler of the city.

On his twenty-first birthday the boy comes to live with his guardian and is highly shocked at his methods of conducting his business. In the election a social reformer, opposed to the boss, triumphs. The young man in charge of the boss loves the daughter of the reformer and when he discovers that her father is penniless due to the pre-election campaign, he is perfectly willing to borrow from his guardian to help the reformer. By this act all parties are united.

A large supporting cast appears, and does good work, with the exception of the actor who plays Connors, the man in opposition to the Bosworth part in the first half of the picture. The character of Connors suffers from an overdose of enthusiasm on the part of the player. In the direction one noticeable slip has been made when twenty years bears no effect on the social worker.

In other hespects, including the realism of the scenes and the good quality of the photography, "The Iron Hand" leaves little to be desired.

"THE FLIRTING BRIDE"

(Knickerbocker Star Feature-General—Three Reels)

REVIEWED BY OSCAR COOPER

JACKIE SAUNDERS is a pleasing and attractive figure in this picture, which begins as comedy, changes to melodrama, and then turns back to near-comedy. The story seems to have been made to fit the players, most of whom are good, and it is quite unconvincing as a story. Nevertheless, the picture will interest a good many people, chiefly because of Miss Saunders.

An Interrupted Honeymoon

A wife who flirts with most of the men who cross her path, with the result that she gets into serious trouble in an unnamed foreign country on her honeymoon, is the central character, played by Miss Saunders, of course. She innocently gets mixed up in a plot engineered by a spy, flees from arrest, is captured by brigands, rescued by soldiers, chained in a dungeon, and released by the American consul, whose aid her husband has enlisted. Thereupon she promises never again to look at a man.

The direction was in the hands of H. M. & E. D. Horkheimer, and is only fair. The set representing the brigands' cave is flimsy, and some of the military costumes very poor. On the other hand, there are some beautiful exteriors, and the photography is very good.

In the cast are William Conklin, Edward J. Brady, Henry Stanley, and a number of extras.

"BURTON HOLMES' TRAVELOGUES—PICTOGRAPHS"

(Paramount—One Reel Each)

REVIEWED BY HARVEY F. THEW

MR. HOLMES'S Travelogue this week, which is entitled "Cruising Through the Philippines to Cebu, Iloilo and Zamboanga," is especially picturesque and interesting. He gives us rather novel views of his surroundings, even to the officers and mess attendants of the ship which carried him through the waters surrounding Mindanao. He shows us the Filipinos in out-of-the-way places, in the various typical games, and with the unusual sidelights cast on their daily life. Views are presented of the quaint city of Iloilo, and of its inhabitants, and the scenery has all the picturesqueness of the unusual.

The pictographs this week include an unusually interesting article on "The Making of a Sailor," by Henry Reuterdahl, an unquestioned authority on naval matters. The article opens with a deck view of a dreadnaught of the Wyoming class, viewed from the head of the forward mast, and with the full complement at "setting-up" exercises running about the deck. Other incidents in the enlistment, examination and training of the new recruits are fully as interesting. "The Preservation of Cut-flowers," "The Trickids," and a review of recent "Science and Invention" are also shown. Under the title "The Man Behind," we are shown just how the motion picture operator feeds the film through his projection instrument, and in "Better Babies" there is a demonstration in the development of the muscular factor in a child's growth.

"THE MADCAP"

(Red Feather-Universal—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

"THE Madcap" thrusts Flora Parker De Haven on to stardom, without the shining presence of lively Carter. However, liveliness seems to be plentiful in the De Haven family and Flora brightens and quickens this latest Red Feather to an extent that almost banishes the light character of the plot.

Light or thin stories appear to be all too numerous nowadays. "The Madcap" is a good picture, produced with a noticeable degree of artistry and one that contains some situations of the stirring sort, but there are not enough of them for five-reels and the action is wont to drag several times. Is it that the supply of five-reel feature stories is exhausted?

William Dowlan directed "The Madcap." Mr. Dowlan's work has improved a hundred per cent. since his last feature, which was loaded to the brim with closeups. All the scenes in these five reels were handled with care and intelligence. Closeups are used in their proper place. The locations furnished are beautiful and the photography supreme.

To the credit of the story it must be said that its action increases in speed toward the close of the picture. There it has the snap and the punch, and awakens sympathy in the spectator for its principal character. The rest of the picture, however, is forced to rely on the artistic taste of the director for its interest and if there be many lovers of beautiful scenery in the audience, "The Madcap" will please all the way.

Flora Fairbanks is introduced as a rich girl who has been unable to find happiness. She becomes acquainted with a philosophical artist and in the summer time these two go as vagabonds through France. The artist is loved by a Countess, who spiteful toward Flora, publicly misinterprets the harmless trip of the two; then the scene again shifts to New York. Flora disappears out of shame.

Flora Hides from the Revengeful Countess

The artist makes the truth known and the Countess is justly ostracized. Afterwards the artist goes in search of Flora and finds her in a French village where they are reunited with no Countess to stand between them.

Mrs. De Haven as Flora, Richard Sterling as the artist and Vera Doria as the Countess have the principal roles. The scenario was done by Leonora Ainsworth from a story by George Gibbs.

"HOUSE OF MIRRORS" REFLECTS NOVELTY GLASS EFFECT

For the initial production of the Rialto Film Corporation, "The House of Mirrors," just completed under the direction of Marshal Farnum, an unusual set was built—a room of mirrors from which the play receives its title. In order to construct this room, twelve large mirrors were made to order by the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company and placed in frames reinforced with steel.

The effect gained is said to be remarkable. Through the mirrors reflected again and again appear scores of people in evening dress, whereas in fact there are but forty-one persons on the stage.

The picture will be released in two weeks. Frank Mills is the star.

"UNMASKING A RASCAL"

(Kalem—Two Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

AFTER a serial has gone a certain length there is little to review in the successive numbers and in the main the writer must needs rely on a detailed synopsis for the body of his criticism.

But in the first place, "The Social Pirates" is not a serial, and although the general course of all its episodes is somewhat the same, each of its two reel chapters sets forth a story complete and distinct in itself. In the second place this series of Kalem's allows its cast the continual chance to act—a chance that a cast of a serial must needs often go without. Lastly the cast is made up of players who fully utilize these opportunities to display their abilities.

In particular is this applicable to Marin Sais and Ollie Kirkby, the principals of the series. No work yet offered these leads has proved at all beyond them. As Mona and Mary, the two girls who live by their wits to right the wrongs of others, they have varied pieces of character work to render. And no matter what bit of caprice or deceit the girls are practicing to badger their villainous victims. Miss Sais and Miss Kirkby come through with flying colors.

"Unmasking a Rascal" deals with their concerted efforts in battling with a banker who has swindled his ward of her small fortune. They are victorious finally and not until their victory, which is staged in the last scene, does the interest at all slacken. The suspense and the comedy are ever present.

Lest the above be taken as padded paper we add that the same review might stand for each chapter. Serials are serials and series are altogether different and incidentally, "The Social Pirates" so closely approximates perfection in this latter class that the difference is not worth consideration.

"PRISONERS OF CONSCIENCE"

(Lubin-General—Three Reels)

REVIEWED BY OSCAR COOPER

THIS is the best Lubin three-reeler we have seen for some time. The story is probable, well handled, and, on the whole, convincing. It is not new, but the treatment is good. In addition, the cast does its work very well, particularly Adda Gleason, whose work in emotional scenes is far above the average. Others are Lucy Payton, Alan Forrest, Cecil Van Auker, George Routh, Evelyn Page, and John Hopkins.

Melvin Mayo directed, under the supervision of Wilbert Melville. The direction shows a commendable effort to get away from hackneyed methods. Some fine types are introduced at the very beginning in a scene depicting a church in the slums. There are also two or three human touches, which tend to give more than one scene the air of reality.

The plot hinges on a mistake in administering a dose of medicine. The villain and a nurse, with whom he is carrying on a flirtation, make the mistake, and put the blame on the hero, also a physician. They advise him to go away, and they tell his wife he has committed suicide. Tortured by conscience, the villain confesses on his death bed, and the hero is brought back.

"HAM'S WATERLOO"

(Kalem—One Reel)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

HAM'S WATERLOO" differs from the general run of Ham comedies in that it introduces trick work both as applied to the camera and studio mechanics. We have a high powered house as a comedy medium and it has been utilized to its fullest extent. The action is rapid during the latter half of the reel when the hose is used to magical advantage. In fact it is much faster than ever the action has been in a Ham comedy, and it follows as a natural course that the fun is of a more dependable variety.

Harry Edwards, who directed this picture, has brought with him to Kalem a number of creditable tricks of business that have been done before by other people but never by Kalem, in our recollection. The hose stunt is one of these. Ham manipulates the stream of water and Bud is sent up through the ceiling on it at one time and again goes crashing through the wall of the room.

At the same time the usual business originated by Ham and Bud is still theirs to perform. The director has not allowed enthusiasm for his tricks to overshadow his respect for the ability of the comedians. The combination proves a very good one and as a result "Ham's Waterloo" is a most satisfactory release—just a little better than the former successful Ham comedies.

So much for that which is worthy of praise in this brief picture. There is not much to be said on the other side—only one point that we can call to mind and that is that the film shows evidence of having been extensively trimmed. For instance, there is an entire setting representing a gymnasium with accompanying apparatus which is not utilized to any extent. It seems plausible to assume that such a setting would not have been erected for nothing, and yet it is not employed in furthering the advance of the comedy. This is merely a minor point and in all probability those on the outside looking in will give it little notice.

Norma Nichols is a valuable addition to the Ham company. She is very pretty and does her work sincerely, making a distinct impression. The rest of the cast is sufficiently good.

The story is quite conventional, but well worked out. Ham is to marry the daughter of his landlord and there is a breakfast before the wedding. Bud, the defeated rival, intends passing a note to the girl, telling her what a rounder Ham really is and under the table hands get mixed and the note goes to Ham. Subsequently he brings the hose into play with disastrous results to all concerned.

"THE BATTLE OF HEARTS"

(William Fox—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

"THE Battle of Hearts" offers William Farnum as a burly fisherman, a character smattered ever so gently but perceptibly with the famed "cave man" principle so popular in pictures. The subject was arranged, according to the leader, and produced by Oscar C. Apfel, and while extremely simple in plot, its main characters afford sufficient interest to warrant an enjoyable entertainment.

Mr. Apfel's story has a few loose ends and several situations that are not plausible when dissected, but it contains a popular appeal which no doubt will carry it to success. Mr. Apfel's direction is up to his usual mark in all save one point and that is the frequent use of backdrops—palpable backdrops. The majority of the interiors show either a door or a window in a prominent place and we have painted canvas for the rolling sea and the sky. When it is possible to obtain real backgrounds with the camera, these substitutes of the property room make one wonder. In other respects, including the photography, the five reels taken from the production standpoint are very good.

The opening scenes introduce Mr. Farnum as a fisherman who knows when and how to use his fists. He loves the daughter of an old salt, but she favors the worthless son of the lighthouse keeper. The favored suitor goes away from home to make good and falls in with smugglers. The girl while mastering one of her father's boats, is wrecked and subsequently rescued by the hard-fisted fisheman. On the same trip he manages to round up the smugglers, and after a terrific fight, captures his rival. The girl has all along been realizing the worth of the fisherman and the worthlessness of the man she thought she loved, and so there is nothing left to prevent a happy ending.

Considerably embellished with incidents that are of more or less benefit in the advancement of the story, this is the substance of the picture. When the action might have taken a severe slump, Mr. Farnum steps in to the rescue. His rendition of the featured part is typical of his past performances. Edna Fury as the girl and Wheeler Oakman as the heavy have the other important parts.

While "The Battle of Hearts" never rises to unusual heights in any respect, there is nothing to prevent it having a successful career before the majority of picture audiences.

"THE MAN FROM MANHATTAN"

(American-Mutual Masterpicture DeLuxe—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY WILLIAM C. ESTY, 2nd

THERE are so many favorite screen incidents and characters brought into this picture that it ought to touch some vital spot in most audiences. For example, the hero divides his time between vers libre and a business career as meteoric as any ever recounted by Horatio Alger. The seamstress heroine dutifully supports her invalid mother when she is not eluding the villainous son of the villain. The arch-heavy, a flint-hearted landlord, dispossesses the above pair, who are his tenants. The country folk are the absurd bumpkins they are always painted.

These familiar faces and doings are transplanted into an environment comparatively fresh. The interesting background, the occasional divergence of the story into an unexpected channel, and the uniform adequateness of the cast do much to keep the attention from wandering.

The best individual piece of acting is contributed by Perry Banks in a character part. Rhea Mitchell is vivacious in the saccharine heroine's role, and William Stowell makes a romantic hero. Others prominent in the large cast are Charles Wheelock, Jo Taylor, Jack Prescott, Warren Ellsworth, Otto Nelson and George Bailey.

Whipple, the son of a New York broker, buys a run-down country newspaper and proceeds to make it a howling success. He engages Virginia Winters, a local poetress, to help him edit the sheet, and Eggleston, a quaint country character, to print it. When Whipple refuses to support Squire Barton's candidacy for the office of mayor, Barton ejects the paper from his building. Whipple buys a tent and in it continues publication. Barton sets fire to the building, hoping that Whipple will be suspected. Whipple is jailed. When the safe in the building is later opened, Eggleston is found dead inside it. He had seen Barton setting fire to the place, and had crowled into the safe to escape the flames. Before dying, he wrote that Barton was the incendiary. Barton is punished, while Whipple becomes mayor and Virginia's husband.

"THE RAY COMEDIES"

("Casey's Dream"—One Reel. "Casey's Kids"—One Reel. "Casey's Servants"—One Reel. "Casey the White Wing"—One Reel. Reserve Photoplays)

REVIEWED BY HARVEY F. THEW

IN this new series of comedies John and Emma Ray are featured in the style of humor in which they have long been known to vaudeville patrons all over the country. Their friends will recognize them instantly, and will recognize their style of stage "business. The action is lively. The Rays have not injected anything unusual into their picture work, but perhaps this is just as well; the Ray style of comedy has "gone big" on many vaudeville wheels for many years; they have their followers on the stage and they are now making a bid for a screen following. It is only reasonable to expect that they will get it.

Johnny Ray impersonates a harmless, lovable Irish laborer, and the various episodes are devoted to his experiences. In the first, "Casey's Dream," he drops into a barroom for a glass of beer on his way home from work, falls asleep at the table, and dreams that he and his wife are wealthy, and are entertaining a party of "swells." In the end he has a rude awakening. In "Casey's Kids" he has a family of six little ones, whom he marshals to repel the enemy when his neighbor begins to hurl bricks through the window. "Casey's Servants" again shows him in luxurious surroundings, and "Casey the White Wing" returns him to the ranks of the day laborers. The subjects all have a quaint human touch, and the real affection between Casey and Mrs. Casey is emphasized in gratifying manner in each episode.

PARAMOUNT-BRAY ANIMATED CARTOON BY EARL HURD CONTRIBUTES TO THE ANNALS OF FISHING LORE

TO the annals of fishing lore, Bobby Bumps, the mischievous youngster, contributed by Earl Hurd to the Paramount Bray Animated Cartoons, adds another chapter in the twenty-second release of these drawings—"Bobby Bumps Goes Fishing." When the hero decides on a fishing trip, Dan accompanies him, both on pleasure bent. Bobby seats himself at one end of the boat, Dad at the other. The latter's luck is consistently against him, but Bobby's success is so phnomenal that he makes a catch every time he throws his line in.

A Scene from "Bobby Bumps Goes Fishing," Paramount Bray Cartoon

Dad changes places with his son, but having no better results, resumes his original position. Bobby's next catch is so large that Dad is sent headlong into the water. Dad registers such anger that Bobby hastily exits. Starting off in search of adventure, the hero buys a large stuffed fish which he rigs up with a motor attached to a propeller at the fish's tail. Entering the scene where Dad is still fishing, the fake fish immendiately gets his hook and they exit together. Dad's next stop is at the photograph gallery, where he and his catch pose before the camera. Then he goes home to mother, who listens to his tale, but at once discovers the fraud. Bobby is immediately bribed and exits victoriously.

GLOBE PICKED FOR NEW YORK OPENING OF BILLIE BURKE PICTURE

THE Billie Burke serial picture, "Gloria's Romance," in process of filming at the George Kleine studios for the past six months, will have its New York opening at the Globe theatre May 22. This is the official announcement of the Kleine studios, following negotiations between the producer, George Kleine, and Charles Dillingham. Contracts were signed Tuesday whereby the Globe will show the various episodes of "Gloria's Romance" in weekly instalments.

"Gloria's Romance" is a motion picture novel of twenty episodes written by Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Hughes. The Titian-haired star is supported by a cast which includes Henry Kolker, David Powell, William Roselle, Frank Belcher, Wm. T. Carleton, Frank McGlynn and Jule Power.

NANCE O'NEIL COMPLETES CONTRACT WITH LUBIN AND RETURNS TO NEW YORK

HAVING completed her contract with the Lubin Company,, Nance O'Neil has returned to New York and is busily at work on future plans. Miss O'Neil was filmed in two feature pictures by the Lubin Company—"The Fires of Johannis" and "The Toilers." Miss O'Neil has received a number of offers from motion picture producers and at the same time is considering a number of stage plays that have been submitted to her. Her decision as to her next engagement will be announced shortly.

"A DASH OF COURAGE"

(Keystone-Triangle—Two Reels)

REVIEWED BY OSCAR COOPER

A never failing chloroform apparatus; a few slippery streets; two skidding automobiles; a stone wall; a neatly contrived plot; a chase; a safe; a little nitroglycerine, and six principals are the ingredients mixed here by Director Charles Parrott to make a Keystone comedy. Out of these varied elements enough entertainment ought to come to please the most jaded picture-goer.

Except for such tame things as lifting off the top of a patrol wagon in a street collision, and driving an auto into a wall, the picture relies for its humor mostly upon a lot of clever fooling, in which a crook attempts to relieve the richest man in town of his money and his daughter at the same time. His confederates chloroform the police, seize their clothes, and dress the unconscious guardians of the law in convict's garb. The plot fails, of course, but not until it has been made to do service for two thousand feet of very good slapstick.

In the cast are Harry Gribbon, Wallace Beery, Guy Woodward, Gloria Swanson, William Mason, and Bobbie Vernon.

MUTT AND JEFF IN "THE OUTPOSTS"

(Mutt and Jeff Film—One Reel)

REVIEWED BY OSCAR COOPER

BUD FISHER'S two eccentric characters still have the military fever, and are still performing in the war zone. Jeff's services are declined by the British, so he enlists in the French army, explaining to Mutt that he is going to make the Germans run. He does—make them run after him.

As usual, the idea is original, and Fisher's technique is good—which probably explains why these animated cartoons find distinct favor with picture goers.

GOVERNOR WHITMAN VETOES CHRISTMAN-WHEELER BILL

initiative, or upon appeal to them by a patron of any exhibition, the right to disapprove a film previously approved by the censors. But there is no opportunity for appeal to the Regents by an owner who might feel aggrieved by the censors' disapproval of a film, the action of disapproval by the censors being final under the bill as drawn.

"It has been urged that in this end and other respects the bill, if it became a law, would be unconstitutional. I do not think that we need to go even so far as a discussion of constitutionality to satisfy ourselves of the impropriety of placing a provision such as this upon the statute books.

Badly Constructed Bill

"I deem it neither wise nor courageous to accept a badly constructed bill in the hope that future legislation may correct its admittedly objectionable features.

"I have found such fundamental objections to the form of this bill, and the procedure under it, that the necessity for censorship has been eliminated as a factor in its consideration.

"If we must have such censorship, it should not be established hurriedly or by an imperfect statute and one which is open to such serious and sound objections as are urged against this measure which I am asked to approve."

In the absence of any official Federal regulation, the States and cities are finding it necessary to establish these local boards to prevent the exhibition of immoral, indecent, and obscene pictures. The only adequate method of regulating motion pictures is to be had in a Federal commission, and the establishment of such a commission is the one way to obviate the necessity for innumerable local boards."

The report then enumerates in brief the provisions of the bill, among which the following provisions are stated:

"The commission is authorized to issue licenses for pictures which are to be shown only to people over sixteen years of age.

"Motion picture films meant for use by the learned professions, and not for purposes of entertainment are excepted from the operation of this bill."

LIST OF NEW BLUEBIRDS ANNOUNCED

Rex Ingram has just completed the production of "A Human Pawn," a five-reel feature in which Violet Mersereau will soon make her regular appearance as a star on the Bluebird program. William Garwood will be featured in the production as Miss Mersereau's leading man.

"A Human Pawn" will appear in the Bluebird series immediately after the production of "Shoes" that the Smalleys have made with Mary Ida McDonald, the new screen star, in the leading role. "Shoes" is based originally on a paragraph written by Jane Addams, the famous sociological worker, but the complete story appeared in Collier's written by Stella Yynne Herron, a well-known writer.

Lois Weber has made the scenario and exclusively directed the production, her husband, Phillips Smalley, having in this instance only a minor share in the work. Mary Ida McDonald is a "discovery" Miss Weber made at the time she was directing "Where Are My Children?"

Miss McDonald was playing a "bit" in the Tyrone Power sensational feature.

"The Three Godfathers," with an all-star cast, is another forthcoming Bluebird. Peter B. Kyne wrote the story for the Saturday Evening Post.

When Bluebird secured the moving picture privilege Harvey Gates was commissioned to write the scenario from which Edward J. Le Saint directed the picture.

Louise Lovely, in "Bobbie of the Ballet," a story based on incidents of stage life; and "The Eye of God," a Smalley production, with Tyrone Power, the first June release in the Bluebird series, are other features for exhibitors who employ the Bluebird Program.

The inserts of the Bluebird advertising are now perforated, enabling exhibitors to tear out the pages and use them for advance display purposes in their lobbies.

This feature of the Bluebird advertising pages cannot fail to prove of service to exhibitors handling Buebird pictures, as the inserts are handsomely colored and make an instant appeal by their striking and original designs.

Tabloid Reviews for the Busy Exhibitor

PRODUCTIONS FROM ALL PROGRAMS

GENERAL FILM PROGRAM

"The Spirit Awakened." (Biograph. Reissue.)—A fairly good study of the awakening of a coward is supplied in this old Griffith film. It is interesting up to the turning point and subsequently it grows more exciting when the reformed coward gives chase to the villain. There is a long horseback ride, in which the suspense is amply retained by the flashback, and then there is the leap that the pursuer takes from one horse to the other. It is an intense climax ending an altogether pleasing picture. Blanche Sweet and Edward Dillon are the principals.

"Liberty Belles." (Biograph. Three reels.)—This is a comedy produced some time ago by Del Henderson. It resembles a musical show to a certain extent, in that it has dozens of pretty girls shown off to good advantage in pajamas and bathing suits, a whole lot of plot and very little central line of action. Dorothy Gish and Gertrude Bambrick are the principal young ladies of the piece, while others in the cast are Reggie and Dave Morris, Jack Pickford and Spotiswoode Aitken.

"A Fair Rebel." (Biograph. Three reels. Reissue.)—A civil war picture is offered in "A Fair Rebel," containing an average story materially enlivened with a quantity of thrilling action, including several sensational battle scenes. In fact the story of itself is of little importance, it is its scenes and highly colorful atmosphere that makes for its success. The cast includes Linda Arvidson, Charles Pearly, Charles West, Dorothy Gish and Robert Drouet.

"The Unwelcome Guest." (Biograph. Reissue.)—This is a Mary Pickford reissue and should prove valuable, for the star has an ideal role which she handles quite as well as she would in the present day. As the little slavey who befriends the feeble and discarded grandfather, Miss Pickford acts with rare skill. Christie Miller, Jack Pickford, Charles H. Mailes and Claire MacDowell complete the cast.

"The Reformers." (Biograph. Two reels. Reissue.)—In which picture D. W. Griffith showed his aversion to censors and rabid social reformers by casting them in a ridiculous light. He shows the manner in which the son and daughter of two prominent reformers went wrong because of their parents' neglect and cramped ideals. The picture offers a number of good comedy scenes, while the whole is well acted by a cast which includes Mae Marsh, Robert Harron, Charles H. Mailes, Jenny Lee, Charlie Murray and Walter Miller.

"A Misunderstood Boy." (Biograph. Reissue.)—A cast composed of Robert Harron, Lillian Gish, Alfred Paget, Lionel Barrymore and Charles H. Mailes, enact this drama which is more or less of an interesting study in character development. The misunderstood boy at last makes good after he has been the central figure of a number of interesting incidents.

"The Woman in Black." (Biograph. Reissue. Five reels.)—While slightly crude at times in its unwinding, this five-reeler of several years back contains a certain appeal and an average amount of strength that place it in the class of acceptable features. It tells the story of a corrupt political candidate who holds the father of the girl he desires in his power. The girl favors the opposing party's candidate and she at last has her way when the skeleton in the villain's closet arrives via a gypsy maiden he had previously wronged. The climax is handled with a very good degree of suspense.

"The Song in the Dark." (Essanay. Re-issue. Two reels. Tues., May 30.)—Not shown for review. The cast consists of Richard Travers, Gerda Holmes, Bryant Washburn, and John Cossar.

"The Fable of the Willing Collegian Who Wanted to Get a Foothold." (Essanay. Wed., May 31.)—This George Ade fable not shown for review; the story follows: A college gink wanted to cop a soft job. A doctor told him that there were four medical degrees to every case of tonsilitis in the U. S. Judge Caveat claimed that nobody could get the coin in the law without selling his soul to a corporation. Everybody told the collegian to lay off his particular profession. The lad finally married an heiress to help count her kale. Moral: Every man knocks his own line but sticks to it like glue.

"Our People." (Essanay. Three reels. Sat., June 3.)—Not shown for review; the story follows: Ed Bryce is the editor of a country paper and is in love with Ellen Calhoun, the daughter of the local banker. Calhoun objects to Bryce as a son-in-law, but his rich sister likes the young man. A run on the bank is started, and Calhoun is unable to pay the depositors. Ellen's aunt promises to pay the clamoring horde if her brother will consent to the marriage, and this he does.

Appearing in the cast are Bryant Washburn, Gertrude Glover, Thomas Commerford, Richardson Cotton, and Florence Oberle.

"The Schemers." (Essanay. Three reels. Sat., May 27.)—Reviewed at length elsewhere in this issue.

"The Capture of Red Stanley." (Kalem. Sat., May 27.)—This "Hazards of Helen" number has thrills to start with in the shape of much daring riding and later the story settles down and leads up to a climax of great sensational power when Helen rides her horse into a box car after escaping from bandits. In addition to the thrills the reel contains, there are unusual night effects in its camera work. One of the best of the series, we should say.

"Unmasking a Rascal." (Kalem. Two reels. Week of May 29.)—Reviewed at length elsewhere in this issue.

"The Bogus Ghost." (Kalem. Wed., May 24.)—Ethel's lover believes her drowned while instead she has gained employment as a mystic's spirit. The comedy waxes rapid when the lover goes to the mystic's den and sees Ethel and after many laughs a satisfactory conclusion is attained. An average comedy.

"Sis the Detective." (Kalem. Fri., June 2.)—Sis gets the amateur detective fever in this release and after taking a correspondence course she, quite by accident, succeeds in locating the missing daughter of a millionaire who had eloped with the chauffeur. Rose Melville and her usual support make this comedy, written by S. A. Van Petten, very laughable.

"The Spiked Switch." (Kalem. Sat., June 3.)—Another runaway freight results in Helen taking a daring leap from a single piece of rolling stock to the train in this "Hazard of Helen" number. While this stunt has been worked before even in this series, the story is of an exciting nature and the thrill is well worked in.

"The Winning Number." (Lubin. Sat., May 20.)—Hester's uncle makes her sole heir to his millions on condition that she marry before she is twenty-one. Hester is a man hater, and rejects every man her parents propose. Finally, a raffle is arranged, and the winning number is secured by the most undesirable suitor. The puzzle is solved when a young attorney, whom Hester loves, gives the undesirable $5,000 to retire from the field. It is quite an amusing little comedy. In the cast are Francis Joyner, Walsh Ray, George R. Raymond, Eddie Hoffner, John Shermer, Kempton Greene, Florence Williams, June Daye, George Clarke, Eleanor Blanchard, and Adelaide Hayes. Clay M. Greene's direction is good.

"Otto the Hero." (Lubin. Mon., May 22.)—Otto to win Patsy, tries being a hero, by framing up a fake hold-up with a couple of yeggs. This impresses Patsy greatly, and she is about to be married to Otto when Clarence unearths the fake. He tries a frame-up himself, which leads to the minister's house. An overturned lamp starts a fire, but Otto's nerve fails him, and Clarence rescues the girl from the flames. There is enough plot and enough comedy in this to interest the average audience. Davy Don, George Egan, Bernard Siegel, Florence Williams, and Patsy De Forest are in the cast. Edwin McKim directed.

"The Hare and the Tortoise." (Selig. Three reels. Mon., May 29.)—Reviewed at length elsewhere in this issue.

"Crooked Trails." (Selig. Sat., June 3.)—This Western is along the usual Tom Mix lines, with an elementary plot and lots of action. Some of the exciting scenes are marred by inferior photography, but all lovers of this kind of drama will like the roping, riding, and shooting specialties introduced. Victoria Forde, Pat Chrisman, Sid Jordan, and Joe Ryan appear in Mr. Mix's support.

Irene Norris returns to her father's ranch after a year at boarding school. Taylor, the ranch foreman, wins Irene's love, much to the disgust of Poncho, a half-breed, who also loves her. Poncho steals a large sum of money, but Taylor captures him.

"Baby Doll." (Vim. Thurs., May 25.)—Hardy and Ruge, the Vim comedians, appear in this as Plump and Runt. It is an ultra-slapstick, with several situations which might have been omitted. The humor is not equal to other Vim comedies and the story could have been improved.

MUTUAL PROGRAM

"Politickers." (Falstaff. Mon., May 22.)—Oscar and Conrad have more than the usual opportunity for fun-making in this reel. They are both lawyers, both suitors for the hand of May, the Major's daughter, who in turn is loved by and loves Frank. Conrad arrives with the joyful news that he is the republican candidate for mayor. Later Oscar brings the information that the democrats have nominated the Major, and Conrad is kicked out of the house. The returns show the Major's election, and he celebrates by ordering the immediate marriage of May and Frank. A recount, however, gives Conrad the election, and he takes possession of office and girl.

"Preparedness." (Cub. Fri., May 26.)—Jerry is with us again in this subject. He falls in love with a policeman's daughter. and the two attempt to steal away; another policeman attempts to stop them but Jerry succeeds in tying him to a pole. Other policemen come to his rescue, but Jerry makes his escape after firing a volley of bricks. The girl's father, admiring Jerry's courage, favors the suit, until Jerry's clumsiness results in his being thrown into the street. There the policemen are waiting to nab him. George Ovey, Louis Fitzroy and Claire Alexander head the cast.

"Sammy's Semi-Suicide." (Falstaff. Sat., May 27.)—Here is a comedy with features a little out of the ordinary. Sammy has a leaning toward suicide whenever anything goes wrong, and when May, his sweetheart, neglects him at a garden party, he resolves to die; he changes his mind at the last moment, but the firing of pistols by guests convince him that he has succeeded. He believes himself really dead, until the next day, when the familiar voice of his mother awakens him. He hurries to the office, finds May there at her desk as usual, and everything is adjusted. The comedy is interpreted by Walter Hiers and Frances Keyes.

"The Release of Dan Forbes." (American. Two reels. Mon., May 29.)—There is a lot of old-fashioned melodrama in this picture, most of it familiar through long usage. The poorly motivated ending is compensated by a really good fight. The cast does good work with the conventional parts assigned. The players are William Stowell, Helene Rosson, Harry Von Meter, Harry McCabe, and Perry Banks.

While Dan Forbes is in prison, Stark tries to seduce his wife. Forbes is released early for good behavior, but before he can get home, an enemy of his is shot, and he is suspected of the murder. He flees to his flat, and there finds Stark trying to embrace his wife. In a terrific fight he beats the man senseless. The police are attracted by the noise, and arrest Forbes. Stark admits that someone else did the shooting, so Forbes is released.

"Shy Thirty Cents." (Vogue. Tues., May 30.)—This is more of a drama than a comedy; the plot is not burlesqued enough to make it funny throughout. The occasional laughs are furnished by the colliding and falling of the players. Rube Miller, Madge Kirby, Arthur Tavares, Edward Shaw, and Charlie Evans appear.

Madge, a farmer's daughter, is kidnapped by a band of gypsies and held for a one dollar ransom. The father has only seventy cents, so the gypsies tie the girl to a keg of dynamite. Rube, Madge's sweetheart, has buried his money under six feet of earth, and he starts to dig for it madly. The dynamite explodes, hurling the kidnappers into the newly dug hole, and Rube buries them alive.

"The Comet's Come-Back." (Beauty. Wed., May 31.)—A cracker-jack comedy has here been evolved by employing a little used device. The first part of the picture was taken by a slowly turned camera, consequently the action is very fast. During the latter part the crank was turned furiously, so the actors barely move. When they jump they stay in the air several seconds. Some of the effects are weird and genuinely amusing. This is the best "Beauty" released for some time. John Steppling, John Sheehan, Carol Halloway, and Dick Rosson are in the cast.

Professor Peedeeque deplores the modern tendency to hurry too much. He especially dislikes the speed of the young man who is engaged to his daughter. But a comet comes, bringing in its wake noxious gases that slow up the whole world. The father, daughter, and fiancee watch the strange effects on athletes, dancers, etc., while they remain normal in the professor's oxygen room. But there is not enough oxygen for all of them, so the young man is forced to go out into the slow world.

"The Trail of the Thief." (American. Three reels. Thurs., June 1.)—The popularity of the players, the type of story, and the adequate manner of production make this an acceptable offering. While this sort of thing has been done many times, this version differs enough to be interesting. Winnifred Greenwood, Edward Coxen, and George Field take the leads, with Jack Farrell, George Armstrong, Meta Drinkwitz, and Anna Morrison in their support.

Dorothy Baird is a clever woman operative in the detective agency owned by Martin Gale. Dorothy falls in love with Vallon, a crook poising as a society man. One day Dorothy follows a suspicious character to a dilapidated house. When she enters she is gagged and tied. She finds that Vallon is the leader of the crooks. Meantime the gang have started to blow up the safe in a jeweler's shop. Gale captures the crooks and makes them tell Dorothy's whereabouts. He hurries to the house and saves her from being violated by Vallon. The two then go and get married.

"A Man's Friend." (Mustang. Two reels. Fri., June 2.)—Not shown for review.

"Ima Knutt Gets a Bite." (Beauty. Sun., June 4.)—Not shown for review.

"Nailing On the Lid." (Vogue. Sun., June 4.)—Not shown for review.

PATHE EXCHANGE, INC.

"The Iron Claw." No. 12. (Pathé. Two reels.)—In "The Hidden Face," as this episode is entitled, the mysterious Laughing Mask reveals his identity—almost. As a matter of fact, he reveals it to Margery Golden, but the mask is replaced just as he turns toward the audience. Margery's astonishment at discovering who her mysterious protector is, serves to heighten the mystery. The Mask, having been captured by Legar, escapes after signalling the police with an electric light. He flees to the Golden home and asks Margery to secrete him, but she refuses unless he reveals his identity. This he does, and Margery, despite her bewilderment, hides him, after he has assured her that the missing Manley may still be alive. Pearl White, as Margery, Sheldon Lewis as Legar, and Creighton Hale as Manley, head the cast.

"Luke's Late Lunches." (Phunphilms.)—Luke gives some really laughable comedy as the proprietor of a quick lunch. He provides soup by squeezing out the old dish rag, he furnishes crullers which break the policeman's teeth, he protests when one customer calls his china cracked when in reality there is nothing but a hair on it, and soon a fight starts, which ends only when all the china is cracked.

"Leap Year." (Pathe Split reel.)—This is one of the ludicrous Goldberg Cartoons, showing in Goldberg's own way, how Orphelia Oldface attempted to grab a husband. All her victims were saved by a merciful providence, and she was obliged to seize a tailor's dummy and hurry off to the preacher. On the same reel is "How to Bring up a Child," a burlesque on domestic advice, in which real children appear.

UNIVERSAL PROGRAM

"The Iron Hand." (Red Feather. Five reels. Mon., May 29.)—Reviewed at length elsewhere in this issue.

"All Over a Stocking." (Nestor. Mon., May 29.)—Because her husband's stenographer wears a pair of stockings just like the pair she wanted to purchase at the sale, wifey throws several fits and causes unearthly eruptions until the stenographer explains. Arthur Mackley wrote this story and it was produced by Al Christie with a cast including Eddie Lyons, Betty Compson and Ethel Lynn. It is one of Christie's good ones.

"The Silent Man of Timber Gulch." (Gold Seal. Two reels. Tues., May 30.)—A well rounded drama in which a young girl is the means of bringing her father out of a long isolation, caused by his intemperate habits in earlier days. Robert Leonard both wrote and produced this, playing the lead opposite Ella Hall. Leonard furnishes the strong scenes and Miss Hall the sympathetic ones, and the result is a nicely balanced picture. Miss Hall, we are inclined to believe, does quite the best work of her career. Others who appear are Marc Robbins and Duke Worne. The scenes and photography are unusually good.

"The Fur Trimmed Coat." (Laemmle. Tues., May 20.)—Once more has Rupert Julian risen to unusual heights in a short one-reel drama. The story credited to Irene Haere has as its principal characters the unfaithful wife and the husband who appears to be hard working. The last scene, however, discloses him as equally unfaithful. This is excellently done with a cast including Julian, Douglas Gerrard, Elsie Jane Wilson and Francelia Billington.

"The Double Fire Deception." (Imp. Tues., May 30.)—Jane Gail and Matt Moore to our notion have no superiors in the portrayal of refined comedy. Miss Gail is the maid in this case and she takes her mistress's position when the latter learns that she must marry a certain man to inherit her fortune. The certain man sends his butler ahead of him and he is mistaken for his master. The results are uproarious. Jay Hunt wrote the story, Norbert Lusk adapted it, and Matt Moore produced it. Clara Beyers and Alan Holubar are others.

"Tough Luck On a Rough Sea." (L-KO. Two reels. Wed., May 31.)—This two-reeler has some most humorous action transpiring on a ship at sea while it also introduces a clever contortionist and acrobat who plays the leading role with comical results. The rolling ship movement done by rockers is not always consistent with weather conditions outside, but on the whole is a most satisfactory release. Dan Russell is among the cast.

"The Attic Princess." (Big U. Wed., May 31.)—An over sentimental story by Calder Johnstone has been made into a pretty picture by George Cochrane with his two leads, old Thomas Jefferson and young Zoe Bech. The picture which depicts the harsh treatment meted out to a ward by her guardian and how she was saved from it by a wealthy painter across the way, will appeal more to children than to grown-ups.

"Two Mothers." (Laemmle. Two reels. Thurs., June 1.)—This is a most unusual feature of life on the operatic stage, constructed in original style and worked out effectively. An opera singer is married to a man who has divorced another woman of the same profession. The husband tells his new wife the story of his unhappy married life before and that his first wife was a flirt and forsook her home and child. The former wife then tells her story and in that the husband gets all the blame. Which is right? The divorcee answers more or less positively when she, at the pleadings of her little son, allows the other woman to assume her role on the opening night. Alfred Allen, Virginia Southern, Dorothy Davenport, Emory Johnson and Gordon Griffith appeared under Lloyd Carleton's direction.

Howard Estabrook About to "Shoot the Rapids": A Scene from "The Mysteries of Myra," International Film Service

"It Can't Be True." (Powers. Thurs., June 1.)—Written and produced by Craig Hutchinson, starring Ernie Shields, supported by Marcia Moore, Harry Tood and Margaret Joslin, the last mentioned player once being prominent in Essanay "Slippery Slim" comedies. Shields is seen to good advantage as the penniless boarder in love with his landlord's daughter and how he wins her makes a very funny story.

"Brother Jim." (Big U. Thurs., June 1.)—Showing how the faith of a little child regenerated a derelict. An excellent little drama that will appeal wherever exhibited. Thomas Jefferson, Frank Newburg and little Lena Baskett are the principals. Calder Johnstone and George Cochrane furnished the scenario and direction, respectively.

"Jim Slocum—46393." (Imp. Two reels. Fri., June 2.)—A very nice heart interest offering in which a doctor after refusing a hurry call to save a poor man's child, rights his error of omission by giving the fellow a job and a home. It is a good picture of its kind and those who enjoy the work of King Baggot will be doubly pleased with it for he appears in the title role. Edna Hunter and Charles Ogle are chief in the supporting cast.

"Good Night Nurse." (Nestor. Fri., June 2.)—Al Christie has unearthed a rather time-worn plot in this number and its laughs will result from conventional situations. An idler seeing a pretty nurse pretends sickness to be near her and after all the nurse is called away. A violent chase results. Neal Burns and Billie Rhodes are the leads.

"Peg o' the Ring." (Universal Special Feature. Two reels. Fourth Episode. Week of May 22.)—At the opening of this number, Lund and Peg, who are still captives of the Hindu, manage to escape by dumping the lions into the pit of water. The Hindu is led to believe that Peg is out of the way and he reports this to Mrs. Lund. Later at the circus the thug employed by Lund, Sr., who is in search of the mysterious letter to Peg, gets the wrong envelope owing to the alacrity of Flip, the clown. Peg is again made captive by the Hindu and imprisoned in a trunk in the circus tent. Dr. Lund, Jr., is worsted in an argument with the Hindu and in the closing scene the tent is discovered to be on fire.

"As In a Dream." (Rex. Three reels. Sun., June 4.)—This picture was made some time since under the direction of Carl Leviness and has a cast composed of Sydney Ayres, Doris Dawn, Richard Sterling and Olive Fuller Golden. The story furnished by L. V. Jefferson might be described as a political melodrama with a main theme of Capital versus Labor with love and aphasia as side issues. Coincidence plays such a large part in the story's development that it fails quite utterly to convince. The direction is poor, as regards the handling of many players in the important scenes and also regarding the properties which almost always betray artificiality.

"The Wire Pullers." (Laemmle. Sun., June 4.)—Another delightful little romance indulged in by Herbert Rawlinson and Agnes Vernon, assisted very ably by Jack Holt and Mina Cunard. The story by Catherine Carr is imaginary and impossible but William Worthington's company puts it over in excellent style.

"Tammany's Tiger." (Bison. Two reels. Sat., June 3.)—Somewhat of an indefinite comedy that starts off as a melodrama but quickly swings to wild humor. Most of the scenes just show the trouble caused by a group of tigers, lions and pumas, who are let loose in a village. After the first few scenes there is no plot and the picture presents just a series of disconnected incidents, quite funny, but handled in rather a slipshod fashion. Henry McRae wrote and directed a cast headed by Marie Walcamp, Lee Hill and L. C. Shumway.

"A Cad." (Rex. Sat., June 3.)—One of the rivals tells the girl that the other suitor has been killed on a hunting trip. After a time she decides to marry the deceiver, but just before the final wedding vows are taken the other bursts in and the truth is known. Ben Wilson, Dorothy Phillips and Joseph Girard are the leads in this, which will prove fair entertainment.

"It's Awful to be Jealous." (Joker. Sat., June 3.)—A jealous wife and a jealous husband create the greater comedy in this excellent reel. Business and situations are both sidesplitting. Allen Curtis seems to be improving every day. William Franey, Gale Henry, Lillian Peacock and Milburn Moranti are the principals.

MONTHLY INDEX OF REVIEWS

ISSUES OF MAY 6-MAY 27 (INCLUSIVE)

All pictures are listed both by titles and by brand names. In the index, C. stands for "Comedy"; Cart., for "Cartoon"; C-D., "Comedy-Drama"; D., "Drama"; Juv., "Juvenile"; Sc., "Scenic"; Top., "Topical." The figure before the abbreviation is the number of reels. The date is the date of the issue of Motion Picture News in which the review appeared. The second page number refers to the music chart for the picture.

MOTIOGRAPH

The HEART of the MOTION PICTURE

Here's What

MR. E. H. ROTH, Mgr. of the Portola Theatre, San Francisco, Thinks of the MOTIOGRAPH:

San Francisco, March 22, 1916.
Enterprise Optical Mfg. Co.,
564 W. Randolph St.,
Chicago, Ill.

The two new 1916 model Motiographs, which we purchased from you the beginning of this year, have given us perfect satisfaction in every particular. I think I can safely say that the Portola Theatre is accredited with showing the finest screen pictures in San Francisco, or elsewhere. This credit, however, is due to the Motiograph machines, as their projection is perfect, and the picture is absolutely flickerless at any speed, as well as delightfully steady. We have had, as you well know, many inquiries from exhibitors who desire the best in projection. Needless to say, we gave your machines our unqualified endorsement. Incidentally, I wish to thank you for the consideration you have always shown us.

Very sincerely yours,

96—What precaution must be taken in connecting the two coils of a "U" core choke-coil so that they will work in the same direction?

Ans. — Whenever you are planning or studying the connections for a magnet coil of any kind where the windings are divided in two or more sections, it is a good plan to always imagine the core as a straight body. Place one of the coils at the top and the other one at the bottom end of the straight core. Connect the beginning end of the top coil to the line. Connect the end of the top coil to the beginning of the bottom coil and then connect the end of the bottom or second coil to one carbon and then from the other carbon back to the other line wire.

This arrangement you will observe lets the current through the two coils in series in the same direction. Then the choke-coil is working correctly. If by chance or accident you should have reversed one of the coils so that you would for instance connect the end of the top coil to the end of the bottom coil, then one coil will buck the other and your result will be no choking effect and you will merely get the resistance of the copper wire of the two coils in series with your arc and your fuse will blow.

For better understanding, I herewith submit sketch Fig. 47, showing the correct connections for the two windings of a choke-coil and Fig. 48 illustrates the wrong connections which would cause the device to buck and be inoperative.

By referring to Fig. 47 we find that the beginning end of the two coils is designated in each instance by the letter "B," and the end of the coils is designated by the letter "E." Observation shows that the external terminals of the choke-coil then consists of one beginning and one end terminal. This is the correct arrangement, providing the coils are wound the same way when they are made. I have observed instances where, through carelessness, coils have been wound in opposite direction and one should always make sure of the direction of the winding, because if one of the coils is wound in the opposite direction, then you cannot follow the rule of connecting end of coil No. 1 to beginning of coil No. 2, so that you must not go blindly about determining connections of any kind with magnet coils.

If results are not obtained you should investigate to determine the direction of the windings and the connections in accordance with the above and then you should also make sure if results are not forthcoming that no portion of the winding is short circuited, between layers

A Picture Without Music Is Almost Like Soup Without Salt

Motion Pictures Have Lost Their Novelty as Animated Photographic Records and While Appeal Lies in Attractiveness of Subjects, Excellence of Production, Staging and Importance of Cast, the Best Music, Competently Rendered, Must Be Part of Program Expected to Bring Public Back Again

By B. A. Holway

"ANYTHING that will bring patrons to your theatre is good advertising. It makes little difference what it is, nor does it altogether matter how you exploit it. If it brings business, it is good advertising."

This statement, made to the writer by a veteran showman of more than forty years' practical experience in the theatrical industry, emphasizes the fundamental feature of good showmanship.

The main thought of every showman, as it is indeed, in a somewhat similar way, the thought of every business man, is always to attract the public to his theatre. To that end he carefully arranges his program if he is a moving picture manager or a vaudeville man, or keeps his eyes open for the successful plays if he is running a "legit" house. Anything that will bring the people to his theatre is good advertising.

Music has always played a more or less prominent part in theatrical operation and has rightly become an indispensable feature. Its advertising value in the average theatre (and in speaking of music in this sense it may be well to be specific and state that the accompanying music of the house musicians is meant), has perhaps lost its force through the fact that it has become an indispensable feature and is therefore accepted as a matter of course, and not as anything unusual.

But in the moving picture field an altogether different situation has arisen. The ordinary musical accompaniment found in the average moving picture theatre is still in the stage above referred to—considered an indispensable feature and accepted as a matter of course. But among the larger and more progressive theatres of the country, the theatres that are following closely the trend of public opinion and the development of the fourth largest industry in this country, music is assuming more significant proportions and becoming an important factor and hence an advertising asset.

For it is becoming to be realized that moving pictures have lost their novelty as animated photographic records and, while their appeal now lies in the attractiveness of subject and the excellence of production, staging and importance of the cast, the time is not far distant when the public, ever fickle and ever seeking something new, will turn toward the entertainment that offers something different.

Auditory Appeal Next Step

Inasmuch as the appeal to the eye alone is losing some of its force, it is only logical that the next development should be along the lines of auditory appeal. It is recognized that for the present at least the synchronization of sound and screen action is impracticable in so far as it is applied to the effort to reproduce through some medium the spoken words of the actors. Therefore it must be to the musical accompaniment that attention is next turned.

No one realizes this more fully than that master mind of the moving picture world, S. L. Rothapfel, the man who has done more probably than anyone else to set the pace in motion picture exhibition and who has, by force of example and the daring of his convictions, established a new vogue in the presentation of the picture play.

Just as he elaborated and perfected the stage settings surrounding the screen and introduced this phase of cinematographic presentation, so did he develop the musical atmosphere and surrounded the productions exhibited under his direction with elaborate musical accompaniment.

The result was inevitable. Patrons were at first attracted by the beauty of his theatre, the splendid projection of his films, but went out talking, not about either of these two nor the pictures themselves, but about the music. Little by little the reputation of the music at the Strand Theatre, in New York, became nation-wide. To speak of the Strand was synonymous with speaking of good music. People from far and near went to the Strand to hear the music and incidentally to see the photoplays presented. The advertising value of music so firmly established by the Strand forced itself to the attention of other large theatrical managers, with the consequence that music became an elaborate feature of their presentations.

But in many instances the basic principles of the Strand music were completely overlooked. For it was not the large orchestra and beautifully toned organ that created the impression in its entirety, but rather the perfect blending and synchronization of music and the pictures. The musical programs were laid out to suit the photoplay and to meet its varying moods. Yet always was it subdued and "under" the picture itself, accompanying it but never rising above or dominating.

In the furtherance of his music as an advertising asset, Mr. Rothapfel introduced specialty numbers, procuring noted singers and musicians who appeared in concert programs between the film presentations. But it would be a mistake to confuse the music for the pictures with musical interpolations of the program, which, after all, were but incidental and in no wise peculiar to a motion picture theatre.

Pains Taken by Rothapfel

In his efforts to obtain the right musical atmosphere for his picture programs, it is said of Mr. Rothapfel that having in one of the big feature films of the day a scene calling for music by a country band, he worked for several days before the opening with his orchestra striving to get the effect that he desired, and failing in that, went out into the street and engaged for the entire week the film was shown a "German" band, marching them back and forth behind the screen during that one scene in the picture. The result was an effect obtainable in no other way and again he had demonstrated the efficacy of synchronizing sound and vision.

Illustrative of other phases of musical atmosphere created for the picture, the writer recalls the presentation of a celebrated film production in which the heroine was shown in the first part of the picture preparing to leave this country for Scotland. Risking the breaking of the continuity of the story, the exhibitor stopped the picture for the space of a moment or two, while in the distance and coming nearer the audience heard the strains of a bagpipe, followed by a quartette of male voices singing "Loch Lomond." With consummate artistry the stage manager dimmed his lights as the voices seemed to diminish in the distance, and before the singers had concluded the song the picture was again on the screen, showing the heroine in Scotland. By a clever method of presentation the spectator had been transported from America to Scotland without there having been any awkward pause or sudden change in locale.

Such little stunts as this have proven good advertising in that they have the effect of causing verbal comment and sending the spectator out talking about the whole program and creating a desire to see and hear what next may be done.

Bureau of Standards Will Save Industry Millions

C. Francis Jenkins, Chairman of the Recently Organized Efficiency Department of the Motion Picture Board of Trade, Issues Statement Outlining the Aims of His Department—Problems in the Mechanical End of the Business the First to Receive Attention of Expert Supervision

C. FRANCIS JENKINS, of Washington, D. C., chairman of the recently organized Bureau of Standards of the Motion Picture Board of Trade, has given out the following statement, covering the objects of the Bureau.

This movement is one which has been much needed, as millions of dollars have been wasted by the various branches of this industry in not co-operating and through the lack of definite basic standards to be followed by the manufacturers in the various branches.

"The establishment of the Bureau of Standards of the Motion Picture Board of Trade came about by reason of the lack of fixed standards in our industry, the direct cause of an enormous waste, and easily traceable to the loss of more than a hundred million dollars last year alone.

"The Bureau will stand in practically the same relation to the Motion Picture Industry that the Society of Automobile Engineers does to the Automobile business, and the Underwriters' Laboratories does to the insurance companies, and whose recommendations, while they have not the effect of law, are so carefully considered before promulgation that they are now accepted as authorative everywhere.

"The purpose of the Bureau is to bring about such a unification of processes, mechanisms and practices as will insure to the beginner as well as the masters of business in our industry, a lerger net return than now prevails. Its edicts may not be mandatory, but rather express the composite thought of the business at large, a sort of clearing house for trade expression. In due course there will be published a descriptive list of adopted standards and approved ideas, methods and processes but it will condemn nobody's device or idea at any time. Our first work will be the establishment of mechanical standards, some to take effect immediately, others later from time to time as will cause the least possible disturbance in the business.

Every Firm to Contribute Expert

"Every concern known to the Bureau is or will be asked to designate an expert to become a member of the sub-committee relating to that branch of the industry. The sub-committee will select a representative to become a member of the general committee, and report thereto the recommendations of the sub-committee.

"The general committee will consist for the present of representatives of the following general divisions of the industry:

"1, Raw Material; 2, Production; 3, Projection; 4, Exhibitors; 5, Machine Manufacturers; 6, Electrical Goods Makers; 7, Exchanges; 8, Lens Manufacturers; 9, Camera Manufacturers; 10, Reel Manufacturers; 11, Fire Underwriters; 12, Storage and Containers; 13, Transporation; 14, Theatre Construction Arrangement; 15, Miscellaneous.

"This treatment of the subject, it is believed, will be fair and equitable to all, and least likely to seriously disturb any branch of the business while establishing necessary fixed and recognized standards.

"The organization of the Society of Automobile Engineers brought order out of chaos in the automobile trade, and it is reasonable to suppose that the establishment of fixed standards in motion picture mechanism will do as much for our own industry.

"As it is vitally important to all branches of the industry that this come about in the quickest possible time, hearty co-operation is invited from those interested."

REMEDY TO PREVENT "GREEN" FILMS FROM STICKING

C. H., Chicago, Ill.—Your answers to the operators' and managers' questions have attracted my attention, as I am an old-time operator and know what it means to us fellows to get the information you are giving, which I believe is of good value to any man working in the moving picture business. I have been bothered a great deal when using green film on first runs by the emulsion coming off and sticking on the springs, sprockets, rollers and other parts of the machine. I have used bees wax and tallow to overcome this trouble, but it seems to me that there ought to be some relief to us operators when running first-run film. The picture will run along, and all of a sudden a part of the emulsion will stick on the spring, scratching the film all the way along the sprocket holes. You can hear and feel the machine pull hard, and the picture then becomes unsteady. Do you know of anything which will help to improve the running of first-run pictures?

ANS.—O. J. Allenbaugh has invented a process which is known as "The Allenbaugh Process," through the means of which a green film is made like a glass finish on the emulsion side, so that it is just as smooth and hard on the emulsion side as it is on the opposite side. The result is that you may take a green film and run it through a machine for the first time with just as much ease as you can an old one which has run through the machines many times.

One day, not long ago, I met Mr. Allenbaugh, and I investigated his process, which is remarkable in all ways. Soon after becoming connected with the Rialto theatre in New York in a consulting capacity, I recommended to Mr. Rothapfel that he have his films treated so as to improve the projection, and also to reduce the wear and tear on his machines. Mr. Rothapfel put the matter in the hands of his chief operator, and, as a result, all films for the Rialto theatre are now treated by the Allenbaugh process; and it is a remarkable fact that not only is the film in itself improved by the hardening process, but it goes through the machine like an old film, without noise or grit, and the motor pulls about one-half as hard as it previously did with green films untreated. The process is well worth the investigation of every exhibitor, and the manufacturers of film should also investigate the Allenbaugh process, as it will increase the life of their film by preventing the elongation of the sprocket holes due to the great strain when the film is run through the machines the first few times with the green side of the film untreated.

Gentlemen:

A good exhibitor would not place economy ahead of good projection, but after using Speer carbons for over a month I can say that I can recommend them to any exhibitor as the equal of the imported carbon I ever used and the price is considerably lower.

I am using 5/8 x 12" soft cored on 120 Volts A.C. pulling 45 amperes and my results are excellent.

Very truly yours,

WILLIAM B. KLAHRE.

Our Factory is OPERATING NIGHT and DAY to catch up with orders for SPEER CARBONS

You better get your order in NOW!!!

TROUBLE IN GETTING A PERFECTLY WHITE LIGHT ALL OVER THE SCREEN

J. R. B., Angola, Ind.: I read your articles in Motion Picture News with much interest, and think all operators should.

I have been having trouble in getting a perfectly white light all over the screen. It shows purple in the centre, as the outline of the carbon in Fig. 1. I am using a Simplex projector with a 6½*-inch condensing lens nearest the arc, and* 7½*-inch in front. I am using* ⅞*-inch Snow carbons. The current is A. C.* 110 volt, 60 cycles, and I use a Ft. Wayne Compensarc, operating on the 40*-ampere notch. I make a picture about* 8 feet by 10 feet, at 70*-foot throw. The condensing lenses are adjustable, and I have them as close as possible.*

I use a straight set on the carbons, and do not "freeze" them. I hope you will be able to help me, as it is a source of considerable annoyance.

Answer.—I am not familiar with the Snow carbon. I do not know who makes it, and I don't believe I have ever had opportunity of testing any of them, at least not as far as I know. Therefore, it is possible that your carbon may cause some of your trouble. However, you are wrong in using a ⅞-inch diameter cored carbon with a Ft. Mayne Compensarc operating on the 40-ampere notch. For this current you should not use a carbon larger than ⅝-inch diameter.

Your condensers, 6½ inch, next to the arc, and 7½-inch focus in the front should give you good results, providing you set them right to suit your particular condition.

You state that the condensing lenses are adjustable, and you have them as close as possible. You will smooth out your field of light on the screen considerably by moving the condensing lenses apart, maybe ½ inch, and while you may sacrifice a certain amount of illumination, your field of light will be distributed much better; and I am sure your picture will be improved.

In any case, first of all, use the ⅝-inch carbons. Next, move the condensers apart slightly, and draw your arc lamp back a little bit, and then set the lower carbon straight up and down, and the upper one inclined towards the lower at an angle of about thirty degrees and keep the carbons fairly close together, but use your own judgment on this as you will have to experiment, due to the difference in your carbons and other local conditions which have to be met by each individual operator.

PLANS TO INSTALL PLANT IN TOWN WHERE ELECTRIC LIGHT IS NOT AVAILABLE

M. E. W., Colerain, N. C.—I am situated in a small town where electric light is not available, and I am planning to install my individual light plant.

We have in the village a small individual 4 h. p. gas engine that is furnishing lights for a private residence, and I am writing to know if it is possible to build this current to a sufficient power to run motion pictures with. What is necessary to give good pictures, the necessary voltage?

Ans.—If you are planning the installation of your own individual electric lighting plant, you will find advertised in the columns of the News various makes of gasoline electric generating sets which give splendid satisfaction when properly installed and operated.

The gasoline consumption varies somewhat with the different make and type of engines, but my experience proves that it is safe to figure about one pint per h. p. per hour.

You say that you have an individual 4 h. p. gas engine, furnishing light for a private residence, and you want to know if you can use this equipment for a motion picture arc. As you do not state the voltage and the ampere capacity of the electric generator, I cannot answer your question with assurance.

However, if your generator is capable of producing not less than 60 volts and from 25 to 35 amperes, then your 4 h. p. engine is powerful enough to drive this generator so that you can operate a motion picture projector arc with good results.

Of course, for a private or small exhibit, 15 amperes, D. C., will do, but under no condition must the voltage be less than 60, as you must have a rheostat in series with the generator and the arc. The arc operates at about 50 volts, and 10 volts drop in the rheostat is the smallest with which regulation of the arc can be obtained. If you will give further information as to the type and capacity of your generator, giving, perhaps, statement of what is contained on the nameplate, and if you operate a storage battery in conjunction with the equipment, with the specifications for the same, I may then be able to give you further information; but it seems to me that if you have the engine, it would be cheaper to install a special generator for the projection machine, and such a generator can be had at prices ranging from $90 to $125, depending upon the design and quality of the machine, and with such a generator you could operate an arc anywheres between 25 and 40 amperes, D. C., without the use of a rheostat in series with the arc, and if your engine is 4 actual break h. p., it will be plenty strong enough to drive the generator.

EDWARD EARL IS RESPONSIBLE FOR MUCH OF THE EFFICIENCY OF NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY

THE growth and development of many of the firms now prominent in the motion picture industry has been phenomenal and it has been no easy matter to provide for the financial requirements occasioned by such rapid growth. The accompanying photograph is that of Edward Earl, prominent in manufacturing and business circles in New York, who is the treasurer of the Nicholas Power Company.

Edward Earl

Mr. Earl is connected with many large American business interests and is a director of several important New York corporations. He has been associated with Nicholas Power for a number of years, and through this close connection has become deeply interested in the development of the motion picture art along the best lines. Mr. Earl represents the highest type of the American business man. He is ever busy with his varied duties and is evidently averse to publicity. Mr. Earl has had much to do with the system of efficiency which characterizes the Nicholas Power organization from the office boy up.

STOTHART, MUSICAL DIRECTOR FOR "HIGH JINKS" AND COMPOSER, SIGNED AS CONDUCTOR OF CIRCLE, INDIANAPOLIS

H. P. STOTHART, of New York, one of the most widely known directors in the theatrical music world, has been engaged as conductor of the orchestra for the new Circle photoplay house, Indianapolis, which will open its doors in a few weeks. He is to make his home in Indianapolis, and the orchestra will be composed of Indianapolis musicians, most of whom have been engaged for the Circle music forces.

Mr. Stothart during the last theatrical season was musical director of two of the most notable light operas of the year, Hammerstein's "High Jinks" and "Katina." He has had wide professional experience both as a conductor and as a composer, and his efforts with the Circle theatre will be to provide interpretative music that will blend harmoniously with the pictures on the screen, and where written music of the desired quality is not available he well undertake to compose it. Altogether the music will be one of the distinctive features of the Circle's programs.

The Circle's orchestra director began his career as a teacher of music in the schools of Milwaukee, where his ability to awaken a keen interest in this subject among children gave him much fame. In 1908 he was called to the University of Wisconsin where he taught harmony in the college of music and became director of the college drama. During his time at the Wisconsin institution he composed the music and directed the production of the operas of the Haresfoot Club, two of these operas being "Alpsburg" and "The Manicure Shop," which were written by him in collaboration with Theodore Stempfel, Jr., of Indianapolis.

Mr. Stothart's first professional venture was "Frivolous Geraldine," a light opera for which he composed the score and which had an extended run in the Olympic theatre in Chicago. Since that time he has been prominently identified with the Hammerstein theatrical enterprises and has become a staff writer with Witmark and Sons, music publishers. He is a member of the Musical Director's Club of America, and his going to Indianapolis is expected to add much strength to the musical forces of Indianapolis.

THE EMPRESS, DENVER, MAJESTICALLY OPENS ITS DOORS AFTER UNDERGOING $25,000 ALTERATIONS

THE Empress theatre of Denver has opened its doors after being completely remodeled at a cost of $25,000. For weeks decorators, painters, carpenters and upholsterers have been at work remodeling the old Empress theatre of Denver, tearing down here, building up there, beautifying and cleaning until the famous theatre shines with a new glory inside and out. The two little stores that formerly cramped the street entrance have been torn out, and now there is room for the good natured crowds to "mob" the box office without having to crush one another. Paint and the arts of the decorator and the electrician have transformed the street appearance of the theatre, while inside the house is one of the most beautiful in the state. The indirect system of lighting has been installed, and at night there is a pleasant soft glow within the theatre that brings out the green, old rose and ivory color of the decorations.

The Empress has a seating capacity of 1,650. The seats have been covered with linen slips to protect the dresses and waists of the women patrons from dirt and dust. These slips are changed twice weekly. A modern ventilatitng plant similar to the one in operation in the famous Strand theatre of New York has been installed to carry the fresh air into the house

The Empress is a first-run motion picture house showing feature photoplays.

Characteristics of Photographic Developers

Rodinol, a Liquid Developer of High Concentration, is Paramidophenol at Its Best and Has Seen Much More Use Than Paramidophenol Hydrochloride—Amidol Was the Next Discovery of Skilled German Chemists—Reducing Action of an Amidol Solution—Glycin Another Favorably Known Developer

The action of a Paramidophenol developer made up with sodium sulphite is strongly affected by the addition of Potassium Bromide, which affords a ready means of controlling its action and thereby allows overexposed negatives to be satisfactorily dealt with.

Paramidophenol may be regarded as the mother substance of other important developers to be described later, such as Amidol, Glycin, Metol and others and in addition to its valuable properties set forth above, it is susceptible to other slight alterations in its composition which result in the formation of other high-class compounds for developing.

By replacing the Hydrogen atom of the OH group of Paramidophenol, with a metal of alkali nature, such as potassium or sodium, a phenolate of the original compound will be formed, the chemical nature of which may be expressed by

$$C_6H_4 \begin{matrix} ONa \\ NH_2 \end{matrix}$$

As an instance of such a phenolate we will mention Rodinol, a liquid developer of high concentration, which is favorably known to all with experience in photography.

As Rodinol is supplied in liquid form and bottled it has not seen much use in cine film development, but as Rodinol is Paramidophenol at its best, and has seen much more use than Paramidophenol hydrochloride, mention is given it here. It may further be stated that all the good points attributed above to Paramidophenol are also possessed by Rodinol.

Further experiments, by the skilled German chemists, directed toward the discovery of other organic developing compounds shortly resulted in the production of another developer, which is known to photographers generally as:

AMIDOL

Chemical name, Diamidophenolhydrochloride $C_6H_3 \begin{matrix} OH \\ NH_2HCL \\ NH_2HCL \end{matrix}$

Amidol was announced at practically the same time by J. Hauff and Company of Feuerbach and by Dr. Andresen of the "Agfa" Company.

As will be noted by a comparison of the chemical composition of Amidol and its predecessor Paramidophenol, the compound Amidol is possessed of one more of Amido (NH_2) groups than is Paramidophenol, which greatly increases the power of Amidol to develop with the addition of sodium sulphite alone.

In fact so rapidly does reduction take place with a solution of Amidol and sulphite that it is only in conjunction with sulphite of sodium that Amidol may be satisfactorily used. Were an alkali either of soda or potash added to the solution, development would take place so energetically that even unexposed portions of the film would be reduced; in other words a bad degree of chemical fogging would result.

In appearance Amidol exhibits a crystalline structure in the form of fine needles and by the aid of sodium sulphite may be easily dissolved in water. When mixed as recommended with sulphite only it is possessed of rapid and complete developing power. Negatives produced with an Amidol developer of proper content are free from any degree of fog and in addition first-class gradation and the satisfactory rendering of shadow detail are obtained.

Reducing Action of an Amidol Solution

The reducing action of an Amidol solution may be easily controlled by the use of Potassium Bromide 10 per cent solution. By slightly reducing the amount of sulphite the effective action of the Bromide is increased, while should the reducing action of Amidol need to be accellerated, some 16 per cent solution of Sodium Sulphite should be added to the bath, as it will be recalled that alkalies cannot be successfully used with Amidol.

Although possessed of some good qualities Amidol has not come into use in the treatment of motion picture film, due to the fact that it has very poor keeping qualities when made up, the solutions deteriorating rapidly upon exposure to air. Neither a working developer or a strong stock solution will retain its strength for a space of time long enough to warrant its incorporation into large and expensive baths such as are used in processing cinematograph film.

The principal point in favor of Amidol with many photographers is that it may be used without alkali. The carbonates of sodium and potassium and also caustic alkalies have a most irritating effect on the hands of many workers, and as Amidol works satisfactorily without an alkali it enjoys a popularity among workers with tender skins.

Another very favorably known developer derived from Paramidophenol and possessing many good properties is

GLYCIN

Chemical name, Paraoxyphenylglycin $C_6H_4 \begin{matrix} OH \\ NHCH_2 \\ COOH \end{matrix}$

Glycin, which is a white or sometimes yellowish powder in the form of fine scales, is formed from Paramidophenol by replacing one of the Hydrogen atoms of its NH_2 group by the monovalent group expressed by CH_2COOH. Glycin, while not soluble in water to any appreciable degree, dissolves readily in combination with sodium sulphite. Upon dissolving Glycin with sodium sulphite a sodium salt results, with the formula:

$$C_6H_4 \begin{matrix} OH \\ NHCH_2COONa \end{matrix}$$

Some of the properties of Paramidophenol are altered by the entrance of the group CH_2COONa into its molecular structure, the most important changes being greater solubility and adaptability to use with all forms of alkalies.

A Glycin developer will stand out before all others in regards to the exquisite cleanness of the negatives obtained through its use, there being no trace of chemical fog and because of this characteristic Glycin is particularly adapted to "Stand Development" and the treatment of exposures of doubtful correctness.

Negatives developed in a Glycin bath will show highly satisfactory gradations, but the rendition of shadow detail is not of the highest character unless the developer is made up with a caustic alkali which causes the formation of a phenolate, having the chemical formula:

$$C_6H_4 \begin{matrix} ONa \\ NHCH_2COONa \end{matrix}$$

In cases of overexposure the action of Glycin may be readily controlled by the addition of Bromide of Potassium 10 per cent solution, but this is seldom necessary due to its characteristic slowness in working. The action of Glycin is also sensitive to lowering of the working temperature of the bath.

Glycin a Developer of Great Adaptability

Glycin is a developer of great adaptability to the varying requirements of photographic practice. By cutting down the amount of developer proper or the amount of carbonate or both, negatives of extreme softness may be obtained while an increase in the amount of Glycin or carbonate, in making up the bath, will yield negatives showing vigorous contrasts. A rapid Glycin developer is obtained when caustic alkali is used in place of the Potassium Carbonate.

Glycin mixed in any form will keep without deterioration for an indefinite period if bottled air-tight, although it has not been found to possess keeping qualities above the ordinary when kept in developing tanks such as are found in motion picture laboratories.

In view of the fact that Glycin solutions do not readily oxidize upon exposure to the air, there is no discoloration of the gelatine of films or plates processed with it, and the images obtained with a Glycin bath are of a pure black color excepting when Caustic Alkalies are used, when the precipitated silver on the film is of a brownish black color.

Of all the photographic developers derived from Paramidophenol the most popular and most efficient, everything considered, is:

$$\text{METOL } C_6H_4\begin{matrix}OH\\NHCH_3\end{matrix}\cdot H_2SO_4$$

$$\cdot\ {}_2$$

Chemical name, Monomethylparamidophenolsulphate.

Upon the substitution of a Methyl (CH_3) group for one of the hydrogen atoms of the NH_2 group of Paramidophenol we have the compound Metol, the chemical symbol of which is given above.

Dr. Bogisch, another noted worker in photographic chemistry, is credited with having first observed the good qualities of Metol as applied to development and Metol was placed on the market in 1891 by J. Hauff and Company of Feuerbach, the "Agfa" Company of Berlin bringing out its Metol very shortly afterward.

Metol, which is rated as being the best of all rapid developers, occurs in the form of a white crystalline powder, easily soluble in water and forming a clear, colorless solution. In compounding a Metol developer it is best to dissolve the Metol and Sodium sulphite separately as when an attempt is made to dissolve the Metol and sulphite together the former is sometimes precipitated. A Metol bath will be found clear and colorless after the addition of the Carbonate if properly mixed.

With most emulsions a Metol developer will be found to work clean and free from chemical fog. Should fogging occur it can be corrected by the addition of a slight quantity of Potassium Bromide. While the Bromide has very little restraining effect on a Metol bath made up with a carbonate of Sodium or Potassium, it will be found a good corrective of fog and makes a rapid developer work comparatively clean.

Metol Developer Stands Alone

When the rendition of shadow detail is considered it will be found that with the exception of Ortol, a Metol developer stands ahead of all others. Although an Ortol bath of proper content will give shadow detail equal to that secured with Metol, no other reagent equals it, and the nearest approach other than Ortol is the phenolate of Paramidophenol known as Rodinol.

The gradations in negatives developed with Metol are superlative, providing the exposures have approached the normal. This quality and the rounding off of the tones of the image is due to the sensitiveness of the developer and the speed with which it works, and shows the superiority of Metol to some of the comparatively slower and harder working developers. The development of a negative may be prolonged, however, when using Metol, without harm, and in this way most any desired quality of gradation may be secured.

Another respect in which Metol differs from most other developing regents is that the addition of Bromide of Potassium to the bath has little effect as a restrainer. Especially is this true of solutions containing caustic alkalies, in which the Metol exists as a phenolate. When developing with Metol the best means for dealing with overexposed negatives, is the use of a solution of Metol and Sodium Sulphite. This bath is slower in action than a bath containing a carbonate and may easily be controlled by the addition of Bromide.

By reason of the entrance of the Methyl (CH_3) group into the molecule of Paramidophenol, attendant upon the formation of Metol, great solubility is conferred upon the latter, permitting concentrated solutions to be prepared with Sodium Sulphite. and Metol is likewise characterized by excellent keeping properties. Metol mixed with sulphite or in the form of working solutions or strong stock solutions will keep indefinitely if not exposed to air, and moreover a Metol bath has long life and may be used many times before becoming exhausted.

In addition to being made up with sulphite alone and with sulphite and a carbonate of sodium or potassium, Metol may be successfully used as a phenolate developer which as before noted is accomplished by making it up with caustic alkali. Due to its good keeping properties and the comparatively long time which it takes for a Metol bath to oxidize the resulting negatives are free from staining of the gelatine, which is likewise true of all developing compounds derived from Paramidophenol.

Another reason why Metol enjoys such popularity both in the motion picture and general photographic industries is, that it is just as well adapted to the successful development of film positives or photographic prints as it is to thetreatment of negatives. The same also may be said of the developer Hydrokinone in conjunction with which Metol is generally used in compounding a bath. Most of the other developers, however, find their principal use in negative development.

In motion picture laboratories a properly compounded Metol bath is found to keep satisfactorily until an amount of film sufficient to exhaust its reducing powers has been put through it, which can be told by the increased time it takes to accomplish development.

Merits of Metol Justifies Its Popularity

In Metol more good qualities are combined than will be found in any other photographic developer and its universal popularity is fully justified by its proven merits.

(To Be Continued Next Week)

SYSTEM FOR EXTRACTING FROM DEVELOPING SOLUTION INGREDIENTS CAPABLE OF USE AGAIN IS PERFECTED

THE scarcity and high price of chemicals for use in developing motion picture films has caused numerous experiments to be made by laboratory men, with the end in view of recovering some of the more expensive ingredients used in baths for film development.

David Horsley of the Centaur Film Company has perfected a system for extracting from an exhausted developing solution that part of its contents which has sufficient activity to permit of its being included in a new bath.

By means of the following description and diagram, the process of chemical recovery will be made clear, and it is deserving of the consideration of all laboratory superintendents.

On referring to the diagram the tank in which films are developed as indicated by No. 1. Upon the bath becoming exhausted it is pumped up into a storage tank, No. 3 (which should be located above the developing room) by a pump No. 2 connected to the piping between tanks No. 1 and No. 3.

At the bottom of the storage tank No. 3 is another pipe with an outlet valve, which is connected to a gas heated coil No. 4. Upon opening the valve at the bottom of the tank No. 3 the exhausted solution stored there passes through the heated coil No. 4 and in passing through the coil becomes revived and reoxidized.

Having passed through the coil No. 4 the greatly rejuvenated solution is allowed to run into a wide and shallow cooling tank, No. 5. The fluid collected in cooling tank No. 5 is now tested in order that its strength may be ascertained, and sufficient fresh chemicals added to bring the strength of the bath back to normal after which, by means of piping and a valve, it is led back into the developing tank. The pipe from the cooling tank No. 5 should be located somewhat above the bottom of the same, owing to the fact that the heating process causes all organic matter in the solution to be precipitated and it accumulates in the bottom of the cooling tank.

Where the pipe from the cooling tank No. 5 discharges the revitalized developer into developing tank No. 1 there should be placed a filter bed No. 6 of close woven felt. The purpose of this filter is two-fold. In addition to freeing the solution of any organic matter which may have flowed down in the solution, from the cooling tank, it was also found that crystallization sometimes occurred in the heating coil. By using a filter, however, the developer enters the developing tank free from all foreign matter either of organic or crystalline nature.

Apparatus for Reclaiming Used Developer

It is claimed that the use of the above outlined process effects a saving of 60 per cent or higher in costly chemicals. If this is the case laboratory men should not be backward about "going to it."

ZOLLER IS ELECTED PRESIDENT OF THE STANDARD NEWS FILM COMPANY

At annual meeting of the Standard Newsfilm Company in New York last week, Josiah A. Zoller of New York, was elected president. The other officers chosen were J. F. H. Wyse, president of the Ontario Safety League, Toronto, vice-president; Mortimer H. Hill, New York, secretary, and Fred R. Jones, treasurer and general manager. Leroy Franklin Gourley, of Montreal, is an additional director.

This company is moving into larger quarters in the Godfrey building and will open a branch office in Chicago shortly. Branches in existence at the present time are 34 Victoria street, Toronto, and 4 Johnson's Court, Fleet street, London.

Music and the Picture

Edited by Ernst Luz

This department is maintained for the exhibitor's assistance with a view of suggesting proper musical illustrations for current photo plays. MOTION PICTURE NEWS will be pleased to help solve any difficulties the exhibitors may have with their musical programs. All communications should be addressed to the Music and the Picture Department.

But it is recognized that such elaborate musical accompaniment and atmosphere creation as developed by the larger theatres of the country is not always practical for the average theatre manager and he must look about him for some other means of accomplishing a similar result at an expense much more in proportion to his receipts and the possibilities of his theatre.

It has been into this field that the "Fotoplayer" and kindred musical inventions have stepped and have solved for the average exhibitor the problem of synchronizing sound and vision at an expense proportionate with his receipts.

Mention is made of the "Fotoplayer" as being one of the most practical of this type of instrument for the average exhibitor in that it gives him perfect synchronization of sound and vision at minimum cost and at the same time affording a high type of music through its self-player attachments, which reproduce the execution of the world's greatest masters under the control of the operator in accord with the film on the screen. So perfected have these instruments become that in the smaller theatres—and by smaller theatre the average house of 1,000 seats and upwards is referred to—with an admission price of ten or fifteen cents, the orchestras are being entirely replaced or augmented by them with an increase of efficiency that has proven good advertising.

But the basic principle is that of adequate musical atmosphere and a judicious use of "effects" either operated independently or in conjunction with such an instrument as above mentioned, created for the photoplays. To-day this is becoming as essential a factor in motion picture presentation as the films themselves and their careful selections.

How Small Theatre Met Competition

It is the wide-awake exhibitor who is realizing this truth and is applying it to his business. Only recently an instance illustrative of this fact came to the attention of the writer. On upper Broadway in New York City is an average type small theatre of the better class. With everything in its favor in respect to location, but confronted with heavy opposition both in motion pictures and in vaudeville, this house began to lose. Only a little, it is true, but receipts fell off, while at the same time expenses increased.

Naturally the managment cast about for the solution of the problem. The house is a comparatively new one; the lobby and display advertising about the theatre was good; the selection of films was good. But it seemed that pictures had lost a little of their attractiveness as presented in the old way. The music had consisted of the usual orchestral accompaniment, with a small orchestra and a piano relieving while the musicians rested. After a careful analysis of the situation the management became impressed with the fact that all was not being got out of the pictures that could be obtained, and turned to his music to supply the deficiency. The small orchestra with its limitations and restrictions, failed to rise to meet the situation, and a "Fotoplayer" was installed as an experiment.

The suiting of the music to the varying moods of the picture had its effect. The pictures instead of being merely visual reproductions seemed to actually come to life and one almost seemed to hear the characters talk. It is a fact, and in demonstration thereof the books of the theatre were disclosed, that an almost immediate increase in business was noted, while the other theatres providing merely musical accompaniment for their pictures plodded along in the same only way.

The above is merely cited as an illustration of the value of music to the picture theatre and the importance of music as an advertising asset. The exhibitor whose music is good and who advertises his music judiciously but with proportionate thought to its importance cannot be very far off the right track.

The old showman was pretty nearly right when he said "Anything that will bring the patrons to your theatre is good advertising," and music as an advertising asset holds an important place in the careful management of a moving picture theatre.

Editor's Note:—Many of the points made by Mr. Holway are well taken and should be of interest to our readers. As he says, the music of the present photoplay theatre is an important factor. It is the one equipment in the photoplay theatre that does not require exploitation. When properly maintained and conducted, music is its own advertiser. The capable and up-to-date manager has long realized that when he has first-class music in his theatre he can safely exploit any other feature of the business, knowing that should this advertising bring him a greater periodical capacity, he is certain that his music will make permanent patrons of a certain per cent of those that are attracted by clever advertising.

Those who follow Mr. Rothapfel's managerial methods closely appreciate him as a master mind for accomplishing the above in a most artistic and refined manner. Hence his certain success.

Personally, I feel that the photoplay theatre beckons to that which is the very best in music, and I look forward to the time when it will be the most lucrative occupation for those of the musical profession.

Mr. Holway is surely right when he says that music will attract business for the photoplay theatre. It does more—it makes permanent patrons of transients and is the one and only foundation known to build up business slowely but surely, week after week, when properly conducted.

BUSCH ORDERS MINUSA GOLD FIBRE SCREEN FOR HIS PRIVATE THEATRE

WHEN Aug. Busch of the Anheuser-Busch Brewing Company saw some of his films projected on a Minusa Gold Fibre in the private demonstration parlor of Eugene Taylor, commercial photographer of St. Louis, he immediately decided that one of the Minusa Gold Fibre Screens was quite essential to the proper presentation of his films.

Consequently he has placed on order with the Minusa Cine Company for a screen for his own theatre on his beautiful country estate. Mr. Busch's home contains some historical spots it having been the home of former President U. S. Grant. The log cabin, which was built before the Civil War, and other relics are still carefully preserved.

Notes:—This picture, while telling a beautiful little romance, is surrounded with a great deal of action by royalties, having to do with a Kingdom of Kosonovia. Care should be taken that the numbers selected are of a more classic order, remembering that the regal tone should be maintained as much as possible without making the musical program impossible.

Nos. 1 and 6 should be light 4/4 intermezzo numbers.

No. 2 should be a 4/4 number of heavy regal effect. It does not necessarily need to be a march. No. 3 should be a concert waltz with a slow introduction. Nos. 4 and 5 should be slow numbers of a strictly melodious and romantic appeal. No. 7 a short waltz movement. No. 8 a 4/4 march of positive regal tone. No. 9 must be a slow number of a very serious romantic appeal. No. 10 must be a 2/4 intermezzo which can be hurried accordnig to action on screen.

No. 12 should be a tarantella. It dare not be played too fast.

Nos. 13 and 14 must be slightly different numbers maintaining a romantic appeal. No. 15 should be a 2/4 intermezzo of light foreign effect. No. 16 should be a slow legato number having a positive dramatic effect. No. 17 should be an allegro number of an overture followed by No. 18, a galop, to carry the action until the stop cue. Nos. 19 and 20 are the same as 13 and 14, reversed temperamentally. No. 21 a short light waltz.

ALL Kimball Organs are masterpieces, whether they consist in a carefully selected group of orchestral tones for a house seating less than five hundred or whether they contain every instrument that can be utilized in the most exacting picture and enough of them to fill the largest auditorium with musical sound. The electrical mechanism is quick, accurate, dependable and puts the whole instrument as completely under the domination of the organist as the symphony orchestra the conductor.

Building and Furnishings

Majestic, Nashville, Will Live Up to Its Name When Opened

Crescent Amusement Company, Controlling Twenty-two Houses in the City and in Tennessee and Kentucky, Plans the Erection of a 1,500 Theatre at the Cost of $100,000, on the Sites of the Alhambra and Rex—Exterior Decoration Will Be in French Renaissance and the Interior in the Adam Style

NASHVILLE is to have another large picture theatre, the Majestic, to be opened by the Crescent Amusement Company, on Sept. 15. It will be built on the sites of the present Alhambra and Rex theatres. Contracts were let on May 15, and work will be carried on day and night. The plans, by Marr and Holman, architects, call for an expenditure of $100,000. The house will have a refrigerating system in connection with the ventilating plant. The fresh air will be blown over brine coils, which are frozen to a temperature of ten degrees below zero.

Besides this, an improved air washer and three large suction fans are used to insure perfect ventilation at all times. In winter the house will be heated by fresh air warmed over tempering coils. The building will be absolutely fireproof in its construction and will contain many novel features. There will be a waiting room immediately inside the entrance on the first floor with a log fireplace and telephone for the convenience of patrons.

Ladies rest-rooms and men's smoking rooms will be installed on either side of the first floor. The stairways to the balcony, four in number, will be of marble, with ornamental bronze hand railings. A large stage will be constructed, capable of putting on any class of attractions, and a complete set of stage scenery will be installed, the picture being placed against the rear wall of the stage with special scenic effects built around the picture, with a garden scene in front, giving it an unusually attractive appearance. The picture will be located twenty-five feet beyond the front seats, which will make the front seats as advantageous as those farther back, and will not necessitate the audience looking straight up at the screen.

A large pipe organ, with two echo organs, one in the balcony and one underneath the balcony, will be installed. The exits will extend straight from the street to the alley in the rear, insuring quick egress from all parts of the house. The seats will be of the largest type in use, being twenty-one inches in width, and the spaces between each row of seats will be almost three feet, enabling one to pass betwen the rows without interference. The theatre will have a seating capacity of 1,500, with fifteen private boxes. Ceiling height will be fifty feet. The electrical effects will be very beautiful, many colored lights being in each indirect fixture and around the stage, which will enable the furnishing of any kind of an electrical effect that is desired in keeping with different pictures.

The interior will be designed in the Adam style. The woodwork will be white enamel and the wall tinted in French gray. The exterior will be of French Renaissance architecture, being of dark red brick with white enameled terra-cotta trimmings. An ornamental iron marquese will extend around the entire front, and there will be two stores with a large entrance in the center. The floor will be covered with Wilton velvet carpet. The Crescent Amusement Company has been operating in Nashville for more than ten years and has twenty-two theatres in the city and throughout Tennessee and Kentucky. President Sudekum is as interested over the Majestic theatre as if it were a palace. "I mean to make this theatre where beauty and comfort will go hand in hand, a theatre where I will want my patrons to go for enjoyment."

MISSION, ON THE KAHN AND GREENFIELD CIRCUIT, SAN FRANCISCO, OPENS WITH "POOR LITTLE PEPPINA"

THE Mission theatre, located on Mission street, near Twenty-first, San Francisco, the latest and largest in the chain of motion picture houses operated by the Kahn and Greenfield Circuit of San Francisco, was opened on May 4 with "Poor Little Peppina," featuring Mary Pickford. This house takes the place of the old Idle Hour theatre, formerly conducted by this firm, but seats more than twice the number that could be accommodated in the old place. While the entrance is on Mission street, the main theatre is on a rear street, thus making the outlay for realty holdings less heavy and insuring a freedom from noise.

The theatre proper is reached by a lobby more than one hundred feet long with a gentle incline. The walk from the street is seemingly shortened by a fine array of illuminated pictures in frames, mirrors and beautiful marble work. The lower floor of the house has a seating capacity of about fifteen hundred, while about three hundred more are accommodated in the balcony. As a special feature all house lights are controlled by dimmers. The projection room, which is located in the balcony, is furnished with three Simplex machines and in an adjoining room there are two motor generator sets, so that little less than a complete suspension of electric service can interfere with projection.

Kahn and Greenfield, the owners of the house, have been in the moving picture business in San Francisco for several years, starting first with small houses in the Fillmore street district. These have been replaced by larger and finer theatres until now the three houses conducted by them are among the largest and finest in the city. The New Fillmore will be under the management of R. F. Abraham, who has been with the firm for some time as booker and manager.

ATLANTA CONVENTION PROVES PROFITABLE TO MINUSA CINE PRODUCTS COMPANY

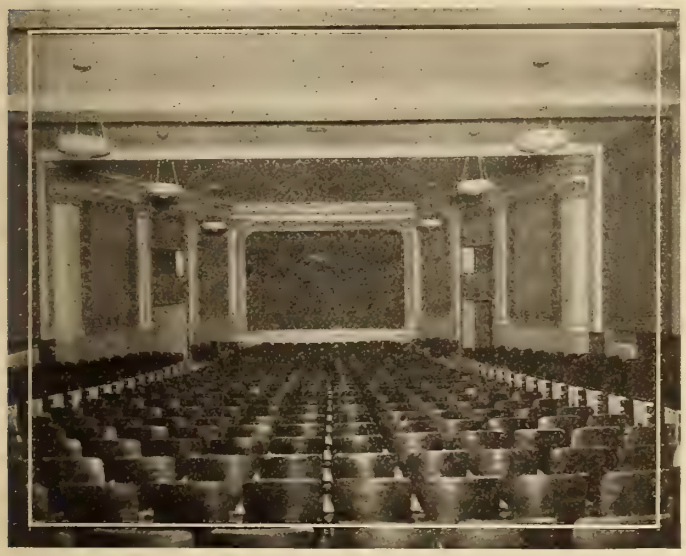
AS a result of the Minusa Cine Products Company, the South-Theatre Equipment Company, R. M. Shaw Company, and the Mutual Film Corporation's combined exhibit at the recent convention in Atlanta, the Minusa Cine Products Company is in receipt of several orders from that territory.

The Bonita theatre, Copperhill; the Bonita theatre, Atlanta; Lyceum theatre, New Orleans; Trianon theatre, Birmingham; Herman Fichtenburg's new Globe theatre in New Orleans; the Alcasar theatre, Dothan, Ala., have placed their orders with the Minusa Company.

SAVOY, IN CLEVELAND, SEATING 1,200, IS IN THE BUSINESS SECTION AND DRAWS BIG TRANSIENT CROWDS

THE Savoy, St. Clair and East 103d street, Cleveland, owned by the Herman Rose Amusement Company and managed by H. J. Garfield, has become known for the excellent patronage built up for it by the slow but sure methods of the management. The house measures 60 by 220 feet, and was erected last year. It is a substantial structure built of brick, iron and concrete.

The theatre is been equipped with an improved heating and ventilating plant and indirect lighting system. The seating capacity is 1,200. A Motiograph machine is used for projecting the pictures, and the length of throw is 130 feet. A Martin rotary converter is part of the booth equipment.



Interior of the Savoy, Cleveland

A six piece orchestra provides the music; Caille Brothers furnished the Savoy with an up-to-date ticket seller. Two shows a day are given and the management uses features from various manufacturers. The Savoy is located right in the heart of the business section and the admission price is ten cents. A staff of fifteen employees is required to look after the house.

Mr. Garfield is a believer in extensive advertising and uses the newspapers liberally, in addition to window displays and attractive lobby publicity. The front of the Savoy always attracts attention of pedestrians by the choice selection of new advertising matter in panels and frames.

PIERCE, SALES MANAGER OF WURLITZER IN MISSOURI AND KANSAS, FINDS THE "NEWS" INVALUABLE

P. H. Pierce, sales manager of the Rudolph Wurlitzer Company of Missouri and Kansas, is a reader of MOTION PICTURE NEWS and uses it for references to new theatres. One little incident he relates tells of the use he makes of the NEWS.

"I was formerly connected with the Western Auto Music Company, of Dallas, Texas, before coming here. Since my arrival I have been getting the NEWS. I recently noticed a large number of changes in motion picture houses in Texas and clipped it out, sending it to that firm, asking them at the same time if they took the NEWS. They wrote me back—"No, but we are certainly going to subscribe for it.' I find it of much help in keeping track of changes in theatres and the opening of new houses, all of which is interesting to my work."

DIRECTORY OF NEW THEATRES

ARKANSAS

Walter Stoppleman, for the past three years assistant manager of the Prnicess theatre at Fort Smith, has leased the Van Buren theatre at Van Buren and will show features.

CALIFORNIA

The Garrick theatre, Eighth and Broadway, Los Angeles, which for the past year has been owned by the Los Angeles Investment Company and under the management of Seth Perkins, has been sold to a recently organized corporation of Los Angeles business men. Teal Smith, formerly an exhibitor at Seattle and San Francisco, has been placed in charge of the house and has announced a new policy. The program is to consist of a five-reel Mutual Masterpicture, the new Mutual release titled "Reel Life," both of which will be changed weekly, and the Mutual Chaplin subject which will run for four weeks. By this arrangement the theatre will have the exclusive use of the Chaplin picture continuously for the first four weeks.

Roy C. Patton has purchased the Normandy theatre, Thirty-ninth street and Normandy, Los Angeles, of George Nye.

Herman Stevens and Frank Emmert are the new owners of the Queen theatre, at Thirtieth and Vermont avenue, Los Angeles, which they have just purchased from W. J. Brandt.

Judge A. P. Tugwell has sold a half interest in the Globe Theatre at Jefferson street and Central avenue, Los Angeles, to J. H. Herbert. The theatre was closed for one week to permit the making of a number of alterations and improvements, including the installation of an American Photoplayer. When the house was reopened the admission price was increased to ten cents, the theatre formerly having been a five-cent house.

M. W. Stralee, who conducted a theatre at Valley City, North Dakota, will soon open a new house, which has been named the Majestic, at Calexico, on the California-Mexico border. The building is of brick and has modern equipment throughout, including an air-cooling system. At Calexico the temperature frequently hovers around the 118 to 120 degree mark, and the management of the new theatre belive this feature of the theatre will make it decidedly attractive. The new theatre will have a seating capacity of eight hundred, equipped with Powers 6-B machines, American Photoplayer and will have a stage for vaudeville numbers.

Appelstill and Cook, owners of the Palace theatre at El Centro, are building a large airdome which will be known as the Tulane.

M. Leonhart, formerly of the Oakland Photoplay conducted by the Turner and Dahnken Circuit at Oakland, but more recently in charge of the Berkeley house, has been made manager of the house to be opened shortly at Portland, Ore., and has left for the northern city.

G. H. Perry is no longer connected with the Novelty theatre at Cloverdale, having disposed of his interests to C. V. Chicazola, who has assumed charge.

A moving picture house is to be opened shortly at Campbell, in the Santa Clara Valley, by Gordon Ainsley.

A. Bennett has purchased Fisher's theatre in the Richmond district of San Francisco.

A moving picture house will shortly be opened at Pinole by G. Walton.

Moving picture equipment has been installed at the Veterans' Home at Yountville, and shows are given twice a week.

C. F. Otto is now conducting the Family theatre at Fruitvale and has installed new equipment.

Plans for a large theatre to be erected on Stevenson street, near Sixth, San Francisco, have been prepared by E. M. Frasier. This house will have a lobby one hundred feed long, and an entrance will be secured from Market street by means of an incline and a covered passageway over Stevenson street.

CANADA

Mr. Hogate of the Hanover, Ont., moving picture house announces that he has sold his interest to Mr. Wilson, who will continue the active management.

Mr. Irwin of the Regal theatre in Beamsville, Ont., is contemplating a change and is advertising for a good theatre location in Ontario.

J. R. Muir, president of the Dominion Theatre Company, which has just added the Royal Victoria theatre at Victoria, B. C., to its string of houses, announces that many changes have been made since his company assumed control on May 1. The entire interior of the theatre has been retinted and new lighting effects have been installed, while the orchestra, formerly of three pieces, has been increasd to six instrumnts. The stage has been decorated with palms and flowers, and altogether the house has made a distinct advance.

Plans are now being formulated for the erection of a large picture house in the city of Westmount. Up to the present the Westmount City Council has turned down several applications for permission to build a theatre there. Now, however, it is understood that the necessary license has been granted, with the condition that the Council itself shall censor all pictures to be shown. The new venture will be watched with interest, as Westmount people have heretofore looked to Montreal for their pictures.

COLORADO

The largest deal in downtown Denver real estate that has been made in a long time was made public when a deed was recorded transferring title to the four lots on the northwest corner of Sixteenth and Curtis streets from Margaret G. Church and Arthur P. Church to the Bishop-Cass Investment Company for $500,000, less the present mortgage of $160,000 outstanding against the property. These lots are known as Nos. 17, 18, 19 and 20, block 97, East Denver, and have a frontage of 125 feet on Sixteenth street and 100 feet on Curtis street. The new owners have plans already prepared for the erection of a modern fireproof building, three stories high, which will have stores and shops on the Sixteenth and Curtis street fronts, as well as entrances from both streets to a large fireproof moving picture theatre, with a seating capacity of more than 1,800.

CONNECTICUT

There will be another moving picture theatre built in Watertown by M. J. Langford of Naugatuck, whose theatre a few weeks ago was burned to the ground. Mr. Langford conducted a most successful business there for the past two years and aroused interest among the townspeople in the moving picture line.

FLORIDA

W. H. Carroll announces for the Carroll Amusement Company of Tampa the purchase of the Rex theatre, St. Petersburg. It is the aim of the new owners to make the house a home theatre and there will be no variation from the five-cent admission price. Several substantial improvements are to be made. H. L. Gambate, who is known as a sucessful manager, will direct the Rex.

INDIANA

The Blackstone, located on the north side of Martinsville, and the Grace theatre, on the south side of the same city, have been placed on an independent basis. Some time ago the management of both theatres was, by agreement, placed in the hands of Charles Blackstone. Under the rearrangement Mr. Blackstone will retain the Blackstone.

KANSAS

The Wonderland theatre at Clyde has been sold by R. A. Crumrine to L. H. Husselman.

The Best theatre at Topeka has been sold by Lew Nathanson to W. P. Cuff, formerly manager of the Orpheum. Mr. Cuff will not make any change in the policy of the house, but when summer opens up it is probable that he will furnish vaudeville attractions and feature photoplays instead of continuous picture programs. Mr. Nathanson will continue his duties as representative for many of the Kansas City exchanges, to which much of his time is now devoted.

MASSACHUSETTS

George Ernst has resigned as manager of Empire theatre, North Adams, to become manager of the Colonial, Pittsfield.

John S. Whistler of the Lyric, Pittsfield, has sold out to Charles Cotter of Westfield.

Ben Taylor of New Richmond theatre, North Adams, has sold his Taylor theatre to Charles Costello, who has altered it and built a new front.

William W. DeWolf, formerly manager and part owner of the Cambridge Olympia, is now manager of the Poli theatre at Springfield.

Fred M. Engley, general manager of the Eastern Maine Theatre company, with two houses at Rockland, Me.; two at Manchester, N. H.; one at Westbrook, Me.. and one at Lowell, Mass., announces that the new theatre at Biddeford, Me., will be ready to occupy on August 1.

Poli's Grand in Worcester started motion pictures May 22.

MICHIGAN

Col. W. S. Butterfield will build an $80,000 theatre in Flint, to be devoted to vaudeville and pictures. Mr. Butterfield now controls the Majestic and Garden theatres there. The new house will seat 1,500 and will open by December 1.

William Wallace has been appointed manager of the American theatre, 234 Huron avenue, Port Huron, suceeding Harry Weinberg.

J. J. Randall is building a picture theatre in Lansing which he expects to open the first of June, with R. D. Durand as manager. It is located at 429 East Michigan avenue, and when completed will be equipped with two Powers 6-B machines and a Gold Fibre screen. The seating capacity is between 250 and 300.

MISSOURI

Grubel Brothers are erecting the new Electric theatre at Springfield, which will seat 1,800 and will open September 1 with vaudeville and pictures.

The Ruby theatre, Kansas City, has been reopened. The Ruby has previously proven a failure.

W. G. Ferguson, who recently acquired the Colonial theatre, at Thirty-ninth street and Woodland avenue, Kansas City, has recently taken a step which he believes will be a great improvement for his house. That is of placing white covers over the backs of all the 666 seats in his house.

The Alhambra, in the Elks' Arcade, at Springfield, opened its doors to the public recently. The house is thoroughly modern, attractively decorated and perfectly ventilated. The Alhambra will run moving pictures exclusively and the regular price will be 10 cents throughout the entire season.

D. T. Graham, president of the Columbia Novelty company, who has been building an airdome in connection with the Webster theatre, on Clinton and North Twelfth streets, St. Louis, has bought another lot to add to the airdome site, making the ground, now undergoing alteration and building, 150 x 150 feet. This will give a larger seating capacity for the airdome as well as more space to devote to beautifying the place. Mr. Graham hopes to open the outdoor theatre on June 1.

The Maple airdome, on Kingshighway and Page Boulevard, St. Louis, opened for the summer season on May 15 with a feature program, which is changed daily.

The Crystal airdome, 5946 Delmar Boulevard, St. Louis, opened on May 12 with feature pictures and a popular local orchestra under the direction of Victor Hugo.

The Lyric skydome, Delmar and Taylor avenues, St. Louis, one of the theatres controlled by J. W. Cornelius, proprietor and manager of the two Lyric theatres and the Royal, all in St. Louis, opened on May 15. The weather was cold on opening night, but the airdome was crowded. A splendid orchestra of ten pieces, with David Silverman as leader, is a feature of the Lyric skydome.

The Lee airdome, with a five cent admission price and a bill of short subjects, with a feature occasionally, opened at Lee and Turner avenues, St. Louis, on May 15.

Hector Pasmezoglu, manager of the Congress theatre, opened the Mozart airdome, 4600 Delmar boulevard, St Louis, on May 15. The airdome has been a regular institution for several seasons, but just last winter Mr. Pasmezoglu secured the Congress, on Olive and Sarah, and has made a successful motion picture house of a theatre which had been more or less of a failure ever since it has been built. The theatre and airdome are several blocks apart, and if the business warrants it the house may be kept open all summer, as it is equipped with the swinging sashes on both sides, which may be opened from ceiling to floor, making the house as cool as any outdoor place.

Mrs. L. D. Stoddard, owner and manager of the Monroe theatre, on Chippewa and California avenues, St. Louis, has opened the Monroe airdome on California avenue, just around the corner from the theatre. Mrs. Stoddard has been a successful exhibitor in St. Louis for a period of seven years, and is steadily improving her theatre and airdome. Last summer while the airdome was running the theatre was undergoing repairs and enlargements, and was increased in seating capacity by several hundreds.

NEBRASKA

The New Muse theatre, at Omaha, costing $60,000, will be opened soon. The management has spared neither pains nor expense to make the New Muse an up-to-date theatre.

George A. Monroe, proprietor of the Monroe theatre, Twenty-fifth and Farnum streets, Omaha, has leased his house for the summer and will take a season's rest, traveling.

The right screen is essential in any auditorium in which motion pictures are presented, but it is positively indispensable in a ny airdome in which the management hopes to realize to the fullest possible extent upon their investment.

RADIUM GOLDFIBRE SCREENS use less electrical current than any other screens made—and the minimum of electrical current produces the maximum of results. This means that with RADIUM GOLD FIBRE SCREENS airdomes are enabled to start their performances at least an hour earlier than is possible with any other projection surface. An hour's extra show each summer evening means a lot of money.

OHIO

The Guckerts have sold the Dreamland theatre, Marysville, to Frank Gates. Mr. Gates formerly was in the motion picture theatre field at Columbus.

The Grand Opera House, Kenton, has been converted into a motion picture theatre under the direction of the Henry Dickson Company. Carl Pfeiffer, of Chicago, is the new manager. The old booth on the balcony level has been removed and an asbestos booth placed on the main floor level. A 1916 motor-driven Motiograph machine has been installed. The new curtain is twenty-four feet square and the pictures will be the largest ever projected in Kenton. A mercury arc rectifier to transform the alternating current to direct current has been put in service and flickerless pictures are promised. Shows will be given every evening, except Sunday.

Bellefontaine is to have a new motion picture theatre. Daniel S. Gutilla, who has just bought the Neer building, will remodel that structure into a theatre. The theatre, which will seat between five hundred and six hundred persons, will be located on South Main street. The improvement will cost about $23,000. Mr. Gutilla is manager of the Majestic and Grand motion picture theatres. He may give up his lease on the latter theatre, as he plans to give his personal attention to the new house.

OKLAHOMA

The management of the New Yale theatre at Muskogee, has started to make extensive improvements at a cost approximately of $15,000. The management has leased ground floor space of fifty-five feet, having a seating capacity of 800 lower floor seats, 125 balcony seats, a stage opening of 30 feet and will change from a picture house to a vaudeville and picture house.

TENNESSEE

The Crescent Amusement Company of Nashville, which owns and controls one of the largest circuits of motion picture and vaudeville theatres throughout the State of Tennessee, will at a later date take the Rex and Alhambra and make one large theatre out of both. The Rex and Alhambra are located on Fifth Avenue, Nashville, right in the midst of motion picture row, and by making the change that is contemplated it will give the Crescent Amusement Company even greater advantages to cater to larger crowds. A large sum of money will be spent.

The Parthenon, one of Nashville's biggest motion picture houses, located on Church street, between Fourth and Fifth avenues, has closed its doors. The stockholders of the company held a meeting for the purpose of deciding on the future course of the Parthenon, and announced that the doors of the theatre would be closed indefinitely. Patronage of the Parthenon would not justify the show remaining open. The property will either be sold or the company reorganized and business resumed.

What undoubtedly will be one of the handsomest theatres along Fifth avenue, Nashville, after it has undergone a thorough overhauling, will be the Crystal theatre, owned and controlled by W. H. Wassman. The Crystal will be overhauled at an expense of some twelve or fifteen thousand dollars. A handsome front and lobby will be a feature of the new house. While in Nashville some weeks ago, J. M. Dixon, representing the Federal sign system of Louisville, Ky., closed with Manager Wassman to place a Federal sign at the Crystal theatre.

The Strand, a new moving picture house, has been opened in Morristown, and has been remodeled and fitted up with modern appliances. It is under the management of H. C. Jackson, who was manager of Read's theatre for a year prior to the $20,000 fire in February which completely destroyed the old land mark.

The new motion picture theatre at the corner of Ninth and A streets, Chattanooga, is fast nearing completion. Practically all the exterior of the building has been finished and the interior construction will be rushed to completion.

TEXAS

The Alamo theatre, Waco, was damaged by fire recently to the extent of $5,000. The loss is partially covered by $2,500 insurance. Mrs. J. W. Terry, wife of the manager, and two other women living above the theatre, were obliged to jump to the street below.

The Pastime theatre at Quitman, has been purchased by the Misses Eleanor and Jennie Richardson, who are now operating the house.

VIRGINIA

Twenty-six negroes were burned to death, while from twenty-five to thirty others were more or less seriously injured, in a fire that destroyed a frame hall in which moving pictures were being shown at Wallaceton, a hamlet on the Dismal Swamp canal twelve miles from Norfolk. The fire was caused by the explosion of a gasoline tank which supplied the lights. The roof fell in before the exits, blocked by the surging mass of panic-stricken people, could be cleared.

WASHINGTON

The Pan-American theatre, formerly the Pantages, Second avenue and Seneca street, Seattle, has been leased by Manager Alex Pantages for a long term to the Fifth Avenue Amusement Company. This concern renamed the house The Oak, and opened it as the home of first-class vaudeville and feature motion pictures.

The Pacific Photoville circuit has leased the Tacoma theatre, Tacoma, from May 14 to October 1. High-class vaudeville and motion pictures will be shown. There will be three shows a day, a matinee and two in the evening.

WISCONSIN

The new Beverly on South Main street, Janesville, is open for business. The Palace photoplay house, Racine, has received a license to operate in that city.

Brains versus Custom

When a person interferes with established custom, he runs up against some pretty stiff opposition, and often is the object of ridicule and laughter.

That's what happened when E. R. Anderson first talked of Gold Fibre as a projection surface.

Today ninety percent of all screens made are patterned after the original Anderson idea, but none of its imitators even approach it.

Minusa Gold Fibre Screens

reflect the pictures in all their artistic excellence and absorb the contrary and jarring rays that are so harmful to the eye.

The object of Minusa Service is to analyze your projecting problems and operating conditions, and in the light of this analysis to prescribe and build a proper screen.

How Are You Booking?

A la Carte or Table d'Hote?

When you EAT a la Carte

You choose what you want—
You eat when you want—
You pay for each dish at a price it is worth.

By eating a la Carte—you please your taste, your pocketbook and your digestion.

When you BOOK a la Carte

You can see what you get—
You can pick what you want—
When you want it—as long as you want it—
You pay for each feature at a price based on its box office value TO YOU.

By booking a la Carte you are encouraged to advertise more—you are sure to satisfy your patrons—you popularize your theatre—and you INCREASE YOUR BANK BALANCE.

Table d'hote eating and booking mean paying for unattractive "dishes" in order to get the attractive. You pay the same rate for the weak as you pay for the strong.

Happy and contented are those exhibitors whom the Big Four has served on the a la Carte plan. And that same service will also make you a satisfied customer.

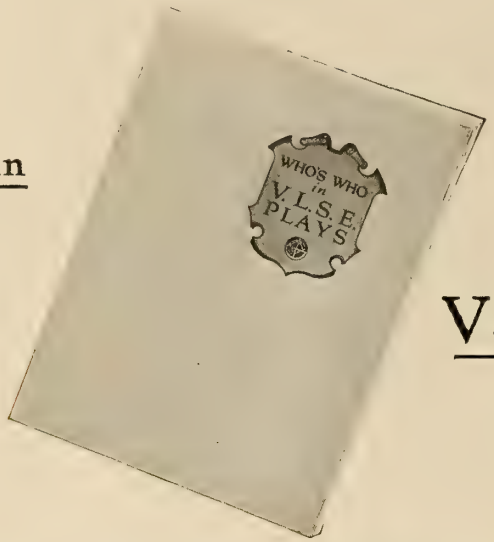
To Any Exhibitor—Just For The Asking

"Who's Who In



V-L-S-E Plays"

Your Copy of This Book Is Awaiting Your Call At The Nearest Big-Four Exchange

This handsome, two-colored, forty-eight page book—the size of this trade paper—done up in rich style, gives striking "off stage" photographs of each stage and screen favorite in V-L-S-E Plays—along with a snappy, out-of-the-ordinary personality sketch of the rise and success of these stars with intimate human interest high lights in their lives.

Besides being a book for ready reference on all the features released since the company started, "Who's Who In V-L-S-E Plays" has been designed to aid exhibitors in compiling press notices, program write-ups, and other publicity, all the matter being written from an angle to appeal to every editor. It is a book which will be invaluable to any theatre manager.

A request in person to the branch manager, a word to the V-L-S-E salesman in your territory, or a letter to your nearest exchange will bring your copy to you. Act now before the supply is exhausted.

Dear Mr. MacManus:-

I am not in the habit of praising photoplay productions but feel that I must write to you regarding "THE MYSTERIES OF MYRA".

I had no idea, when I booked this picture of the gigantic scope of the Hearst publicity and I can truthfully state that on the days that I show this serial my business has increased perceptibly. Please understand that I am using "THE MYSTERIES OF MYRA" without any particular exceptional feature and I can trace the direct results of your publicity to this excellent picture.

At first I was skeptical about "THE MYSTERIES OF MYRA" because the story is so revolutionary, but I now see that nearly everybody is interested in this new type of photoplay.

I want to congratulate you and wish you all success with "THE MYSTERIES OF MYRA", as I consider it the best serial I have ever used.

Yours very truly,

FEATURING SALLY CRUTE, MIGNON ANDERSON AND AUGUSTUS PHILLIPS SUPPORTED BY AN ALL STAR CAST OF PRINCIPALS

¶ Undoubtedly, "the most original photo-drama of the year" is what the consensus of opinions will be regarding "Her Husband's Wife."

¶ This newest Ivan feature pulsates with action, and the lip advertising it's due to receive from startled audiences will warrant any theatre playing it for a long run.

¶ "Her Husband's Wife" will be released thru the Ivan Exchanges on the first of June. Get in touch with the Ivan Exchange in your territory and book this sure-fire box-office winner.

¶ Contracts as exclusive distributors of Ivan Productions are expiring in some territories.

¶ Bids from reliable exchange owners who are in a position to distribute Ivan Productions and enhance the value of our brand name will be considered and options on franchises given.

Gentlemen:

I have just seen Douglas Fairbanks in "Reggie Mixes In", also making the sixth picture that I have booked, and cannot refrain from telling you that never in my career have I seen or had the pleasure of booking such wonderful pictures that have been so consistent in their general excellence. Their artistic value, their direction, their quality and everything about them have given to the Rialto Theatre solidity and have created a standard that I know will be impossible to duplicate with any other films now before the American public.

The pictures are improving, the comedies are especially good, and on the whole I am not only satisfied but thoroughly delighted, and I am sure that any exhibitor who will handle these pictures in the proper manner will create for himself a following that nothing but sheer stupidity and neglect could ever destroy.

Wishing you every success and trusting that you will continue with the good work, I am

Very sincerely yours,

The two letters shown on these pages from S. L. Rothapfel of the Rialto Theatre, New York, and E. C. Divine, of the Strand, Chicago, should be of particular interest to motion picture exhibitors at this time.

By the men who are responsible for the success of the two largest motion picture theatres in the two largest cities in this country they are of great importance to the exhibitor who is considering whether or not HIS audience will appreciate and pay to see TRIANGLE PICTURE PLAYS.

Both letters give the candid opinions of recognized authorities on motion picture exhibition and tell why they are basing their success on the presentation of TRIANGLE PICTURE PLAYS.

Seven months ago TRIANGLE PLAYS were first released without a single theatre. Now the number of houses showing these pictures runs into the thousands, which in itself is proof enough that the public enjoys, and in fact is en-

Gentlemen:

I cannot resist the impulse to tell you how greatly I appreciate the Triangle Plays. We have the most critical audiences, I think, at the Strand Theatre, and yet they are uniformly pleased with your productions.

The consistent high quality, the care used in production, and the superb artistry of these plays compel them, to my mind, as the greatest advance in the motion picture industry.

If--as surely seems improbable--there should be theatre manager anywhere who cannot put Triangle Plays over, he must be exhibiting either in a blind asylum or a cemetery. I ask nothing better than the opportunity to continue showing them. I cannot make my appreciation too strong.

thusiastic over the presentation of TRIANGLE PLAYS.

Cheap motion pictures no longer satisfy the public. Bigger and better pictures, with bigger and better plots, people and ideas, are required now—pictures of the TRIANGLE sort are essential for the successful house.

If you are a motion picture exhibitor and have not carefully investigated the possibility of presenting TRIANGLE PICTURE PLAYS in your theatre don't you think it worth while to drop us a postal card. There's no obligation on your part and it is just possible that we will be able to point out an advantage to you.

For the week of June 4th the TRIANGLE Drama Pictures will be Norma Talmadge in "Going Straight," and William Collier, Jr., in "The Bugle Call," and as usual two Keystone Comedies.

One Exhibitor's Experience

"FOR a long time I have been trying to get the best new one and two reel films that the market offered. My efforts have been untiring because I wanted to give my audiences something that I felt sure would please them. My search is now at an end. UNICORN FILM SERVICE meets my requirements exactly.

"After the very first showing of UNICORN pictures I was showered with compliments regarding the merit of the subjects. It was the first time in my experience that I had been able to get good short subjects with casts composed of stars.

"I was well pleased with the clear and clean appearance of the film, and best of all, the prices for service are right—much lower than I have paid in the past for poor subjects and worn-out film. As for posters, they are the best I have seen. They are real business-getters."

Have you investigated UNICORN FILM SERVICE? If not, do so at once and you will find that we can furnish the best new one and two reel films ever produced — with star casts—at prices much lower than you are now paying.

We release regularly twenty-one reels every week — Comedy, Drama and Westerns.

Prestige!

LAST week's issue of Motion Picture News carried more advertising pages (4 more than the journal carrying the second largest number) than any other picture journal of the week.

Nineteen pages of exclusive advertising were carried representing the announcements of thirty-five companies producing pictures and theatre accessories.

The reason why Motion Picture News leads in advertising is because it is the journal most widely read; and Motion Picture News is most widely read because it carries advertising announcements which can be found in no other journal, and because it is the liveliest and most comprehensive news and service journal in this field.

There is but one kind of prestige which a publication can offer its readers and advertisers and that is the prestige of being readable and read.

What The Critics Say of "Sherlock Holmes"

"The Essanay company has scored a clean and decisive knock-out with the film version of William Gillette's stage success—Sherlock Holmes. It is not merely a photoplay with a punch—it is a screen triumph with a varied assortment of punches, and veritable trip-hammer punches, all of them. Sherlock Holmes goes to the public bearing the stamp of critical approval of all who witnessed its private showing. It is an undoubted super-feature of film land."

New York Dramatic Mirror.

"Sherlock Holmes is a picture that can be given unqualified praise and is a credit to author, actors, director and photographers. It is one of the most effective pictures ever undertaken. From the beginning to the end of this seven part feature there is not a dull moment. The fade-in and fade-out process used in this production is positively the best that has been accomplished."

New York Morning Telegraph.

"A big winner. With the name of William Gillette and the famous Sherlock Homes, this should be a tremendous box office attraction. Certainly the film is well enough done to prove a real winner. It should pull big business."

Wid Gunning's Independent Reviews.

"William Gillette as Sherlock Holmes in moving pictures is a fitting consummation to this artist's wonderful stage career. Mr. Gillette before the camera is just as natural and forceful as we have seen him on the stage." Moving Picture World.

"The old classic which seems to hold its youth better than most things reaches the screen in excellent form. William Gillette appears to unusual advantage in the film version. The direction of the picture by Arthur Berthelet is excellent, and the supporting cast is capable." Motion Picture News.

What are "Clean" Pictures?

JUST what are "clean" pictures?

The term is being used a good deal nowadays, and undoubtedly clean pictures are of vital interest to this industry, facing as it does the turmoil of censorship.

ALL reputable producers, and this means to-day practically the entire producing industry, are anxious not to produce what are obviously objectionable pictures, —pictures objectionable to the better public. This state of mind is quite evident.

And there is a great deal of talk—there will be more—about "clean" pictures. The term is being used very easily, very freely, very superficially indeed. It seems to be smilingly assumed that if all pictures are clean, the path of the producer will be one of primroses and violets.

But what are "clean" pictures?

A VERY experienced playwright, a man grown gray and authoritative in his profession, Augustus Thomas, —defined, the other evening, the drama. And hearing his very clear, simple, rational statement, I could not but thing very pointedly, of "clean" pictures.

Mr. Thomas said the drama was built upon six broad strata of human emotions. These strata, placed one upon another, made a sort of pyramid,—that is to say, each was narrower, from number one to number six.

THE first and broadest stratum is the instinct of self-preservation. Next is the instinct of propagation—or what we call "the sex appeal." Next, love of kin. Next, love of country. And last, and narrowest, the emotional feeling we call "religion."

His dramatic success, "The Witching Hour," was built upon the narrowest and topmost stratum of religion. In order to make it a success,—to put it across the footlights, as the practical theatrical language has it, or to give it the "punch," as we say of the screen—he had to descend constantly to the lower and broader strata of human appeal.

He had, for instance, to make one man shove a derringer into another man's ribs, and say, "I'm going to kill you, damn you!" in the dramatic fashion in which only a murderer is dramatic. And he had to do other dramatic things which one doesn't find in a fairy story.

IF these dramatic situations are unclean and to be forbidden the screen, then motion pictures will not be dramatic, and if motion pictures are not to be dramatic, they will not begin to fulfill the broad field of expression open to them and also open to the stage, to painting, to sculpture and to the printed word.

Let's not deceive ourselves.

The printed word has, since the invention of type, gone through phase after phase of attempted censorship. If the cracked-brained reformers who didn't know how to make literature had had their way, we would have had little literature today.

JUST so we shall have few photodramas if we "clean" away from them the dramatic essentials.

We must introduce into every photodrama sufficient situations from several or all the strata of human emotions. Otherwise, we cannot make our audiences feel and think.

Self-preservation, love of kin, love of country, religion —yes, and the broad stratum which we call sex-appeal—all must be used.

THERE is, of course, a decided danger—several decided dangers—centering about the latter.

The sex-appeal plot has always been attractive, commercially, to certain publishers, theatrical producers, etc.—never to reputable houses of long and successful standing, but always to the man who thinks more of a quick clean-up than of future and continuous profits.

It is the easiest way. And it appeals particularly to the incompetent. The publisher or producer who is incompetent of stirring his public with tense but non-salacious productions naturally turns to the openly salacious —the easiest way.

ANY fool can write a salacious story, or book, or play.

Just so, there is a danger of the incompetent picture producer turning to the salacious in order to make a shocking picture. He can't make a striking picture in any other way.

And it is conceivable that the state rights buyer who wants a picture different from the program picture with which he has to compete should welcome such a picture—the state rights buyer, yes, but only the buyer who doesn't give a rip about his name and future.

And the exhibitor may be attracted by the sensational posters of such a picture and book it—but only the incompetent exhibitor, the man who isn't a real showman, who doesn't know that a smirch left on his screen by such a course, however temporarily profitable, will hurt him till the end of his exhibiting days.

My own candid opinion is that there will be few if any such producers, buyers and exhibitors ever in the business, and they will be outlaws, whom the united industry can speedily put out of business.

Any fool, to repeat, can make a salacious picture. But only a skillful, very skillful, producer can make a genuinely dramatic picture.

What Are Clean Pictures?

This dramatic picture must not ignore the sex question. It cannot. If we are going to "clean" this broadly emotional appeal from the photo-drama, we had best stop making them.

But what we must have is the writer and the director who know the drama and are fully capable of handling this same appeal as it has been so fully and so well handled in the best works of literature, painting, music and sculpture since the human race began to express itself.

WILLIAM A. JOHNSTON.

A True Story for Publicity Men

CHARLES F. COBRY, motion picture editor for the World-Herald, Omaha, Neb., a representative daily in a city of 200,000 people, sat at his desk Thursday, May 11, opening press "dope" from manufacturers.

"Ri-i-i-ip!" went his letter opener, and he extracted several pages of carefully typewritten manuscript. He glanced at them rapidly and without an expression of any kind, threw them into a wastepaper basket.

"Ri-i-i-ip!" he opened another and without a lost motion repeated the former performance.

He did it again. Then again. Once more. And he kept doing it with a monotonous regularity that soon filled the basket at his side.

"SAY, Cobry, if that's the way you handle your motion picture dope, how do you ever get your pages full?" asked a MOTION PICTURE NEWS man curiously. He whirled his chair around and faced him.

"I used to get disgusted with that stuff," indicating the overfilled basket, "but now I don't even get disgusted. I don't know why I open those envelopes. They look so pretty, I guess, or maybe I expect to find a ten dollar bill in one some day. They're always the same, and I always throw them away. If I printed the stuff in them I wouldn't have enough readers of my motion picture section to—Why, the 'deaths and funerals' column would be live dope beside my pages!

"A COLUMN or two of short stuff like 'Opie Moore has quit the movies. They wanted to throw him into a silo in a rural comedy!' isn't hard to get. I always get a local story for a lead, and gosh! How hard it is to unearth a local story sometimes!

"The column of press notices, labeled press notices, telling what the Omaha houses will show during the coming week, a few cuts of stars whose familiar faces and figures will be seen on Omaha screens during the week, and one or two stories—good stories—about motion picture incidents, etc., that would interest anyone, even if it were a person who had never been inside a motion picture theatre, make up the Sunday pages.

"MAYBE my pages are not representative of what newspapers in general want, but I am a pretty thorough reader and I very seldom see any of this junk in a paper."

He turned to his work again.

Ri-i-i-ip!! Shuffle, shuffle into the wastebasket.

"Yes," ri-i-i-ip! "these companies must have a lot of money to spend. Stories about narrow escapes in automobiles, under trains, over cliffs, under water, above the earth, and the like," turning around again. "Of course these harrowing experiences happen occasionally. And they are interesting. If Mary Pickford, dressed in a red bathrobe, gets into a pasture where a fiery bull is eating grass, and has to escape by climbing through a barbed wire fence with the bull only a few feet behind, of course it is interesting.

"But that stuff is worn to a frazzle. I actually believe some of these stories—I don't know this, mind you, and I wouldn't even hint it to anybody but you—but I actually believe some of these stories are faked. Yes, sir, actually faked!

"OF course this dope is the very same kind sent to every other city newspaper in the United States. I wonder if any of these stars are Omahans, or even Nebraskans? Were they ever here, I wonder, and I wonder if they know anybody here? I'd like to know it if they did.

"Wouldn't it make a whizzer of an item if this was an original story, meant for Omaha," holding up a carefully printed article, "and had a slight touch, even the slightest tinge, of local color? But," ri-i-i-ip, "they never have." Shuffle, shuffle, into the wastebasket.

And Cobry is scared to death that he will lose all sense of news value in a motion picture write-up, and he often stops to wonder, he said, if the war was really the only thing that caused a scarcity of paper.

Our Thanks to Gov. Whitman

FOR saving a great industry from the Czarism of the Cristman-Wheeler Censorship Bill, Governor Whitman is due, and receives the sincere thanks of every member of that industry. His use of the veto demonstrates, among other things, that a wise executive cannot be bulldozed by a lot of zealous "reformers," who spend their time attempting to make it appear that there is need for a law for which there is no need.

Governor Whitman summed up the whole case against State censorship in his statement of reasons for his veto. It is a document which other Governors, in a similar position, would do well to read and ponder. And it shows that we are still living in America, despite the efforts of misguided agitators to make us citizens of a near-Russia.

New Orleans Exchanges Form Combine Against Fraud

Eight Managers Meet in De Soto Hotel and Formally Launch the Associated Film Exchange Managers Association and Formulate Agreement for Observance of Its Members in Cases of Fraudulent Practices by Exhibitors—Evans of V-L-S-E Is President; Bugbee of Metro, Treasurer, and Wilkes of Paramount, Secretary

PAUL REVERE of historical fame has nothing on New Orleans exchange men, who have banded together as minute men, ready to assault the irresponsible exhibitors who make life a burden for the film exchanges.

Eight exchange managers gathered in the De Soto Hotel recently and formally launched the Associated Film Exchange Managers of New Orleans. R. King Evans, manager of the V-L-S-E exchange, was elected president; Karl A. Bugbee, of Metro, treasurer, and H. F. Wilkes, of Paramount, secretary. Exchanges represented at the meeting included General, Mutual, V-L-S-E, Paramount, Kleine, Pathé, Universal and Metro.

Seven managers will comprise the executive board. In addition to the three managers mentioned, A. G. Shear, of the Universal Film exchange, H. F. Ragland of Kleine-Edison and Raoul Junet, Pathé, will serve.

Declaring that unfair, illegitimate and fraudulent practices and abuses have been and are being indulged in by certain moving picture exhibitors, to the detriment of the film exchanges, the charter of the Associated Film Managers of New Orleans denounces in no uncertain terms the actions of these exhibitors, and lays down a course of conduct that an exhibitor must follow should he do business with the New Orleans exchanges.

Primarily the charter was drawn up to eliminate the fly-by-night brother in the business. It is as follows:

Terms of the Charter

"Whereas, the parties to this agreement are engaged in the business of hiring and leasing film and other paraphernalia to and for the moving picture exhibitors in the territory comprised within the state of Louisiana, and territories covered by each member.

"Whereas, unfair, illegitimate and fraudulent practices and abuses have been and are being indulged in and perpetrated by certain exhibitors, and are now seriously restraining the trade; the business of the undersigned, and all honest, legitimate exhibitors.

"Whereas, there is no other way to promote and protect said businesses, save and excepted by this agreement,

"One—The contract and rules of the film exchange is recognized, that exhibitors must pay for film service and film leasing and hiring either before the delivery of films or not later than the expiration of the current week. This rule has been and is violated and in some instances, whereby the exhibitor, lessee or customer fails, neglects or refuses to pay for the film service at the end of the current week—in violation of the rules of the exchange.

"Two—This fraudulent practice has grown up whereby certain exhibitors in this territory, by false pretenses upon the exchange, issue and pass worthless checks, or checks that have been dishonored by the bank for various reasons.

"Three—The abuse, unfair, and fraudulent practice whereby certain exhibitors to whom films are leased, and where under the contract of lease, the lessee is prohibited from sub-leasing and agrees not to sub-lease the film or films, violate said provision.

"Four—Destruction in films in whole or in part while in possession of the exhibitor, caused either by faulty condition of the moving picture machine, or by other devices connected therewith; and loss of films by fire, theft or any other casualty, while in the possession of the exhibitor.

Five—Failure, neglect or refusal of the exhibitor to return the films to the exchange, promptly in accordance with contract.

"Six—After booking or leasing films under contract, the exhibitor fails, neglects or refuses to accept delivery, in violation of the contract, the exchange or lessor, being in law, and in honor bound to hold such films in their respective offices for the exclusive use of the exhibitor with whom the exchange or lessor has contracted.

"Seven—Certain illegitimate and fraudulent exhibitors making contracts with an exchange for the booking or leasing of films, at a stipulated price or rental, which films so leased, are shipped to the exhibitor in accordance with contract, and in violation of the contract, the exhibitor will ship back or return the films to the exchange with a c. o. d. attached for whatever amount he may claim.

Rules Must Be Observed

"Now, therefore, and the premises considered, and for the correction of the foregoing abuses, unfair and fraudulent practices and restraints of trade, and to protect the business of the undersigned, the undersigned by these presents have agreed and stipulated as follows:

"On failure, neglect or refusal to pay rentals or contract price for film service at the end of the current week, the undersigned agree not to and will refuse to lease any films or enter into any contract with the delinquent exhibitor until after full payment has been made.

"In any case where the check, draft, or other instrument of exhibitor has been dishonored by the bank or any third party on which it is drawn, the undersigned will not do business with the relinquent exhibitor until full payment has been made, or in case of repetition of the fraudulent practice, the undersigned will not lease any films to the delinquent during a term of six months commencing from the date of dishonor unless the parties hereto mutually agree to waive this latter provision for good cause shown. Sub-leasing will call for similar penalties.

"In case of loss or destruction of films while in the possession of the exhibitor ..... the undersigned will not enter into any contract with the delinquent until full restitution has been made.

"In case of failure, refusal or neglect of the exhibitor to return films to the exchange promptly, where it is shown that this is related to unfair and fraudulent practice, the usual penalties will be invoked.

"In case of booking or leasing films under contract, where the exhibitor fails, neglects or refuses to accept delivery or carry out his contract with the exchange, and in cases where films so leased, are shipped to the exhibitor in accordance with contract, and in violation of the same, said exhibitor ships back the films with a c. o. d. attached, the usual penalties will be invoked.

"The association formed by the articles of this agreement shall be known as the Associated Film Exchange Managers.

"Upon the happening of any of the abuses, unfair and fraudulent practices set forth in this agreement, due notice of the same, either written or verbal, shall immediately be given by the exchange to the secretary or agent hereinafter provided for, whose duty shall be to immediately communicate to the undersigned the said notice.

"A secretary or agent shall be named by the parties hereto."

CHARLEY CHAPLIN AND BILLIE BURKE PICTURES MAKE HIT IN DETROIT

The past week in Detroit, Mich., has proven two things—that serials are still popular and that the public is far from tired of Charlie Chaplin. The Majestic, Deroit, is running the serial "Gloria's Romance." Business the first week broke all house records and the matinees were packed each day. The audience comprises the very best people in the city. All day Sunday, May 21, the opening day of the serial, there was a crowd two and three blocks long waiting to buy tickets. Heretofore the Majestic has always fought shy of serials, but a serial written by a prominent author and with a good star, is appropriate for the best theatre, as proven in the case of the Majestic.

As for Charlie Chaplin, there are six prints of "The Floorwalker" working in Detroit at the present time, and they are busy every day. Wherever a poster is exhibited announcing this picture, capacity houses have been the result. This applies to the very best theatres and in all sections of the city. If anything, the popularity of Chaplin has increased. The esculator stunt in "The Floorwalker" is one of his best.

NASH TO LOOK AFTER DUTIES OF McGEE WHILE SELIG MANAGER IS EAST

Special to MOTION PICTURE NEWS.
LOS ANGELES, May 27.

James L. McGee, general manager of the Selig-Polyscope Company west coast interests, left for Chicago early this week, where he will remain until the two companies now working there complete their subjects, and are ready to return to the coast. In his absence, Tom Nash, manager of production, is looking after Mr. McGee's duties.

With the completion of the three-reel subject "The Preacher" within the next few days, Jack Pickford, who has been at the coast for almost a year with the Selig Company, will leave. He returns to New York for a visit at least, and may remain there permanently.

The California Japanese society have made arrangements to hold their annual picnic at the Selig zoo early in June. This is one of the largest oriental organizations of the Pacific Coast, and many features for the entertainment of the numerous distinguished Japanese and their fellow countrymen are being planned for the day. Practically all of the trained animal acts will be given.

"MATRIMONIAL MARTYR" IN PATHECOLOR, JUNE 19

"A Matrimonial Martyr," featuring Ruth Roland and produced by the Balboa Company, will be released as a Gold Rooster Feature by Pathe on June 19. It is in Pathecolor.

In the supporting cast are Andrew Arbuckle, Daniel Gilfether, Marguerite Nichols, Mollie McConnell and R. Henry Gray.

Short Reel Features on Paramount Program Please Exhibitors

Success of These Subjects is Due to the Care with Which the Company Produces These Pictures, Declares an Official—"Magazine of the Screen" Makes Hit

PARAMOUNT exhibitors are sending in daily to the offices of the Paramount Pictures Corporation, 485 Fifth Avenue, N. Y., additional proof of the success with which they are using the single-reel features this organization sends out weekly to round out its programs, headed by the usual two five-reel features.

"Most of this success is due to the care with which the Paramount short reels are produced," said a Paramount official. "In the Burton-Holmes Travel-Pictures and the South American pictures, for instance, the Paramount feature excels because it does not offer scenic pictures assembled in haphazard groups from all parts of the country, but carefully conducted tours for which its own cameramen were sent into South America and other distant parts pictured on the screen. The exhibitor showing either of these Paramount features has a travel series which takes his audience in a constant series of journeys to all parts of the globe.

"Increase in the number of bookings for the Paramount Pictographs also shows that the 'magazine on the screen' is supplying the needs of the exhibitors," he continued. "Since it is as carefully edited as the best magazines, the Pictograph carries the weight of the most expert thought in the country, in its various departments—the 'Preparedness' series, prepared by the greatest naval and military experts in the country; 'Better Babies,' edited by the Woman's Home Companion, 'Testing the Mind,' the psychological tests prepared for the screen by Professor Hugo Münsterberg, the great psychologist, and other features."

Many exhibitors are using both the Pictographs and the Burton-Holmes to head their programs and intersperse a musical program with them and the five-reel dramas. Most exhibitors report that they find this advantage in the Pictographs—that they are good on the program at any time.

Cobe Reports Heavy Returns on First Two Unity Features

Company Launches Widespread Advertising Campaign for "The Yellow Menace," Sixteen-Episode Serial, "My Country First" and "The Pursuing Vengeance"

HEAVY returns on the first two features released through its agency are reported by the Unity Sales Corporation, of which Andrew J. Cobe is vice-president and general manager. These features are "My Country First," a patriotic production in six reels, made by the Terriss Film Corporation, and directed and starred in by Tom Terriss, and "The Pursuing Vengeance," a detective photo drama, based on Burton E. Stevenson's novel, "The Boule Cabinet."

"Diana," a romantic picture, in which appear the Baroness von Dewitz and Paul Swan as Apollo, is still another feature put out under the Unity brand. Many state rights buyers have already ordered duplicates and additional prints, it is announced.

To exploit these productions, and also "The Yellow Menace," a sixteen episode serial in which Edwin Stevens is starred, Unity has launched a widespread advertising campaign.

"My program is a hand-picked program," said Mr. Cobe. "It is selected with care by myself and a committee of skilled judges. The interests of the independent producer, the independent exchangeman and the exhibitor must be safeguarded."

Michigan Will Hold Its Annual Convention June 13-14

Bay City is Picked for the Event—National President Herrington is Scheduled as One of the Chief Speakers—Vital Questions Will Be Discussed

MICHIGAN State Branch No. 4, Motion Picture Exhibitors League of America, will hold its annual convention at Bay City, Mich., June 13 and 14. National President Herrington will be in attendance, and will be one of the chief speakers.

Matters of vital importance to Michigan exhibitors will be taken up at the convention, among them methods of combatting the proposed state tax, federal censorship and numerous other things.

State Secretary A. J. Moeller, of Howell, announces that Bay City is making special arrangements to take care of all visiting exhibitors. Entertainment features will be provided. A full attendance of Michigan exhibitors is urged.

Peter Wants Censorship—But With a String to It

Decision Is Based Partly on Attitude of Paris, Texas, Where Censor Rulings Have Brought on a Trojan Film War with Exhibitors Through Hectoring Methods; and Action of Corsicana, Same State, Whose Actions Make United President Wish for a Napoleon to Settle Question Once for All

E. T. PETER, president and general manager of the United Program Film Service, with headquarters in Dallas, and branches at Shreveport, Oklahoma City, Houston and Amarillo, has come out strong in favor of national censorship—but there's a string tied to it. If by having a national legalized body it will eliminate state and local censor boards, then Mr. Peter's attitude is in favor of having a national board. If not, his attitude is against censorship in all forms.

In talking of censorship with several film men and exhibitors, Mr. Peter said:

"For the past two years we have been hampered in the Southwest by petty local censors. In Houston, especially, has the censorship craze been much in evidence. There, absolutely no thought or regard for the film is noticeable in the board's rulings—it is all a question of the personal feeling of the lady inspector—her friendliness toward an exhibitor usually means the film is O. K. If an exhibitor has crossed her, or protested against her actions, then he can hardy get any film passed.

"And Houston is not the only town in our section where the censoring mania has gone rampant. In Corsicana, different film men have experienced trouble. In Paris, some little difficulty has arisen over the showing of film. And right here in Dallas we have had some trouble that was all unnecessary.

Condemns Films Without Seeing Them

"In several instances, a censor will condemn a film without viewing it, because of the trend of the herald. In some few instances, censors have condemned film and at a later showing put the official O. K. on them. In one instance I have in mind, a film was presented to the board for review. It was turned down flat. Later, another exhibitor, who had boosted the censoring body, had the film reviewed again and it was announced in the newspapers that 'the film has been changed to conform to the ideas of the censors and will be permitted to be shown.' Not a change was made—not an elimination was made—from the first showing to the second. It was favoritism, pure and simple. Evidently the boosting exhibitor did have 'friends among the censors.'

"In view of these many little troubles, petty troubles to the many exchanges throughout the country, disturbances caused by local and state censor boards, I believe that a national legalized board would eliminate all of this worry,—provided, of course, that the national body woud mean the elimination of the local and state boards.

"If we had a national board, the scenarios could be submitted before the making of the picture; or even after a picture is produced, one print could be made from the negative and be reviewed by the board. Should there be any changes necessary, it would mean only a small expense to re-take some scenes, or make a few eliminations in the negative. The cost would be so small that the manufacturers could easily stand it; and the many worries of the exchangeman would be left out.

Censor Boards, Wooden Decisions

"If a national board would not mean the elimination of state and local censoring bodies, then I say, fight censorship in all its forms—for the more censor boards, the more trouble.

"It looks to me, though, that the censorship craze is started, and under way so strongly now, that it cannot successfully be dealt a death blow for several years—which means that an enormous sum of money must be spent by the motion picture interests fighting censorship, if the present strenuous campaign is continued on the present basis.

"It seems that it would be much better—and more profitable to the trade—to accept a compromise on the national board, provided the state and local boards are either eliminated entirely, or that the national board's rulings would be so widespread that it would mean practically no trouble from various local and state censorship bodies.

"In the South generally, and in the Southwest, particularly, we have not been hampered as much by censoring bodies as in some other sections; but that does not mean we will not be. I believe the censorship craze will continue to spread to the smallest motion picture localities, unless something definite is done to allay the spreading of the 'disease.'

"The centering of the motion picture interests on a compromise of the National Board, with the string of 'No state or loca boards,' would be the oil on the troubled waters, I believe, and would mean more to the motion picture industry in profitable business than the continued spending of money and time, fighting a thing we all known is not only here—but is spreading to 'there.'

"It's all right to fight for a principle—but the money is what we are all after. If the manufacturers, exchange men and exhibitors will think a minute, I believe they wil see that a procedure such as a compromise like this, would mean 'less expense and more profit' in the long run."

Kellermann Picture Is Ready for Exhibition in New York

William Fox Has Six Theatres Under Consideration for the Premier of the Mammoth Marine Spectacle Made by Brenon in Jamaica During the Last Nine Months

EXCEPT for the selection of a name, and the preparation of the advertising, the new Herbert Brenon-Annette Kellermann picture, which has been in preparation by the Fox Film Company since last summer, is ready for public view in New York.

The picture has been known as "The Daughter of the Gods." This, it is now understood, was merely a "working title," and when the picture is given to the public, it will be under a different name. The first presentation will be in New York, about June 15.

William Fox has six theatres under consideration for the opening. Four of them are Shubert-controlled houses, and the other two are controlled by Klaw and Erlanger. One will be selected from among the six during the coming week.

Under the supervision of Herbert Brenon, who directed the massive production in Jamaica, all through last fall and winter, and the greater part of the spring, the cutting and tilling has been completed, and the film has been condensed to a compact 10,000 feet. This means that more than 200,000 feet of film has been eliminated, and only the strongest out of a wealth of strong material has been retained.

A complete score of original music will be written to accompany the showing of the film. This, it is now understood, will be composed either by Robert Hood Bowers, who is well known along Broadway for his musical comedy successes, including "The Vanderbilt Cup," "The Little Cafe," and others, or by Jerome Kern, who also has several successful scores to his credit.

MOTION PICTURE NEWS has also learned that negotiations are under way with Joseph Urban, the noted scenic artist, to design the lithographs and other paper. Mr. Urban has attracted general attention in this country by his scenery for the "Ziegfeld Follies," and "Caliban of the Yellow Sands," the Shakespearian masque performed at the stadium on the College of the City of New York, last week. If these negotiations are successful it will be the first time Mr. Urban has turned his hand to poster work.

Mr. Fox will also select some one from his staff to manage the New York production of the new Kellermann picture, during the week.

FIRST BROADHURST FILM FOR MOROSCO IN WORK

Filming of the first George Broadhurst play was begun last week at the Morosco-Pallas studio. Rita Jolivet will be starred in this, as the Countess de Cippico. The photoplay is an adaptation from "The International Marriage." Elliott Dexter has been selected to play opposite, and other members of the cast are Herbert Standing, William Robbins, Court Foote, Grace Carlyle and Olive White, and the direction is in charge of Frank Lloyd. Scenes for this are laid in European and American society, the plot revolving about the failure of a count who induces an American girl to wed him to keep his pledge and permit the woman to secure a divorce immediately after the marriage.

OUTLOOK FOR SHELVING CENSORSHIP IN SAN FRANCISCO IS BRIGHT

The board of supervisors of San Francisco has not followed the recommendations of the police committee in regard to the proposed moving picture censorship ordinance and has referred the measure back to that committee. This is considered a victory for film interests, as there is a strong probability that the committee will reconsider its former recommendation and allow the matter to drop. The Exhibitors League and Film Exchange Board of Trade of San Francisco will not cease their efforts, however, and will keep a very close watch upon developments.

The long list of signatures to petitions protesting against the censorship of films that has been gathered during the past month is serving to cool the ardor of certain of the supervisors understood to be in favor of the establishment of a board of censors and if this matter is brought to a vote before the board as a whole it is believed that it will be defeated. The outlook is now brighter for the abolition of all forms of censorship in San Francisco than it has been in a long time.

Selznick Representatives Off to Cover Middle West Field

Ben S. Cohen, Recently District Manager for World, and Ned H. Spitzer, Formerly with Bluebird, Will Get in Touch with Exhibitors

Latest Poses of Clara Kimball Young

WITH the Eastern states fully covered through his recent deals for the distribution of Clara Kimball Young Film Corporation features, Lewis J. Selznick this week dispatched two personal representatives to Chicago to look over the middle western field and close franchises for the establishment of exchanges and branch offices in that territory.

Ben S. Cohen, recently district manager for World Film, and Ned. H. Spitzer, formerly of Bluebird, were the two representatives chosen to conduct business for the Selznick concerns in Chicago. They left New York Sunday and will make their headquarters temporarily at the Sherman House.

While in the West Messrs. Cohen and Spitzer will get in personal touch with the hundreds of exhibitors in that territory who have applied by mail and wire for the Clara Kimball Young features. As each exhibitor is signed he will receive a five-year franchise and, as a souvenir, a silver framed autograph photo of Miss Young.

There are three distinct corporations in control of the Clara Kimball Young pictures. First, there is the Clara Kimball Young Film Corporation, which will produce twelve features a year with Miss Young as the star. Secondly, there is Lewis J. Selznick Enterprises, Inc., which acts as the home concern and conducts all the present business affairs of the producing company. Thirdly, under the trade name Lewis J. Selznick Productions, Inc., of New York, the New York exchange under the management of Sol. J. Berman is in full operation. This trade name will be used by all the different exchanges, adding the name of the state in which the exchange is located.

Four exchange companies are now operating under the name Lewis J. Selznick Productions, Inc. In addition to the New York exchange there is the Philadelphia office operated by Mr. Selznick's partners, Stanley Mastbaum and W. B. Smith, who will control the distribution in Pennsylvania and Southern New Jersey; the Detroit exchange operated by a syndicate headed by Harry I. Garson, proprietor of the Broadway Strand Theatre in that city; and the Boston office, which will be conducted by Messrs. Green and Abrams, as partners of Mr. Selznick, distributing the Young pictures throughout the New England states.

Mr. Selznick is closing negotiations with a film man in the South on the same plan as was used in forming his other distributing centers. For the Pacific Coast a syndicate is being formed in San Francisco.

Fleckles Is Successful with "Where Are My Children?"

Sale of the Picture in California Alone Brings in More Money Than Was Expended Upon the Production of the Feature, He Declares

MAURICE Fleckles, who is handling the sale of the states' right on "Where Are My Children?" the widely advertised feature produced by the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, believes that the marketing of pictures on this scale is a most beneficial method.

"Both the program and the states' right picture have their places," said Mr. Fleckles to a representative of MOTION PICTURE NEWS. "I believe in both mediums of release.' 'Where Are My Children?' is a states' right picture from first to last. If it had been put out on a program with no more than the usual advertising accorded such pictures it would have lived merely the average life of the five-reel feature. But the scale of states' right offers extraordinary means of advertising. Besides, the exhibitor has a conviction, which is more or less deep-rooted, that the states' right picture is out of the ordinary. 'Where Are My Children?' has by no means shattered this belief. It is a picture that can stand heavy advertising, for it is well fortified to prove with its theme anything unusual that may be said of it.

"To date we have met with great success on the sales of the picture," continued Mr. Fleckles. "The sale of the state of California alone, brought in money that far eclipsed the total amount expended in producing the feature. Approximately all of the larger states, that is the states that do the biggest picture business, have been sold. For New York, the Universal Exchange bought the exhibition rights from the Universal Film Manufacturing Company. Sol Lesser is handling it on the west coast. Jones, Linick and Shaeffer have just closed for Illinois. The rest of the territory is going fast and before long I firmly believe the whole country will be booked solid with 'Where Are My Children?'"

Mr. Fleckles is a well known exhibitor in the middle west and is handling the picture in addition to his regular duties. When he has completed the business with the feature which is making so much money for its producers, he contemplates devoting all his time to the management of his house.

"INDIANA" IS NAME PICKED FOR SELIG HISTORICAL FILM

The centennial historical motion picture which has been in process of production by the Selig Polyscope Company, will be entitled "Indiana." The name was selected after considering several hundred titles suggested by citizens of Indiana. In announcing the decision, the directors stated that they believed that the single word "Indiana" told the entire story and at the same time would serve to maintain the patriotic and historical atmosphere of the forthcoming picture.

Audiences Vote on "Who's Guilty?" Characters

Interest Runs High in "Puppets of Fate" at the Strand, Milwaukee, and Spectators Cast Thousands of Votes to Fix Blame for the Catastrophe Affecting Lives of the People in the Picture—Pathe Adds Seventeen Prints to Its Weekly Order of One Hundred

PATHE has just had the unusual experience of greatly increasing its order of positive copies on a picture three weeks after its initial release. With the release on May 22 of the third photo-novel in the "Who's Guilty?" series, Pathe Exchange has had to instruct its Bound Brook laboratories to add seventeen copies to the standing weekly order of one hundred prints on the "Who's Guilty?" pictures.

Two weeks before the release of the first of these photo-novels there was a conference between J. A. Berst, vice-president and general manager of Pathe, and W. E. Shallenberger, president of the Arrow Film Corporation, which is producing the "Who's Guilty?" series. Based on the advance booking record compiled by C. R. Seelye, head of the Pathe sales forces, Messrs. Berst and Shallenberger came to the conclusion that one hundred prints of each of the fourteen "Who's Guilty?" pictures would suffice thoroughly to cover the United States and Canada.

For once two film distributors did not go wrong in their estimates. Rather, they erred on the side of caution. For with the release of the first two of the "Who's Guilty?" photo-novels, bookings increased to such an extent that almost every Pathe branch sent in an urgent telegram calling for at least one and sometimes as high as four additional prints. Boston added two to its quota, New York called for five additional copies, Chicago and Philadelphia for three more each.

So insistent was this demand that the prints originally destined for Canadian consumption were diverted to the Pacific Coast and a hurry order was placed in the laboratories for new Canadian copies. The increased orders mean a total of 476,000 feet of "Who's Guilty?" positive to be added to the already huge aggregate of 2,800,000 feet of positive film originally destined for the American and Canadian markets.

Bookings Cross $300,000 Mark

On May 17 the advance bookings on "Who's Guilty?" crossed the $300,000 mark, establishing what is believed to be a new record in advance bookings with cash payments on the last four of the series. A week later these figures had climbed $68,000 higher, with thirty-two branches reporting, an average of slightly more than $2,000 a branch in increased bookings in seven days.

The Strand theatre in Milwaukee, which runs "Who's Guilty?" on Mondays, Tuesdays, and Wednesdays, is holding voting contests for its audiences to determine who really is guilty, on whom the blame in each of these highly dramatic photo-novels should actually be placed. On "Puppets of Fate," the first of the "Who's Guilty?" pictures to be released, there were 14,758 votes placing the guilt on the widow, 9,835 on the young surgeon, 7,852 on the elder surgeon, and 5,295 on the young surgeon's wife; thus a total of 37,470 votes were cast in three days.

More than 38,000 votes were cast in "The Tight Rein," the second of the series to be released. Slightly over half of these votes placed the burden of guilt on the wealthy mill-owner, whose determination to regulate his son's career and marriage was believed to be the direct cause of the subsequent double tragedy.

In Wilkes-Barre the Orpheum theatre in a city of 68,000 people, played to 4,500 the first day (May 20), it showed "Puppets of Fate," and to 5,900 the second day, thus drawing more than one-seventh of the entire population of the city to its box-office. At Proctor's theatre, in Yonkers, N. Y., wth a seating capacity of more than 3,200, Manager Waldron had to send for the police to aid him in keeping the doors free when, on Mondays, Tuesdays, and Wednesdays and three successive weeks he showed the first, second and third of the "Who's Guilty?" series.

Ten Pictures Delivered to Pathe

Ten of the fourteen photo-novels in this series have now been delivered by Arrow to Pathe. The four remaining stories will be devoted, in order, to divorce (showing our loosely constructed and totally illogical divorce laws, differing in all the 48 states): to prison reform (showing how criminals are really made by the failure of the state to care properly for the first offenders, particularly when these first offenders are youthful): to the labor problem (showing the natural conflict between capital and labor under present-day methods): and the final story to the horrors of international war.

The divorce and prison reform stories are based on legal research work done by Warren H. Small. Mr. Small, who is an attorney at 111 Broadway, New York, is a practitioner in the United States Courts. While still an undergraduate at Harvard he became interested in the Human Welfare movement in Boston and Cambridge, and it is largely due to his efforts that many of the public playgrounds in New England cities were set aside and equipped by the various municipalities. Mr. Small, who was attorney for the Motion Picture Patents Company and the General Film Company, is now the attorney for the Arrow Company.

In his summary on the divorce evil, Mr. Small points out that in South Carolina there is no such thing as divorce; whereas in Nevada there is little else. He shows how a man may be properly divorced in Connecticut, yet still be married five miles away in New York; with his second marriage bigamous and his innocent children illegitimate, and unable to inherit his estate. (This is based on the 1906 decision of the United States Supreme Court in the case of Haddock vs. Haddock,) Supreme Court Justice Holmes, writing a dissenting opinion in this case, said: "It is likely to cause considerable disaster to innocent persons and to illegitimate children hitherto supposed to be the children of lawful marriage." Yet that decision still stands as the law of the land.

A number of exhibitors have requested that a special fifteenth "Who's Guilty?" picture be produced, to be of five-reel length and to point out in precise fashion the greatest menace to the peace and economic growth of the United States. Mr. Berst has taken the matter under advisement. An early announcement in this regard will be made.

Dynamic Herrington Shoves Milwaukee Into the League

President of National Organization Hops Off the Train, Speeds Up to the Exhibitor Body, Tells Members What Ought to Be Done and Whirls Away with a Glad Smile

Special to MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

Milwaukee, May 27.

FRED J. HERRINGTON of the Motion Picture Exhibitors League of America was a visitor in Milwaukee recently, stopping over in this city on his way to Minneapolis. One of the direct results of his short stay here was bringing of the local organization into the national association. The Milwaukee exhibitors at a meeting a short time after his visit here voted to join the national body and elected five delegates and ten alternates to attend the convention in Chicago in July.

At the same meeting a committee was appointed to investigate the Milwaukee billboard ordinance with a view to finding out just what it is all about and where the exhibitors come in on it. Up to date three exhibitors have been arrested for violating this ordinance on which even the police are at sea on account of its indefiniteness. The committee has been instructed to confer with the proper legal officials and report back to the association immediately.

An interesting fact was divulged during this meeting when it was shown that it was not until a member of the local exhibitors association had been arrested that anything had been done to protect the exhibitor from this ordinance and to find out exactly its meaning. The first two exhibitors arrested were not members of the exhibitors association and being alone and without funds to fight it, were forced to pay their fine with the hope that they would not be arrested again. On the other hand, when a member of the association was arrested steps were immediately taken to protect the exhibitors and to amend the law so that its requirements will be applicable to the photoplay theatres without working any injustice to the exhibitor. J. W. MARTIN.

Novelist Bennet Pleased With Selig Version of His Book

At Private Showing of "Into the Primitive" the Writer Expresses Satisfaction with the Picturization of the Story by Heffron

ROBERT AMES BENNET, the noted novelist, recently wrote the following letter to William N. Selig, president of the Selig Polyscope Company:

"Permit me to express to you my profound gratification over your splendid production on the screen of my book, 'Into the Primitive.' The Denver V-L-S-E staff very courteously gave a private run of the film for me. I went in a hypercritical mood, for I had seen the stories of other writers sadly mangled in the picturization. But this five-reel picture is magnificent in every respect—acting, animals, settings, scenarioization and photography.

"I am taking the liberty of expressing my appreciation direct to Mr. Heffron for his wonderful artistry as director, and to Miss Williams for the charm of her appearance and acting. She not only plays the part to perfection, but she looks it, because of her beauty.

"Mr. Oliver and Mr. Lonsdale are no less perfect in their roles; the animals are a delight to the heart of a nature lover like myself; the photography is wonderful. In fact, there is everything to praise about the picture and not the slightest thing to criticise.

"I only regret that the subject was not considered strong enough to carry for seven reels. Personally, it seems to me that the animals, the fine acting and the sheer artistry of the picture in all respects should have made it carry as a special feature. I must not omit to state my appreciation of the generous credit that has been given me as the writer, no less than the fine work of everyone who has contributed in making the picture such a superb production."

"Boheme" To Begin New York Run at the Forty-eighth Street

Puccini Warned World Film He Considered Picture an Infringement on His Rights, But Relented When His Representative Said it Was "Too Beautiful for Interference"

"LA BOHEME," a World Film picturization of the famous Puccuni classic, with Alice Brady in the title role, starts its Broadway run at the Forty-eighth Street theatre next Monday. It was produced by Albert Capellani under the supervision of William A. Brady, and goes forth as a Brady-made production.

Coincident with the statement from the World Film offices that "La Vie de Boheme," as the story was originally named, would be picturized, came a warning from Signor Puccini, the composser, that he would consider the production an infringement on his rights. He instructed his attorneys to institute injunction proceedings. Despite this, Mr. Brady proceeded with the play.

Then he invited Nathan Burkan, representing Puccini, to view the picture, with the result that Mr. Burkan is said to have told Mr. Brady that the "picture was too beautiful to be interfered with." He added that he would cable Puccini that he was in favor of permitting its distribution to proceed.

"NEWS" OFFICE IN LOS ANGELES ISSUES DIRECTORY OF ALL PRODUCING COMPANIES

For the convenience of heads of various departments of Pacific Coast studios, exchangemen and exhibitors of southern California, the Los Angeles office of the "News" has prepared a directory which contains names, addresses and telephone numbers of all producing companies, accessory and supply dealers, and other information.

A similar directory was issued six months ago, but owing to the many changes the new one is being made to replace it. A map showing location of studios will be printed on the back. This is furnished free to the firms of the producing colony, and will be mailed to any address on receipt of ten cents in stamps.

WILSON, JUVENILE, JOINS METRO-DREW COMPANY

Robert E. Wilson, juvenile actor, has been engaged by Metro to play the juvenile roles in the Metro-Drew weekly comedies in which Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew are starred. Mr. Wilson has been with the Thanhouser Company for three years. Mr. Wilson was born in Stonehaven, Scotland, twenty-two years ago, and came to this country with his parents when he was four years old. He spent his boyhood in Warren, Pa., and then removed to Jamestown, N. Y. His first engagement was with the Horne Stock Company, then playing at Canton, Ohio. He played a season there and another season in Erie, Pa., when he came to New York. Mr. Wilson experienced little difficulty in obtaining a motion picture engagement, for he is the type that is always in demand. He worked with Marion and Madeline Fairbanks and Sidney Bracey for nearly two years with the Thanhouser Company.

BURR SUCCEEDS MEEKER AS PICTOGRAPH EDITOR

Charles Burr, formerly of the trade advertising division of Paramount Pictures Corporation, is now the managing editor of the same companies' Pictographs. Mr. Burr succeeds George Meeker, who resigned from Paramount to go into the moving picture advertising field.

"Fall of a Nation" Depicts Conspiracy Against Liberty

Dixon Picture, Sequel to "Birth of a Nation," Is Motivated by Tremendous Theme, Temporary Subjugation of America and Its Release from Foreign Yoke

THE details which have been lacking concerning the story "The Fall of a Nation" can now be supplied. June 6 is the opening date at the Liberty Theatre, New York, of the Thomas Dixon sequel to "The Birth of a Nation" and of Victor Herbert's original operatic score expressly composed for it.

The play proper opens in the New York mansion of Charles Waldron, who loves Virginia Holland but whose ambition is to establish the rule of Imperialism in America. Miss Holland is the leader of the Suffragist-Peace group. She comes into conflict with Congressman John Vassar. His bill providing for a large American army is defeated. In the course of their political encounters, the Congressman's heart is won by the many charms of Virginia. She refuses him because he is so decisively opposed to her principles.

In league with the Imperial Confederation of Northern Europe, Charles Waldron hatches the great treason. Twenty thousand subjects of foreign powers, resident in New York, rise in the night. They capture the city from the National Guard, its sole defenders. Patriots and refugees flee to Long Island where an American army is hastily improvised. But in the meantime a powerful fleet convoying transports has brought 150,000 invaders equipped with Krupps and all the latest death-dealing devices. Effecting a landing they whip the Americans in a three-day battle. The nation falls. Washington, Philadelphia, Boston, next Chicago and St. Louis are occupied. Waldron puts on regal uniform and is hailed viceroy of the "provinces of North America."

Virginia Holland professes loyalty to the new regime. Waldron entrusts her with organizing the Imperial Legion of Honor among American women, indicating that her high reward will be the vicereine's seat at his side or possibly an empress's crown. While touring the country on this mission, the girl secretly enrolls the oath-bound order of the Daughters of Jael. She swears the flower of American womanhood—a million girls and women—to the destruction of the foreign usurpers. Those who cannot be won over by the women are marked for death.

In a night like the terrible Sicilian Vespers or the dread St. Bartholomew's Day, the Daughters of Jael and their male colleagues fall upon the reveling Imperial minions. The wireless stations are taken, the forts and arsenals captured, the ships boarded, and the fast-riding American cavalry tramples down and cuts to pieces the drunken foreign soldiers opposing them. "When the sun rose on the harbor of New York the Stars and Stripes flew from every ship and fort. An army of five hundred thousand men, half of them with the best rifles in their hands and big guns lumbering in their lines, were mobilizing under General Wood to capture Boston and Norfolk."

Waldron fell in the final melee. John Vassar claimed Virginia Holland, who had atoned for her Peace-at-any-price folly by defying death to restore the sacred Union of States.

In the cast are Arthur Shirley, Lorraine Huling, Percy Standing, C. E. Geldert, Philip Gastrock, Flora MacDonald, Leila Frost, Edna May Wilson, Paul Willis, Mildred Bracken, May Geraci, Beulah Burns and many others. "The Fall of a Nation" is in a prologue and three acts or twelve reels of film parlance. Bartley Cushing was the principal stage director. William C. Thompson and John W. Boyle photographed the great spectacle.

Chaplin-Mutual Bookings in States Reach $1,300,000

One Hundred and Thirty Prints of "The Floorwalker" Are on Exhibition in Greater New York—Brock Pays $175,000 in Royalties for Use of Pictures Abroad

RECORD first run bookings are reported by the Mutual Film Corporation for its new Chaplin-Mutual comedies. One hundred and thirty prints of "The Floorwalker" are being shown throughout Greater New York. A total of $1,300,000 in bookings on the series of twelve Chaplin releases in the United States alone has been reached, according to the Mutual announcement.

In addition, $175,000 in royalties, it is announced from the office of John R. Freuler, President of the Mutual and President of the Lone Star Corporation which holds the $670,000 contract for Chaplin's services, was paid by Henry J. Brock, film exporter. Above and beyond this each Chaplin print will be sold for the Australian market at a price not given out for publication by President Freuler.

Following are some of the big theatrical circuits in the United States and Canada which have booked the Chaplin-Mutual series of twelve releases:

The Marcus Loew Enterprises, controlling almost a score of theatres in New York and almost as many throughout the country; the F. F. Proctor enterprises, the Stanley Circuit, operating throughout New Jersey; the Moss and Brill Theatrical enterprises, controlling a string of theatres in New York City and throughout the country; the S. Z. Poli circuit, the Alfred Hamburger circuit of Chicago, the Fitchenberg circuit of New Orleans, the Swamson circuit operating throughout Canada and the Province theatre circuit of western Canada and various others.

EDNA MAYO WILL STAR IN "RETURN OF EVE"

Edna Mayo will be starred by Essanay in a five reel picturization of Lee Wilson Dodd's "The Return of Eve." Arthur Berthelet, who has just completed "Sherlock Holmes," with William Gillette, will direct the new feature. An especially selected supporting cast will be provided.

"The Return of Eve" tells how two babes lived in the wilderness, attaining the age of nineteen without ever seeing their own kind. They were transplanted to a New York drawing room, and society's shams. In disgust, they went back to Eden.

But having tasted the world, they found Eden a dreary place. Eventually, being human, they returned to civilization.

Movement Started in Pennsylvania to Re-elect Herrington

Record of the National President as a Live-Wire Organizer and His Bringing Order Out of Chaos in Keystone State League Gain Many Supporters

Special to MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

Harrisburg, Pa., May 24.

A MOVEMENT has started among Pennsylvania exhibitors who are members of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League, to rally to the support of Fred J. Herrington for re-election as national president in the convention to be held in Chicago, July 10 to 18. Indications that a formidable movement is developing in the Middle West to back Frank J. Rembusch, of Shelbyville, Ind., for the presidency, give promise that there will likely be a lively, albeit, good-natured contest for the post on the floor of the national convention.

A number of prominent exhibitors of central Pennsylvania, who point to Herrington's record as a live-wire organizer, who has, perhaps, done more to weld together the various old factions which now constitute the Pennsylvania League, and who has used the same aggressive organization tactics in his work as national executive, have informally begun electioneering for Herrington.

It is understood that when the annual convention of the State League is held in Pittsburgh, June 26, 27, and 28, a resolution will be offered calling for the indorsement by all Pennsylvanians of Herrington's campaign for re-election. It is likely also that, in advance of the Pittsburgh convention, several locals of the League throughout the State will go on record as favoring Herrington's re-election.

"There oughtn't to be any doubt about Mr. Herrington getting the unanimous backing of the Pennsylvania exhibitors in the Pittsburgh convention," said a prominent Pennsylvania exhibitor to-day, "and with that indorsement, coupled with his record as national president during the one year he has held the office, he ought to stand a good chance of winning the honor again in the Chicago contest. Moreover Herrington's own personality and his ability as an orator ought to serve him well on the convention floor.

"It will be recalled that Herrington went to the national convention in California last year practically without any backing for president, but captured the plum through sheer force of his personality. As we in Pennsylvania believe, he has made good as national executive, I can see no reason for not re-electing Herrington."

Peter Magaro, of this city, Second Vice-President of the State League, declared himself a candidate for delegate to the national convention in Chicago. Mr. Magaro says the Pennsylvania League will be entitled to one delegate, and he seeks the place, pointing out that while Herrington is a Pennsylvanian, the election of Magaro as delegate will not interfere with Herrington's attending the Chicago gathering, because Herrington will be present in his capacity as national president.

Mr. Magaro was chosen as Pennsylvania's alternate delegate to the annual convention in California last year, but did not attend because the expense of so long a trip would have imposed a heavy financial burden on the State League. This year, however, he hopes to be elected as delegate proper, and he is asking his exhibitor friends throughout the State to support him for that post when it comes to select the delegate in the Pittsburgh convention.

Mr. Magaro is president of the Harrisburgh local of the League, and a member of the State League's Legislative Committee, which obtained amendments, favorable to the motion picture interests, to the Pennsylvania Censorship Law in the session of the Pennsylvania Legislature in 1915.

J. A. Berst Comes Out Flat-Footed for Federal Censorship

Vice-President of Pathe Believes Some Form of Picture Supervision is Inevitable and That Best Interests of Business Demand Law Approved by Manufacturers

J. A. BERST, vice-president and general manager of Pathe, has come out flat-footed for federal censorship of pictures. Mr. Berst strongly believes that some form of censorship is inevitable and that the best interest of the business demands a federal law drawn up in accordance with the views of the manufacturers, and put through with their support.

"This is the only way in which obnoxious state censorship bills can be headed off," says Mr. Berst. "The fact that the federal government is passing upon films will be a powerful argument against local censorship—the most powerful that we can have."

Mr. Berst made a careful study of the Hughes bill and sent to the Hon. Dudley M. Hughes, chairman of the House Committee on Education, a letter containing the result of his analysis and pointing out a number of objectionable features in the bill. Under date of May 19, Mr. Hughes wrote Mr. Berst to the effect that many of his suggestions had been followed in the new bill. The revised bill was carefully analyzed by Mr. Berst who, on May 23, wrote Mr. Hughes in part as follows:

"I wish to assure you that your bill will find in our firm a very strong support. All the big concerns intend to get together and discuss this bill thoroughly, and I am very confident that a resolution will be adopted for the support of the bill."

Mr. Hughes, recognizing Mr. Berst's great help in putting the bill upon a basis where it would merit the support of the manufacturers, wired Mr. Berst on the 24th as follows:

"Thanks for your letter of the 23rd. Have I your permission to make this letter public. Wire answer."

Mr. Berst accordingly wired his consent to have his letter used.

Louisiana Exhibitors Form Protective Association

Organization Is Thought Necessary to Prepare for a Fight Against Censorship, Now Looming Up in the State Legislature as Result of Clubwomen's Activity

Special to MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

New Orleans, La., May 27.

REALIZING that "forewarned is forearmed," exhibitors of Louisiana, with the co-operation of exchange men in New Orleans, formed at a well-attended meeting at the Triangle theatre, the Motion Picture Protective Association of Louisiana.

The exhibitors took this step because the solons are in session at Baton Rouge, Louisiana's capital, and nobody knows just when the censorship question is going to arise. Clubwomen in New Orleans several months ago had the matter under discussion. They had about agreed that a board of censors was needed.

Ernst Boehringer, managing head of the Columbia Amusement Company, and of the Triangle theatre, one of the foremost exhibitors in Louisiana, was named president of the Motion Picture Protective Association of Louisiana; P. Brennon, of the Iberville theatre, was named secretary, while assessments on the various exchanges and exhibitors will be collected by a committee the personnel of which is as follows:

William H. Hannon, president of the Nola Film Company; R. King Evans, manager V-L-S-E; K. A. Bugbee, manager Metro; and Messrs. Jacobs and Marks, exhibitors of New Orleans.

Last year there were some spasmodic efforts made to have censorship bills of various forms passed by the legislature. Whatever forces may have been at work, not one of the bills saw the light of day. But this year things might go a little different, and exhibitors of Louisiana, in common with the first man of the land, have adopted "preparedness" as their motto.

It shall be the purpose of the association merely to point out to the people of Louisiana the evils of censorship should the question be put before them. So far, there is no need of any such action.

EUTERMARKS GETS "OTHER GIRL" FOR EASTERN PENNSYLVANIA

The Raver Film Corporation production, "The Other Girl," taken from the stage success by Augustus Thomas, was purchased for the eastern Pennsylvania territory by Mr. Eutermarks of the Pennsylvania Feature Film Company.

CINCINNATI EXHIBITORS WANT CENSOR YOKE ON THEIR NECKS

Special to Motion Picture News.

Cincinnati, May 27.—The Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce at a recent meeting attended by Max Stearn, president of the Ohio Exhibitors' League, adopted resolutions unanimously endorsing federal censorship and regulation of films. The action was taken after a lengthy discussion, during which Charles Weigel, manager of the Alhambra theatre, opposed the resolution.

He declared that he believed the establishment of a national board appointed by the President would put too much power in the hands of the President, and that the industry might suffer as a result. Weigel voted for the resolution, however, after Mr. Stearn pointed out that a national board of specialists trained for such positions would be far more competent to pass on releases than other censors. Copies of the resolution were sent to the manufacturing companies who have upheld federal censorship and to the Congressmen and Senators from Ohio.

Ivy Close Shows Originality in Interview with "News"

English Star, Here for Kalem Comedies, Avoids Stereotyped Opinions About "Whether American Men Are Pleasant," or the Way Women Wear Their Hats

Latest Poses of Ivy Close, the British Beauty, Now a Kalem Star

AMERICAN comedy, as she has found it, does not appeal to Ivy Close, the pretty English comedienne, who is on her first visit to the United States to appear in a series of Kalem comedies. It's too expensive, and besides, it gives one the uncomfortable feeling of having been 'done good." Ivy doesn't see the joke.

She arrived in New York Sunday, May 21. She knew nothing of American ways or American money. She had letters to a number of people here, but she didn't understand how to operate the American telephone in her hotel room, so she couldn't get in touch with them. She went down to the dining room alone, and she liked American food so well that she ate 75 cents worth before she realized what she was about. The number 75 on the bill might have been pounds or shillings, or the height of the Woolworth Building, or the circulation of some theatre house-organ, for all she knew, so she asked the waiter:

"How many cents in a dollar?"

"Twenty-five," he replied promptly.

So she gave him three dollars, and a little something for himself. When she got back to her room she had a feeling that she had been fleeced, but she couldn't figue it out. She went down and told the manager about it. He promised to fix it. And Miss Close, before she started for Jacksonville Saturday, saw that he did fix it.

The little English beauty had just one week in New York. Then she was hurried south to begin work on the Ivy Close Comedies, which Kalem will release in one-reel lengths. This is just the kind of work Ivy delights in. She made a great hit at it in England, and she is anxious to see if America will like her as well.

"It's great here," she said, on a visit to Motion Picture News. "There are so many men in the streets. In London all the men are at war, or training for it, and one scarcely sees a man at large. I feel a bit frightened and strange, but the British Motion Picture News is like a face from home.

"Now that I am just getting acquainted in New York, they are whisking me away to the south, but they tell me I shall be so busy down there that I won't mind it. I'll do all the 'stunts' they want me to. Iv'e been up an aeroplane, down in a submarine, have ridden a motorcycle, and I simply revel in the water. So I don't think they can frighten me much.

"The fact that I am working in one-reel comedies will be no bar to my enjoying a dash of excitement now and then with a daring feat. And if taking these occasional risks will help you to laugh and forget those bothersome newspaper headlines, I shall feel well repaid."

"How Britain Prepared" Shows Tommy Atkins a Busy Person

Activities of British Recruit Are Shown from Day of Enlistment to Time He Becomes an Efficiently Drilled Unit in Fighting Machine of 5,000,000

"HOW Britain Prepared," an official British film showing how five million Britons were transformed into an efficient fighting force, and the North Sea fleet which enabled them to perform this task while the Continent was being drenched in blood, opened its New York engagement at the Lyceum theatre last Monday.

These pictures were made under the direction of Charles Urban, and brought to this country by permission of the British Cabinet. They are not "war pictures," so-called. During the two hours and more which it takes to show them only one "war film" is shown—the destruction of a German blockhouse in Flanders. But they show every detail in soldier-making; England's intensive munition activities; and the great British fleet.

"Tommy Atkins" is presented, from the day he enlists until, with thousands of other comrades-in-arms, he is reviewed by the King and sent to the front. Gun drills, sword drills, athletic exercises, trench digging, field telegraph laying, and all other forms of military activity in preparation are shown, it is announced.

Secretary of War Baker and Assistant Secretary of the Navy Franklin D. Roosevelt have endorsed the films. A portion of the receipts from the public exhibitions will go into the War Relief Fund of the Allies.

Triangle's June Releases Include Collier in "Bugle Call"

Stage Favorite Will Be a Full-Fledged Screen Star in the Ince Subject, a Play of American Army Life—Standing and Anna Lehr in Supporting Cast

TRIANGLE'S June releases will bring Willie Collier, Jr., to the front as a full-fledged film star, in the Ince subject, "The Bugle Call," a play of American army life. In the supporting cast are Wyndham Standing, Anna Lehr, Thomas Guise, and Joe Goodboy. The Triangle-Fine Arts feature for release the first week of June presents Norma Talmadge in "Going Straight," a human interest story of two reformed crooks, a husband and wife. The Fine Arts kiddies have prominent parts in this. Ralph Lewis plays opposite Miss Talmadge.

Another Douglas Fairbanks subject, "Reggie Mixes In," will also be released this month. It is from the Fine Arts studios, and shows Fairbanks as a rich young man in search of thrills. The Triangle-Ince feature for release the same week is "The Sorrows of Love," an emotional drama, in which Bessie Barriscale is featured.

Among the offerings to be presented the latter part of the month are "The Innocent Magdalene" and "A Wild Girl of the Sierras," from the Fine Arts studios, and "The Deserters," from Ince.

LIVE WIRE EXHIBITORS

EDITOR'S NOTE.—It is the desire of "Motion Picture News" to include under this heading novel advertising ideas, successful schemes in the management, decoration and equipment of the theatre—everything, in fact, done by the exhibitor to stimulate his trade. We invite every exhibitor to write us about any new enterprise he has; also to come to us for advice or information along any line. NEW ORLEANS EXHIBITOR BOOSTS SERIAL BY NOVEL METHODS

How to best advertise "Peg O' The Ring," the new Universal serial, was a problem that Herman Fichtenberg of New Orleans studied out.

He reasoned that a circus atmosphere would be necessary to draw the crowds. In front of his Alamo theatre, in Canal street, he made a sawdust ring, got a real live wolf from a menagerie, had a clown to cut papers, and billed the Alamo as presenting "the greatest film show on earth."

Instead of the regulation ticket booth Mr. Fichtenberg installed a ticket wagon, the outlines of which were familiar to anyone who has ever attended Barnum and Bailey's or Ringling's. Even the regulation tickets were cast aside, and the familiar red roll pasteboards were passed out at the entrance.

The crowds were so large in front of the Alamo theatre that the police at times stepped in and took a hand in an endeavor to create a passage-way for pedestrians. "Peg O' The Ring" brought favorable press comment and the verdict of Mr. Fichtenberg's patrons was that the latter surely gave them their money's worth.

GERTRUDE McCOY IN PERSON AT BALTIMORE THEATRES

Gertrude McCoy, the Gaumont-Mutual star, appeared personally at the Baltimore theatre named in her honor as a guest of the Lord Calvert Theatres Company on May 26. "The Isle of Love," in which Miss McCoy has the star role, was being shown, and after each performance Miss McCoy greeted her admirers. She also held similar receptions at the Lord Calvert theatre on May 27, where "The Isle of Love" was also being shown.

The Baltimore newspapers gave generous space to the event. Special yachting and automobile trips were arranged in honor of the Gaumont star.

EXHIBITORS AND MERCHANTS IN CO-OPERATION

In Chicago, during the first run of "The Ne'er-Do-Well," Rothschild's department store ran a lavishly, well arranged display of the book by Rex Beach, advertising it extensively, and playing up the fact that the feature could be seen at the Fine Arts theatre.

The manager of the theatre and the head of the book department of Rothschild's say that the business on this co-operative [illegible] as many new patrons.

V-L-S-E Issuing Helpful Advertising Ideas for Each Feature—Some Examples of "Stunts"

A HELPFUL service for exhibitors is the "Exhibitors' Helps" and "Theatre Program" announcements gotten out by the advertising department of the V-L-S-E on each feature released on their program. These ideas are designed to attract patrons to the theatre using V-L-S-E service, by some out-of-the-ordinary advertising "stunt" on the feature being exhibited. In every case, the "stunt" is gotten up to be of practical use to the exhibitor, and help him make money on every feature he books, regardless of the star or the box office power of the feature's name.

By way of example, when Charlie Chaplin's Essanay "Carmen" was released, all the V-L-S-E branch offices supplied their exhibitors, booking this feature with the idea to have some car cards printed to be used either inside or on the front or back ends of the car with the following copy:

ASK THE CAR MEN
ABOUT "CARMEN" WITH CHARLIE CHAPLIN
IN IT

The motormen and conductors of course, were to be notified where to direct passengers who asked about the picture.

On "Artie, the Millionaire Kid," the Vitagraph Blue Ribbon release, the suggestion was made to have the exhibitor procure a very loud red-colored automobile speedster of low racing type, covered with school pennants and banners.

With a young man of the college variety, at the steering wheel, seated next to a pretty girl, he was to drive his car around town aimlessly throwing away specially printed green paper to resemble dollar bills.

For "The Little Shepherd of Bargain Row," a co-operative idea was worked out, whereby the bargain store in town ran a woman's sale, using as a central figure of their window display a little shepherd dressed appropriately with all her garments price tagged. One sign called it the "Little Shepherd Sale" and ran appropriate sales producing copy. Another sign directed passersby to the theatre running the feature. The theatre ran a slide directing patrons to the sale.

"At Piney Ridge," a Selig Red Seal Play, it was suggested to decorate the theatre lobby in pine trees and pine cones, and have the inside of the theatre permeated with balsam.

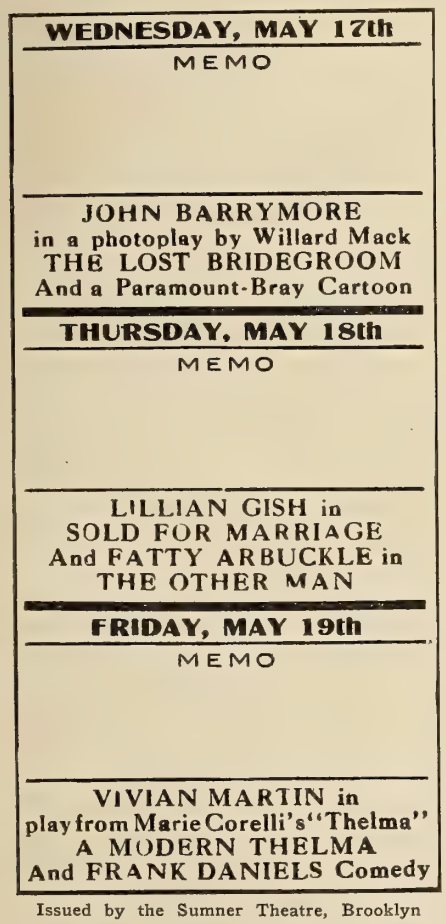
KANSAS CITY STAR WILL RUN REVIEWS OF PICTURES

The publicity end of the moving picture game will again come into its own in the Kansas City territory, with the announcement that the Kansas City Star will again throw open its columns twice a week to moving picture news.

The Star will go one step farther than most publications, and, in addition to using "dope" regarding players, will have space in which reviews of pictures will be given. These reviews will always be printed before a picture is shown in Kansas City. In fact, if the same policy is adopted as was carried on during the regime of Bowles, no local news will be carried. This will be the first time the general public in that section has ever had such reviews. Floyd Scott, editor of the theatrical column, will be in charge.

VEST POCKET MEMO FOLDER FROM BROOKLYN THEATRE

Here is an excellent little novelty from the Sumner theatre, Brooklyn, N. Y. It is a vest pocket reminder, printed on good card stock, with blank space for memos, accompanying announcements of pictures for each day of the week. The card is folded so as to make the whole very convenient in size.



Issued by the Sumner Theatre, Brooklyn

The reverse side is occupied with a neat letter cut of the theatre's name, and short descriptions of features. The memorandum idea, put in so small a space, is a distinct innovation.

"Planting" Window Cards in Stores Can Be Made Valuable Advertising Medium for the Exhibitor

SOME valuable hints on "planting window cards" are given in the current issue of "Reel Life," the Mutual's house organ:

"When you were a kid you always knew when the circus was coming to town because there was a big flaming one-sheet in the barbershop window. The barber got two passes—if he insisted on them—for the use of his window, while you had to carry water to the elephant.

"The window is just as valuable today.

"But the motion picture exhibitor might be considerably more aggressive in the use of it. If it is worth while using a lobby display it is equally worth while extending the display to the windows of the stores, cigar shops, millinery establishments, pool halls or anything else with a front in it along the street.

"If you can talk pleasantly and occasionally pass out a strip of tickets along with your smile, you can advertise your theatre and the productions screened there in the best windows on the business streets of your territory.

"The window card opportunity stands out particularly for the motion picture exhibitor because of the excellent character of the 'copy'—the window cards specially prepared for him by the Mutual Film Corporation. The brightest spots from the film plays are presented in remarkably well made photographs. They have an atmosphere of quality which aids in giving the public impression of the excellence of the production. They denote action, they present the beauty of the stars in the production. They tell just a snatch of the story and have the effect of creating interest in the plot which led to the scene depicted. This way window cards make for attendance.

"Theatrical advance men, those swashbucklers who travel in the van of the road show, are adepts in the planting of window cards. A few minutes' observation of a whole-souled advance man talking grumpy shopkeepers out of window space is good comedy and excellent instruction. When a stranger can walk up the main street of your town with an armful of chromos and leave them on display in the best windows in sight, paying his way along with only a few kind words, the motion picture exhibitor across the street ought to be able to get even better results, since he is working on the home grounds."

Middle West Exhibitors Show Resourcefulness in Promoting Children's Matinees

WHEN it comes to resourcefulness in promoting children's matinees, room will have to be made for the exhibitors of Omaha and vicinity. The policy is, as one of the exhibitors put it, "To get the children into your theatre once, then show them something that will make them come again."

The Empress at Kearney and "Billy" Cole of the Krug in Omaha developed the idea of giving one admission ticket for each peck of dandelions deposited at the theatre on a certain Saturday morning. One youngster—the first one to arrive—brought a bushel of the hated weeds, dumped them in the lobby of the Empress and demanded four tickets. He was giving a party, he said, for his mother, grandmother, sister and himself. The lobbies of both theatres proved insufficient room for the big supply of dandelions and the city garbage wagons had to be called to haul them away.

The Humane Society of Omaha was looking for a place to gather the school children to observe "Kindness to Animals Day" in Omaha when Manager Thomas of the Strand heard of it. He immediately offered his theatre and several hundred children gathered, heard talks on kindness to animals, and then stayed at the management's invitation and free of charge saw the Williamson submarine pictures. They were told the Strand, every Saturday, would give special shows for the school children. Judging from the comments on the picture shown them free, the children's shows hereafter will be well attended.

Th mother's clubs, father's clubs, woman's clubs, teacher's clubs and similar organizations of Council Bluffs, Ia., just across the river from Omaha, joined in a request for the theatres to set aside special performances for the children. This has been done and few children can be seen about their usual haunts when the "Children's hour" is on at the theatres.

At Logan, Ia., Manager Thompson of the Rex gave tickets to the children who attained more than 90 per cent in their examination grades, then he started regular children's matinees. It paid, he says.

In every instance the exhibitors are taking great care that only the best kinds of pictures for children are shown, and their invitations to the parents to come along with the children are genuine.

THE WEEK'S BEST LIVE WIRE STUNT

The Lothrop school, Omaha, Neb., wanted a new Victrola and the pupils and teachers were wondering how they could raise the money. W. O. Jensen, proprietor of the Lothrop motion picture theatre, nearby, heard of the situation from his young son. He was planning starting children's matinees and saw here a good chance. He told the teachers and pupils he would give one-half the receipts on a certain afternoon toward the Victrola fund. He showed "Barbara Frietschie."

The theatre was packed, the Victrola was purchased, and now children's matinees, all heavily attended. are frequent features at the Lothrop motion picture show.

Emerald Completes Several Chapters of "Tom and Jerry"

Initial Releases of Series to Be Issued in Twenty-two Reels Will Be Made Shortly—Same Cast of Principals Will Appear in the Forty Reels

THE Emerald Motion Picture Company, of Chicago, has completed the filming of several chapters of the "Tom and Jerry" comedy series that is to be issued in twenty-two-reel episodes. Initial releases on this series will be made very shortly.

The same cast of principal funmakers will appear throughout the forty reels. Among the players are: Dolores Cassinelli, Charles Huntington, Tom Keesey, Byrdine Zuber, Rhea Laughlin, Patrick Miles, and Tony West. All the installments are being written and directed by Frederick J. Ireland. It is promised that the fun of the pictures will consist in genuinely humorous situations and real acting, not in slapstick work.

The first release will be known as "Tom and Jerry—Bachelors." Tom and Jerry are two susceptible benedicts who, although happily married, cannot resist flirting with pretty strangers. When their respective wives leave for a week-end trip, Tom and Jerry planned to entertain Madam De Luxe, a handsome French model. At Jerry's house the two deceivers are just sitting down with their piquant model when their wives, having missed the train, return. To add to the confusion, Madame De Luxe's husband enters the house with the De Luxe baby, and the two husbands try to hide all three outsiders.

Harold Carey, associate editor of Every Week, and former managing editor of Technical World, is now on the staff of Paramount Pictographs.

Only Trade Showing of " Woman Who Dared " Set for June 30

General Manager Beyfuss of California Motion Picture Corporation Arranges for a Pre-View of Beatriz Michelena Subject, an Eight-Reeler, at the Rialto, New York

"THE Woman Who Dared," with Beatriz Michelena, which has been so extensively advertised as the California Motion Picture Corporation's second " Better Than Program " release, is to be shown the trade in New York City on Friday, June 30. This is the first definite announcement as to the completion of the big picture on which General Manager Alexander E. Beyfuss and his associates at the company's studios in San Rafael, Cal., have been so hard at work for the past six or eight months. It is nearly finished.

The California people have secured the new Rialto theatre at Forty-second Street and Broadway for the trade showing. The thirty-five piece orchestra which regularly plays at the Rialto will interpret the especially written musical score provided for the picture. Manager S. L. Rothapfel of the Rialto will give the performance his personal attention throughout.

"The Woman Who Dared" will be an eight-part feature when it is ready for the market. With the scenes all taken and the story carefully worked out fully a month ago, the business of cutting and editing was taken up and the finished product is even yet being worked over in the company's studios.

"The Woman Who Dared," like "The Unwritten Law," is to be released on the states rights plan. The sale of territory will be taken up immediately after the trade showing at the Rialto which will be the only trade showing given the picture before the sale. Sales of " The Unwritten Law " were not started until after the picture had been shown both in New York and in Chicago.

Looking Ahead With The Producers

New Releasing Policy of Mutual Begins with "Whispering Smith" and "Soul Mates," Week of June 5

WITH the release of "Whispering Smith" and "Soul Mates," first of the five-act "Mutual Star Productions" which top Mutual offerings for the week of June 5, the new feature release policy of the Mutual Film Corporation, recently announced, gets into full swing.

"Whispering Smith," featuring Helen Holmes, goes to the public on June 5. "Soul Mates" with William Russell, the star, will be released on June 8.

These new Mutual Star Productions, the company promises, will set a new record in feature releases in many ways. Each will be written to match the histrionic talents and personalities of the stars. Many of the Mutual Star productions will be prepared for the screen from the latest of popular fiction stories. A staff of noted scenario men are now at work at the various studios where the productions will be filmed preparing the features for the screen. In many instances, the authors of the books from which the stories are to be adapted, will work in conjunction with the directors.

Frederick Warde, Richard Bennett, Mary Miles Minter, Helen Holmes, Florence La Badie, William Russell and various other stars of the stage and screen will be presented as the featured player in these new Mutual Star Productions. Miss Minter is now at work at the American-Mutual studios in Santa Barbara on her first feature release. Frederick Warde has begun his first feature at the Thanhouser studios. Mr. Bennett will leave for the American-Mutual studios just as soon as his theatrical engagement in New York is concluded. First of the Mutual Star Productions featuring Miss La Badie, Miss Holmes and William Russell have been completed, while the work on the productions in which the various other stars are to be featured is well under way.

"Whispering Smith" is the first of the Mutual Star Productions featuring Helen Holmes. It was screened under the direction of J. P. McGowan. Miss Holmes, is seen in the role of Marion Sinclair. Mr. McGowan appears in the role of Whispering Smith, while the other important roles are in the hands of Paul C. Hurst, Leo Maloney, Thomas Lingham, Chance Ward, N. Z. Wood, Sam Appel, F. Van Norman, Walter Rogers, William Brunton and various others especially chosen for Miss Holmes' support.

First of the Mutual Star Productions featuring William Russell, will be released under the title of "Soul Mates." It was produced at the American-Mutual studios and prepared under the personal direction of J. Edward Hungerford, whose pen has been responsible for many of the features filmed at the American-Mutual studios. Charlotte Burton appears in Russell's chief support. Others in the cast are Leona Hutton and Harry Keenan.

In the Mutual releases for this week, particularly interesting is the Gaumont-Mutual three-act drama which will be released on June 8 under the title of "Flames of Vengeance." This production presents two feminine stars in the leading roles. Gertrude Robinson and Iva Shepard, the "vampire" of the Gaumont-Mutual studios are the featured players. They are supported by a company of players, headed by Alexander Gaden.

Four two-reel subjects will be released by the Mutual on the same program. "Jealousy's First Wife," an unusually interesting domestic drama, featuring Vivian Rich and Alfred Vosburgh, heads the list. It is from the American-Mutual studios and will be released on June 5.

"John Brewster's Wife," from the Thanhouser-Mutual studios, for release on June 6, "The Pilgrim," from the Mustang-Mutual studios with Frank Borzago and Anna Little in the leading roles, for release, June 9, and "The Lion's Nemesis," a stirring drama from the Horsley-Mutual studios, featuring Margaret Gibson and the Bostock animals, comprise the two-act offerings. The latter will be released on June 10.

Mutual comedy releases for the same week present a wide range of subjects. "Beauty" offerings present "Billy Van Duesen's Operation," featuring Carrol Halloway and John Sheehan and "Thinim Stout," starring Orral Humphrey. They will be released on June 7 and the 10, respectively. Falstaff offerings include "Advertisementers," featuring "Conrad and Oscar," for release, June 5, and "Where Wives Win," released June 10. Vogue releases include "A Plane Story" to be released, June 5, and "His Blow-out" for release, June 11. Jerry's Big Lark," for release, June 9, is the Cub comedy featuring George Ovey.

"Reel Life," the Mutual Film Magazine, "The Weekly Mutual" and "See America First" will be released on the usual days, namely Wednesday and Sunday.

MUNSTERBERG WILL SPRING ANOTHER NOVELTY

Professor Hugo Münsterberg will shortly bring to a close his psychological series in Paramount Pictographs. The great psychologist is now at work on a series of articles for the Pictographs that will attempt something never before dreamed of in the motion picture business, it is reported by the manufacturer.

Illustrating "The Man from Manhattan," American-Mutual De Luxe Masterpicture for Current Release

Striking Photographs Illustrating "The Flower of No-Man's Land," a Forthcoming Metro Vehicle for Viola Dana

"Flower of No Man's Land" Will Be Released by Metro on June 19 With Viola Dana as the Star

"THE Flower of No Man's Land," the five part Metro-Columbia in which Viola Dana, the newest Metro star, makes her debut on the Metro program, will be released June 19. This feature was written and directed by John H. Collins, who was formerly associated with Miss Dana at the Edison company. There is a supporting cast in "The Flower of No Man's Land," which includes Duncan McRae, the well known English dramatic actor, Mitchell Lewis, Harry C. Brown, Fred Jones, Nellie Grant Mitchell, Eldine Steuart and Marcus Moriarity. Mitchell Lewis plays the role of a big Indian in this production, which is a similar part to that which brought him no little fame, when he appeared with William Faversham in "The Squaw Man."

One of the interesting features is a series of scenes which were actually photographed in the Metropolitan Opera House, showing the world famous "diamond horseshoe," the dressing rooms and other interesting glimpses behind the scenes. In contrast to the scenes made around New York, are some realistic effects showing the Great American Desert, and many colorful and picturesque locations of the far West. There is a mining camp with all its familiar types, and here much of the action is staged. An old stagecoach that saw service for many years in the Far West, is introduced into the picture.

The story of "The Flower of No Man's Land" concerns a baby girl, called "Echo," who is found by Kahoma, an old Indian, lying beside the body of her father, who has been murdered by a Mexican half-breed for his money. The Indian brings up the girl tenderly and she becomes the one bright spot in the lives of the rough men of the mining camp. Roy Talbot, the reigning tenor at the Metropolitan Opera, loses his voice during a triumph in "Pagliacci," and is advised by specialists to go West to recuperate and rest.

While riding in a stagecoach over a treacherous stretch of highway, the coach is overturned and Talbot is seriously injured. He is carried to the cabin of Kahoma where Echo nurses him until he is recovered. He is struck by the simplicity of the girl and his polished manners win her. They are married, and when he recovers his voice he goes back East with Echo. Her crude manners irritate him and he becomes bored in her presence. At length Echo learns that Talbot is going with other women and that he has a wife and baby. Broken hearted she returns to the West where she is welcomed back by Kahoma and "Big Bill" McMichael, a good natured miner, who has always loved the girl. Big Bill, on learning that Echo's marriage is void, proposes and is accepted, while Kahoma goes East on a mission of vengeance, according to the unwritten law of the Indians.

ABRAMSON WORKS ON SCENARIO FOR PICTURE SOON TO BE PRODUCED

Having finished "Her Husband's Wife," the newest Ivan feature, Director General Ivan Abramson is working on the scenario for his next production, which will be put into work within the next two weeks.

The theme for the new Ivan production will treat of an evil in modern society life.

Immediately upon the completion of the working script an all-star cast of noted screen players will be assembled to enact the various roles to be depicted in the feature, which will be filmed at the Ivan studio under the personal direction of Mr. Abramson.

As yet no title has been decided on for this play, but the working name of the story is "The Faded Flower."

"HOW OUR FLEET MAY BE DESTROYED" IN PICTOGRAPHS

The feature, "How Our Fleet Might Be Destroyed," appearing in a coming release of Paramount Pictographs is based entirely upon facts. High officers of the United States Navy convinced that Paramount was sincerely supporting the cause of Preparedness, sat down and worked out just what would happen if our fleet were attacked unexpectedly by superior enemy naval power.

They drew a series of diagrams showing every stage of the war at sea from the time the enemy made his approach until he destroyed our fleet. These diagrams, supplemented by extensive written explanations, were turned over by the naval officers to Paramount.

"FLAMES OF VENGEANCE" IS FIRST GAUMONT FOR JUNE

The first June release of a Gaumont-Mutual three reel photodrama will be "Flames of Vengeance," with Gertrude Robinson as the star, and Iva Shepard as the central female figure in the first reel. It is a story of a woman's mistake on her wedding day and portrays the tragic results that come from it.

In the cast are Sydney Mason, John Rheinhard, John Mackin, Birsha Shepard, Albert Macklin, James Levering, Mathilde Baring and Charles H. Travis and a number of others.

"DESTROYERS," WITH LUCILLE LEE STEWART, FROM "V" ON JUNE 5

The first picture in which Lucille Lee Stewart appears for the Vitagraph Company of America is entitled "The Destroyers," and is from the novel "Peter God," by James Oliver Curwood. The production is scheduled for release on June 5 as a Blue Ribbon Feature.

Miss Stewart plays the leading role in the drama. Her interpretation is that of the pampered society girl who suddenly awakes to the fact that the world is a grim fight for life.

Mr. Ince is so pleased with the results that he has already started work on another production in which Miss Stewart will again play the lead.

KALEM'S "LOTUS WOMAN" IS SET FOR RELEASE ON JUNE 28

Kalem's five-reel drama, "The Lotus Woman," featuring Alice Hollister and Harry Millarde, will be released on June 28 instead of June 20, as originally announced in last week's MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

The decision to postpone the release of the feature was reached as a result of Kalem's desire that exhibitors in all sections of the country shall have full opportunity to view this feature production well in advance of release date.

FINE ARTS VEHICLE WILL SHOW HOPPER'S VERSATILITY

De Wolf Hopper is now playing in a Fine Arts picture in the part of an old actor, who when he turns the leaves of his scrap book, in memory lives the successful incidents of his public career. Hopper plays many bits, doing parts from the great masterpieces. Perhaps the most elaborate scene is that in which he gives the funeral address of Mark Anthony from "Julius Caeser."

VENICE IS LOCAL FOR "THE SORROWS OF LOVE," INCE

From the Balkans, the setting for the last Bessie Barriscale picture, "Bullets and Brown Eyes," the Ince-Triangle star has gone to Venice as the locale for her forthcoming release, "The Sorrows of Love."

Miss Barriscale will again be seen as a nun. The story is said to be absorbing, and it has a tragic ending. William Desmond, Herschel Mayall, Ora Carew, and Wedgwood Nowell are the supporting principals.

Universal Program for Week of June 5 Includes Six Features in Addition to the Five-Reel Red Feather

THE Universal program for the week of June 5 contains six features in addition to the five-reel Red Feather release, Flora Parker De Haven in "The Madcap," and the sixth two-reel episode of "The Adventures of Peg o' the Ring," in which Grace Cunard and Francis Ford are featured.

"The Madcap" will be released on June 5, followed by the Nestor comedy, "Never Again Eddie," in which Eddie Lyons, Lee Moran and Betty Compson act as official funmakers. Eddie and Lee returned to Universal City on Monday, May 22, after a flying trip to New York, where they renewed their contract with the Universal.

On June 6 Herbert Rawlinson plays the leading role in "The Rose Colored Scarf," a Gold Seal two-reel light drama, in which Mr. Rawlinson is supported by Agnes Vernon. On the same day Matt Moore and Jane Gail co-star in an Imp comedy, "His Little Story."

"Object—Matrimony," a two-reel Victor comedy, is the feature of the program of Wednesday, June 7. Harry Myers and Rosemary Theby play the leading roles.

On the same day Billie Ritchie and Eva Nelson are seen in a one-reel L-Ko, "Billie's Waterloo." The day closes with Universal Animated Weekly, No. 23, brings the day's program to a close.

"Alias Jane Jones," a Laemmle two-reel detective drama, which will be released on June 8 with Edward Hearn and Edna Maison playing the leading roles, is an underworld play. It will be followed on the same day by "The Sea Lily," a Big U drama, with Thomas Jefferson and Zoe Bech playing the leading roles. A split reel ends the play. First Mr. Pep appears in "He Breaks for the Beach," a comedy cartoon, and then follows "Pigmies of the Zoo," a Ditmars Educational, both of which are released under the Powers brand.

June 9 leads off with "The Scorpion's Sting," a Victor three-reel society melodrama. This is followed by Ben Wilson in "The Code of His Ancestors," a Rex drama in which Mr. Wilson is supported by Dorothy Phillips. The last number on the day's program is a Nestor comedy, "Twixt Love and the Iceman," in which Neil Burns and Billie Rhodes have chief roles.

A two-reel Bison underworld drama entitled, "The Cage Man," with G. Raymond Nye and Roberta Wilson playing the leads, is released on June 10, followed by "Betrayed by the Camera," which is a Powers comedy.

"The Sheriff of Pine Mountain," a two-reel Rex Northwest drama, featuring Ben Wilson with Dorothy Phillips, is released by the Universal on June 11, together with the Laemmle drama, "The False Gems," in which Rupert Julian, Elsie J. Wilson and D. Gerard play the leading roles. The day ends with a comedy, "Phony Teeth and False Friends," an L-Ko howler, in which Gene Rogers, Reggie Morris and Eva Nelson disport about a dentist's agony shop.

FANNIE WARD AND VICTOR MOORE WILL BE SEEN IN LASKY RELEASES FOR JUNE

Two feature productions will be released by the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company on the Paramount Program during the month of June. They are Fannie Ward in "A Gutter Magdalene," released June 1, and Victor Moore in "The Clown," released June 19.

Fannie Ward's starring vehicle is the first of a series of photoplays written for the Lasky Company by the well-known American dramatist, Willard Mack, author of "Kick In" and other Broadway successes. As the heroine Miss Ward appears as a young woman whose sins of scarlet are washed away in the environment of Salvation Army rescue work.

"The Clown," in which Victor Moore is the star with the support of Thomas Meighan, who is featured in this production, Florence Dagmar, Ernest Joy, Tom Forman and Gerald Ward, is a story of circus life written by Marian Fairfax and produced by William C. DeMille of the Lasky staff.

The story of "The Clown" is of gripping appeal as it tells how the children's idol risks his life to save one of his little admirers, and later sacrifices his career to protect the honor of another. How he tries to better himself, and how he leaves the woman he has married to protect that she may turn to the one she loves is told in a number of what are said to be startling scenes.

Scenes from Two Coming Lasky Photoplays: Victor Moore in "The Clown," and Fannie Ward in "The Gutter Magdalene" William Fox Offerings: Virginia Pearson in "Hypocrisy," and Jose Collins in Her First Fox Photoplay.

"SILKS AND SATINS" FROM FAMOUS PLAYERS IS PART OF PARAMOUNT RELEASES FOR WEEK OF JUNE 12

Paramount pictures released for the week of June 12 will be headed by two five-reel features from the Famous Players studios. "Silks and Satins," released on Monday will feature Marguerite Clark, while the Thursday release will be "Destiny's Toy," in which will appear the new Famous Players star, Louise Huff.

Short reels completing this program for the week will be the Paramount-Burton Holmes Travel-Picture, "The Penal Colony of Palawan," the Paramount-Bray Animated Cartoon "Colonel Heeza Liar and the Bandits" and the Paramount Pictographs.

In "Palawan," Paramount audiences will have an opportunity to study the most interesting penal colony in the world and the most humane. Here men who entered Bilibid Prison in Manila and other institutions in the Philippine Archipelago as the most dangerous of criminals are made over into self-respecting citizens and learn to support themselves and their families in almost perfect freedom. At Palawan, too, Mr. Holmes leads the way for two miles up an underground river and under lofty mountains. The next of the Travel-Pictures will start a tour of European cities as they were before the present war, beginning with Berlin the Imperial.

Paramount Pictographs in the nineteenth release will show "The Making of a Bluejacket;" "Trend of the Imagination" in Professor Munsterberg's "Testing the Mind" series; "Free Play" in the "Better Babies" department and "Jobs You Would Not Want," showing perilous occupations. This edition will also contain a new release of the "Trickids."

Colonel Heeza Liar is now being starred in a new production every three weeks in the Paramount-Bray Animated Cartoons. The latest cartoon is "Colonel Heeza Liar and the Bandits," in which J. R. Bray takes his hero through a new series of laugh-making adventures.

GREEN IS MANAGER OF EXCLUSIVE, BUFFALO

Louis Green, formerly roadman for the World Film Corporation, is now manager of the Exclusive Features, Inc., Buffalo office. Green states that he will keep open house for all his exhibitor friends, and invites them to call on him.

"Frilby Frilled" from Lubin on May 29, Followed by "The Final Payment" on the 30th, Directed by Kent

"FRILBY FRILLED," one-reel comedy written and directed by Edwin McKim, is released on May 29, by the Lubin Company, through the General Film Company. A screaming burlesque is "Frilby," in which the ubiquitous Davy Don, as a weird sevegarlic survives a series of unique misadventures, Patsy DeForest, Bernard Siegel, George Egan and Charles Ebbinger are in the cast.

"The Final Payment," two-reel drama by Maude Thomas and produced under the associate direction of Captain Wilbert Melville and Leon D. Kent, is released by the Lubin Company on May 30, through the General Film Company. A young wife is striving to keep the pace set by wealthier society friends and loses heavily at bridge and momentarily yields to temptation in the form of a diamond pendant. But in the end all is well. L. C. Shumway, George Routh, Helen Eddy and Velma Whitman are in the cast.

"The Code of the Hills," a three-reel drama by Millard Wilson and directed by Melvil Mayo, under the supervising direction of Captain Wilbert Melville, is released by the Lubin Company. A girl of the hills, whose family are feudists, and a young district attorney from the city are twin victims of Cupid's arrows. Their marriage starts, instead of ending, a story in which thrills and tears alternate. The cast includes Malvin Mayo, Millard Wilson, Bird Hopkins, Cecil Van Auker, Adelaide Bronti, Lucy Payton and Evelyn Page.

"Pickles and Diamonds," a one-reel comedy written by Dave Reed and directed by Clay M. Greene, is released on June 3 by the Lubin Company through the General Film Company. A fortune hunter in search of a wealthy wife and a pickle manufacturer who aspires to an aristocratic son-in-law, are brought together in a diverting test of wit. The principal parts are ably played by June Daye, Florence Williams, Francis Joyner and Kempton Greene. The settings are said to be quite elaborate for a one-reeler.

First Bluebird Starring Miss Phillips Will Be "By Fate's Decree," Written by Stewart Payton

THE first Bluebird picture in which Dorothy Phillips, who recently went to Los Angeles from New York, will be starred is "By Fate's Decree." This was written by Stewart Payton, and the supporting cast includes Lon Chaney in the male lead opposite Miss Phillips, Frank Whitson, Gilmore Hammond, T. D. Crittenden, Gretchen Lederer, Lydia Yeamans Titus, Marc Fenton and Georgia French. The male lead is a young man who gives himself up to the police to prevent his father from being arrested. At this time the youth first learns that his father, although his source of income had always been a mystery to the entire family, had been a second story man.

The son is sent to prison and released on good behavior at the end of three years. In the meantime his father died without revealing to the family his past life, or making confession that would release the son. Misfortune follows the son, and he is unable to secure employment or find his family. Discouraged he goes to a river to commit suicide. The feminine lead is that of a girl cared for by a man who forces her to pick pockets. To escape further mistreatment, she runs away and has about the same experience as the son. They meet at the river and talk each other out of taking their own life. From this time on they are pals. The girl, by an unusual incident, secures a place as servant in a wealthy family where there is an aged woman as housekeeper. The son desperately in need of money tries to pick a watch, is detected, and induces the man not to turn him over to the police. The man employs him as a bookkeeper. The warden is notified of his employment, and detectives tell his employer of his past record.

The business establishment is the clearing house for a gang of crooks, and his employer is the leader. Learning of his acquaintance with the girl employed by the wealthy, threaten him with exposure and force him to aid the gangsters in entering the house. About the same time, the girl's former foster parent learns of her place, and frightens her into aiding his men into the house. The two sets of gangsters battle, are arrested, but the youth and the girl have escaped.

THE EASTERN STUDIOS

DESPITE rumors of removal, the studios at Universal Heights are working this week like munition factories in war times. An extensive program of production has been mapped out, and is already in hand, and the leading stars of the Eastern Universal aggregation, King Baggot, Mary Fuller, Violet Mersereau, Jane Gail and William Garwood, are all as busy as ever.

"The Chance Market," the new Baggot picture, was written by King Baggot, and again he is directing himself in it; moreover he is playing the two leading parts, thanks to double exposure photography. Irene Hunt, Frank Smith and Howard Crampton are in the supporting cast.

Mary Fuller is also in a trick photography picture. The story is "The Soul of a Child," by Olga Prinzlau Clark, and one section of the action shows the soul of a child leaving the little body and entering a garden of roses, there to gather a rose. Lucius Henderson is directing Miss Fuller.

Violet Mersereau, who "welched" on her agreement to wed Roy Fernandez, winner of the Universal's "Handsomest Man" contest because he wasn't "her ideal dark man," is appearing in a picture of strong dramatic theme entitled "The Power of Virtue." This is from the pen of Mrs. Catherine Carr, writer of extraordinary film plays, and is a five reeler.

The "Handsomest Man," Roy Fernandez, has been taken in hand by Director George Ridgewell, and will support Edith Roberts. Details of the production are not to be had as this resume is written.

J. Grubb Alexander has written a strong scenario for Jane Gail entitled "The River Goddess," in which she is now appearing, along with Matt Moore, who is the producer. Some very colorful river scenes have been taken.

Garwood the Director and Lead of "Honor"

William Garwood is both the leading man and director of "Honor," laid "somewhere in France, 1914" from the pen of Harry Ditmar. Paul Panzer will also be featured in this.

The mysterious Sydney and Sydell Dowling are working under Director Robert Hill in "The Big Scoop," another Ditmar story. This is a "newspaper story" which the director claims is away from the conventional kind. In fact, it is its director's first "newspaper story" and Mr. Hill states he accepted it by reason of its novelty.

Robert T. Thornby, directing the five reel production, "The Almighty Dollar" at the Paragon studio, has entirely recovered from his mishap in the zinc mines of Franklyn, N. J., where he was engaged taking exterior scenes in connection with his picture. Mr. Thornby expects to finish his picture this week.

Tourneur Completes Railroad Story

Maurice Tourneur has completed his railroad story with House Peters playing the lead and expects to take up the matter of producing a serial picture with sixteen episodes at once. Considerable competition has existed between the various well known authors to furnish the material for the intended serial and Mr. Tourneur hopes to make his choice from those submitted this week.

Edwin August has just completed for the World Film Corporation "The Perils of Divorce," with Edna Wallace Hooper, Frank Sheridan and an all-star supporting cast which includes Alec. B. Francis, Macey Harlan, Frank Beamish and Ruby Hoffman. The picture is scheduled for early release.

Mollie King is coming under the direction of Edwin August for the first time. Also, for the first time, Mr. August is to produce a light comedy—as heretofore he has always produced dramatic spectacles—emotional, domestic and sociological dramas. Mr. August and entire company have gone South for the production.

There was an unexpectedly tense scene enacted in the Famous Players studio the other day. It was a barber shop scene.

Three happy and unsuspecting actors hopped nimbly into the chairs which formed part of an extremely realistic barber shop setting. The scene would be easy for them, for all they had to do was to lie perfectly still while the others in the scene recorded the important action of the story. Then Robert G. Vignola, who was directing the scene, awoke them to a realization of their peril by shouting for action around the chairs.

Immediately three other actors attired after the manner of barbers sprang to the mirrored wall before them and the ominous sound of razors gliding rapidly over the leather straps sent an involuntary shudder up and down the spines of the helpless victims as they realized their danger.

How far would the action go before the scene was completed? That was the thought which flashed through three fevered brains. The "barbers" were mixing the lather now and smearing it upon the faces of the trembling trio. As one of them completed the lathering operations, and picking up his razor, approached the chair with a flourish of the glittering steel, an involuntary groan escaped the lips of the man in the chair.

"All right. That's enough. Take it right over again. Lights," rang the voice of the director, and three long, loud sighs of relief echoed through the studio.

Troubles of Diminutive Star

Diminutive screen stars have their own troubles which, according to Ann Pennington the little "Ziegfeld Follies" star who has recently joined the Famous Players forces, are by no means commensurate with the avoirdupois of the respective luminaries. In her first picture Miss Pennington was called upon to enact a scene with a little girl about 12 years of age.

The director, in selecting his cast, designated a clever child actress of exactly that age to play the part. But when the cast was gathered together for the first rehearsal of the particular scene in question, it was discovered that the child actress was taller than the star, who was supposed to be a full-blown young lady. So the girl had to be put in another picture which also required a young girl of her age and a very diminutive little youngster who was small enough to pass for the given age without in any way spoiling the artistic effect when she stood besides Miss Pennington, was engaged to replace her.

What did the ladies carry in their hands during the Empire Period? Certain it is that the damsels of that era carried something. The feminine hand has never been idle since the day of Eve.

Since that time there has been a continuous succession of powder puffs, parasols, handkerchiefs, hand mirrors, swagger sticks, and other strictly feminine articles of adornment, but the big problem which confronted J. Searle Dawley in directing Marguerite Clark's appearance in "Silks and Satins" at the Famous Players studio was to determine just what it was that the ladies of the Empire toyed with.

After William Scully, the director's assistant, had hunted for information on the subject for three hours while the whole set was held idle, Dawley decided that it would be safe for him to permit Miss Clark to carry a handkerchief, as there could be no possibility of error in so doing. It was so ordered.

Shannon Fife's play, "Susie Snowflake," written for Ann Pennington, and especially selected by Famous Players to mark the debut of this dainty star on the Paramount program, is rapidly nearing completion under the direction of James Kirkwood. The play gives Miss Pennington opportunity to display every angle of her versatility, from classic dancing to the more strenuous role of heroine in a big fire scene. It will be released on the Paramount program June 22.

Planet to Produce at Rockville Centre

The Raver studios and laboratory which are now nearing completion at Rockville Centre, Long Island, will be used by the new organization, The Planet Film Corporation, for the production of pictures.

Harry R. Raver, vice-president and general manager of the Planet Film Corporation, is personally supervising the work which is being carried on at the Raver studios.

The Planet Film Corporation plans to start work on their first production just as soon as the studios are finished. No announcement is being made of what the first picture will be, but from what can be learned of the intentions of this company it will be a five reel production of either a well known play or novel, featuring some road star, one that is known equally as well in the small cities and towns as on Broadway. This first five reel production will be followed by two more of the same length and then an eight reel feature will be released.

As it will be necessary to work on two pictures at the same time the original studio plans have been altered somewhat to allow for more space for the directors. The initial floor space of thirty by sixty feet has been increased to thirty by one hundred and twenty feet.

It looked like preparedness in the Flatbush section of Brooklyn the other day when several men in khaki were seen around the Vitagraph studio. However they soon disappeared, some mounted on horses, going in the direction of Highland Park. At that place a dramatic motion picture scene was staged under Director Wilfrid North, for a forthcoming release. It was a combination battle and mob scene. The mounted men were from Battery B of the Second Battery, New York National Guard, while the infantrymen were from the Forty-seventh Regiment of the New York National Guard, being picked men from several companies.

Evart Overton, whose work in "The Ordeal of Elizabeth," caused so much pleasing comment, is now working under the direction of Eugene Mullin in a Vitagraph three-part dramatic story by James Oliver Curwood.

This latest subject is reported as up to the usual high quality of Curwood's style in the fact that it holds the interest from the beginning to the end of the story. It contains that something which interests and pleases, presenting life as it really is and not as talented imagination would like to have it.

A seven passenger automobile will be blown to atoms to suit the action of a scene in this photoplay.

Overton will be seen in a role suited to his distinctive type. Adele Kelly, Edward Elkas and Denton Vane are the other Vitagraph favorites who appear in the cast. Charmine Mayfield, recently appointed a member of the Vitagraph Stock Company, also makes her bow in this picture.

Marc McDermott, now a recognized Vitagraph Player, is making great headway in a Blue Ribbon Feature by Louis Joseph Vance, in course of production under the direction of William Humphrey. The story was especially written for McDermott.

Story of Theatrical Life

It will be completed in time for release during the early summer.

In this latest story Mr. Vance tells of the struggle for existence of a young girl who endeavors to make a name for herself in the theatrical world. How she is assisted by a young playwright who falls in love with her, and gives a good idea of the life and people of "the painted world."

The cast includes such Vitagraphers as: Naomi Childers, Robert Whitworth, Josephine Earle, Templar Saxe, William Shea, Katherine Lewis, Jack Bulger and Emmanuel A. Turner.

Barney Bernard, the original "Abe Potash," arrived at the Vitagraph studios May 22, and began work on a Yiddish comedy under the direction of Paul Scardon in a section of studio No. 5, which will hereafter be devoted exclusively to the activities of the famous Yiddish comedian.

Mr. Bernard is assisted in his first com-

In and Out of West Coast Studios

By J. C. Jessen

Special to Motion Picture News.

Los Angeles, May 27.

AN unusual celebration is planned for this evening, when David Horsley will act as host of members of his producing staff, the event being in commemoration of the completion of the fiftieth Cub Comedy produced by Director Milton H. Farney in the past fifty weeks. Everyone of these subjects were made from an original scenario written by the director in which George Ovey, Janet Sully, Jefferson Osborn, Louis Fitzroy, and Arthur Munn took part. The camera work for all fifty was done by Ross Fisher. The fiftieth comedy is titled "Jerry's Big Haul." The entertainment to be provided by Producer Horsley, consists of a dinner to be served on the big open air stage, and this to be followed by a dance.

David Horsley's Bostock trained animals left last week in a special ten car train over the Santa Fe for the east, where the first performance will be given at one of the Long Island parks early in June. Less than half of the animals were taken east, the greater portion being retained here for work in animal pictures. With the departure of these animals, the Bostock arena on south Main street, Los Angeles, was closed to the public, after having been conducted for more than a year. A special performance was given the day before the animals were shipped to the sixty-five boys who attend the Los Angeles Military Academy, when Stanley Horsley, the little son of the pioneer film producer, acted as host at the studio. Following the entertainment, a dinner was given on one of the open air stages, and the boys gave several exhibition drills, and presented an impromptu program. Motion pictures were made of all the principal events.

Director Robert Broadwell is filming a two-reel centaur drama named "The Haunted Symphony," in which Crane Wilbur appears in the role of an alienist with May Gaston, John Oaker, and Jessie Burnette as principals.

Another new picture was begun by Charles Swickard. This is unnamed. It has an African jungle locale, and the principals will be William Clifford and Margaret Gibson.

"The Silent Battle" with Drink

Director Jack Conway, who was recently added to the Universal directing forces, has completed his first picture "The Silent Battle" in five reels. This stars J. Warren Kerrigan as a young man who makes a successful fight against an inherent appetite for alcohol. Opposite Kerrigan is Lois Wilson, and other principals are Maude George, Harry Carter, Ray Hanford, Laura Oakley, and Jack Connelly. Many of the scenes represent an atmosphere of the northern woods, and the delicate situation of a young man and woman lost in the woods together for a week, is handled in a very capable manner. Some new lighting effects are introduced in this subject by B. C. Hayward, the cameraman.

There have been a number of changes at Universal City. For the immediate present, Robert Leonard will direct only, and Herbert Rawlinson will play opposite Ella Hall in "Little Eve Edgarton." In this cast also is Doris Pawn, who recently left the Universal and played lead in a Fox production made by Raoul Walsh. Other notables in this cast are Thomas Jefferson who is playing the character part. The story is an adaptation from the book of the same title by Eleanor H. Abbott, and will be a five-reel Bluebird feature.

Another Bluebird feature begun last week is entitled "The Beckoning Trail," which will be in five reels. The story is by F. McGrew Willis, and the direction is in charge of Jack Conway. The story is that of a young New Yorker whose father wished to teach him the value of money, and provides that the executor of the will shall not inform the son of the amount he bequeaths, but force him first to earn a livelihood. J. Warren Kerrigan is starred, Maude George appears as the actress, Lois Wilson the prospector's daughter, and others are Harry Carter, Harry Griffith and Ray Hanford. The company has gone to Coultersville in the San Joaquin valley to make exteriors for this picture.

Director Wallace Beery is on the third of the "Timothy Dobbs" series featuring Carter De Haven as the small town youth who breaks into the movies. Robert Milash, height six feet seven inches, is his valet, and in this number Marguerite Whistler plays an important part, an old maid who conducts a second-class boarding house. De Haven is picked by a producer to play the part of a cop, and is dragged for miles and miles after he falls out of an automobile. A pile of sand finally stops him. Tom Walsh, who was formerly assistant to Director Henry McRae, has been transferred to this company serving in the same capacity.

Elfelt Completes First Picture

Clifford S. Elfelt, who served as assistant to Richard Stanton, and was promoted to a directorship, has completed his first picture which is entitled "Muggins." This is from a scenario by Harvey Gates and Fred Myton, and portrays how a child caused the reunion of separated parents. The picture has been very favorably commented upon at the studio, and Elfelt is continuing as director.

Number four of the "Baseball Bill" series of comedies by Billy Mason and Al Russell as co-authors and co-directors, is now being made. The same cast continues in this, with the addition of Yona Landowska.

Joker Director Allen Curtis is filming

"Thorny Is the Path of Genius," the principal character of which is a doctor who has discovered a new patent medicine. The story incidentally deals with the domestic mix-ups with two families, the couples being separated, and in a decidedly ludicrous manner reunited. The usual Joker cast including Charles Conklin, Lillian Peacock, Gale Henry, William Franey and M. Moranty appear.

A breath of the early west has been injected into the two-reel story entitled, "The Game Warden," from a scenario by Walter Woods now being made by Director Henry McRae of Universal City. Indian warfare, trapped by wolves, runaway rides, and other thrills will be filmed for this, with the usual result that the girl discovers he loves the new game warden, who has replaced the villainous one, and she accepts the position as his assistant, and "he takes her in his arms." Lee Hill is the hero, E. N. Wallock the villian, Marie Walcamp the ingenue, and Noble Johnson, a negro who wrote the story, appears as an Indian chief.

"An Eye For An Eye" is the name of a two-reel western drama written by R. E. Bradbury now being produced with Cleo Madison and William V. Mong as co-directors, and co-leads, supported by L. M. Wells, Charles Gunn and Bertram Grassby. Cleo Madison appears as a western girl whose hand is sought by a deputy sheriff and a supposed barber. The latter is a highwayman in reality.

Massey Narrowly Escapes Death

H. L. Massey, manager of the entertainment department of Universal City, narrowly escaped death, Sunday, at San Diego, when a taxi in which he was riding was hit by a runaway car. One man was killed, and Massey sustained a fractured collar bone. He will not be able to greet visitors at the Film city for several weeks, and during his absence, Tom Brown is serving in that capacity.

An all star cast of Universal players have been selected for the Bluebird feature "L'Abbe Constantine," to be filmed by Rupert Julian, who will also play a prominent part. The cast includes Jerry Girrard, Francelia Billington, Louise Lovely, Elsie Wilson, and little Zoe Beck.

Charles Mailes, for several years with the Biograph, where he established a enviable reputation as a character leading man, has recently been added to the forces of the Universal stock company.

Pat Rooney, well known vaudeville artist who played in two subjects for the Universal last summer, arrived at the film city early last week for an indefinite engagement. He will play in comedies, the filming of which will be in charge of Roy Clements.

Another Bluebird feature begun last week is entitled "The Shepherd" and is being made by Director Lloyd Carleton. This is a drama of stage life, and will feature Dorothy Davenport.

The scenario department at "U" City is busy with the preparation of a "film continuity" adapted from the "Spring Song" by Mendelssolm, which will be filmed by Director William Worthington.

A new series taken up last week under the direction of Jacques Jaccard, will consist of one-reel Universal dramas, depicting incidents of the underworld. The first number has been titled "Dollars and Cents."

One or more Fine Arts subjects are to be produced at the eastern studio of the Majestic and Reliance Company, and John Emerson has been sent east to be in charge of the direction. Accompanying Emerson is Norma Talmadge who will be starred in the first number. The two, accompanied by Miss Talmadge's mother, departed for the east Sunday.

"Dope Fiend" Completed

The Fine Arts preachment against the use of drugs in "The Dope Fiend," made under the direction of Chester Withey, and with Norma Talmadge and Tully Marshall as co-stars, has been completed, and was given its first studio run last week so that Miss Talmadge could see it before departing for New York. The play is said to be in harmony with a crusade recently launched for the abolishment of the sale of certain drugs

The Fine Arts Company with Douglas Fairbanks as star, and Alan Dwan as director, are still in the big tree country of California working on scenes for "In the Carquinez Woods." In this story, Fairbanks appears in the part of a half breed.

Negative for "The Wild Girl of the Sierras," with Mae Marsh, Robert Harron, and Wilfred Lucas in the principal parts, is now in the Fine Arts print factory, and will be an early release for the Triangle. Miss Marsh appears as a girl whose sole companions have been the birds and beasts of the forests, who is encountered by a prospecting party composed of a youth with means, and a gambler with his confederates in crime, who plan to sell the youth a worthless mine. The subject is spoken of as close to nature stuff, as there are said to be but three interior scenes in the entire five reels.

George Walsh has been selected as male lead, and Anna Luther to play opposite, in the newly organized Fox Producing Company, to be under the direction of Richard Stanton. Eagle Eye, an Indian, for several years with the Thomas H. Ince organization, has also been engaged. Stanton, it is understood, will make modern western photoplays. His first story has been prepared, and with the company, he left last week for the Mojave Desert to make exterior scenes.

Director Oscar Apfel, William Farnum and Company have returned from the Sierra Mountains in the vicinity of Huntington Lake in eastern central California, where they filmed snow scenes for a coming production. The players had great sport mornings and evenings fiishing, and caught many rainbow trout. Streams in this section of the state are not fished frequently, and the photoplayers had great luck.

Director Raoul Walsh and Company are still at Florence, Arizona, making the finishing scenes for "The Honor System," and he is enjoying the co-operation of all officers of the Arizona prison, at the order of Governor Hunt who will participate in a number of scenes.

More Fox Companies?

There are many rumors to be heard to the effect that the William Fox producing organization in Los Angeles, is to be increased by four or five more companies, including those for the making of comedy subjects. No definite information has been given out at the studio.

The last number of "The Social Pirates" will be completed within the next few days by Director James Horne at the Kalem Glendale studio. This is entitled "Black Magic." Preparations for another serial to be filmed by Horne is going forward, and work on this will be commenced shortly.

Dogs of all descriptions play important parts in a Kalem Ham Comedy made by Director-Comedian Lloyd V. Hamilton. The picture has been titled "Ham and the Alaskan Meat Hound." The dog of the title part refused to do his acts unless music was furnished by the harmonica player of the organization. Then when the mouth-organ was dropped in Silver Lake, the dog escaped from his keeper and "hung" the company up for almost a day. With the completion of this, Hamilton left for a vacation of a week going to his former home at Berkeley, where he will permit his former fellow townsmen to lionize him all they please; probably a fatted calf will be killed on the village green.

The Kalem Hazards Company is busy with the making of "The Cypher Telegram," which affords Helen Gibson another opportunity for creating a thrill for the screen. Miss Gibson has now almost fully recovered from the bruises and shock of a leap from an aeroplane. In this scene, she fell into a bed of cinders with such force that a great quantity of small particles were driven into her flesh. It required two hours each day for three days, for a physician to remove these, and then it was impossible to get all.

Preparedness figures in a comedy being made by the Rolin Company for release as a Phunphilm by Pathe. A preparedness camp has been built near the studio, and practically all of the scenes are laid around this. Harold Lloyd, as Lonesome Luke, is the unfortunate one on whom all accidents fall

"Hired and Fired"

Director Jack Dillon has Paddy Maguire as "Bungling Bill," and Ben Turpin as "Weene" breaking into a motion picture studio in their search for work—or trouble, in "Hired and Fired," a one-reel Vogue slapstick. The pair attempt to steal everything about the studio from the largest sets to the most dramatic scenes. Practically every one of the Vogue organization from Manager Crone down to the unimportant messenger boy take part in this.

The other Vogue organization directed by Rube Miller is filming "Crook Against Crook," in which two safe crackers find so much money in the deposit vault when they break into a broker's office, that they cannot carry it all away. They decide to throw the safe out of the window, and attach an umbrella to it, and after letting go they run down ten flights of stairs to beat it to the sidewalk, but a California wind came up and blew it out to sea. The picture ends with a lot of water stuff, and the bold bad men find that the stenographer had heard of their plans and replaced the good money with counterfeit. Madge Kirby, Alice Neice and Arthur Traveras play in support of Rube Miller.

The organization of the Christie Film Company are busy with the making of two subjects for unnamed release. Al. E. Christie is making "Their College Capers," which will consist of one reel. This has very elaborate settings for a picture of this size, and in many of the scenes sixty or seventy people take part. The comedy is laid in a town where there is a co-ed college. The girls have planned a midnight feed and invite the boys to the dormitory, but the young men learn of a prize fight being staged for this night and decide to go. The girls, leaning on this, don boys' attire and accompany the youths. Just at the finish of the fight, the place is raided, and all are arrested. Included in the party is Professor Sneak, fiance of the woman president of the college. The president bails them all out, and then ends her romance with the professor. Harry Ham, Eddie Beery, Billie Rhodes, Ethel Lynn and Jane Waller have the principal parts. The story is by James Dayton.

Another Christie Company is filming "Love and Lunatics," by Al. E. Christie. This farce has to do with father favoring a wealthy suitor, who is not suitable to his daughter Betty. She likes the more youthful one, Neil. They start to elope from her aunt's home in a neighboring town. The wealthy young man learns this, has them caught, and held at an insane asylum while he goes for the girl's father and a minister. But Neil finds an old friend at the asylum serving in the capacity of supervising physician and by the aid of this man turns the tables, and has father and the young man of wealth placed in a padded cell. Betty Compson and Neil Burns are the young people, Dave Morris the heavy, Harry Rattenberry the father, and Stella Adams the mother. Horace Davey is directing.

Dayton Scenario Editor for Christie

Producer Al. E. Christie has engaged James Dayton as scenario editor, and he began his work last week. Arrangements have been made by Mr. Christie for a number of well-known photo-playwrights to prepare original one-reel comedies for him. Among these are William E. Wing and L. V. Jefferson of Los Angeles, and S. E. Van Patton of Chicago.

Waiting on sets for a three-reeler did not cause loss of time to Vitagraph Director William Wolbert or his company last week, for as soon as he learned the technical department was behind with the order, he prepared a one-reel comedy scenario, and with the company staged it in the two days. The title of this is "A Race for Life." Jack Mower appears as the sentimental waitress of a three-cent hashery, who becomes smitten on Billy Weston following difficulties she had with the French chef, Otto Lederer. Billy Weston, the unfortunate youth, attempts to make his escape, but she follows him. The chase lasts for miles, and Weston then comes upon an international track meet. He reaches the startling line just at the moment they give the word "go." He out-distances them, and finally escapes from the man-struck female.

Managing Director Rollin S. Sturgeon and company producing "Through the Wall," are spending a week on a large yacht for scenes in this coming Vitagraph Blue Ribbon.

Director Dave Smith has been busy for several weeks preparing stories for a number of one-reel comedies of the type of "The Hoyden," "Her Loving Relations," and others which he recently produced. Mary Anderson and Webster Campbell will take the principal parts in these comedies, and production will take place about the first of June.

The Selig Producing Company, under the direction of T. H. Heffron, which is making the "Valiants of Virginia," starring Kathlyn Williams, worked in the San Fernando valley, north of Los Angeles, during the past week, in the making of scenes which used a great number of extra people. One of these was a fox hunt of the southern type, and several of the best kennels of the coast contributed dogs for it. Another very notable event filmed was a tournament similar in character to the gathering of knights and ladies of royalty in an early English period. Following the making of these big scenes, a masquerade ball with costumes of the Elizabethian period will be staged at the studio, where massive sets, specially prepared for these scenes, are ready.

At the Lone Star Studio, Charles Chaplin and company have begun the making of the third Mutual release, which as yet is unnamed. Practically the same cast used for "The Floorwalker" and "The Fireman," will appear in this. The great number of special settings and props required for Chaplin subjects, has made it necessary for a material enlargement of the technical shops. A new building which will house the woodworking department, is now being built. This is approximately 20 x 50, and is being fitted with all kinds of labor saving machinery.

A Scene from "The Bath Tub Peril," Keystone-Triangle

Misfortunes of a small time circus serve to give Napoleon and Sally the E. & R. chimpanzees, opportunity to show more of their human-like performances, in the one-reel comedy, "Fowl Play," now being made. Circus property is attached for bills by a constable, and the animal trainer sneaks the chimps out and starts to make a get-a-way. The three spend a night in a barn, and what Napoleon and Sally do to a flock of chickens while the trainer is asleep, adds more troubles to the number that confronts the manager. Finally Nap bites the chain on the handcuffs on the manager in two, and they all make a get-a-way. Walter Rodgers, Charles Carter, Eva McKinzie, and Director Joseph Franz play the principal parts. Stewart Fetherstonaugh has been added to the E. & R. staff as cameraman.

LUBIN CORONADO COMPANY AT WORK ON "THE ROUGH NECK"

Special to Motion Picture News.

San Diego, Cal., May 27.

Especially timely is the theme of the story involved in the three-reel picture upon which the Lubin Company at Coronado has been working the past week. The scenario is by James Douglass, and the title is "The Rough Neck." Melvin Mayo has been directing.

George Routh is seen as Larry Grady, the "rough neck," captain of the yacht Vergana, which has been given him on condition that he will get out and earn a living by its use. Bird W. Hopkins takes the part of John Calkins, a wealthy manufacturer of fire-arms, while Miss Evelyn Page appears as Mary Calkins, his daughter.

Wedgewood Nowell, a recent accession to the company, is cast as Robert Calkins, a son of John and an officer in the navy. C. K. Van Auker has the part of Luis Fernandez, head of the revolutionists of Santa Bana, and Adelaide Bronti appears in the character of Mercedes Alvirez, one of the women mixed up in the revolution.

The offices of the Lubin Compony were completely rearranged by Capt. Wilbert Melville during the week's vacation which he granted the members of his staff. One of the first things that greets the visitor upon entering the administration building is a large picture of "Pop" Lubin, which has been conspicuously hung. A private office has been constructed for the business manager, M. T. George.

Charlie Chaplin in "The Floorwalker," the first film completed by the new Chaplin organization, has been drawing packed houses at the Superba.

Adda Gleason of the Lubin Company is spending several weeks' vacation in Los Angeles.

Campaign for Better Pictures is Launched by Vitagraph

All Directors Will Work Under the Supervision of Commodore Blackton—Albert E. Smith Will Devote All His Time to the Business End of the Organization

COINCIDENT with the announcement of large financial consolidations effecting the motion picture industry and creating the Greater Vitagraph Company of America, reorganization and arrangements are just completed at the Brooklyn studios of the company for a campaign for better pictures.

In concurrence with this idea, all directors for the Vitagraph Company will hereafter be under the personal direction of Commodore J. Stuart Blackton. Formerly the Vitagraph directors were divided between Commodore J. Stuart Blackton and Albert E. Smith.

The entire technical direction of all the studios will be in charge of Charles Chapman, who is known in the profession as an artistic and capable technical director.

In order to accommodate the increase in the number of players who will hereafter be under the Vitagraph banner and the consequent increase in the number of Vitagraph productions, there will be hereafter a regular day and night shift of studio hands, which will necessitate the hiring of twenty men, in addition to those already employed, handling scenery and lights in the present studios. There will be an Anita Stewart picture released every six weeks.

The manuscript department will be under the complete supervision of Colonel Jasper Ewing Brady, and all manuscripts for use in Vitagraph scenarios will be chosen by Colonel Brady in consultation with the producers. In this way the capabilities of the players in the various companies can be best suited to the different scenarios as they are accepted and will help greatly towards the proper efficiency in casting.

Hereafter Albert E. Smith will devote his entire time to the direction of the financial and business interests of the Vitagraph Company of America.

With the division of the work as above outlined, together with the reorganization indicated, it is expected that the Vitagraph Company, with its already high-standard of productions, will be given full executive sway and there will be far better opportunities for selecting and casting plays as well as greater production.

AMONG THE EXCHANGES

DALLAS SCREEN CLUB PLANS ENTERTAINMENT

The film interests, under the name of the Dallas Screen Club, will likely give a picture and vaudeville show at the Majestic theatre on June 4, for the purpose of securing funds to complete the organization and secure a home for the Screen Club.

At a meeting of exchange men and exhibitors held on May 17, at 2:00 P. M., this was suggested, and another meeting was held the following week to complete arrangements for the show.

At the meeting was Max Graf, manager of the World; Ned E. Depinet, manager of the Consolidated; E. T. Peter, manager of the United; W. G. Underwood, manager of the Pathe; F. A. Logan, manager of the Paramount; E. H. Hulsey of the Hulsey theatres; W. M. Byrd, manager of the Fox; C. A. Clegg, manager of the Mutual, and P. S. Brinch, of the New York offices of the Triangle.

Committees were appointed to attend to the various matters, and it is rather certain the show will be given. It will include short film subjects of a strong nature and vaudeville acts.

Logan Succeeds Graf as Manager of World Film in Dallas; Lynch Takes Charge of Paramount

F. H. LOGAN succeeds Max Graf as manager of the World Film Corporation in Dallas on May 22. Mr. Logan is an old film man, having been in the Southwestern territory with one or two exchanges and having been in charge of one of the larger picture houses in Atlanta for about a year. It is not known just what connection Mr. Graf, the resigned manager, will make.

There is a persistent rumor that a new manager will be seen in the World exchanges in Atlanta and New Orleans within next week. The World office at Memphis has been closed.

P. S. Brinch, of the New York office of the Triangle, is visiting the Dallas office of that concern, installing a new system of accounting and going over methods with L. B. Remy, manager. Mr. Brinch is assistant to J. M. Naulty in the executive offices of the Triangle in New York.

Among the visitors in film row in Dallas recently were W. B. LaNicca of the Topic theatre, Sherman, Tex., C. W. A. McCormack of the Crescent, Austin, Tex., who was "just looking around" as he said; both Phillips from Fort Worth—"Daddy" Joe of the Odeon and "Brudder" E. H. of the Egypt; and another Fort Worthite was R. A. Healy of the Healy theatre.

R. W. Lynch, who is a brother of the president of the Southern Paramount Pictures Company, S. A. Lynch, took charge of the Dallas office of the Paramount on Monday, May 22, succeeding F. H. Logan, resigned. Mr. Lynch has been connected with the Lynch enterprises at Asheville, N. C., and is an old head in the picture business.

L. B. Remy, Dallas Triangle manager, last week spent a few days in Arkansas in the interests of his exchange. The Dallas office of the three-cornered company is taking on customers rapidly. Since April 12, up to May 12, a total of seventy-five contracts came in, according to "L. B."

Harry Drum, of the New York offices of the World Film Corporation was a visitor in Dallas last week.

HERSHBERG IS IN NEW YORK CONFERRING WITH IVAN FILM OFFICERS

William Hershberg, the president of the General Feature Film Company of Chicago, who are the exclusive distributors of Ivan Productions in Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, and Southern Wisconsin, is now in New York confering with the officers of the Ivan Film Productions relative to their future plans of production.

Mr. Hershberg expressed great satisfaction with the quality of Ivan Films in general and stated that the exhibitors in his territory have a great demand from their patrons for all Ivan subjects, particularly "Forbidden Fruit," which made a record as a box office attraction.

During his stay in New York Mr. Hershberg will make the Ivan office his headquarters.

THOMAS OF OMAHA NOW A BENEDICT

Manager M. H. Thomas of the Strand theatre, Omaha, knew Evelyn Foster was the best cashier in the land, but he thought she would be a better wife. They were married recently and now live at the St. Clair apartments, Omaha, where they are receiving their exhibitor friends.

The Bluebirds Are Flying High in Canada, So There Isn't a Peep Out of the Salesmen About Business

S. B. TAUBE, co-manager of the Montreal Universal office, has just returned from an extensive trip throughout the Province of Quebec, during which he notes the fact that there are two new theatres in the town of St. Hyacinthe, the Corona and the Bijou. Mr. Bauchard, operates the Corona, which has a seating capacity of over one thousand people. Mr. Bauchard is also owner of the Liberal paper, and is also a candidate of the Liberal party. Mr. Taube also states that there has been a change in the management of the Empire theatre, Granby, Que. P. E. Page is the manager, and H. O'Reagen the operator. Both these gentlemen are very progressive, and are doing exceptionally well. They are users of Universal service, including the serials. The Montreal exchange also received many visitors during the week, including Mr. Drapeau of Quebec, Mr. Tardiff of Shawnigan Falls, Mr. Wickham of St. Lambert, Mr. Hessey of Farnham.

Mr. Orkney, manager of the Bluebird Film Company, Montreal, announces that he has booked the Francais theatre of Quebec City with Bluebird films for the coming months.

Mr. Rosenfeld is the new manager appointed to the St. John, N. B., office of the Famous Players Company in Canada. Mr. Rosenfeld just took over his duties last week. I. Sosskins, the former manager has returned to Toronto.

The Toronto, Ont., office of the Universal Film Company in Canada, is in receipt of a big shipment of fresh sea lobsters from Mr. Margetts of the St. John branch. Mr. Margetts, on his recent trip to Toronto made the promise to send the sea beauties to the Universal staff and he certainly redeemed his word. The many friends of Messrs. Hague and Lennon were very much in evidence about the exchange, while the distribution was in order.

M. H. Hoffman, general manager of exchanges for the Universal Company, arrived in Toronto on Tuesday, May 16, from Montreal. Mr. Hoffman was met by Mr. Hague in Montreal, where a conference was held with the Montreal managers and then the two executives returned to Toronto, where Mr. Hoffman let it be known that something really big in the motion picture line would be doing in Toronto very shortly. After completing all arrangements with Mr. Hague, Mr. Hoffman left for Detroit.

ABRAMS VISITS OMAHA FOR MELIES

W. B. Abrams of New York was in Omaha last week on his annual visit, boosting the products of the Melies Manufacturing Company. Business is fine, he said.

Moran Will Manage Universal in Denver; Goldstein Is in Charge of Unicorn in the Mountain Capital

WM. P. MORAN, alias "Billy" Moran, has resigned as manager of the Mutual Exchange of Salt Lake to manage the Universal Exchange of Denver. Billy Moran was connected with the General Exchange of Denver for three years previous to his taking charge of the Mutual Exchange of Salt Lake. Having served as manager for four years of the latter, he now returns to his home town to manage the Big "U." Moran should make a valuable accession to the Universal staff.

E. H. Goldstein, assistant to M. H. Hoffman, general manager of exchanges for the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, has been in Denver for the past two weeks installing a new system in the Denver Exchange. His first move upon arriving in Denver was to make a general house cleaning of the Exchange. Two-thirds of the employees were asked to resign. Lawrence D. Purdy, manager of the United Exchange, has been appointed assistant manager of the Universal Exchange. Mr. Purdy is an efficiency man of the highest quality, having installed new systems in several of the larger film corporations.

Roscoe Moore, former manager of the United Exchange of Denver, was killed in the Goldhill Mine of Boulder County, Colorado, on Thursday of last week. During his time as manager of the United, Moore made many friends among the exhibitors of his territory, and his sudden death comes as a great shock to his many friends. Moore is survived by a widow. The body was shipped to Houston, Texas, his former home.

H. Bradley Fish, former roadman for the General Exchange of Denver, has assumed charge of the Royal Theatre of Denver.

W. B. Glasser, representative of the "Girl and the Game" for the Kansas City Mutual Exchange, was in Denver last week to attend the wedding of his sister. Glasser was formerly connected with the Mutual Exchange of Denver.

George Burton Green, formerly of the Orpheum circuit, has joined the Hoffman Film Company of Denver. Green is the former husband of Rose Stahl.

For the first time in the history of Denver politics the motion picture has played a very important part in the election of a candidate. On this occasion it was the election of a mayor for the city and county of Denver. R. W. Speer, one of the candidates, called upon the Hoffman Film Producing Company of Denver and placed an order to have a campaign picture made. The picture, namely "Greater Denver," was the feature of the campaign, owing to the fact that Robert W. Speer had previously served eight years as mayor of Denver, and had built practically all of Denver's municipal buildings. The picture showed all of the work done by Mr. Speer during his administration, and was shown at all of Denver's leading theatres.

M. H. Cohn, manager of the Notable Exchange of Denver, reports the Lasky-Paramount Production, "Alien Souls," featuring Sessue Hayakawa, the Japanese actor, broke all Sunday records for the Princess theatre of Denver. H. Barett McCormack, manager of the Princess theatre, was formerly connected with the Thomas Ince Studios as scenario editor, and has several big productions to his credit. Jack Scott, roadman for the Notable, has just returned from a very successful trip through Wyoming. Scott always "comes back" loaded down with new contracts.

Louis Goldstein has been placed in charge of the Unicorn Exchange of Denver. Goldstein was former manager of the Universal Exchange of Denver.

RELIABLE FEATURE FILM GETS RIGHTS TO "DEFENCE OR TRIBUTE?"

The Reliable Feature Film Company announces the opening of its new quarters in the Schiller Building, Chicago. It has secured "Defense or Tribute?" for Ilinois, Wisconsin and Indiana. I. Maynard Schwartz is general manager and Jack Schwartz general sales representative. C. Christopher is the Indiana representative; George Lindon, Illinois representative, and Jack Schwartz, Wisconsin representative.

They will be active in placing "Defence or Tribute?" with exhibitors.

Roth Made Manager of Mutual in Boston; Campbell Signs Strand, Portland, Me., for Fox Films

J. L. ROTH has been appointed manager of the Mutual's Boston office to succeed J. C. Butner, who resigned to enter a new field.

Mr. Roth has been a salesman in the Boston office for the past year. His promotion came as a result of a visit to Boston of Hunter Bennett, sales manager of the corporation.

Mr. Roth has been an exhibitor for several years, and prior to his connection with the Mutual was manager of the Park theatre, Boston.

W. H. Patten will continue as assistant manager. The sales staff consists of W. V. Hart, R. E. Riddick, F. G. Snodgrass and R. Pinkham. H. Hirsch is serial representative. R. F. Borroto is manager of the Bangor, Me., office, which is subsidiary to the Boston office.

Manager Campbell of the Fox exchange has signed the Strand, Portland, Me., for first run; Boothbay Harbor and Old Orchard Beach for three releases a week during the summer season. Manager Campbell has just purchased a Studebaker-six and plans to strike every stream in the state for trout. He, with Harry Vine of the World exchange got thirty-seven last Sunday at Newfound lake, Concord, N. H.

The Boston Film Club, a club with about 300 members organized somewhat along the lines of the various drama leagues of the country, has accepted the invitation of Manager George Balsdon to attend on June 8 a run of "Salvation Joan" at the V-L-S-E exchange. The evening will be spent there. This film club has recently declared in favor of free speech, free press and a free screen.

VAN HUSAN ASKS EXHIBITORS THEIR OPINIONS ON DEMAND FOR PICTURES

Noticing a story in Motion Picture News that features were doing a good business in the Middle West, in which a competing exchange manager was quoted, F. A. Van Husan, manager of the Laemmle Film Service, Universal exchange, at Omaha, sent out letters to his mailing list of exhibitors, asking their opinions.

Armed with the result, he desires to state in Motion Picture News the following:

"Exhibitors are not seeking five-reel features. They may have in the past, and they may be in some parts of the country now, but as a general statement it is false to say 90 per cent of the exhibitors are running them. I asked, too, if the mixed program was doing the business.

"The great majority of my answers say the house may be larger, but the net receipts from the box office—which are the deciding factors after all—do not equal the straight program.

"Neither is wildcatting, or subrenting, an evil of the Omaha territory, as that exchange manager said. The business throughout the Middle West is on too sound a footing for that. The average Middle West exhibitor is an honest, square, responsible business man and I'll bank on him until the sun quits shining.

"Exhibitors are more willing every day to pay in advance. I get paid in advance. If I don't, I send the film C. O. D. If it is not paid, then I merely cancel the contract, that's all.

"I will say, and I don't care how widely it becomes known, that as a class of upright, responsible, dependable exhibitors, those in the Omaha territory cannot be beaten."

NEWHALL, MANAGER OF GENERAL IN BANGOR, ME., DROWNED

George H. Newhall, manager for General Film Company, at Bangor, Me., was drowned there Wednesday, May 17. With a party of friends, all in canoes, Mr. Newhall and his companions started on a fishing trip. They had barely reached the middle of the stream on the way to fishing when Mr. Newhall's canoe capsized. He was a stout swimmer, and appeared for a few moments as if he would succeed in reaching one of the other canoes, that had started toward him, when they saw his plight, but he was seized with cramps and sank.

Mr. Newhall was a valuable employee of the General Film Company, having entered its employ in 1910 at the Boston office. He was transferred to Bangor in April, 1913, to assist in installing a new booking system. After this work was completed, he returned to Boston, where in May, 1914, he was placed in charge of the booking department and the handling of all reels. He was appointed and assumed the managership of the Bangor branch, December 15, 1915.

Philadelphia Exchanges Keep Abreast with the Large Volume of Business Elsewhere

SOL LESSER of the Masterpiece Film Attractions is expected to return shortly to the office at Philadelphia from the Coast.

Leon D. Netter, the Eastern representative, will continue to make No. 1325 Vine street, Philadelphia, his headquarters. Besides New Jersey and Pennsylvania rights to the "Spoilers" have been acquired in the additional states of Maryland, Delaware, District of Columbia, Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky and North Carolina. This twelve reeler is going to Atlantic City for an indefinite run in the near future. The Masterpiece company has acquired the L. and R. Feature Film Company of Washington, D. C.

Charles C. Loftus, formerly with the Tri-State Film Company, now roadman in Pennsylvania for Masterpieces, handling "Cabina," "The Spoilers" and "Neptune's Daughters," reports a big demand for all three pictures throughout the state.

Also housed at 1325 Vine street is the Supreme Feature Film Company which will handle "The Dumb Girl of Portici," "The Unwritten Law," and "Where Are My Children?" Harry F. Grelle is manager of the office.

Another firm which is occupying the same quarters is the Automatic Ticket Selling and Cash Register Company, whose main office is at 1737 Broadway, New York.

L. C. Manning, general sales manager, went on to open the Philadelphia office, which is under the managership of T. G. Flynn, formerly of St. Louis. New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, Virginia and District of Columbia are under Mr. Flynn, who is doing well in his new territory.

Treasurer Bethell of the Metro Exchange reports business rapidly picking up on Metro releases in general and the Sidney Drew comedies in particular twelve new contracts having been obtained last week on the latter.

Samuel Sagan, head bookkeeper of the Metro office, was married on May 21, to Jeanne Rosensweig, of Philadelphia. After a short honeymoon at Atlantic City, the happy benedict is again at his post.

Manager Dembow of the Fox Exchange reports especially good bookings on the latest Fox releases; particularly popular are "The Eternal Sapho" with Theda Bara, "Blazing Love," with Virginia Pearson; "Slander," with Bertha Kalisch, and "A Man of Sorrow," with William Farnum. No recent censorship troubles helps to keep up the "oh be joyful" atmosphere.

Business at the Famous Players Exchange is growing so rapidly, manager Oscar Bower has had to increase the office space of publicity Oscar Morgan.

The recent Paramount releases of Pauline Frederick in "The Moment Before," by Famous Players; "Maria Rosa," with Geraldine Farrar; and "Alien Souls," with Sessue Hayakawa by Lasky; "David Garrick," with Dustin Farnum and "Pasquale" with George Beban, Pallas Pictures, and Oliver Morosco, respectively, have all been very popular with Philadelphia audiences, crowded houses being the order at the Stanley where Paramount has its first showing there.

Oscar Morgan, in addition to his work for Paramount Pictures has become special publicity representative for the Palace theatre, one of Stanley Mastbaum's best houses.

There is such a big demand for the "Mysteries of Myra" in his territory that Manager Earle Sweigert had to secure an additional print of this release of the International Film Service, Inc. "The Krazy Kat" series by Herriman and the Tom Powers cartoons in the territory which comprises Eastern Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey and Delaware.

The silver loving cup sent Mr. Sweigert by the home office is certainly a beauty and is appreciated by its recipient.

Chaplin releases continue to thrive and prosper at the Mutual office. While "The Floorwalker" required twelve prints, the second release, 'The Fireman" already has eighteen as its score, but as repeats are already coming in on "The Floorwalker" after the first week of its existence, things are evened up a bit.

"The Fireman" will have its first release on June 12 at eighteen theatres in Manager Pope's territory.

Chaplins are not having all the glory, however, in Philadelphia. The recent Mutual Masterpiece de Luxe, "The Isle of Love," with Gertrude McCoy, scored a big hit. It was shown first at the Locust Theatre at Locust and Fifty-second streets. It is now booked solid for several weeks.

C. V. Carrick, district manager of the Interstate Films Company, which includes Universal, Bluebird and Red Feather releases in its scope has returned to Philadelphia from a visit to the southern branches, making several days stop at the Washington and Baltimore exchanges.

Harry Scott, Kleine manager, reports a phenomenal success for Billie Burke in "Gloria's Romance." All exhibitors booking the series are much pleased with results. The Strand, a prominent Baltimore theatre, played to record breaking houses on the first night in spite of a terrific downpour.

The Eastern Booking Company finds its weekly releases of the Author's Film Company catching on rapidly in its territory, the seventh picture gaining over previous ones. The booking for exhibitors recently started by this company is also progressing satisfactorily for Marcus and Newman, the proprietors.

WATHNE GETS HEARST LOVING CUP

The International Film Service, under the management of F. B. Wathne, is making itself felt in the Washington, D. C., territory with the "Mysteries of Myra." Already this series has become popular in the South. Mr. Wathne has considerably increased his force, having now associated with him Earl E. Reese, Charles Manning, Guy E. Brandt, Frank R. Hunter, and Frank H. Christoph. Mr. Wathne is the possessor of one of the loving cups presented by William R. Hearst, to managers of the International Film Service for exceptional progress at their posts.

FRANK REDFIELD, OF CHICAGO V-L-S-E OFFICE, IS MADE ASSISTANT MANAGER

S. E. Abel, Chicago manager of the V-L-S-E Inc., announces that in line with that company's policy of promotion from the ranks, he has chosen Frank Redfield, booker of the Chicago office, as his assistant manager.

A. B. Philbin will succeed Mr. Redfield as booker.

Two new salesmen have also been taken on at the Chicago office. They are George Berg, who will travel in Wisconsin, and C. F. Troupe, who will cover southeastern Illinois.

Jess Levine, formerly of the New York branch of the World Film Corporation, is now with V-L-S-E Inc., having been engaged by the New York office to succeed W. P. Allen. Mr. Allen has been transferred to the Syracuse branch of the V-L-S-E.

J. S. Hebrew, manager of the Philadelphia office of the V-L-S-E, announces the appointment of Nat Glasser as salesman for the Washington office, and Ernest A. Bezouska as salesman for Philadelphia. Mr. Bezouska has been connected for a short time with the New York exchange while Mr. Glasser was manager of the Leader theatre, Washington, D. C.

BERGER VISITS ST. LOUIS BRANCH OF INTERNATIONAL

E. W. Dustin, manager of the International Film Exchange, 3313 Olive street, St. Louis, received a call from General manager of Exchanges Berger on May 20. Mr. Berger found trade prosperous, and much promise for increased future bookings of his films in the St. Louis territory.

S. J. Baker, manager of the St. Louis office of the Bluebird Photoplays, Inc., entertained Ambrose Abrams, special representative of the corporation during the week of May 15. Mr. Abrams was pleased to hear of the business done in the St. Louis office, which resulted in winning the prize for the largest proportionate amount of bookings made during the month of April.

Tom Leonard, former exhibitor of motion pictures, and experienced in the distributing of films since the industory was young, is now with the St. Louis branch of the Universal, at 2116 Locust street, in the capacity of traveling salesman. Mr. Leonard is well acquainted with the trade in the surrounding towns and will not have much trouble in placing contracts for his firm.

BROWN LEAVES METRO IN CAPITAL CITY

J. Frank Brown has finally severed his connection with the Metro Film Service of Washington, D. C. For the present he is in that territory placing several of the big state-right productions. Mr. Brown knows the film business so well and is such an excellent salesman that he makes a success in everything he attempts. He is doing good business with productions where others have failed in the past.

Film News From Foreign Parts

French Public Wants More Good American Pictures

Special to Motion Picture News.

Paris, May 15.

SINCE my last letter many good American films have been shown in Paris. Metro called "La Puissance de l'Amour" was exhibited by Mr. Aubert at the general showrooms and but for its length, this first picture met with general approval. Williamson's Submarine pictures have had a four-weeks' run at the Vaudeville theatre.

Charlot (Charlie Chaplin) films are still in great demand. Mr. Haick, the French representative of the Western Import Company, has secured a few old films with Charlot, which have not been shown in France, and he succeeded in selling them five francs the meter, a price that has never before been paid for any film.

"The Avenging Conscience," of the Western Import has been shown for the first time here and did not obtain the success expected. The French public is not disposed just now to see such dramas.

"The Mysteries of New York" are shown for the last time this week. This serial would have been a success with the general public, had it finished as originally stated, after the twelfth series, but as the firm decided to run it for twelve more weeks, it lost its interest and the public got tired of it. In the French provinces it has been prohibited by the authorities and we may soon expect the same measures to be taken in Paris against all police, detective and burglar films. Another American film which pleased our audiences immensely was "La Jolie fille des Bois." This is the sort of films that always goes well in France. One of Pathé's Coq d'Or called "Les Compagnons du Grand Clam" was only shown once and taken off. Films going well at present over here, are the animated cartoons.

We have also had a few very good Italian and French films. The first worth special mention is "Jules César," by the well-known firm Cinés of Rome. This film was shown for the first time this week at the Vaudeville and obtained a very big success. It is sure to remain on the program of this establishment for a good many months. Another good picture presented this week is "Le Cirque de la Mort," by an Italian firm.

"Marcel," after the well-known romance by Victorien Sardou, is a beautiful drama and well played by Melle Hesperia.

Pictures from Italian Front

Gaumont has given us for the Easter holidays a special film, "L'Angélus de la Victorie," which deserves great praise. It is one of the special pictures we have been used to see bearing the mark of this firm. For the first time since the beginning of the war the first pictures from the Italian front are exhibited in Paris, and are drawing large audiences to all the kinemas.

If there be any in France still inclined to ask," "What are the English doing?" they will find adequate answer in the splendid series of naval and military kinematograph films to be shown in Paris and all over the country under the title, "England Is Ready." A private view of these pictures, which were taken by the special authorization of the British Admiralty, the War Office, and the Ministry of Munitions, was given at Gaumont Palace, Paris, under the patronage of the British Ambassador.

M. Poincaré was represented by Colonel de Rieux. Admiral Lascaze, Minister of Marine; M. Albert Metin, Minister of Labor; M. Malvy Minister of the Interior, were among the audience, and nearly all the other French Ministers were represented. Sir Henry Austin Lee and M. Joas Chagas, Portuguese Minister, were also present.

The distinguished audience was evidently much impressed by the pictures, which showed thousands of strapping young Britons flocking to the recruiting stations, drilling, marching and exercising with the bayonet. The trench scenes and the films showing motor machine-guns at work provoked hearty applause, and a couple of officers who were just back from the front expressed their astonishment that the conditions in England under which recruits are being prepared for war should so closely resemble the real thing.

The large part that is being taken in munition work by English girls and women was favorably commented on, and the interminable stacks of shells in the workshops produced an excellent impression. But it was the naval pictures which elicited the heartiest cheering. There is something about the British tar which compels immediate sympathy and when the smiling face of a bearded handy man with H. M. S. Queen Elizabeth on his cap appeared on the screen framed in a lifebelt, the whole house welcomed him with shouts of acclamation.

The films shown yesterday give realistic evidence of Britain's might on the sea and the stately procession of dreadnoughts, cruisers, destroyers, submarines and minesweepers of the finest fleet in the world, was not easily to be forgotten.

Want Good American Pictures

Now or Never! This is the time for American producers to send us some good films. Since the duty on films imported to England has been decreased business with France has suffered already, but since the new restrictions that no films may be exported from Great Britain without a special licence to be obtained by the government, nearly no business can be done at all.

To obtain such a licence it takes, I am told two months or more. It is easily understood that under such circumstances no business is done with Great Britain.

It is generally admitted by all who have seen Vitagraph's: "L'Invasion des Etats Unis," that this is the finest and best picture exhibited over here, and such films are sure to do a great deal of good for American producers.

The Trans-Atlantic Film Company is releasing another Universal serial picture, "The Red Yris." We are promised to see something we have never seen before.

It will have to be very good indeed to go with the audiences who are tired of serial pictures.

A most extraordinary case happened in Paris last week. Two French films released by Pathé have been submitted to the censor before they were shown, and obtained the necessary certificate to be exhibited publicly.

Last Friday they were shown at many kinemas and made quite a success. Saturday at one of the theatres some of the audience whistled. A policeman present made his report, which led to an immediate prohibition of the two films being shown in any part of France.

A well-known French firm is working at a film which will certainly be much appreciated by all lovers of good films. It is going to be a "Revue" in which most of our best known artists are acting.

ANITA STEWART TO WRITE FOR 300 NEWSPAPERS

After holding aloof from the writing game in spite of numerous offers to feature her as an author, Anita Stewart of Vitagraph has yielded, and in a short time articles from her pen will be issued regularly all over the country. The engaging of her has fallen to V. V. McNitt, who is syndicating W. J. Bryan, Irvin Cobb and Samuel Q. Blythe, and the distribution will be through Central Press, of New York and Cleveland. Central Press has a list of over three hundred daily newspapers.

Miss Stewart's work will be a daily contribution of about 500 words on subjects of interest to girls and young women. She writes in a simple, lucid and sympathetic way that has gained her much praise from those who have read her efforts. She will avoid the flowery and high flown, and favor the human.

JUST TO MAKE TALK

By LONGACRE

THE directors's life has thrills all its own. At 10:18 on the morning of Tuesday last, as George Irving was sitting at his desk, reading MOTION PICTURE NEWS, the door opened, and an attractive girl walked in and up to the desk. She asked for work, gave her qualifications and experience. Mr. Irving regretted that there was nothing for her at the moment. "Oh, very well," she replied, and started out, gaily. How gaily may be judged from the fact that she turned two handsprings on the way to the door. Then she took her exit amid general excitement.

Please take note that poetry reprinted in this department is reporduced without apology or analysis. Hence:

An Pome.

Dedicated to Longacre

You have written in your pages
'Bout the EPISOSODES—so
We take our humble pen in hand
That our brilliance we may show.

On page two nine six seven
In your issue of this week
Occurs a little tragedy,
The one of which we speak.

By carefully perusing
You will find—this breaks our hearts—
Alas! alack! alack again,
Miss Grant is in five parts.

This surely is a tragedy,
With us you will agree;
Go home and look it o'er again—
What we mean you will see.

This contribution was received in a plain sealed envelope, postmarked Los Angeles. If nothing more, it shows the extent of our field.

We quote from the Fox publicity: "Grape fruit was introduced to people in the United States by the late Mrs. Frank Leslie. She first ate it while visiting Florida, and when she returned to New York had several crates shipped to her, which she distributed among her friends." How travel broadens one. When we get tired of the United States and its people, we may visit Florida also.

We are always forgetting something. We should have explained that the young woman mentioned in the third paragraph above is a Miss Hillyer, aged four.

Business is looking up. Lots of people have been getting good jobs the last week. Irene Howley has gone back to Metro, and Clifford Bruce has signed up with Fox.

Harry Raver is spending his time at Rockville Center, L. I., getting the new Planet Studios ready for biz. The property acquired by the Planet concern includes two fine summer residences, and Mr. Raver will occupy one of these for the season.

D. W. Griffith, it appears, is going into the fight game. Old Ephraim Q. Rumor tells us he is trying to sign up Jess Willard and Fred Fulton for a bout. Incidentally a few cameramen will be on hand.

Edward K. Lincoln asks us to deny that he is permanently connected with World Film. He says his contract called for only one picture, and that is finished.

Edwin August, according to the Art Les publicity for his presidential candidacy, is a "four-square man." Which reminds us that it is time for a declaration of principles; we are for the Four-Square Man, the One Man Top, the Top of the Morning, and the Morning After.

If Alice Brady will call at this office within the next six days, and present proper credentials, she will be awarded the Bayside trophy for the best original line of the season. Alice was industriously pumping the player-piano out at Bayside, the other Sunday, when one of her admirers (Oh, there are several) remarked: "That's great, Alice; you seem to put your whole soul into it." "Yes," she replied, "both soles."

Kate Mowbray, aunt of Charles Chaplin, and, next to his mother, most directly responsible for his rise to fame and fortune, is dead at her home in London, England.

Word of Miss Mowbray's death reached the comedian at the Chaplin Mutual studios in Los Angeles a few days ago. Chaplin was visibly affected and made no pretense at hiding his grief. The news was quite unexpected.

Less than a fortnight before announcement of her sudden death reached him, the Mutual comedian had received a long letter from his aunt, in which she congratulated him on his alignment with the Mutual and wishing him success with his new venture in the production of comedies for release through the Mutual.

EDITORIAL

What we object to is motion picture theatres not advertising enough, or sufficiently, as the case may be. Why don't they put up posters at the depot, or around town instead of just in front of their theatre, so those who pass by can tell what a fine little theatre our village boasts? Many never know anything about it unless they walk past. The BUGLE is unqualified in favor of advertising.

A Pleasant Affair

One of those occurrences which happen all too seldom, but which throw a mantle of joy over our pleasant community, occurred last Thurs. a. m., when Mr. "Bill" Barry, now our esteemed Baysideite, and Miss Nan Jacobus, of formerly Montclair, were united in the bonds of matrimony at a New York city church, a minister of the gospel whose name we did not learn, officiating.

The ceremony which was to unite the happy and fortunate couple began at eleven o'clock, when the solemn strains of the wedding march by Mr. Bartholdy Mendelson, commenced at the Hotel Astor and conducted the pair so soon to plight their troth, to the church at Fifteenth street, where amid a floral bower the impressive ceremony was performed.

Immediately afterward the groom, who was attired in the conventional black, presented the bride with a fine 1912 model Hupmobile, costing $50. Frank Powell, and his wife, Mrs. Frank Powell, who escorted the happy couple, then went with them to their new home, just purchased in Bayside.

The groom is well and favorably known to our citizens, as he used to work for Nick power, but is now in the printing bus. in N. York. Bayside, and especially the BUGLE gladly extends the right ☞ of fellowship and welcome to him and his bride.

ACTORS' FUND BALL IN SAN FRANCISCO IS NOT AS SUCCESSFUL AS EXPECTED

Special to Motion Picture News.

San Francisco, May 27.

The ball for the benefit of the Actors' Fund, given under the auspices of the motion picture trade of this city, was held in the Exposition Auditorium on the evening of May 13. The event was well advertised and every effort was made to secure a large attendance, but the result was not up to the expectations of those who labored so hard to make it a financial success. Many tickets were placed in the hands of exhibitors for sale to patrons of moving picture houses and returns from these have come in so slowly at the headquarters in the Pacific Building that an accurate statement of admissions and receipts will not be available for some time.

The ball was a very well conducted event and there was ample entertainment to please all. Mayor Rolph, who was chairman of the executive committee, was unable to be present, but was represented by Suprvisor Nelson, who led the grand march with Anita King. Among the other film stars present were Hobart Bosworth and Sessue Hayakawa. The latter appeared in person of late at the Imperial theatre. Many of those in costume impersonated film favorites and some of these made splendid imitations while all attracted general interest.

The finance committee which handled the event consisted of Herman Wobber, chairman; Mark M. Leichter, Irving Ackerman and Louis R. Levy. A large part of the work was done by Mr. Leichter, who devoted most of his time to arranging plans for the event for a period of several weeks before the ball.

PREPARATIONS FOR MEET OF LEAGUERS IN CHICAGO MAKE PROGRESS

Special to Motion Picture News.

Chicago, May 20.

"Preparedness" is the motto of the committees now planning the Sixth National Convention and Exposition of the Motion Picture Exhibitors League of America. Additional office space has been rented in the Masonic Temple Building to take care of the members who are meeting daily to make plans for the big event which will be staged at the Coliseum.

Designs for posters and other printed matter have been submitted by lithographing concerns. Judging from the work already accomplished by the energetic local committees, much of the preliminary details will be settled long before the big show opens.

Two thousand slides of attractive design are being sent to as many theatres throughout the country for advance publicity purposes. The committee consisting of William J. Sweeney, Louis H. Frank, Fred W. Hartmann and Fred Schaefer, which has been visiting the two New York shows, reports that great interest is being evinced in the East in the Windy City Convention. Many valuable contracts for space were negotiated by these men during their New York visit.

Pictures of Modish Gowns by Fashion Expert for Pathe

Vice-President Berst Engages Florence Rose, Formerly Editor of L'Art de la Mode, for Special Reel of Stunning Raiment—Dailies Signed to Run Articles

J. A. BERST, vice-president and general manager of Pathe, has inaugurated a new series of pictures for the Pathe program. Miss Florence Rose, the fashion expert, former editor of L'Art de la Mode, has been secured to put out a special reel of fashions twice a month, and a noteworthy list of prominent newspapers has been signed to run a fashion article six days a week. These articles are to be written by Mrs. Radnor-Lewis, former managing editor of Harper's Bazaar, and are based upon the costumes shown in the films.

Among the papers so far signed for this service are the Chicago Daily News, St. Paul Daily News, Omaha Daily News, Minneapolis Daily News, Cleveland Daily News, Buffalo Enquirer, Louisville Times, Baltimore American, Pittsburgh Dispatch, New York Tribune, Boston Traveller, Syracuse Post Standard and Utica Observer.

Florence Rose

Miss Rose has had an interesting career. She came from Cleveland, Ohio, to New York some six or seven years ago. Brought up in affluence there had come a time when it was necessary for her to earn her own living, and in what way she did not know. She had not been trained for a career and her education had not been of a sort to fit her to cope with the world. She looked for a forty-dollar-a-week position, but after tramping the soles off her shoes looking for one she was ready to take a job at eight dollars per week, and she did. She worked with a manufacturing modiste from 8 a. m. to 6:30 p. m. A few months of this so wore upon her strength that she had to go to a hospital. Her next attempt to get along was on the stage. She toured with a barn-storming company until it went on the rocks. When she got back to New York a theatrical manager told her the stage was not her forte, and she took to drawing fashions.

The new venture proved successful. She studied nights to improve her technique and her drawings sold. Before long she was taken by the New York Evening Mail as fashion writer and later by the Globe. The reputation she acquired on these papers was responsible for her being offered the editorship of L'Art de la Mode.

The Florence Rose newspapers service consists of a drawing by Winifred I. Messer, a clever fashion artist, and an article on the practical current fashions. The costumes shown, complete from head to foot, reflect the accepted styles as worn by New York's best dressed women.

Mr. Berst in speaking of the new service says:

"The strength of the proposition from the newspaper standpoint lies in the fact that it offers a way by which double cooperation will be obtained from both exhibitor and retailer without having a word of advertising on the films. The retailer will be anxious to let his public know that he is carrying the costumes shown in the Pathe pictures, thus tying up his advertising with the fashions article. The exhibitor will be able to secure added attendance from women and girls, who are universally interested in new styles. The pictures will be so attractive that men will be interested in them also. All the exhibitors with whom we have spoken have expressed themselves unqualifiedly in favor of the proposition. We confidently expect that Pathe's Florence Rose Fashions pictures will be a big success for all concerned."

NORMA TALMADGE COMES EAST

Norma Talmadge, the Triangle star whose work in "Going Straight," the Triangle-Fine Arts drama just released, added new honors to those she had already won, arrived in New York last Thursday from the Pacific Coast. Accompanying her was John Emerson, the well known Triangle-Fine Arts director whose most recent work was the staging and adoption of "Macbeth" in which Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree and Constance Collier are seen.

The director and the film star will begin work immediately at the Triangle studio at Riverdale on a new film feature in which Miss Talmadge is to be starred. That the Triangle Corporation had acquired the old Reliance studio at Riverdale comes as news to many in the motion picture world and the feature which has brought the star and director from the Pacific Coast will be the first to be made for the Triangle there.

COBB MAKES RENE PRIEUR REPRESENTATIVE FOR RAY FILMS

C. Lang Cobb, Jr., manager of sales and publicity of the Reserve Photoplays Company, has appointed Rene Prieur, of London and Paris, European and Australian representative for the Ray comedies. A three-year contract was signed after Mr. Prieur had seen the initial presentation of the Ray comedies at the Broadway theatre, New York.

Mr. Prieur was European representative for Mr. Cobb, when the latter was general manager of Ramo features.

Supreme Court in New York Denies Application of Chaplin for Injunction to Restrain Essanay's "Carmen" Burlesque

JUSTICE HOTCHKISS of the Supreme Court, State of New York, has denied the application of Charlie Chaplin for an injunction to restrain the V-L-S-E and the Essanay Company from distributing the four-reel Essanay-Chaplin comedy, "Charlie Chaplin's Burlesque on Carmen." In the opinion denying Chaplin's motion for injunction, which was argued originally on May 12, Justice Hotchkiss said: "Notwithstanding the earnest argument of counsel for the plaintiff, I think this motion should be denied principally for the following reasons:

"First, plaintiff's right under paragraph three of the contract of December, 1914 (assuming such contract to have remained in force unaltered), to enjoin the production because he had not approved of the play is doubtful.

"Second, the play itself is undoubtedly the property of the Essanay Film Manufacturing Company, by which company plaintiff was employed, and the circumstances of plaintiff's services in connection with the creation of the play distinguishes the case from those cases which have applied the principle of an author's exclusive right of literary property.

"Third, the facts do not justify a claim that the association of plaintiff's name with the play, as produced, amounts to a fraud upon the public. A fair construction of the advertisements of the play, is not that plaintiff is the author or producer, but that he is the star or principal actor.

"Fourth, it is not claimed that so far as he is pictured in the play his part is garbled or distorted. Whatever of him is shown is a truthful representation. Whether plaintiff's contract rights reserved to him rather than to his employer the sole privilege of determining what of his pictures shall be incorporated into the play produced, is at least doubtful.

"Fifth, whether plaintiff will suffer any damage from the production is problematical, while an injunction is certain to work loss for defendants."

As a result of the suit brought by William M. Seabury, attorney for the Essanay Company in Los Angeles, on May 18, Chaplin will now have to answer to an action to recover $500,000 damages brought by the Essanay Company.

In the complaint, the Essanay Company charges breach of contract, alleging that Chaplin failed to appear in, and assist with the production of four comedies called for in his contract.

According to the wording of the suit, Chaplin agreed in July, 1915, to aid in the production of ten two-reel comedies before January 1, 1916, for each of which he was to receive a bonus of $10,000 over and above his salary of $1,250 a week. One of this number was already completed at that time, but nevertheless, the comedian received his $10,000 bonus upon it.

It was estimated that these two-reelers could be produced at the rate of one every three weeks, which time limit, according to the Essanay Company, was set by Chaplin himself. However, Chaplin completed only five two-reel pictures, on each of which his bonus was paid. The remaining four Chaplin failed to appear in, it is alleged, although the Essanay Company was prepared and still is ready to proceed with the making of these pictures.

In order that legal activity could not be centered formally on his opponents' side, Mr. Chaplin later in the week, through his attorneys, filed an amended complaint in which he sought damages from the Essanay and the V-L-S-E to the extent of $100,000. William M. Seabury, representing the Essanay and V-L-S-E companies, in commenting upon the action of the comedian, said: "In view of the fact that Mr. Chaplin did not ask for any damages in his original complaint, it would seem that this action was simply a clever manouver to turn defeat into victory.

"The possibility of such a counter-play being successful, however, is decidedly remote, especially in view of the opinion of Justice Hotchkiss, who declares that the question of whether Chaplin has suffered any damages is problematical."

FIRST READING GIVEN PROPOSED SUNDAY OPENING LAW

The Danville, Ill., Council has given first reading to a proposed ordinance providing for Sunday shows in that city. The ordinance says that the "shows must not be immoral, nor disturb the peace of the community." It appears that there will be a bitter opposition to the proposed measure, as Alderman Martin, of the Sixth Ward, voiced exception to the plan to allow the Lyric theatre to give a Sunday show for charity. Martin says that the show, if given, would be a violation of the Illinois law against Sunday shows, and he demanded an itemized statement, showing how much of the proceeds go to charity and to the management of the theatre.

OKLAHOMA TOWN VOTES FOR SUNDAY CLOSING TO MAKE PEOPLE APPRECIATE SABBATH OPENING

On May 2 the city council of Vinita, Okla., passed an ordinance prohibiting Sunday shows. The ordinance became effective at once, passing the council by a five to one vote.

The people of Vinita have always been divided on the Sunday amusement question, and at an election held a little over a year ago, the people voted in favor of Sunday amusements, a large majority being polled in its favor.

Upon orders from the mayor and city council, the shows were opened; and then the Ministerial Alliance got busy. Through their efforts, one house was induced to stay closed on the Sabbath; and likewise through their efforts, a suit was brought against the Grand theatre, operated by the Yale Theatre Company at Muskogee. The suit was won by the theatre, and was appealed to the Supreme Court of the state, where it is now pending. The League in Oklahoma has employed attorneys to look after its interests.

Some of the Vinita people say that the closing ordinance was passed to make Sunday observance unpopular, and that within a short time, the lid will be on tight, affecting drug stores and cigar stands. It is highly probable that Vinita will soon be "open" again on Sundays before many weeks have passed.

MUNICIPALITIES IN CANADA MUST GRANT THEATRE LICENSES

By the new Canadian Theatre and Cinematographs Act, copies of which were sent recently to chiefs of police and the owners of places of amusement, municipalities must grant operating licenses for moving picture theatre building, for which provincial licenses have been granted. Such an enactment, had it been in force at the time, would have had a direct bearing on the Gem theatre case, which caused much discussion recently.

By the new regulation the erection of such buildings shall be under the direction of the municipality. The provincial license will be granted on the certificate of the municipality that the structure complies with municipal requirements. Then the municipality cannot refuse to grant an operating license.

The installation of the electric wiring is put under the supervision of the hydro electric commission, and the fire-fighting apparatus under the chief of the fire department of the municipality, according to the provisions of the Act.

"EVIL THEREOF" FROM PARAMOUNT ON JUNE 5

"The Evil Thereof," written by Channing Pollock and Rennold Wolf, and featuring Frank Losee, is the Famous Players release on the Paramount Program for June 5. Mr. Losee, remembered especially for his work in the Famous Players version of "The Old Homestead," is supported by Grace Valentine, Crauford Kent, and others.

The picture, which was directed by Robert G. Vignola, opens with a gay party presided over by a wealthy broker (Mr. Losee). As favors, the ladies each receive hundred dollar bills. The history of these bills is traced, and enacted on the screen.

PALMER RESIGNS FROM KEYSTONE PUBLICITY

Special to Motion Picture News.

Los Angeles, May 27.

Frederick Palmer, who has been in charge of the publicity department at the Keystone studio, and for the past eight months has served as assistant to Production Manager Hampton Del Ruth, has resigned from this position and has gone to San Francisco for a short vacation. Mr. Palmer is very widely known on the coast, having edited and published The Rounder, a theatrical magazine, for a number of years.

"East Lynne," Stage Favorite Since '63, for Theda Bara

Fox Is Making a Picture of Mrs. Wood's Emotional Story Whose First Dramatic Version Appeared at Old Niblo's Garden

"EAST LYNNE," by Mrs. Henry Wood, played on the American stage since 1863, has renewed its lease on life. William Fox is making a moving picture out of the story with Theda Bara as star.

The first performance of the celebrated melodrama in New York was at old Niblo's Garden in 1863. Matilda Heron played the heroine, and John McCullough and James G. Warde were in the cast. The result was instant success.

Meanwhile, Clara Morris had fallen in love with the story. A French version, made by Adolphe Belot, author of "Article 47," was translated into English for her, and became a permanent vehicle for the display of her talents. In 1864, Lucile Western acted in another version at Niblo's Garden, and in 1872, it was seen at the old Bowery theatre.

Almost a score of stage versions have been made from the novel in both England and America. In McKee Rankin's adaptation of 1898, Nance O'Neill, a former Fox star, and Wilton Lackaye appeared. At other times, Marie Wainwright, Minnie Maddern Fiske, Rose Stahl and Ada Gray have taken the part of the fair Isobel.

Of course there have been law suits. Pilfered versions have been frequent, and the law reports show a great many references to the famous drama.

The novel itself has been given out by five publishers in England and by thirteen in the United States. It has been translated into every European language and is known the world over.

Signal Plant Will Not Be Idle in Absence of McGowan

While He Is in Honolulu with His Company a Big Street Set Is Being Prepared at the Studio for "Judith of the Cumberlands"

Special to Motion Picture News.

Los Angeles, May 27.

WITH the directors and players absent from the studio, it would seem the Signal plant would take on an appearance of inactivity, but such is not the case, as Director McGowan made sufficient plans before departing for Honolulu Monday of last week, to keep all workers busy until he returns with the acting stock company and exteriors for many of the scenes of the Kimberly Mines story, "The Diamond Runners." A big street set is being prepared for "Judith of the Cumberlands," and on another part of the grounds a typical southern court house is being erected for this film. Plans indicate that the Helen Holmes Company will make this immediately upon their return. The producing plant is being overhauled generally. Laboratory Superintendent Orrin Denny is having the theatre enlarged, additional seats added, new exterior decorations of leatherette installed, and a number of cutting room labor saving devices are being introduced.

Another important change is the installation of ten fire plugs, and a complete rearrangement of the water supply system. Additional ground recently acquired by the company, makes it possible for the building of a new driveway.

Wireless advice from Director McGowan, now at sea, states the company is securing unexpected success in the making of sea pictures.

Paramount Aid for Women's Hope of Children's Matinees

Company Recommends to Exhibitors Pictures Suitable for Entertainment of Those Very Important Members of the Community, "The Men and Women of Tomorrow"

IN co-operation with the Federation of Women's Clubs, the Paramount Pictures Corporation is encouraging children's matinees. It is recommending to exhibitors pictures selected from the Paramount Program as suitable for these entertainments.

Besides its features, such as the Mary Pickford and Marguerite Clark subjects, Paramount believes the Burton Holmes Travel-pictures, the Paramount-Bray Animated Cartoons, and the Pictographs are especially adapted to the children's matinee.

In support of its belief that the children's matinee is gaining ground throughout the country, Paramount quotes a letter from Manager Depkin, of the Parkway theatre, Baltimore:

"We have been conducting special children's performances for about a year and they have proven to be a great success both from a financial standpoint and as an advertising medium. I receive almost every week a request from some exhibitor regarding children's programs and methods of showing them."

THREE WASHINGTON THEATRES RUN "THE FLOORWALKER"

Three of Washington's largest theatres ran Charlie Chaplin in "The Floorwalker" as a first run on the first day of release, and to each house it proved a capacity drawing card.

This was done to demonstrate if it would be possible to use extraordinary films in this manner with a view of reducing the rental price. The theatres showing this film were the Casino, Moore's Garden and Loew's Columbia.

Trade and Daily Press Guests of Ince at Bayside Studio

Many Members of Foreign Papers Who Had Never Seen the Inside of a Motion Picture Plant Among the Visitors to the Vitagraph Buildings

THE trade and daily press of New York City were the guests of Ralph Ince at the Vitagraph Bayside, L. I. studios on Thursday, May 25. In addition to the representatives of the American periodicals, there were several members of the staffs of foreign papers on hand, many of whom had never seen the inside of a motion picture studio before.

The party left the World Building, Park Row, New York City, at approximately 11:15 in the morning. Two large motor busses were pressed into service to carry the party forty-five miles out to Bayshore. One of the conveyances stopped and died when the studio was still some fifteen miles distant, but plenty of room was found in the other car. After a ride of four and a half hours, the members of the Fourth Estate drew up at the door of the studio and were welcomed by Mr. Ince, Lucille Lee Stewart and other members of the Bayshore plant.

Lunch was served in the studio and afterwards the latest picture "The Destroyers," produced by Mr. Ince, was shown. The leading roles were taken by Lucille Lee Stewart, Mr. Ince's new leading lady, and Huntley Gordon. The party was then shown over the studio by Mr. Ince.

Those who received the visitors with Mr. Ince and Miss Stewart were Huntley Gordon, leading man, Frank Currier, director, William Dangman, comedian, John Robertson, director, Dorothy Long, Josephine Lovett, Shirley Moore, Jessie Miller, ingenues; William Lytell Jr., juvenile lead; James Dent, studio manager; Edward J. Montagne, scenario editor; Ralph Whiting, comedian, Grace Blakely, heavy leads; Jules C. Cronjager, cameraman, and Al Herman, George O'Donnell, Frank Tyrrell, George Arthur, E. Decker, George S. Miller, Frank Romaine, Paul Voels, Edward Brown and others.

The members of the Fourth Estate present were J. A. Harpet, George H. Fickardt, A. F. Sasseen, Fred F. Schrader, Jr., Mort M. Burger, George P. Johansen, Harold Vaage, Stephen Nolson Lingard, Ivan Opffor, Randolph C. Lewis, Lynde Denig, Adam Hull Shirk, Charles R. Condon, Randall M. Irene Howley, who appeared in "A Yellow Streak" with Lionel Barrymore, has been engaged to play opposite Ralph Herz in "The Purple Lady," the picturization of Sydney Rosenfeld's stage success which Rolfe Photoplays, Inc., is producing for the Metro program. Before playing for Metro, Miss Howley was seen in Reliance, Biograph and Famous Players releases.

Miss Howley was born in Brooklyn. After attending both private and public schools there, she ran away and went on the stage, going to Chicago with "The Red Mill." She wired her mother, who straightway came and brought her home. Later, with her mother's permission, she played in "Havana," being one of the original "Hello, Girls" octette. In vaudeville she was called "The Manhattan Girl." Some of her pictures, since becoming a screen favorite, have been "The Moth and the Flame," "The Pride of Jennifer," "The Wages of Sin," "The Fatal Wedding" and "The Road to Yesterday."

Lubin Signs Frazer

Robert W. Frazer, whose last dramatic engagement was replacing Douglas Fairbanks in the leading role in "The Show Shop," has been engaged by the Lubin Company for an important part in "The Light at Dusk" the story by Anthony P. Kelly of which Edgar Lewis is making a multiple reel feature.

Sally Crute, an important contributor to successful productions in which Robert Edeson was starred, has been engaged for the part of the American wife in Anthony P. Kelly's original story, "The Light at Dusk," which is to be a feature photoplay production by the Lubin Company. Miss Crute, who was selected by Edgar Lewis as the type of society belle portrayed in the story is eminently qualified for a place in the galaxy of screen beauties. She is a prize product of Chattanooga, Tenn.

LOUISE LOVELY

IN A FASCINATING STORY OF THE PERILS OF THE STAGE

"BOBBIE OF THE BALLET"

DIRECTED BY JOSEPH DE GRASSE

BLUEBIRD Photoplays (inc)

THE most beautiful woman on the screen" is the appreciative title bestowed on Louise Lovely, star of the BLUEBIRD organization who plays the lead in the beautiful photo-drama, "Bobbie of the Ballet," announced on the preceding page.

Miss Lovely's bid for fame, however, does not rest solely upon her ravishing loveliness, nor the exquisite charm of manner which she knows so well how to register on the screen. Her histrionic training has been thorough on both stage and screen.

To the part of "Bobbie" she brings the charm of youth and beauty, and a vividness of expression that grips the audience from her first appearance, and holds them spellbound, through pathos, laughter, stress of emotion, and the tensest dramatic moments of this fascinating play of the dangers of stage life, and the wolves in human guise that infest its environment.

With an unusual supporting cast, a generous, even lavish staging and production; with an intensely human heart interest story; a big climax and a vigorous and artistic direction, "Bobbie of the Ballet" is a worthy successor of the illustrious BLUEBIRD releases that precede it.

BLUEBIRD Photoplays differ in kind and in treatment — as they should. BLUEBIRD Photoplays never vary from the high standard set for them with the outlining of the BLUEBIRD policy at their inception.

Removal of "U" Studios to West Definitely Decided

President Laemmle Sends to Universal City All Eastern Producing Companies Except a Small Number Calling for "New York Atmosphere"—It Is Computed That $8,000 a Week Will Be Saved by the Shift—Expenses of the Plant at Fort Lee, N. J., Had Reached a Total of $12,000 a Week

IT has now been definitely decided to transfer all the eastern producing companies of Universal to the west and hereafter all pictures of the company, with the exception of a very small minority, calling for a New York City atmosphere, will be made at Universal City, Cal. President Carl Laemmle formally announced this plan last week.

The transfer has been the result of much consideration on the part of the officers of Universal and it is believed that the eastern officials were largely influenced by H. O. Davis, general manager of Universal City, whose efficiency methods were given at length in MOTION PICTURE NEWS when he first arrived in New York. It is computed that $8,000 a week will be saved by the shift. Heretofore the expenses of the Fort Lee, N. J., plant have totaled $12,000 a week. At Universal City, where all the overhead expense is concentrated, the same companies may work with the comparatively small expenditure of $4,000 for the same length of time.

Julius Stern, former manager of the eastern Universal studio, will also go west, but not to Universal City. He will go into the producing end of the business with the L-Ko company, of which his brother Abe Stern is secretary and treasurer. It is Julius Stern's plan to produce pictures, starring Francis Ford and Grace Cunard after they have completed the serial "Peg o' the Ring." In all probability these pictures will be released through the Universal program. Mr. Stern still retains a voice in the affairs of the Universal, as he holds a large portion of stock in the company.

Several Companies Now En Route to Coast

Some of the eastern producing companies are already on their way to the coast. Director Matt Moore's company, headed by Jane Gail and himself, left on Monday, May 29; Director Rex Ingram and his company left the Saturday before, while Stuart Paton with a company headed by Dorothy Phillips and Alan Holubar, are already at work at Universal City.

The list of prominent directors and stars who will hereafter work at the California film city includes Violet Mersereau, Mary Fuller, Jane Gail, Edna Hunter, Edith Roberts, Irene Hunt, Dorothy Phillips, King Baggot, Hobart Henley, William Garwood, Harry Benham, Paul Panzer, Matt Moore, Sidney Bracy, Francis J. Grandon, William Bailey, Robert Hill, Al Hale, Lee Kohlmar and George Ridgewell; Tony Gaudio, cameraman, Alfred Karpen, title editor, Jack Voshell, technical director, and Tom O'Neil, head property man, will also leave for the west. The closing down of the Fort Lee studios will throw about five hundred other employees out of work.

Ben Wilson has not decided as yet whether he will join the western band or not. Irene Hunt, who has just rejoined Universal, will play opposite King Baggot in the future.

President Laemmle's announcement of the removal follows:

President Laemmle's Announcement

The Universal Film Manufacturing Company, beginning immediately, will gradually transfer its eastern companies to Universal City, Cal., where the organization and facilities and equipment have been brought to such a state of perfection that practically all of the pictures made in the United States by all companies could be produced there without any confusion resulting from the additional units.

This is the point the Universal has been aiming at ever since its organization. In fact the basic principle of the Universal Company, the very foundation of the organization, was the idea of concentration.

The picture business has reached a commercial stage much more rapidly than any of the old timers imagined it would. It is now at the point where only those companies which eliminate all waste and make "everything show on the screen" can hope to survive competition. The Universal Company was the first to take any step toward the concentrating of efforts and the consequent reduction of overhead expenses, and is therefore the first to reap the advantages of commercializing its business.

About the first noticeable result of this move will be an improvement in the entire Universal program. Thousands of dollars which have hitherto been spent on overhead expenses can now be devoted to the pictures themselves, giving the Universal product a quality which others cannot hope to keep pace with unless they concentrate as the Universal has done. Thirty-five companies will eventually be operated at one place with one overhead charge.

The Universal's new glass studio in New Jersey will be held for emergency purposes and will be kept completely stocked with scenery and "props" of all sorts.

Mr. Davis will leave for Universal City with the last of the migrating easterners, it is believed. During his stay in New York he has procured at least $12,000 worth of stories for production. Some of these are copyrighted books and plays, while others have been selected from the manuscripts received by the eastern Universal scenario department.

It is Mr. Davis' intention to devote more time to the making of pictures dealing with outdoor life, believing that here the camera finds its natural scope. Mr. Davis wants to get away from the morbid society melodrama as much as possible and consequently his purchase of stories laid in the open.

Richard McFarland Goes to V-L-S-E as Assistant Treasurer

He Brings to His Office a Well Rounded Experience in the Various Managerial Ends of the Theatrical Business, in Association with Frohman and Belasco

AT the last meeting of the board of directors of the V-L-S-E, it was formerly announced that Richard W. McFarland, the Lubin New York representative had been elected to the position of assistant treasurer of the Big Four, to succeed Paul Melies, who recently resigned.

Richard W. McFarland

Mr. McFarland brings to the office, a well rounded experience, acquired in the various managerial ends of theatrical enterprises.

His initiation into motion pictures was about twenty years ago when as a next door neighbor he helped Mr. Lubin carry his parlor furniture into the yard. At that time Mr. Lubin used his yard as a studio, his cellar as a laboratory, and his neighbors as actors.

Beginning with that old stand-by Denman Thompson's "The Old Homestead," Mr. McFarland was manager of that Company for ten years, then affiliated with Charles Frohman and David Belasco in managerical capacities.

With Henry W. Savage he was manager of attractions, and purchasing agent of productions for several years, acting in the position of manager of Henry W. Savage's "Madam Butterfly" Grand Opera Company, which toured the country from Maine to California in a special train of twelve cars.

He then managed the Lyric and Adelphi theatres in Philadelphia, for the Shuberts. He managed William H. Crane's "David Harum," for the entire run of the play. He was personal representative and manager of Christy MacDonald's "Spring Maid," and then became associated with the Lubin Company as their New York representative, where he has been for the last three and a half years.

He has been a member of the Lamb's Club for the last ten years, which has brought him in close personal touch with the most prominent stars and playwrights of the theatrical profession. He is also an expert photographer and has assisted in the photographing of many Lubin features.

He enters upon his new duites as assistant treasurer of the Big Four, with a multitude of well wishers from his large circle of friends, both in the theatrical and film fields.

NAN NATHAWAY IS IN CHIEF ROLE OF "PRICE OF LIBERTY"

Nan Nathaway, the English emotional actress now in this country, assumes the leading role in "The Price of Liberty," which the Standard News film will release on American Flag Day, June 14. This production is described as a "drama of 'Americanism'." It is stated that it will be unique in so much that actual rather than fictitious battles of the great world war will be shown in their application to this country.

Nan Nathaway

In the scenes showing the destruction of New York and other prominent cities by monster aircraft now in use on the European battlefields, will be shown dropping bombs on these cities. This will be followed by the pictorial representation of the destruction of these cities. The early history of this country will be shown and also a comprehensive review of our army and navy.

NIGHT BATTLE FILMED ON MISSISSIPPI FOR "CRISIS"

A night battle filmed for the Selig production "The Crisis," was recently taken on the Mississippi River at Vicksburg, Miss., where the Selig players, under Director Colin Campbell, are now working. Eight gunboats were attacked. These gunboats were actually constructed on barges brought into service for the purpose and when the battle was fought the people stood along the Vicksburg hillsides, on top of buildings and in boats viewing the spectacular conflict on the water. Thousands of dollars' worth of explosives were utilized in the battle, which was waged in mid-stream.

Adjutant General E. C. Scales and Major George Hogaboom, of the Mississippi National Guard, were in direct charge of nearly a thousand militiamen and others who participated in the battle scenes for "The Crisis" filmed on historic ground in and near Vicksburg. The elaborate military features were worked out to the smallest detail.

The leading members of "The Crisis'" cast are as follows: Thomas Santschi, Matthew B. Snyder, Geogre Snyder, Marshall Neilan, Will Machin, Frank Green, Al Green, Cecil Holland, Leo Pierson, Bessie Eyton, Eugenie Besserer and others.

"SCHOOL" IN DETROIT GOBBLED UP BY THE POLICE

Special to Motion Picture News.

Detroit, Mich., May 27.

The "movie" school conducted by the Overland Film Company, Inc., 501 Liggett building, was "pinched" by the police department on Wednesday, May 17. This firm has taken money from young innocent girls and had promised to make them screen stars. When complaints began to reach the police department by parents of the girls, the police decided to act.

MARY McDONALD DISCOVERED BY LOIS WEBER

Mary McDonald, star of "Shoes," a Bluebird for June 26, was discovered by Lois Weber at Universal City, while Miss Weber was producing "Where Are My Children?" Miss McDonald was given a small part in the latter picture, and then selected by Miss Weber as completely filling the requirements for the shopgirl role in "Shoes."

"WHEN DOCTORS DISAGREE WHO SHALL DECIDE?" ANYHOW, DON'T WORRY, EXCHANGES AND EXHIBITORS ARE BOTH GETTING THE MONEY

Just what is prosperity?

Exchange managers in Omaha say there is only a slight change, while exhibitors say business has improved fifty to one hundred per cent. in the last month.

"We rent the films at a certain price, the exhibitor pays for them, we get the money, whether there are big crowds at the theatre or not," said one exchange manager. "The number of exhibitors is limited and while there are a few new ones from time to time, there is not much change. If we make material gains, they are exhibitors taken from other exchanges. This may mean prosperity for us, but it means just the opposite for them. No, for us, the times are just about the same."

But the exhibitors!

"A month ago I came almost selling my theatre because I thought all the life had gone out of the motion picture business," said Manager Thompson of the Rex at Logan, Ia. "Now nobody would pay me a price that would induce me to let go. And the rain has been falling, the roads bad and people's spirits depressed, at that. Just wait until the beautiful days of June come!"

A number of exhibitors are adding matinees; others are showing every day instead of only three or four days a week, and still others are opening theatres that have been closed for several weeks. Times for the exhibitor, at least—are picking up in the Middle West.

INGLIS & WILLIS REPRESENTED IN EAST BY KANE

Gus Inglis, of the Los Angeles firm of Willis and Inglis, personal representatives and publicity managers for screen stars and producers, has been in New York the last week arranging for an eastern connection for his firm, and negotiating for several Broadway successes, which are to be picturized and produced by western studios.

Mr. Inglis announced this week that he has made arrangements with Arthur S. Kane, 220 West Forty-second street, New York, whereby Mr. Kane will become the eastern representative of Willis and Inglis. During his stay in New York Mr. Inglis has obtained the rights to at least two famous plays, and has signed a number of stars to go to the coast and appear in big productions there.

PRE-SHOWING OF "MYRA" DRAWS 903 IN CHICAGO

Exactly nine hundred and three people were present at the special performance of "The Mysteries of Myra" at Chicago. A wire from J. K. Burger, manager of exchanges of the International Film Service, Inc., stated that the applause at the finish of the sixth episode of "Myra" followed by "Krazy Kat", lasted seven minutes.

A similar pre-showing of the forthcoming episodes of "The Mysteries of Myra" was given at the New York Theatre roof on Tuesday, May 23, at 10:30 a. m. The International issued twenty-six hundred invitations for the performance.

"REDEMPTION OF DAVE DARCEY" FROM "V" ON JUNE 12

"The Redemption of Dave Darcey," is the Vitagraph Blue Ribbon Feature for Monday, June 12. This five-part picture, from the pen of Charles T. Dazey, author of "In Old Kentucky," depicts the difficulties encountered by a thief when he tries to go straight.

MARIE DORO IS AT WORK ON HER SECOND PICTURE FOR LASKY

One of the most successful Lasky productions of several months is Marie Doro in the Lasky production, "The Heart of Nora Flynn." This star, who is now under the Lasky management for a long period, has started work under the direction of William C. De Mille on her second production for the Lasky Company, written specially for her by Marian Fairfax. Miss Doro will practically have an all-star cast in her support.

Marie Doro

Many Stars in Short Reel Subjects from General, June 5-10

Selig's "A Temperance Town," Featuring Otis Harlan, is First Set for Release in the Week —"Orphan Joyce," Essanay, is First for Second Day

THE policy in General Film Service of presenting noted film stars in short reels is reflected in the week's program offered through General Film Service, June 5-10 inclusive.

A Selig three-reel comedy, "A Temperance Town," in which Otis Harlan stars, will be the first thrown on the screen Monday, June 5. "New York Past and Present," a Vitagraph historical production, has a prominent place in the first day's releases. Selig-Tribune, featuring the high spots in the important news of the world is also presented on this day; while Biograph's "The Girl Across the Way," helps the day's releases. "Otto the Reporter," a Lubin comedy, will provide laughter.

"Orphan Joyce," an Essanay two part drama, featuring youthful Joyce Fair, is the first release for the following day. "Midnight at the Old Mill," a Kalem comedy, and a Biograph two part drama, "The Yaqui Cur," with Lionel Barrymore, Robert Harron, Kate Bruce and Walter Miller in the cast, make up the early part of the day's program. "The Stoning," an Edison production in three parts, has a post of honor on this day.

"In Cinderella's Shoes," a Kalem comedy, and Vernon Howe Bailey's Sketch Book of Berlin," and Edison's "Love's Labor Lost," provide varied attractions for Wednesday.

Lubin's "The Scrapegrace," in three parts, with George Routh, Adda Gleason and Evelyn Page sharing honors, will be presented Thursday, as will also Selig-Tribune and a Vim comedy, "The Sea Dogs."

Knickerbocker heads the list Friday, offering "The Stained Pearl" in three reels, featuring Henry King. Another feature of this day will be "Juggling Justice" of the Sis Hopkins Series. The Kalem comedy will be "Juggling Justice." Vitagraph and Vim each supply a comedy, the former "She Won a Prize," and the latter "A Dollar Down."

A three-reel Essanay production, "Fool's Gold," with Darwin Karr, Nell Craig, Patrick Calhoun and Marion Murray, all film favorites, will be presented Saturday. "Two Smiths and a Haff," a Lubin comedy, will be sandwiched in between "Fool's Gold," and a Vitagraph three part picture, "A Strange Case." Then will follow "The Treasure Train," an episode of the "Hazards of Helen" Series by Kalem. The final picture that will fade on the screen will be Selig's drama, "Going West to Make Good."

THIRTY PER CENT. INCREASE IN BUSINESS FOR BLUEBIRDS IS REPORT BY LYNCH

Bluebird pictures continue to fly into the hearts of Philadelphia patrons. Robert Lynch, who directs the flight of the "Birds" in those regions, reports a thirty per cent. increase of business in the last few weeks. Five more of the large photoplay houses have just signed contracts through the Stanley Booking Company for Bluebird releases to be shown two days each week.

The last pictures from Bluebird: "Son of the Immortals," "Naked Hearts," "Bobbie of the Ballot" and "Shoes" are considered among the finest productions yet received by the Fairmount Feature Film Exchange which handles the releases in that territory.

These will have an exclusive first run showing at the Regent theatre, a neighbor and close rival of the Stanley theatre.

Thorough Tryouts for Six Manhattan Beauty Contest Winners

International Film Service Will Give Young Women, All Inexperienced, an Opportunity to Show Their Fitness for Work Before the Camera

DURING the Exposition of the Motion Picture Board of Trade, the International Film Service added six new players to its studio enrollment. All six are young ladies who have not had experience either before the camera or behind the footlights. They are all from New York City.

The six girls were selected as winners of the New Talent Contest conducted by the International Film Service throughout the duration of the show. There were numerous entrants for this contest and the winners were chosen after undergoing a camera test in which they were called upon to register various emotions.

The winners are Mary Cranston, Helene Montrose, Helen Raferty, Frieda Peterson, Julia Lorland and May Brown. John W. Grey, who conducted the contest in the interests of the International, says that all the new talent will shortly be seen in International pictures.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR CONVENTION IN PENNSYLVANIA COMPLETED

Special to Motion Picture News.

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 27.

Arrangements for the holding of the annual Pennsylvania State convention of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America June 27-28-29 are being completed rapidly and it is very likely that the affair will be held in the new Moose Temple in Penn Avenue.

The Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce and the league officers are working together in order to make the exhibit the best that has ever been held in this section and unless most of the plans miscarry there will be no vacant exhibition space when the doors are thrown open to the public.

Two rooms in the new temple will be used for exhibition purposes. The big auditorium will be used for the business of the league and for speakers who have signified their intention of being present. In all, more than 6,000 feet of floor space will be at the disposal of the League.

The officials have announced that several motion picture stars will be present to assist in making the annual convention a success. President Herrington of the League states that delegates will be present from Cleveland, Wheeling, Youngstown and a number of other cities of the state.

APPEAL FROM SUPREME COURT IS MADE IN CHAPLIN SUIT

An appeal from the decision of Supreme Court Justice Hotchkiss in the suit of Charles Chaplin, the Mutual comedian against the V-L-S-E to restrain the release of the "Burlesque of Carmen" has been filed by Nathan Burkan, counsel for Mr. Chaplin. Judge Hotchkiss refused to grant a temporary injunction against the releasing company on the ground that it was doubtful whether the comedian's contract rights were violated, whereas an injunction would inflict damage upon the defendants.

Worthington Directing a Universal Scene from the Footboard of an Auto; David Weber, Uncle of Louis Weber, is Welcomed to U City

In carrying the case to the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, Chaplin asks for $100,000 damages and further demands an accounting from the V-L-S-E of the profits accruing from the release of the picture which Chaplin alleges injured his reputation as a comedian.

"This action will be fought out to the end," said Mr. Burkan, "as there is no doubt but Mr. Chaplin is entitled to damages for the liberties taken with the picture in which he was featured. The adverse decision does not materially hurt our case as we only asked for a temporary injunction restraining the distributors from releasing the "Burlesque of Carmen," in four reels. The refusal to grant this plea for an injunction in no way affects the validity of our suit for damages."

Mr. Burkan was inclined to look lightly upon the suit of the Essanay Film Company in Los Angeles against Chaplin for alleged breach of contract, filed several days ago.

HARRISH INGRAHAM SIGNS WITH DAVID HORSLEY

Harrish Ingraham, prominent in the film world as an actor and director for the past five years, has been engaged at the David Horsley studios and will be seen in an important part in support of the co-stars, Margaret Gibson and William Clifford, in a forthcoming two reel Centaur drama.

Mr. Ingraham goes to the Horsley studios with an excellent record and his best recommendation is the word of Crane Wilbur, star and author, with whom he was affiliated a number of years ago at an Eastern studio. Previous to that time he had considerable experience in dramatic stock companies.

His first effort for the David Horsley productions will be in support of Miss Gibson and Mr. Clifford, being cast as the juvenile lead.

"VISITING THE SULTAN OF SULU" IS BURTON HOLMES' TRAVELOGUE FOR PARAMOUNT

Into the land where the Sultan of Sulu reigns over his comic opera kingdom, made famous by George Ade, Paramount audiences will penetrate in the Paramount-Burton Holmes Travel-Picture, "Visiting the Sultan of Sulu."

Strange sights and scenes were captured by the camera in the Sultan's tiny capital during Mr. Holmes' visit. Jolo was then receiving the officers and men of a Japanese criuser and the diminutive sailors are shown marching through the little town. The Sultan himself is shown in his palace surrounded by his courtiers and fighting men.

Among the interesting events of this release are an American baseball game, played in the Sultan's kingdom, and a reception given to the officers and men of the Japanese warship by the commanding officer at Jolo. Another Datto, or chief, is seen receiving Mr. Holmes, the tiny Datto Diki-Diki, who is four feet tall, forty-five years old, and a thorough Moro.

TRUE BOARDMAN AGAIN WITH KALEM

After completing a profitable season on the stage True Boardman has once more returned to the screen and is again found in the Kalem fold. Boardman has already started to work before the camera at the Glendale, Cal., studio and it will not be long before he is seen on the screen again.

A firm of western theatrical managers made Boardman a tempting offer to return to the stage following the success of "Stingaree," Kalem's series by E. W. Hornung.

"STRANGE CASE" FROM "V" SHOWS FAMILIAR CAST

"A Strange Case," a Vitagraph three-part Broadway Star Feature, will be released on June 10. In this picture, Harry Morey takes a dual role. Supporting Mr. Morey are seen Ned Finley, Frank Holland, Adele Kelly, and Edward Elkas. The filming was supervised by Eugene Mullin. Jane Dixon and Roma Raymond wrote the story.

"New York, Past and Present," is the title of a one-part scenic picture, in which Father Knickerbocker personally conducts a tour through his wonderful metropolis. All the familiar landmarks of the city are shown, and when they fade out, the same spot is shown as it appeared in the colonial days. The reel closes with a panoramic view of the city, taken from the pinnacle of the Woolworth Building.

"She Won the Prize" is a one-part comedy featuring Edith Storey and Antonio Moreno. After winning a prize of $1,000 in a contest, Edith Storey, as Molly, a stenographer, sets out to have a good time on the money. Josephine Earle and Donald McBride also appear in the cast. George D. Baker and Epes Winthrop Sargent are the authors of the story, and the former also directed the action.

Bluebirds to Fly Over Summer Amusement Birds of Passage

Subjects Arranged by Hoffman for Release in June and July Will Comprise an "Early Season Program" That Will Combat Outdoor Attractions

GENERAL MANAGER M. H. HOFFMAN, of Bluebird Photoplays, makes the announcement that the subjects arranged for release in June and July will comprise an early summer program that will give exhibitors an excellent opportunity to combat out-of-door amusements.

"The exhibitor needs just as strong attractions in summer as he does in the regular season," says Mr. Hoffman, "and Bluebird proposes to keep its service at the best possible standard, no matter what the season. The attractiveness of the summer sports make just as much opposition to the exhibitors as the regular houses are during the theatrical season.

"We feel perfectly assured, from our knowledge of what is in store for exhibitors who use our program, that the summer months will show no inclination to relax the service or lower the Bluebird standard. The regular run of Bluebirds, since we started the program last January, has proven to exhibitors that Bluebird fulfills promises—we have made good every assertion that has been authorized by those who are in control of the Bluebird destinies.

"Therefore the exhibitors may safely rely upon the promise I now make that there will be forthcoming a series of features that will even surpass in excellence the fine productions we have thus far distributed. We will make a record with Mary MacLaren in 'Shoes,' and I am willing to stake Bluebird's reputation and my own, upon the outcome of this release. It will be the most discussed and most profitable feature ever released during a program series. 'Shoes' is a wonderful film and our new star, Mary MacLaren, is a little wonder all by herself."

The Smalleys contribute two subjects to the June Bluebirds—"The Eye of God," in which Lois Weber is co-star with Tyrone Power, and Mary MacLaren in "Shoes." Then there is Louise Lovely, in "Bobbie of the Ballet," and Peter B. Kyne's story "The Three Godfathers."

Violet Mersereau, in "Broken Fetters," a production written and directed by Rex Ingram, starts the July series. Ella Hall will appear on July 10 in "Ambrosia," a Robert Leonard piece, and Louise Lovely will make her regular appearance using "The Grasp of Greed" as her medium. This production will be directed by Joseph De Grasse, one of H. Rider Haggard's stories being the basis of Ida May Park's scenario.

Rubinstein Will Film Activities of Zeese-Wilkinson

Closes Contract for Showing Every Step of Work in Plant of Colortype Plate Makers and Color Printers, at Cost of $41,000

LEON J. RUBINSTEIN, the Thanhouser publicity man, has closed a deal with the Zeese-Wilkinson Colortype Company of 424 W. Thirty-third Street, New York, whereby every step of work in their plant will be filmed. They are colortype plate makers and color printers, the largest concern of its kind in the world. They print the Sears-Roebuck catalogue and a great number of expensive publications. "Ruby's" contract with them totals forty-one thousand dollars and provides for the filming of over twenty thousand feet. Besides the manufacture and use of the plate process in the Zeese-Wilkinson plant itself, pictures will also be made of the manufacture of the special inks used, the construction of the presses and the making of the paper.

The work is already under way. Irving B. Rubinstein, brother of Ruby, is doing the camera work. It will take all summer to complete the taking of the pictures, so that they may be ready for the publishing and advertising conventions. Mr. Wilkinson, of the firm, who made the record contract, is an enthusiastic booster of motion pictures. For a year he and Ruby have been planning the work, and it is his intention to give the free use of the films to the proper organizations. Mr. Wilkinson says:

"These pictures will do us a great deal of good in that by advancing the knowledge of the art of color printing, the appreciation of it will stimulate the demand. The average lay visitor to our plant is amazed at the strides which this art has taken. It is this lack of knowledge of our possibility that has prompted me to make this contract with Mr. Rubinstein. The finished pictures will be the missionaries of our industry."

Irving Rubinstein has just returned from the Sears-Roebuck plant in Chicago, where he made a survey of the light conditions. The work will be done in New York, Boston, Bangor, Tampa and other cities.

PHILIPPI IS MADE SALES MANAGER FOR ROTHACKER

W. R. Rothacker, president of the Rothacker Film Manufacturing Company of Chicago, announces the appointment of E. H. Philippi as sales manager of the Rothacker firm.

Mr. Philippi went to Chicago in 1905 to publish the house organ of a leading jobbing house in that city. After five years he was made general manager of the largest trade paper in that field. When another five years had elapsed he entered the employ of the Rothacker Company as a salesman. The present appointment is made in recognition of his successful work in behalf of this company.

Mr. Philippi is chairman of the Industrial Movies Committee of the Advertising Association of Chicago, and is well known in advertising circles throughout the country.

TRAGGARDH VISITS SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

O. V. Traggardh, head of the Union Film and Supply Company of San Francisco, is making a business trip to Los Angeles and will spend some time in the southern city and vicinity. He has been meeting with success of late in handling a Chinese subject through the northern part of California.

J. J. Unger, manager of the Pacific Coast interests of the Metro Pictures Corporation, is visiting all of the branch exchanges in that territory. Since securing a first run house in San Francisco in the new Rialto theatre the business of the branch has shown a wonderful increase.

Herman Wobber, who has charge of the Paramount interests throughout the Pacific Coast territory, left recently for New York and will probably be away for a month at least. During his absence the San Francisco office will be in charge of J. W. Allen.

Sol L. Lesser, head of the Golden Gate Film Exchange, Inc., has returned to San Francisco after having been in New York for several months in connection with his film business, chiefly for the purpose of placing the "Ne'er-Do-Well." Leon Netter, formerly with this exchange will remain in the East. Mr. Lesser purchased the California rights to several large productions while away and is busily engaged on plans for releasing these.

SERIES OF PARAMOUNT STORIES USED BY SUNDAY PAPERS

The publicity department of the Paramount Pictures Corporation, is putting out a series of features that are reaching the sections of Sunday newspapers beyond the confines of the regular moving picture pages. Interviews on Paramount topics with Frederick Palmer, the war correspondent; Henry Reuterdahl, the naval expert; Frieda Hempel and Mme. Gadski, stars of the Metropolitan Opera, are commanding full and half pages in the magazine sections of more than two hundred newspapers a week.

This is in addition to the regular Paramount representation in the motion picture columns and pages. Edward Lyell Fox, who is directing Paramount publicity states that a large newspaper syndicate has agreed to supply Paramount features to all its clients, regarding them as legitimate publicity because in each case adjectives are restricted and the intrinsic value of the story is apparent.

RAY IS CAST FOR VIM JUVENILE ROLES, OPPOSITE MISS BURTON

Al Ray, the young actor-author-director, is now working at the studios of the Vim Company in Jacksonville. He will be seen in juvenile roles opposite Ethel Burton, the Vim star.

Al Ray

Ray, who is just past twenty-two years of age, has had fifteen years' experience in the theatrical and picture field. He played child parts at the old Biograph, appeared as Buster Brown on the stage, and filled many engagements in vaudeville and musical comedy.

RECENT VISITORS ON EXCHANGE ROW IN DALLAS

Among the visitors on Exchange Row in Dallas recently were A. B. Estes, of the Busby theatre, McAlester, Okla.; and H. Thomas, Airdome theatre, Orange, Texas.

WINNER OF "HANDSOME MAN" CONTEST WILL NOT MARRY VIOLET MERSEREAU

Roy Fernandez, lately discovered "Handsomest Man in America," by the Universal Company, will not marry Violet Mersereau, according to mutual agreement. Miss Mersereau refuses a blonde, or refuses to propose to one, because she is a blonde herself, so perhaps Mr. Fernandez is wishing that he were a brunette.

However, Mr. Fernandez is to get his long-desired chance at acting, and at present he is working on a picture in the new Universal Studio at Fort Lee. It is as yet undecided as to whether he will remain in the East or journey to Universal City. In all probability, a decision will be reached after his first picture has been completed.

Mr. Fernandez was selected by Messrs. Ranck, Brinkerhoff, and Goldberg, of the New York Evening Mail. There were over ten thousand contestants, so Mr. Fernandez has justly earned his present title. Previous to his forthcoming debut on the screen, he was model for Howard Chandler Christy and Harrison Fisher.

UPLIFTERS WANT TO RUN PICTURE THEATRE—WITH CITY'S MONEY

Special to MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

Milwaukee, May 27.

A municipal moving picture theatre is one of the possibilities staring the local exhibitors in the face. The finance committee of the city council received a request from a group of over-enthusiastic women, whose announced intentions are the uplifting of the drama, asking that the city provide funds to erect and maintain a municipal theatre in Milwaukee.

The particular group of women behind the request has endeavored with varying success to maintain a so-called Little Theatre in Milwaukee for some years. With the assistance of much free publicity from the newspapers and donations they managed to get along from year to year and no doubt consider themselves qualified to run a photoplay theatre, with the city's money, of course.

BANNER FILM WILL HANDLE "RACE SUICIDE"

For the specific purpose of exploiting the six-part motion picture sensation, "Race Suicide," the Banner Film Company has been organized, with offices at the Gaiety Theatre Building, Kansas City, Mo.

This company has contracted for the purchase of "Race Suicide" for the territory of Missouri, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Kansas, and Iowa.

The advertising department of the Banner Company has originated many departures in advertising novelties and aids which will go toward further insuring the public interest in the picture.

Bookings taken upon the subject prior to its initial showing in St. Louis have been of sufficient volume to establish a record for that territory.

FLAHERTY REPORTS GOOD BUSINESS IN CENTRAL WEST

F. J. Flaherty of the Universal Film Exchange of Chicago, who spent the past week in New York attending a conference on the State rights sale of "Pavlowa," "Where Are My Children," and other productions, left for the West on the Century Saturday. Mr. Flaherty reports business through the Central West in very good shape and says the season should prove successful to every exhibitor in the business.

Mary Miles Minter On Coast to Begin Work for Mutual

Her First Feature, Under Auspices of American, Is Ready for Production—Meanwhile, Filming of Audrey Munson Allegory and Other Pictures is Rushed to Completion

ALTHOUGH interest in and about the American-Mutual studios in Santa Barbara has for the past week been centered in the arrival of Mary Miles Minter, newest of Mutual stars and the entertainments given in her honor, work was by no means slackened on the many productions now under way.

Miss Minter's arrival at the Santa Barbara plant was signalized by a banquet given her by the studio forces and by a tour of the plant. Considerable of Miss Minter's spare time during the early days of her arrival was spent as an interested spectator at the filming of the last few scenes of the new seven-act allegorical feature, presenting Audrey Munson as the star. Miss Minter's feature production is all ready and it is expected that she will begin work the latter part of the week. Its title has not been decided.

In addition to the Munson feature, which is to be released shortly by the Mutual and the Minter production, work at the Santa Barbara studios is now centered in rushing to conclusion several five-act dramas to be released as Mutual Star Productions, as well as a number of short-length feature releases.

"Dust," a five-act feature, starring Winnifred Greenwood and Franklin Ritchie, is well under way under the direction of Edward Sloman. William Russell is now at work on another of the new Mutual Star Productions in which he is to be featured. "The Man Who Would Not Die." In it Russell is called upon to essay a dual role. The scenes of this production are laid in California and New York and the picture is being produced under the direction of Russell and his co-director, Jack Prescott.

Work on "The Guide," another of Mr. Russell's starring vehicles to be released as a Mutual Star Production, has been completed and is now in the cutting room. Charlotte Burton appears in Russell's chief support.

First of the new Kolb & Dill features will be released through the Mutual in five acts under the title of "A Million for Mary," which is being filmed under the supervision of Director Rea Berger.

A number of two-reel feature releases have either been completed or are in work at the Santa Barbara studios. Among them are "Fear," written by Constance Crawley and starring Frank Borzage, supported by Anna Little and F. Jack Richardson; "Love's Bitter Strength," by Nellie Brown Duff and Edward Coxen, Lizette Thorne and George Field in the principal roles; "Killed by Whom?," by William Parker, featuring Vivian Rich and Alfred Vosburgh and screened by Carl M. LeVinness . "The Dancer," by J. Edward Hungerford and Vlasta Hungerford and directed by Mr. Le Vinness, with Margaret Nichols in the chief role; "The Sheriff of Plumas," a Mustang production by William Pigott and Karl Coolidge with Helen Rosson and William Stowell and directed by Harry McCabe; "Like a Knight of Old," also a Mustang feature and "The Fate of the Dolphin," featuring Edward Coxen, Lizette Thorne, George Field and Harry Von Meter and directed by Thomas Ricketts.

Ince Besieged by Buyers and Exhibitors for "Civilization"

Approaching Premiere of Spectacle at Criterion Theatre, New York, Attracts Widespread Attention—Producer Gives His Ideas on Making of Great Photodrama

WIDE-SPREAD interest has been attracted among states' rights buyers and exhibitors at large by the announcement of the forthcoming production at the Criterion Theatre, New York, on Friday, June 2, of Thomas H. Ince's widely heralded and advertised multiple reel cinema spectacle, "Civilization," which took a year to produce and employs the services of 40,000 people.

Mr. Ince and his staff, in their suite at the Astor Hotel, have been so beseiged by states' rights men and exhibitors at large, that it has been necessary to open an office in the quarters of the New York Motion Picture Corporation in the Longacre Building. There Mr. Adam Kessel and Charles O. Baumann have been receiving all visitors as well as the thousands of telegrams and letters from all parts of the United States and foreign countries not immediately effected by the war, in behalf of Mr. Ince. All Mr. Ince will say anent his mammoth production, which by the way is eleven reels, is "Wait and see." The house it is said is sold out for four weeks in advance and this one week in advance of the opening date. For the "first night" of "Civilization," 1,100 special invitations have been issued by Mr. Ince, his guests of honor including the most noted names in New York in financial, artistic, religious, social and literary circles.

While Mr. Ince does not wish to tell anything about the nature of his work, he is by no means so reticent concerning his theories in regard to the psychology of directing a titanic photo-drama.

"A really good director," he says, "must combine within himself the art of the painter, the dramatist, the architect and the poet, besides being required to possess the constitution of a horse and the nerves of a navvie. If I were asked what constitutes the principal factor of direction, I should say that it consists in being able to so project one's mentality that it can be conveyed to the brains and sway the personalities of the people working under the director even if, as in the case of 'Civilization,' they number as many as 40,000. It may sound like a radical statement to make, but I am more and more convinced that the psychology of the art of the director has been underestimated. Think of the gigantic tasks faced every day by our more prominent producers in instilling their ideas into the minds of huge crowds of extra people, many of whom have never before faced a camera. What is it that takes this conglomerate mass of humanity and turns them into passable actors for the time being? The personality of the director! The screen furnishes many examples of this every season.

"In other words—again not to seem radical—I should be inclined to say that a director of a great feature picture must be to a certain extent a hypnotist in the sense that it is his will that bends to his wishes and the people working under him. To a certain extent this power is analogous to that exercised by an actor who 'gets over the footlights.'

"See Civilization and realize for yourself if this is not true."

WORLD PLACES ITS PICTURES IN TIVOLI, FRISCO

The World Film Corporation has signed a yearly contract with the Turner and Dahnken Company to furnish World pictures for the Tivoli, one of the biggest picture theatres in San Francisco. The Tivoli has been on the open market heretofore. M. E. Cory, the new manager, reports that his firm has taken on a number of new customers recently and that the outlook is very good for a busy season, particularly in the larger cities. W. W. Drumm, western division manager for the company, recently left for a visit to the company's offices in Salt Lake City.

MILLER TO DIRECT BARRISCALE IN A KAY-BEE

Charles Miller, who formerly directed the productions of subjects for Thomas H. Ince, has again been placed in charge of a company, and is filming a Kay Bee-Triangle subject which stars Bessie Barriscale. The actress in this takes the part of a slavey, which is an entirely new role for her. Supporting are Charles Ray and Fannie Midgley. Miller directed the filming of the Frank Mills subject, "The Moral Fabric."

PICTURES FOR CHILDREN UP FOR DISCUSSION AT WOMEN'S CLUB MEET

The film industry was very prominent in discussions held at a meeting of the General Federation of Women's Clubs on Saturday, May 27, in the Seventh Regiment Armory, New York City. Committees on the drama, education and civics openly discussed questions of importance to the film business with representatives of the various motion picture manufacturing companies.

The main topic of this special conference was pictures for children. John R. Freuler, speaking in behalf of all the producers, said that as soon as the women of the country realized the importance of children's matinees, then the manufacturer would willingly supply the increased demands of the exhibitor.

Other phases of the industry came up before the meeting, especially censorship, and very few were found among those present who upheld it. Mary Gray Peck, speaking on behalf of the women's clubs, urgently requested the other representatives present to see that their children attended special matinees which were now being inaugurated by the exhibitor throughout the country and by so doing eliminate the danger of their seeing injurious pictures at the regular exhibitions. She spoke strongly against the creation of state censor boards, saying that such bodies were a useless expense and a drawback to the industry at large.

FIRST SUBJECT TO STAR MABEL NORMAND IS IN PRODUCTION

Special to Motion Picture News.

Los Angeles, May 27.

The first subject which will star Mabel Normand, to be made by the feature company which bears her name, is now in production at the newly completed studio at Bates and Effie streets, Hollywood. Story for it was prepared by Hampton Del Ruth, assistant manager of production of the Keystone Company; and with the exception of James Young, as director, the cast is made up entirely of former Keystone players. Mack Sennett and his entire staff are lending their aid to make this first subject the greatest success possible. The story is a straight comedy-drama.

The new studio, located just at the edge of Hollywood, is a very attractive place. Landscape gardeners have for two weeks been busy in the decoration of the buildings and grounds. The dressing rooms have every convenience, and that for the star has been very elaborately furnished. The women of the company will have quarters on the same tier with Miss Normand, while the men of the organization will use rooms on the first floor. The offices of the company are located in the front of the building.

TAYLOR CONSOLIDATES GENERAL IN OMAHA AND DES MOINES

C. W. Taylor, manager of the General exchange at Omaha, has taken his final trip to Des Moines, Ia., to consolidate the two branches. Omaha is now a definitely selected buying branch, while Des Moines is the distributing branch for the rich Iowa territory.

OMAHA EXCHANGEMEN THINK OF ORGANIZING

Since attending the recent convention at Minneapolis, where they learned a few things about co-operation, Omaha, Neb., exchangemen are more than ever thinking of organizing a trade exchange for their mutual benefit.

"We could do as they do elsewhere," said one exchange manager, "hire one man who will watch out for dead beats and will promote our work generally. I have noticed in Omaha ever since we began having meetings with the exhibitors' organizations, that we are on a better footing. It used to be that the cut-throat competition here was ruinous. Now it is better.

"If I send a reel C. O. D. and it is refused, I can telephone any one of the other exchanges and get protection for a day or two from that man. If someone asks me for a film of a certain kind and I don't have it, but another exchange has, I refer him to that exchange. They do the same way with me.

"But every exchange in Omaha has been stung, too frequently for comfort, by the fly-by-night exhibitor, and we ought to unite to stop it. I am in favor of it, and I am sure the other exchangemen are, but none of us wants to be the first to suggest it. The exhibitors want us to get together, because if we get rid of the doubtful exhibitor, the safe man gets that much better treatment and his pictures are never held up. Some day Omaha may have a film exchange."

PEARCE JOINS SELZNICK AS AUDITOR

Charles L. Pearce, auditor of the World Film Corporation, resigned last week to become auditor of the Lewis J. Selznick Enterprises, Inc., the general business company of the Clara Kimball Young Film Corporation. Mr. Pearce was a public accountant before entering the film business. He is now engaged in systematizing the home office and the various Selznick branches.

TEN THEATRES IN CINCINNATI OFFERED FOR CHILDREN'S PROGRAMS

Special to Motion Picture News.

Cincinnati, O., May 27.

Officers and members of the Motion Pisture Exhibitors League of the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce, members of women's organizations, city officials and other interested persons, attended a luncheon meeting called by Mrs. Elmer G. Lawrence at the Hotel Gibson on Thursday, May 18, at which the subject of "Better Films" was discussed. Helen Duey, motion picture editor of the Woman's Home Companion, was a guest and delivered an address.

An effort is being made on the part of prominent club women, in co-operation with the exhibitors' league, to devise a plan whereby better pictures for children may be shown. It is planned to establish a certain number of special theatres where children's pictures will be shown exclusively on certain days of the week. President Fred. L. Emmert of the exhibitors league is working in co-operation with this movement and a committee of the league has offered ten theatres in various sections of the city where such pictures may be exhibited.

MARIN SAIS, KALEM, IS A DARING HORSEBACK RIDER

Marin Sais, who is co-starring in "The Social Pirates" with Ollie Kirkby, fears that her success in that series may allow picture followers to forget that she is also a horseback rider. Kalem's series by George Bronson-Howard has kept Miss Sais in a "society" and city atmosphere, with no opportunity to show the equestrienneship of which she is capable.

Marin Sais

Followers of the screen, whose memories go back for three or four years, will remember the reckless riding of Miss Sais in Kalem Western dramas. More recently "Stingaree" gave the star an opportunity for daring riding.

Miss Sais has been equally successful in refined comedies, farce comedies, Western dramas and the drama of "The Social Pirates."

MME. PETROVA SUSTAINS SEVERE WOUNDS IN KNIFE SCENE

Mme. Petrova, Metro star, is laid up with a severe wound on her hand and fingers, sustained in an accident which it is said, almost cost the actress her life.

A thrilling scene was being enacted on a rope suspension bridge which Harry Ravier, the supervising director, rigged up across a ravine in the Palisades. A substitute had been provided for Mme Petrova, but she insisted upon acting the scene herself. This consisted of racing across the frail structure and atacking a man who was attempting to cut the ropes holding the bridge in place. In wresting the knife from the "villain," Mme. Petrova suffered a painful wound on the hand and fingers.

She would not permit anyone to come to her aid until she had made her way to the end of the structure and cut away the ropes. When Director Burton King and Mr. Ravier finally reached her side, she was almost fainting from loss of blood.

MAE MURRAY TO STAR WITH KEENAN IN AN INCE

Mae Murray, star of the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company, has been loaned to Thomas H. Ince for appearance in one subject in which she will be co-starred with Frank Keenan. Miss Murray will appear in the part of a daughter of the south, a girl of impish vivacity who falls in love with a young minister. The story is a narrative of the north and south by C. Gardiner Sullivan, and others in the cast will be George Fisher, Joseph J. Dowling and George Elwell. Reginald Barker is filming this production.

PACIFIC COMPLETES FIRST PICTURE

The Pacific Picture Producing Company has completed its first picture, a one-reel comedy, which has been titled "Discipline." Josh Binney plays the lead in this subject, an incorrigible school boy who drives the old maid teacher away, and breaks up the school. His aid in this picture, a hoyden, is taken by Irene Tiner. The school board secured another teacher whom the bad boy immediately falls in love with, and education of the young man is resumed. The part of the teacher is taken by Ida Bell Dickerson.

CHRISTOPH JOINS THE INTERNATIONAL IN CAPITAL

Fritz B. Wathne, Washington, D. C., manager of the International Film Service, has added Frank Christoph to his staff for road man in that territory. Mr. Christoph's chief province will be the placing of "The Mysteries of Myra" of the International Film Service in Virginia, West Virgania, Maryland, Delaware, and North Carolina.

PLUES TO OPEN EXCHANGE IN LITTLE ROCK

A. W. Plues, recently with the Kalem Company, handling "The Social Pirates" out of Dallas, has left for Little Rock, Ark., to open a film exchange under the name of the Exclusive Feature Film Company. This exchange will handle multiple reel features and short subjects of comedy and western style.

Middleton to Supervise Gaumont Three-Reelers

Director Will Have Same Facilities at His Command for Making Five-Reel Multiples and Pick Players for the Casts

THE recent announcement that the Gaumont company would make three-reel features of the same excellence as its five-reel productions has now been followed by the further statement that these productions will reach the screen through the direction of Edwin Middleton. Mr. Middleton went to the Gaumont company as director of one-reel comedies. Before that he had directed such photoplays as "Wildfire," featuring Lillian Russell, and the "Rip Van Winkle," featuring Thomas Jefferson. Mr. Middleton was later sent to Jacksonville to head one of the Gaumont winter stock companies producing Mutual Masterpictures. One of his most recent successes in this field was "The Haunted Manor," the five-reel feature starring Iva Shepard.

Mr. Middleton has stipulated that he is to have exactly the same facilities which he enjoyed in making five-reel features. General Manager F. G. Bradford, wishing the Gaumont name to maintain its prestige in this field as well, readily acquiesced. He allowed Mr. Middleton to pick his players. The result is that the three-act Gaumont photodramas will have as their male lead Alexander Gaden. He has twice won the Chicago Tribune's "frame of honor," as well as leading in various contests of a similar nature in the east. Mr. Middleton has selected Gertrude Robinson to play opposite him. As there are occasional stories which require an artist of a quite different type, the director has secured permission to use Iva Shepard wherever occasion requires.

Lucille Taft will also appear from time to time in these productions. Among other players enlisted for Mr. Middleton's company are Henry W. Pemberton, Mathilde Baring, Charles W. Travis, Albert Macklin and James Levering.

The formation of this three-reel company in no manner interferes with Gaumont's other activities in Mutual service. The first picture with Mr. Gaden in a star role is "The Spatulate Thumb," marked for release June 22. Iva Shepard will play opposite him. Following this will be the Robert Burns story of New York life, "Gates of Divorce," the supporting cast for which will be announced later.

Proposed Ordinance for Fire Supervision of Exchanges in Detroit Is Drastic Measure

AN ordinance calculated to prevent fires and explosions in buildings occupied by film exchanges, has been introduced into the common council of Detroit, Mich. It is an ordinance which has been under consideration for some time, although it was never introduced until Tuesday evening, May 23, following the fire on May 19 which did considerable damage to the building at 159 Jefferson avenue, formerly occupied by the Universal, Metro and Bluebird film exchanges. The ordinance would require all film houses containing more than 10,000 feet of film to be denominated film storages and that they be equipped with fireproof vaults of steel and concrete; where film is kept in smaller quantities, it provides that metal cabinets be used as containers; regular inspection by the fire chief every two months is another proposed requirement; it also requires outside ventilation and sprinkler systems. The ordinance has been referred to the ordinance committee.

Should it pass, many of the film exchanges would have to seek other quarters as it would be almost impossible to fulfill the requirements of the ordinance and stay where they are. Many landlords have said they will absolutely refuse to equip their places according to the law and would prefer to have the exchanges leave their buildings. Suitable locations for film exchanges are exceedingly hard to find and they would be even more so should the new proposed ordinance be put into effect. There will be a special hearing before the ordinance committee to permit the managers of film exchanges to present their side of the argument.

KANSAS CITY FILM MEN SEND OUT 600 LETTERS URGING ORGANIZATION OF SCREEN CLUB

Over six hundred letters have been sent out to exhibitors, exchange managers, supply men and all persons interested in the moving picture industry in the Kansas City territory, asking their advice on the subject of forming a Screen Club. Three members of the Kansas City field, F. C. Mills, E. R. Pearson and J. H. Gilday, are doing the preliminary work towards such an organization, and if the combined "pep" of these three count, the Screen Club will be a howling success. If enough favorable answers are received, a meeting will be held and an organization perfected. The talk of organizing this body has been in the air for some time and it will soon develop into a material form.

PRINCESS OLGA CELESTE TRAVELS TO CHICAGO WITH 5 LEOPARDS

Princess Olga Celeste, who appears in many of the Selig wild animal comedies and dramas, arrived in Chicago, Ill., Saturday, May 20. She refused to make the business trip from Los Angeles, Cal., to the Windy City unless her five "babies", as she calls them, accompanied her. The five "babies" are five large, sleek leopards, which are now quartered at the Chicago studios of the Selig Company.

Princess Olga Celeste is one of the most capable trainers of wild animals in the world. For years she has performed hazardous actions with wild beasts in Selig picture plays. In "The Adventures of Kathlyn" she took a prominent role and made lions, tigers and leopards obey her will.

Rothacker Plant is Alpha and Omega of Studio Laboratory Efficiency

By William C. Esty, 2nd

Fireproof Establishment Occupying Entire City Block in Chicago and Built Without Wood of Any Description, Has Capacity of 2,000,000 Feet of Film a Week—Building Is Realization of Daring Planning of a Man Whose Breadth of Vision Enabled Him to Foresee the Tremendous Growth of the Motion Picture Business and Its Manufacturing Requirements

IT is impossible to speak of the new Rothacker laboratories and studios without mentioning the man who made them possible. This new plant that revises all previous ideas of studio sumptuousness and laboratory efficiency, is the embodiment of Watterson R. Rothacker's dream.

W. R. Rothacker is above all an advertising man. Up to six years ago he was engaged in magazine and general advertising work. It occurred to him that moving pictures offered a rich and undeveloped field for effective advertising. At that time motion pictures, even for amusement purposes, were in the embryonic stage. It required a most sanguine vision to foresee the future of the now giant industry, and still more imagination to believe that the films would become important in the advertising and industrial fields. Mr. Rothacker had the vision, and for six years he has labored to hasten its realization. His monstrous new plant is the concrete expression of his success.

It would be natural to expect that a man of Mr. Rothacker's progressiveness and breadth would be identified with every movement to improve the film industry as a whole. He has been re-elected vice-president of the Motion Picture Board of Trade, is serving another term as a director of the Reel Fellows Club of Chicago, and is prominent in every film and advertising organization, aiming to promote efficiency in these businesses.

Through his efforts, the advertising men of America have been made to see what a valuable aid they have in motion pictures for the solving of modern advertising and merchandizing problems. Rothacker films have been chosen to be shown at meetings of advertising men all over the country to illustrate the effectiveness of animated advertising.

Rothacker Plant Occupies Almost Whole Block

The new Rothacker establishment occupies nearly an entire city block on Diversey Parkway, Chicago, a short distance west of Lincoln Park and Lake Michigan. The location is in the city's finest residential section. Differing from the manufacturing district, the air there is not smoky and disagreeable.

The building houses the largest film laboratory in the world, having a capacity of two million feet of film per week, using only a day shift. The studio, which is operated in conjunction with the laboratory under the same roof, is one of the largest artificially lighted studios in America.

In selecting the equipment Mr. Rothacker had only one standard in mind—to get absolutely the best, no matter what it cost. Every device that has been installed was chosen because exhaustive competitive tests had proved it to be the most efficient apparatus obtainable. Experts agree that the nearest possible approach to cinematographic perfection has been reached in this plant.

Absolutely no wood has been used for construction. The building itself is of reinforced concrete. All the furniture is of steel, with a mahogany finish, and all the fittings are made of steel and plate glass. Every room is painted with four coats of special paint. All the corners of the rooms are covered to prevent dust accumulations.

Every room is equipped with automatic fire sprinklers and a large number of fire extinguishers. Water for the sprinklers is stored in an 18,000-gallon tank on the roof. Following the specifications of the Eastman Kodak Company, the Fire Underwriters Laboratories, and all fire prevention societies, the largest and safest vault for film storage in the world has been constructed. This reinforced safe, complete with adequate air cushions, sprinklers, and unit compartments, reaches from the basement to the roof. This vault is considered so faultless in design that the Rothacker Company is able to take out insurance against both fire and theft. Notwithstanding the exhaustive fire prevention measures taken, the employees are required to take part in frequent fire drills.

Temperature of Air Automatically Governed

The air is thoroughly washed and automatically governed in humidity and temperature as it is brought into the building. The foul air is exhausted from the building through a system of underground ducts. This air conditioning device was made by the Consolidated Engineering Company and installed by the B. F. Reynolds Company. All the fans and blowers were furnished by the Ilg Electric Ventilating Company.

Home of the Rothacker Film Manufacturing Company, Chicago, Ill.

The Boulevard entrance to the plant leads directly to the telephone exchange and information bureau on the second floor. On this floor are the general offices, the service bureau, the auditing bureau, and the elaborate quarters devoted to artists and animated cartoon work.

On the floor above are housed the perforating, developing, printing, washing, tinting, toning, and drying departments. In the perforating room sixteen Bell and Howell perforators of the latest model will be installed, capable of perforating 288,000 feet of film each eight-hour day. The printing room has provision for twenty-six printers. Duplex Step and Bell and Howell printers are used, beside, beside several Pathescope printers for twenty-nine millimeter film.

The rooms for developing negative and positive film are separate, each systematically arranged, and of adequate proportions to turn out two million feet of film a week.

The washing rooms are fitted with every device yet perfected for obtaining a perfect wash. This is also true of the tinting and toning rooms adjoining. All the water used in washing and developing is filtered by a battery of International filters placed next to the washing room. These also filter all the water used in the building. The tanks used throughout the plant were supplied by the Eagle Tank Company and A. J. Corcoran, Inc.

The drying room is one of the largest in this country, being 125 feet in length, and capable of drying several times the footage turned out by the printers. The film is taken from the drying room to the floor in dumb-waiters, where it goes to the assembling and inspection rooms. All the fittings of the assembling rooms are of white enameled steel, and all the employees wear gloves. The inspection room is equipped with several projectors and a Mirror Screen. The special department for titles is unusually complete.

After being assembled and inspected, the film is cleaned with Duplex Cleaners and goes to the final inspector for screen inspection. If it is passed by him it goes to the shipping department, conveniently located near the electric elevators, which carry it directly to the transfer dock.

Eastman positive and negative stock is used exclusively in the Rothacker plant. Fuller-Morrison and Company furnish all the chemicals used.

The division for the demonstration of portable projectors is especially interesting. Among the small projectors here to be seen are the DeVry, Optigraph and Portoscope machines.

The big multiple set studio is capable of handling comfortably six sets at a time. The magnificent lighting equipment furnished by the Cooper-Hewitt Company is unique in its completeness. A special light control marks a new era in studio lighting. The portable lights were made by the Chicago Stage Lighting Company.

Completely Furnished Property and Other Rooms

Ample provisions have been made for completely appointed carpenter, paint, property and dressing rooms. Special arrangements for pits and a swimming pool have also been made. The rooms set aside for cameramen's equipment, et cetera, are thoroughly fireproofed. The latest models of Schustek and Bell and Howell cameras are used.

Adjoining the studio there is a lot 48 x 129 feet for storage purposes and smaller out-door sets. The roof of the building has been converted into an out-door set of magnificent proportions. The electric elevator connects this roof studio directly with the paint, prop and dressing room floors.

Mr. Rothacker is proud of his new plant, and he has reason to be. It is an overwhelming refutation of the statement that a film producing enterprise cannot be operated in a business-like way. It is an impressive indication of the solidity and influence that the film business has now attained. Above all it is a monument to Watterson R. Rothacker's foresight and business sagacity.

NEVADA MOTION PICTURE COMPANY IS LATEST ADDITION TO COAST FILM COLONY

THE most recent addition to the Pacific Coast film colony is that of the Nevada Motion Picture Company, which has leased the Masterpiece studio on Gordon street, and is now producing two and three-reel subjects.

Prior to coming to Los Angeles, this company worked in Nevada. One subject made there, consisting of five reels, is entitled "The Little Sister of the Mines." This shows every step in the process of mining as an incidental part, and contains a dramatic story. A greater portion of this was made in the mining section near Tonapah, Nevada, which is said to be eighteen hundred feet below the sea level in some parts. Another film completed in Nevada of the same size is entitled "Signal 31." This is a railroad and western drama.

At the present time the company is engaged in filming "Duty or a Man's Soul." The principals of this are Evelyn Thatcher, Anna King, Roy Putman, and Jack Longman. The management of the company is vested in W. L. James.

TRIANGLES FOR SHOWING AT TALLEY'S BROADWAY, LOS ANGELES

Special to Motion Picture News.

Los Angeles, May 27.

TRIANGLE pictures are soon to be shown at Tally's Broadway theatre, Los Angeles, and the second release now goes to the Palace theatre on Seventh street for first run. Inasmuch as there were several weeks when no Triangle pictures were shown here because of having been booked at the Triangle Majestic, there are about twelve subjects which have not been released. Deals are now pending which will place these in down town theatres for first run.

It is understood that Triangle pictures will not be shown at the Majestic theatre, but that this house will be retained for big features. At the present time "Civilization" is enjoying a very excellent run, and following this "Macbeth" will be shown. It is hoped that D. W. Griffith's next subject, "The Mother and the Law" will be ready for release by the end of the showing of "Macbeth."

Mr. William A. Johnston,
Motion Picture News,
New York City.

Dear Sir:—

By all means continue our subscription for the MOTION PICTURE NEWS. We would not be without it. It would be like losing a member of the family to be without the NEWS.

When I took charge of this office I felt that in order to make it a success, all the employees would have to be intimately acquainted with all phases of the business, and one of the first rules that I put into execution was that every member of the force should thoroughly read the MOTION PICTURE NEWS, advertisements and all. The results that I have obtained have been surprising. Every member of our force, from the errand boy up, can talk film like experienced salesmen.

The writer has just returned from a trip through Connecticut and as the MOTION PICTURE NEWS has been the only motion picture trade paper carrying advertisements on Mutt and Jeff Animated Cartoons, I naturally inquired of every exhibitor if they had seen our advertisements in your paper. I was really surprised to learn that the exhibitors read your paper so thoroughly and have so much confidence in the reviews on the film. I always thought that the majority of moving picture exhibitors merely glanced through the paper and did not take the trouble to digest its contents.

I want to take this occasion to thank Mr. Cooper and Mr. Milne for their good work reviewing different films. I have watched their work carefully and I have yet to find a picture that was recommended by these gentlemen that did not deserve it. This kind of work is bound to help every one in the trade.

I believe that you will be pleased to hear that in the City of Waterbury that the motion picture operators think very well of the NEWS. This was brought to my attention during a conversation that I had with several of them in regard to projection.

I have written you a lengthy letter, but please remember that this has been on my chest for over a year. I have been going to call on you several times when in New York to tell you what I think of your paper. In closing I wish to state that as long as the NEWS remains exclusively a trade paper it will, in my opinion, receive the hearty support that it justly deserves from every branch of the industry.

Yours very truly,

E. L. McEVOY.

"THE MYSTERIES OF MYRA"

(International—Sixth, Seventh and Eighth Episodes)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

WHETHER or not the casual observer is willing to take black magic, devil worship, the interchanging of spirits and the projection of astral bodies over great distances, seriously, he will be keenly interested, nay even thrilled by the incidents in these three numbers of "The Mysteries of Myra." We ourselves refuse to believe that somebody's transparent spirit can be suddenly materialized when it comes under a red light and that it can be subsequently dematerialized when it encounters violet rays. However, such and similar action as pictured in these reels did not seem ridiculous. In fact it seemed quite the contrary and the introduction of this comparatively untouched variety of story in picture form increases the attractiveness of the series. Again have we used the word "series" purposely, for the sixth, seventh and eighth episodes stand on their own contents well enough to be termed separate pictures. So it is gratifying to note that the International has declined to consider the "to be continued in our next" picture.

The Whartons have continued to introduce wondrous photographic effects in the six reels in hand. Double exposure work and dissolves have been utilized with minutest perfection. The action calls for any number of these trick camera effects, although the pictures are not so laden with them as to be confusing. The remaining cares of the director have been attended to equally well in every case.

Beyond a doubt the episodes will interest. The mysticism supplied by Hereward Carrington guarantees that. The pictures have, however, a dramatic side. Take the principal situation in the sixth episode. Myra is possessed of the spirit of the Black Master and while under its influence makes plans to kill her own spirit when it again returns to her body. Imagine the strength of such a situation! There are others like it.

If, however, "The Mysteries of Myra" are being shown to an audience unable to appreciate such high spots in the action, the producers have provided ample means for its entertainment. There are thrills actual as well as dramatic that are most obvious. In the sixth number there is the destruction of a cabin by a torrent of water. The seventh number works to an intense close which comes when the materialized spirit of the Black Master is destroyed by the violet light. The eighth chapter has an unusually exciting train of action that can be best recited in the synopsis.

The work of Howard Estabrook and Jean Sothern leaves little to be desired. Mr. Estabrook makes the part of Dr. Alden human to the extreme and polished in mannerisms, while Miss Sothern proves equal to any demands of the role of Myra. Allen Murnane as Varney, the rival lover, does admirably well. throughout.

The sixth episode takes up the story at the point where Myra possesses the spirit of the Black Master and vice versa. During this period she scorns the attention of Dr. Alden and to spite him announces her engagement to Varney. Thereafter she makes preparations to kill her own body and spirit when the Black Master's spirit goes back into his own body. This is to be done in wrecking a cabin, in which the transformation is to take place, by letting loose dammed waters. The arrival of Dr. Alden, who proves the hero, prevents such disaster from being brought to consummation.

The seventh episode finds Myra and the Black Master each possessed of the proper spirit while the latter is still intent on killing the girl. Varney, whose love has turned to hate because Myra has shown plainly that she cares for Dr. Alden much more that she does for him, attempts to take the girl's life by projecting his astral body to her room, then materializing through an encounter with red light and subsequently committing the crime. He turns on the gas, hoping to get rid of her in this way, but the house wakes and rescues Myra in time. The Black Master then resolves to try the trick himself, but just as he is about to murder the sleeping Myra, violet lights installed by the ever watchful Dr. Alden shed their rays on him and with great pain he is dematerialized and the day saved again.

In number eight, a member of the Black Band having disobeyed certain rules of the organization, is commissioned by the Master to enter Myra's employ as gardener and if successful in disposing of the girl he will be allowed to live. The gardener tries once to shoot Myra and is unsuccessful. Then Dr. Alden, sensing the situation, arranges three mirrors near Myra's window and places her so that one of the mirrors reflects her person to the outsider. The gardener believes he has his chance again and fires, only to break the mirror and be discovered.

Each of these numbers is considerably elaborated by minor plots which go a long way toward furnishing interest and heightening the strength of the separate numbers. The supporting cast is very good and exceptional when it comes to considering a dog which plays no small part in the interest aroused by the sixth episode.

Howard Estabrook and Jean Sothern in Typical Scenes from the Serial

"GLORIA'S ROMANCE"

(Kleine—Chapters One and Two—Two Reels Each)

REVIEWED BY HARVEY F. THEW

THIS new serial, and newest thing in serials, gets away with everything in its favor. The elements of sustained interest appear to have been carefully studied, and handled with an expert hand, and the result is pleasing to the eye and stimulating to the imagination.

A dainty star, a capable support, beautiful scenery, brilliant photography, and an absorbing story clearly presented are the features which commend the first two chapters to exhibitor and public. Billie Burke, as Gloria Stafford, has a personality which does not disappoint her popularity; she is known and liked from Orient Point to Coronado Beach, and she has seldom shown to better advantage than in these pictures.

The Hut Proved a Welcome Refuge for Gloria

An atmosphere of "high society" always popular with the public, surrounds her and her company. In the first chapters this is in the fashionable colony at Palm Beach, where evening clothes, tennis flannels, polo ponies and automoblies vie with the brilliance of the semi-tropical vegetation in holding the eye and drawing out the interest.

Gloria Stafford is a girl of sixteen—and Billie Burke makes up very well for such a part. She is the daughter of a wealthy banker, who is spending the winter in Florida with Gloria and her brother David.

Gloria's effervescent nature rebels at the strict control of her governess, and she is continually devising means to escape her bondage. One night, while a dance is on at the hotel, Gloria, who has been sent to bed, gets up stealthily, slips on a dress, and escapes through a window. She finds the car in which Dr. Royce, a friend of her father's is planning to take a spin with a young woman, and drives it away into the moonlight herself.

She drives for miles, and finally the steering gear goes wrong, and the car dashes into the surf. Gloria wades ashore, leaving the car in the ocean. She wanders on until she is hopelessly lost in the Everglades.

In Chapter 2, entitled, "Caught by the Seminoles," Dr. Royce, who, though somewhat older than Gloria, loves her, organizes a search party. The dread Everglade swamp is penetrated, but nothing is found of the missing girl.

Gloria in the meantime, has wandered upon the home of a Seminole Indian family. She asks for food and clothes, and is apparently cordially received. To her terror she soon finds she is a captive. The Indians pretend to show her the way back. but when she resents the crude advances of her guide, she is deliberately led in the wrong direction.

Eventually she is rescued by Dr. Royce and Richard Freneau, a broker who is stopping at the Palm Beach hotel.

Henry Kolker gives a good portrayal of Dr. Royce, and David Powell, William Roselle, Frank Belcher, William T. Carleton and Jule Power greatly enhance the cast. The picture is being directed by Walter Edwin and Campbell Gollon.

"FATE'S BOOMERANG"

(Paragon-World—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

DIRECTOR Frank Crane has the happy knack of producing a realistic picture no matter with what phase of life or locale it deals with. It is probable that Mr. Crane is either vastly experienced or a student of every incident in his script. His work bespeaks of one or both of these points and "Fate's Boomerang" is highly typical of the director. The story, laid in the mountains through which a railroad is being constructed has been granted a most realistic background. The engineering scenes, the types, the atmosphere, the panoramas, the detail all combine to produce a convincing whole. In fact the director has made "Fate's Boomerang" the pleasing picture it is.

The story is conventional but extremely weighty in appeal. In it a popular theme has been dwelt upon with considerable skill. The plot moves logically and while not at all swift it entertains over all its length, building to a suitable climax which is thrilling in the bargain. What pleases us considerably and what will beyond a doubt be relished, even unconsciously by the patron, is the out and out frankness of each character. They have been correctly "planted" and are developed with precision.

Castleman, a civil engineer at work on the construction of a railroad, meets Zell, a simple yet pretty little girl of the mountains. Castleman's wife, Mildred, is a society butterfly and while her husband is away accepts the attentions of Morgan, an idler. Time goes on and Mildred decides to divorce her husband. She hires a lawyer to watch his actions in the mountains, but before he departs, Zell comes to her telling her that Castleman is unhappy without her. In Zell, Mildred sees a chance to accuse her husband of infidelity, so she and the detective follow the girl back to the mountains. The detective broaches his business to Castleman, but in the meantime, the driver whc drove the two up from the station, slightly drunk, frightens the horse and the carriage careens down the road, finally upsetting and killing the two.

Maybe George Envies the Dog

Mollie King makes Zell a most attractive figure while June Elvidge adapts herself excellently to the part of Mildred. Charles Gotthold as Castleman and Frank Goldsmith as Morgan complete the named portion of a good cast. The types seen in the minor parts are exceedingly good.

Worthy as the picture is it might be bettered if the sub-titles were reedited and a little care spent on the phrasing. Then the scene showing Mildred lying on the ground dead from the fall, might be shorted as Milderd is steadily and obviously breathing. The photography, while not up to Paragon standard, never interferes with the enjoyment of the picture.

WHYTOCK AUTHOR OF "THE ACCUSING VOICE"

THROUGH an error, F. W. Hiller was given credit on the film for the authorship of Vitagraph's three-part Broadway Star Feature, "The Accusing Voice," which was released on Saturday, May 13. In reality the story comes from the pen of Ross D. Whytock, who has written many other Vitagraph successes.

"HER HUSBAND'S WIFE"

REVIEWED BY OSCAR COOPER

THIS is a straight-out sex drama, handled in Ivan Abramson's direct, frank, and generally logical manner. Mr. Abramson is absolutely remorseless in his punishment of brutality, lust, dissipation and faithlessness. He rewards virtue, and he punishes sin. And he succeeds also in making the action of his picture move at top speed, holding the interest throughout.

He has provided a thoroughly effective ending, wherein a vampire, whose ability to leave one lover or husband for another amounts to genius—she abandons four in all—is confronted with the fact that her own daughter has married a man whom the vampire had divorced. Instead of having the daughter show compassion toward her very sinful mother, Mr. Abramson makes the mother reveal her identity to the girl, and then retract her statement, thus leaving the daughter and the husband free. The mother then takes poison and dies.

Mr. Abramson's direct methods also lead him to show the mother in various stages of dissipation, from the time when she posed in the altogether for her first lover, a sculptor, until she is lying dead at the base of a statue for which she has been the model. These scenes are nothing if not frank.

A cast headed by Sally Crute, as the vampire, Mignon Anderson, as the daughter and Augustus Phillips, as the chief husband, interprets the story, under Mr. Abramson's direction, and gives uniformly good performances. Others are Edward Mackey, Bradley Barker, Brindsley Shaw, William Bechtel and Arthur Law. Kittens Reichert appears in one of her characteristically clever child impersonations. Mr. Abramson himself appears in one or two scenes which show the taking of a motion picture in a studio.

The settings, photography and lighting are fully up to the standard of other Ivan productions.

"WHAT LOVE CAN DO"

(Red Feather—Universal—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

THE possibilities that eagerly confronted the makers of a feature starring Adele Farrington must have been numerous even though limited. Miss Farrington has gone past the time when she was able to carry an ingenue's role, but old youth has by no means robbed her of the ability to act. She is indeed worthy to be featured. But the author and director of "What Love Can Do" have not succeeded in producing a picture of even average quality.

It behooves us to announce that the story never reaches a gripping point, there is no well approached and powerfully worked out climax, there are many impossibilities in its development and its salient points are not easily comprehensible.

The opening scenes introduce an actress approaching her manager for a position. This gentleman is loath to give it to her because he believes she has outgrown her prime and with it her popularity. So she leaves a book with him to read, saying that she will come back later for an answer. The manager reads the story of a woman reporter, the same person as the actress, whose relations with her employer might startle if flouted around in select society. The employer is also an operator of oil wells and his people strike because of reduced wages. The employer grows impatient and discharges the woman reporter but subsequently when she shows her love for Quimby by saving his life at the risk of her own he resolves to marry her.

The story read, the actress re enters and the manager warmly offers her a position. Why does he? A good novelist is not necessarily a good actress and besides the novel was not good. We trust that this point will be remedied before the picture's release.

The story was by Gertrude H. Anderson and the scenario and direction were placed in charge of Jay Hunt. Others in the cast besides Miss Farrington are C. Norman Hammond, Orin Jackson, Kingsley Benedict, Margaret Mayburn (Mina Cunard) and Mrs. Jay Hunt.

"THE PURSUING VENGEANCE"

(Unity-Sales—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY WILLIAM RESSMAN ANDREWS

THERE is not a dull moment in "The Pursuing Vengeance," founded on a mystery by Burton E. Stevenson, and starring Sheldon Lewis as Crochard, a shrewd international crook who plays only for high stakes. Mr. Lewis, who brings to his work a wide range of experience on the speaking stage and later made a reputation as a screen actor of unusual ability, gives the role nerve and vitality. The various disguises he assumes in the course of the melodrama show him a master of effective make-up. His rendition of a character whose principal traits are skillful planning, effective execution and an unfailing presence of mind in all emergencies, is convincing.

The story runs along with a breathless swiftness. The spectator is held spellbound while watching exciting chases of Crochard over roofs, up and down fire escapes by energetic but disappointed detectives. In these scenes Mr. Lewis displays an agility of body expected in a character with such an alert mind.

Waiting for Crochard

The plot revolves around two boule cabinets. Crochard has used one of the antiques as a hiding place for his booty. The drawer containing valuable jewels, the gains from one of his predatory exploits among people of immense wealth, is made dangerous with poison whose slightest touch means instant death. Three men attempt to open the drawer, and the moment their hands come in contact with the surface they fall to the floor dead.

A cabinet similar in appearance is bought in Paris for an American connoisseur, but the poison cabinet is sent him by mistake. The death of Vantine, the purchaser, and others who inadvertently touch the death spot on the outside of the drawer, puzzle the police and remain a deep mystery until Jack Godfrey, a cub reporter, makes an investigation resulting in the detection of Crochard and his machinations.

The picture was produced by Martin Sabine, who shows ability in the use of incidents calculated to make the principal situations tense with dramatic action. Audiences with a penchant for straight melodrama cannot fail to be satisfied.

Scenes from Coming and Current William Fox Photoplays

"WHO'S GUILTY"

(Arrow-Pathe—Third and Fourth Numbers)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

"THE Tangled Web" and "The Silent Shame," respectively, the third and fourth numbers of the "Who's Guilty?" series, deal with more melodramatic stories than did the opening chapters. The situations forming the more essential episodes of each picture are strained to points sometimes without the bounds of plausibility.

"The Tangled Web" takes up the case of the unhappy marriage. Ruth Alden, tricked by her aspiring guardian into believing that her sweetheart is unfaithful, marries Kendrick. Their life is unbearable before long and with the return of Blair, the man Ruth really loves, the perfidy of the guardian is mode known. In revenge the two plot the ruination of Kendrick and they succeed in so doing by selling all his business secrets. Kendrick, half crazed by his downfall, shoots and kills both his wife and Blair.

"The Silent Shame," introduces Mrs. Hilliard, the wife of a disreputable lawyer. He secures a false divorce from her and then she marries Kingston. Later Hilliard makes known the fact that the divorce was imperfect and the woman goes back to her first husband. Years later Kingston marries Eunice, the daughter of the Hilliards, but he is unaware of her identity. Eunice is to star in a play written by Kingston and before her final appearance Hilliard makes known the fact that her husband once lived with her mother as her husband. In despair Eunice takes real poison in the last act of the play and Kingston learning of her death does likewise.

The production of the pictures has been attended to do with the same care that was obvious in the first numbers. Tom Moore and Anna Nilson again carry the burden of the acting most successfully. The supporting casts in both the third and fourth episodes are fully competent.

"THE THOUSAND DOLLAR HUSBAND"

(Lasky-Paramount—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY HARVEY F. THEW

BLANCHE SWEET struggles with a rather ordinary vehicle, a plot built along conventional lines, and situations which are familiar to the average spectator. There are a few touches of comedy in this subject which lighten it a bit, but for the rest, it cannot be said that it carries anything new. Its drama is melodrama, and it must be confessed that the main features of the plot are "conveniently" arranged.

The production, however, is excellent. The settings and photography are of the Lasky brand, which has for some time kept pace easily with the best that the motion picture industry can produce. There is an able cast, and several fine characterizations are furnished.

Blanche Sweet is a serving-maid in an eastern college boarding house. She worships Douglas Nelson, one of the students boarding there, and the son of a wealthy Californian.

Gordon's father fails in business, just as his son has become involved financially and has wired for money. The father sends the boy a check which clears out the bank account, and tells him it is the last he can expect. The boy loses this money in a poker game operated by a couple of sharps.

At the same time, Olga, the maid, has come into a fortune and an estate in California through the death of an uncle. One provision of the will gives her $10,000 in cash if she marries before her next birthday. She induces Gordon to marry her, in order that she may get the $10,000 and help him out of the hole; after the marriage they separate, the boy goes back to school, and Olga starts west for her new estate. She takes with her as companions the card sharps, and the mother of one, whom she engages to "make her a lady."

Out west Olga again meets her husband. He finds her greatly improved, but in the clutches of the sharpers. The leader of the band is attempting to force Olga to marry him, in order to get her fortune, but Gordon steps in, and a fight follows. Before the sharpers can make their escape they are traced by the police and arrested. Gordon realizes that he really loves Olga, and takes her home as his wife.

Supporting Miss Sweet are Theodore Roberts, Tom Forman, James Neill, Horace B. Carpenter, Lucille LaVarney, F. L. Delaney and Camille Astor. The story was written by Margaret Turnbull, and directed by James Young.

"REGGIE MIXES IN"

(Fine Arts-Triangle—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY OSCAR COOPER

HERE is Douglas Fairbanks in another sure-fire picture, not quite so novel in plot as "The Good Bad-Man" was, but still fully adequate to the magnetic Fairbanks personality. All "Doug" needs is a fair vehicle, and competent support. He will do the rest. We have yet to see a Fairbanks subject which is not distinctive.

In this case, as in "The Good Bad-Man," he is assisted by Bessie Love, whose possibilities as a screen actress are apparently limited only by the handling she receives. Bessie is a girl of the tenements. "Doug" is a wealthy young idler, whose search for adventure leads him to accept a job as bouncer in Gallagher's cabaret, where Bessie, despite the sordid surroundings and more sordid people, stays on the straight and narrow path while holding a job as a dancer.

Of course, "Doug" runs afoul of a lot of jealous gangsters, narrowly escapes death several times, and finally is challenged to a hand to hand combat for the girl by the gangster-in-chief. This fight is, without exception, one of the most terrific we have ever seen on the screen. We refuse to believe there is any fake about it, and we are quite certain that every audience which sees it will gasp more than once.

Reggie Is Accused of Cowardice

Director William Christy Cabanne, besides conducting the picture successfully in all other respects, assembled a fine collection of gangster types for the cabaret scenes. The atmosphere throughout is excellent.

In a typical Fine Arts cast are Joseph Singleton, W. E. Lowery, Wilbur Higby, Frank Bennett, A. D. Sears and many extras.

"THE SCHEMERS"

(Essanay—Three Reels)

REVIEWED BY WILLIAM C. ESTY, 2nd

THE writer happened to be in a fairly representative photoplay house recently when a picture of the same type as this one, enacted by the same cast, was being shown. The audience apparently cared not at all about the minor faults of the production, seeming to derive unmixed pleasure from the comedy-drama. There is no reason to doubt that this release will fare equally well in any theatre using program pictures.

A business man might take exception to the vagueness of the business transactions engaged in, and a college man would wonder why the students introduced are so old (one of the leads, taking the part of an undergraduate, is certainly thirty-five). But the story does not concern itself so much with the office and the campus as it does with love. In dealing with this last commodity the players are thoroughly at home, and are able to handle the predominating romance element with an expertness born of long celluloid practice.

John Junior and Elizabeth Burbridge are the ringleaders in this Cupid stuff, and they ladle it out with a touch of pleasant drollery. Harry Dunkinson's humor consists principally in his embonpoint. Several people representing rah-rah youths and gosh-durn yokels round out the cast.

Roy Jones and Bill Barton are fired from college. They sell a grocery store belonging to Jones for $300 and open a brokerage office. About to be ejected for non-payment of rent, they are commissioned to get an option on a million dollar lot of zinc. Jones' father is a well-known business man, so Roy is able to secure an option by giving the impression that he is working for his father. The boy brokers secure a thousand dollar advance from their client and proceed to spend it at a fashionable watering place. Barton falls in love with an heiress, and tells her that he is the famous millionaire Barton. When they are married, they discover they are both penniless. Jones marries his stenographer, and sells his zinc option to his father for a large sum.

"THE LIGHTS OF NEW YORK"

(Vitagraph Blue Ribbon V-L-S-E—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY OSCAR COOPER

IT is a rare thing that subtitles force themselves forward for first consideration in estimating a picture, but this is the case here. The subtitles in "The Lights of New York" are not only abundant, but they are written in an oversentimental and exaggerated vein, which detracts materially from the dramatic value of the subject.

Certainly it is out of place in a picture which does not have the drink-evil for its main, or even its secondary theme, to cut into the action with: "Strong drink is a liar, a thief." There are many other instances in which the titling is inappropriate.

If this defect were absent, we believe the picture would be well received by the majority of spectators, though it is by no means equal to the recent strong subjects from the Vitagraph studios. A crook drama, it introduces nothing new in plot, though the situations are often quite interesting, and always unobjectionable. There are a number of improbabilities, on the one hand; and considerable sympathetic interest, on the other. This last arises out of the sub-plot, in which Poppy, half sister of The Hawk, a leading crook, after long mistreatment and final desertion by him, is helped out of her difficulty by a settlement worker, and eventually marries Skelly, a reformed gangster.

The Quarrel

Leah Baird has the featured role—that of a society girl who falls into The Hawk's clutches while the latter is posing as a baron. She is about to marry him when Skelly and Poppy intervene by returning a ring which The Hawk had stolen from the girl's father, and later by identifying The Hawk at the altar.

Miss Baird is always an attractive figure, and her work is quite pleasing. Walter McGrail gives a good performance as The Hawk, and Adele De Garde is thoroughly acceptable as Poppy. Others are Don Cameron, Arthur Cozine, Leila Blow, Agnes Wadleigh, Edwina Robbins, and John Costello.

Van Dyke Brooke directed. The staging, lighting and photography are excellent.

"HIS BITTER PILL"

(Keystone-Triangle—Two Reels)

REVIEWED BY OSCAR COOPER

A CLEVER burlesque of the old school Western melodrama, combined with reckless and spectacular stunts, this Keystone made the audiences at the Rialto theatre, New York, last week gasp and roar with laughter, by turns. At one point, when Mack Swain, as a big-hearted sheriff, jumped out of the window of a house and landed on a horse, the audience burst into applause at the lightning rapidity with which the feat was performed; and a few minutes later, when Swain and the villain, Edgar Kennedy, alternately rolled with their horses down the side of a small mountain—or appeared to do so—the audience was both amazed and delighted.

In addition, there are such little pleasantries as falls from horses in full career, and a free-for-all fight, in which Swain demolishes a room-full of adversaries. The sub-titles are very clever, and the burlesque very funny. Fred Fishback directed.

"THE DESTROYERS"

(Vitagraph V-L-S-E—Five Reels)
REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

THE DINER, who has been fed more or less consistently on chicken in simple form, welcomes a change to chicken a la king. We might liken a host of other pictures dealing with the same plot to simple chicken and "The Destroyers" to the more highly flavored dish. It is a notable picture and its many good points result from the talented treatment it has received in all its phases. The opening situation of the story sets one to guessing as to the incidents which caused it and the happy ending is never staring one right in the face at any point until it actually arrives.

"The Destroyers" is an adaptation from James Oliver Curwood's "Peter God." It opens by introducing Josephine McCloud, a young woman lodging in a far northern village. She is loved by a member of the Northwest Mounted Police, Philip Curtis. He proposes to her and for her answer she sends him to Peter God, who has isolated himself in the wilds of the north. Curtis visits Peter God and is astonished to learn that he is Josephine's husband.

Then the explanation follows. Lawlor, an enemy of McCloud's, had shattered his wife's faith in him by bringing an adventuress into play. McCloud had attempted to force a confession from his enemy that he might clear himself before his wife. The enemy had fought and in the fight had drawn a pistol with the result that the adventuress was killed and Lawler himself mortally wounded. McLoud then fled to the north, but Lawlor's dying confession had told his wife the truth and she was looking for him. Curtis tells Josephine of his whereabouts and man and wife are reunited.

It has merely been a matter of relating a familiar story in an original way and the ultimate effect is that the whole picture seems original. Edward J. Montagne scenarioized Mr. Curwood's story and from the reviewer's standpoint has done a perfect piece of work.

The picture was produced by Ralph Ince. Mr. Ince is a director who gets results and "The Destroyers" is no exception to the rule. His scenes, the majority of them ranging between the realm of the closeup and the full scene, are executed with skill and have a smooth and untiring effect. The snow scenes are beautiful and the locations chosen with care.

"The Destroyers" brings to the screen a new leading lady for Vitagraph. The trade has heard much of Lucille Lee Stewart, and this is her first appearance. As Josephine McCloud, Miss Stewart fully realizes the rather slight opportunities her part affords her. Combined with her talent for screen acting, Miss Stewart is possessed of an appealing personality and features that screen unusually well.

Huntley Gordon, also a new comer to feature pictures, appears as Peter God and gives a distinctly pleasing performance. Virginia Norden, as the adventuress, adapts herself to the part excellently, while Richard Turner and John Robertson appear respectively as Curtis and Lawlor.

"SAINTS AND SINNERS"

(Famous Players-Paramount—Five Reels)
REVIEWED BY HARVEY F. THEW

IF the camera view of Henry Arthur Jones's play had no other purpose than to introduce Peggy Hyland to the American screen public, it would still rank as one of the important productions of the season. As crowded as the studios of this country are with stars, both fixed and shooting, there is still room for Peggy Hyland.

England learned to appreciate her, and there is no reason why she should not reach the hearts of America. Many an actress achieves success and popularity without reaching the hearts of her audience, but Peggy Hyland's appeal is to the heart. Beauty, of a rare English sort, she has, with intelligence, artistic ability, and magnetism, and she could hardly ask for more. Space, and possibly ethics, forbid our saying just how much we like Peggy, but the reader may infer, if he pleases, that it is a whole lot; and we will be disappointed if several million people who have not seen her yet do not agree with us before Labor Day.

The play itself is conventional melodrama, with the added touches which Mr. Jones usually gives to his stories. The characters are familiar, but they are well drawn and convincing. Although the spirit of the piece—and a number of the sub-titles—are distinctly British, the architecture, scenery, and especially the railway trains, are quite American. Inasmuch as no attempt is made to locate the story, however, this in unessential.

Peggy Hyland plays Letty, the daughter of a country minister. She is loved by a young farmer and courted by Fanshawe, a conscienceless man from the city. Although Peggy has resolved she will never see Fanshawe again, she really loves him, and meets him to say goodby. Through a trick he carries her to the city with him, and compromises her.

Banker Hoggard, who is attempting to force the minister to become a party to a shady deal, gets evidence of this compromise, and forces the minister's resignation. The young farmer stands by, and to show his belief in Letty's innocence, publicly offers her marriage. She does not accept, but instead she and her father retire to a secluded cottage, where she supports them by sewing.

Hoggard's bank fails; an epidemic of scarlet fever breaks out in the town, and Letty wins all hearts back by nursing sick children through their attack. Hoggard, fleeing from a mob of angry depositors, is protected by the minister he has wronged, and finally the old pulpit is given back to him. Letty accepts the offer of marriage from the young farmer.

The cast throughout is excellent; Albert Tavernier is the minister, Hal Forde is Captain Fanshawe, William C. Lampe the young farmer, Clarence Handyside the banker, and smaller parts are played by Estar Banks and Horace Newman. The direction of James Kirkwood is deserving of high praise.

"THE SORROWS OF LOVE"

(Kay Bee-Triangle—Five Reels)
REVIEWED BY OSCAR COOPER

BESSIE Barriscale is once more seen as a nun—the garb and the character are remarkably suited to her—in this tragedy, the main incidents of which are in violent contrast to the peace of convent walls. However much one may doubt whether a nun would lay aside the veil to become one with a crowd of Italian revolutionists, inspired by a rather thinly defined impulse to make the world better, there is no denying that her action leads to a stirring series of adventures.

She becomes the patron saint of the oppressed workmen, and tries to keep them from violence. She controls their leader, her lover, until a misunderstanding arises between them. They quarrel and the lover, becoming bitter, returns to his old atheistic beliefs and leads the attack on the palace.

The nun rushes to the palace to warn the Prince, and the workmen are defeated in a bloody battle. The leader is mortally wounded, and he prevents his followers from attacking the nun for her betrayal of them. He forgives her, and dies. The nun goes back to the convent.

All this is told in a dramatic fashion, in which Miss Barriscale's excellent abilities are put to a severe test, from which she emerges with new distinction. William Desmond is a satisfying hero, while other principal supporting roles are carried successfully by Ora Carew, Herschel Mayall and Wedgwood Nowell.

From a story by Elaine Sterne and J. G. Hawks, Director Charles Giblyn worked. As to direction, the picture is not inferior to any Ince subject we have seen. Some admirable sets—including a remarkable replica of an Italian council chamber—are used. The atmosphere is gained just about perfectly. The lighting is unusually good, and the mob types are very fine.

"POLICE!"

(Essanay-Chaplin—Two Reels)
REVIEWED BY OSCAR COOPER

THOSE who believe that Chaplin's abilities are limited to the mallet, the kick and the spinal curvature walk, should see this picture. They will be disillusioned. They will see a touch of heart interest just at the end of the subject, and they will see that Charlie's stock of pantomine includes pathos as well as fooling.

But, of course, the picture is mainly clever horseplay, beginning with Charlie's exit from prison, and ending with his flight from a policeman. The central incident is the burglarizing of a house, and it is ludicrous in the extreme. Here all the well known Chaplin tricks are brought into play.

After the eccentric burglar and his pal have gathered up everything in sight, the girl (Edna Purviance) asks them not to invade the upstairs, as her mother is very ill and the shock might kill her. The pal demurs, and Charlie is forced to knock him out. This wins the girl's gratitude, so when the police arrive, she tells them Charlie is her husband. For a few minutes thereafter Chaplin portrays a penitent, arousing sympathy fully equal in force to the laughter he had aroused before.

The supporting cast is uniformly good, with Miss Purviance ranking easily next to the star.

"THE HARE AND THE TORTOISE"

(Selig—Three Reels)

REVIEWED BY WILLIAM C. ESTY, 2nd

THE ancient fable anent the famous one sided marathon is here used to "point a moral and adorn a tale." It serves both purposes very creditably. The symbolism is carried out by interpolated scenes showing a race between a real tortoise and a real hare.

The human counterparts of these creatures are John and Sidney Drake, brothers and college classmates. John is the tortoise, a studious plodder. Sidney, the hare, leads a dissipated life, but is a star halfback. His football ability makes Marion Lee, a girl loved by both brothers, to admire him.

After graduation, Drake, Sr., a steel magnate, puts both boys to work in his mills. Sidney soon quits, but John steadily learns the business. When the father dies, he leaves the steel plant to John and a hundred thousand dollars to Sidney. Sidney soon loses his legacy and asks John for a loan, saying that he will let him have Marion. John indignantly refuses to consider such an offer. Marion overhears this conversation, and acquiring a new respect for the Tortoise, marries him shortly afterward.

As in all college films, the students are too old, and the football men are too light and inept. With the exception of this common flaw, William Daly, the director, exercised unusual care in handling the details of the production.

The players, too, take more pains than are usually evident in a program release. Harry Mestayer, Edward Piel and Fritzie Brunette are an attractive trio of leads, ably seconded by Harry Lonsdale, Edith Johnson, Lillian Hayward and William Scott.

"WHISPERING SMITH"

(Signal-Mutual Masterpicture De Luxe—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY WILLIAM C. ESTY, 2ND

HELEN HOLMES as a dare-devil film heroine needs no introduction. Since this photoplay is adapted from Frank Spearman's popular railroad novel, one expects to see Miss Holmes riding brake-beams, piloting locomotives, and in other spectacular ways saving life and property. Instead, she appears as a housekeeper of intense domesticity, and only rarely does she leave the seculsion of her kitchen to foil the villains.

This unwonted staidness is not confined to Helen Holmes. The picture itself reels by placidly and with some reiteration, the even tenor of its course now and again being interrupted by a well-engineered thrill. The most intense thrill is furnished by the wrecking and demolishing of twelve freight cars.

The story deals with the fight between the officials of a railroad company and a gang that loots wrecked trains. The railway delegates Whispering Smith, a detective, to run down the thieves. Smith finds that Sinclair, leader of the gang, is the husband of Marion, Smith's former sweetheart. On this account he gives up the case, but later resumes it when the crooks wound his brother. Smith kills his brother's assailant and collects evidence against the looters. He finds that the thieves are the wrecking crew employed by the railroad. A bridge is burned, and evidence is secured to show that Sinclair was the incendiary. But Smith, to save Marion's feelings, lies to save the man.

This ending to the story is unsatisfactory, but the forthcoming sequel film will doubtless settle the fortunes of the characters in a way more pleasing to the spectator. It is hard to understand why the railroad is so lenient with the thieves and murderers. The only penalty inflicted on the men is a threat to discharge them if they repeat their offences.

Helen Holmes performs her few daring stunts with characteristic vigor, and shows considerable poise in the less strenuous moments of the play. J. P. McGowan is excellent as Whispering Smith, and Paul Hurst makes a good contrast with the villain's role. Other players who appear are Thomas Lingham, Chance Ward, L. Maloney, N. Wood, Sam Appel, F. Van Norman, Walter Rogers and William Brunton.

"SHADOWS"

(Knickerbocker Star Feature-General—Three Reels)

REVIEWED BY OSCAR COOPER

GOOD direction and attention to details of production have made an interesting subject out of ancient plot material. As a whole, we should say that "Shadows" is above the average program picture, largely because the lighting, sets and photography have been attended to with skill. The continuity is satisfactory.

The cast is entirely acceptable. It includes Frank Mayo, who appears in a dual role; Lillian West, Harry Southard and Philo McCullough, who worked under the direction of Reaves Eason, with supervision by H. M. and E. D. Horkheimer.

The story tells how Agnes Wilson weds an artist, Robert Howard, preferring him to his brother, John, a business man. Robert goes blind, and Agnes goes to John for aid. He makes the usual proposition, which she indignantly refuses. A struggle ensues, and Harry Duncan, a clerk, saves Agnes. While the fight is proceeding, Agnes steals some money from John's desk. Duncan is accused of the theft, and is sent to prison for five years. Agnes returns the money, by placing it with a note in a book in John's house. He finds it, but keeps silent. When Duncan is released, he meets Stockwell, a novelist, and changes places with him, so that the novelist may discover at first hand how the police mistreat an ex-convict. He meets Agnes and gives her a job as his secretary. Stockwell, mistaken for Duncan, is arrested when he enters his own house to get some money.

Then Agnes learns who Duncan is. Together they go to John and demand reparation. He refuses. John is about to kill Duncan, when Agnes kills the former. Agnes and Duncan are left to each other.

"BOBBY BUMPS GOES FISHING" AND "PICTOGRAPHS"

(Paramount—One Reel Each)

REVIEWED BY HARVEY F. THEW

BOBBY BUMPS is an unusually clever animated cartoon by Earl Hurd, from the Bray studios. It is one of the best of this kind we have seen. Bobby and his father go fishing; father's line is idle, while Bobby hauls in the fish as fast as he and the pup can bait the line and throw it over. Father compels him to change places in the boat, but the luck still follows Bobby.

Looking at Typical Scenes in "Notorious Gallagher," New Metro Photoplay, with William Nigh and Marguerite Snow

Tense Moments From the New American Serial, "The Secret of the Submarine"

Later Bobby plans to change father's luck. He buys a huge artificial fish, fits it with motor and propeller, and getting inside with the pup, drives it by father's boat. Father catches this fish and takes it home, where he is showing it with considerable chest, when Bobby and the dog step out. Father's anger is appeased when a string of real fish is produced from the inside.

On the same reel is an interesting study of insects, reptiles and vermin which ruin the farmers' crops, by R. L. Ditmars, curator of the New York Zoological Park.

This number of the Pictographs contains a study of "How the U. S. Fleet Might be Destroyed," and "The Making of a Sailor," by Renry Reuterdahl, "Better Babies," an instruction in child life in the country, instruction of first aid to the injured about the home, an article on "Jobs You Would Not Want," and the further adventures of "The Trickids."

"THE SPIDER AND THE FLY"

(William Fox—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY OSCAR COOPER

HOW an actor of great ability can dominate a picture although he appears in relatively few scenes is well illustrated in "The Spider and the Fly." Robert B. Mantell, given a small amount of footage, portrays in thoroughly convincing fashion a man ruined by drink and the wiles of a vampire. Mr. Mantell deserves great credit for making this character of genuine sympathetic appeal, when one considers that he is forced to depict it in gruesome detail.

The Duel

In fact, it is the players who make the picture convincing. Assisting Mr. Mantell are Genevieve Hamper, as the vampire; Stuart Holmes, as a human parasite, who is aided in his campaign against young women by the vampire; Claire Whitney, as the parasite's daughter, who is saved from evil by the intervention of a young American, Walter Miller; William Gerald, as roue; Henri Leone, as a priest; Genevieve Blinn, mother of the parasite's daughter; Franklin B. Coates; Ethel Mantell, Stephen Grattan, Louise Rial and Jane Lee.

Without exception, the work done by the cast is good, evidencing also the fact that Director J. Gordon Edwards has been much more successful in his handling of the players than in the maintenance of continuity. The action runs to incident almost entirely, which means that it is "jumpy," and does not present a smooth surface of coherence. Despite this, it has enough really dramatic moments to put it over.

The locale is French, and the locations and sets are exceptionally good. Some of the exteriors give one the impression that the subject was made in Jamaica. Whether it was or not, no fault can be foundt with the atmosphere. In most scenes, also, the lighting is excellent.

The story is one of the typical vampire sort, although its very complications, caused chiefly by the large number of characters, keep one guessing as to what is going to happen next. Some of it is very unpleasant, as for example, the attempt of the three characters, impersonated by Miss Hamper, Mr. Holmes and Mr. Gerald, to bring about the ruin of the young girl, played by Miss Whitney. This line of action is rendered more involved by the fact that, in character, Miss Whitney is the daughter of Mr. Holmes.

MILLER APPROVES SIX IVAN PICTURES FOR BOOKING ON THE POLI CIRCUIT

R. H. MILLER, who supervises the booking of pictures in the Poli houses, has contracted with the various Ivan exchanges to play all Ivan features in the Poli circuit of theatres.

Mr. Miller had the last six Ivan plays screened for his personal examination and after viewing them expressed himself as satisfied with the fact that they would do a big business in New England and Pennsylvania.

HAR-COL FILM WILL PRODUCE PLAY FROM SCRIPT

PRODUCTIONS FROM ALL PROGRAMS

GENERAL FILM PROGRAM

"Our People." (Essanay. Three reels. Sat., June 5.)—The abundance of "human interest" in this picture is created by the character of its story and the excellent work of the well-cast players. With the exception of one irrelevant episode toward the close of the film, it is a closely knit, congenial tale. The colloquial subtitles are very effective. Bryant Washburn is a good hero, and Gertrude Glover, playing opposite him, is charming. The support afforded this pair by Thomas Commerford, Richardson Cotton, and Florence Oberle is strong.

Ed Bryce, editor of a country newspaper, is in love with Ellen Calhoun, the daughter of the local banker. Her father will not hear of their marriage, but Bryce wins him over by catching an embezzling cashier and by averting a run on the bank.

"Orphan Joyce." (Essanay. Two reels. Tues., June 6.)—Not shown for review; the story follows. Mr. and Mrs. Mason adopt a little girl named Joyce. Some time later Mason is to be declared insolvent if he does not produce $5,000 in cash the following morning. That night Joyce captures two notorious burglars, and, having collected five thousand dollars' reward, turns it over to her guardian. Appearing in the picture are Joyce Fair, John Cossar, Marion Murray, John Thorn, and Jack Milton.

"Vernon Howe Bailey's Sketch Book of Berlin." (Essanay. Split reel. Wed., June 7.)—Sketches of the principal government buildings and palaces of Berlin, with five hundred feet of Western American scenic.

"Fools' Gold." (Essanay. Three reels. Sat., June 10.)—Not shown for review; the story follows: Mrs. Rowe, wife of a wealthy young business man, is the dupe of two card sharpers. She loses so much to them that she takes a diamond from a piece of jewelry owned by her and offers it as payment. A thieving maid steals the mutilated jewelry, so Mrs. Rowe's act is not discovered. The swindlers are later arrested, and the young wife is cured of gambling. The cast is composed of Darwin Karr, Nell Craig, Patrick Calhoun, and Marion Murray.

"Frilby Frilled." (Lubin. Mon. May 29.)—An amusing burlesque of "Trilby" with David Don as Svengarlic, Patsy De Forest as Frilby, George Egan as Diggo, Charles Ebbinger as Billy, and Bernard Siegel as a sculptor. It is farce all the way, with a pleasingly small amount of slapstick injected into the action. Edwin McKim directed.

"The Final Payment." (Lubin. Two reels. Tues., May 30.)—This is a well produced version of an old story centering about a wife's folly in taking money for the final payment on her bungalow to pay a bridge debt. Eventually everything is cleared up, and the husband never knows. Leon D. Kent's direction is chiefly responsible for the good effect of the piece as a whole. Helen Eddy, as the wife, easily takes the honors. The rest of the cast, which includes L. C. Shumway, Velma Whitman, Melvin Mayo, and George Routh, does pleasing work. Settings, photography, and lighting are excellent.

"The Code of the Hills." (Lubin. Three reels. Thurs., June 1.)—In the general run of Lubin three-reelers this will rank high. The story is well worn, but except for occasional over-length of scenes, the action is put together quite well. Lucy Payton, in a dual role of mother and daughter, gives an expressive performnace. Others are Melvin Mayo, Millard Wilson, Adelaide Bronti, Cecil Van Auker, and Evelyn Page. The atmosphere would have been more striking if a few hills had been shown in panorama. However, some beautiful exteriors are used. Considerable heart interest is worked into the theme, which pivots on the marriage of an uncouth mountain girl to a city attorney. The direction is by Melvin Mayo, under the supervision of Capt. Wilbert Melville.

"Pickles and Diamonds." (Lubin. Sat., June 3.)—A welcome relief from slapstick, this picture contains a good comedy idea, which is effectively but not brilliantly worked out. It satirizes the once rich father who wishes to recoup his failing finances by marrying his daughter to a wealthy young man. The young man is also bluffing, as he hasn't a cent. In the cast are Francis Joyner, Flo Williams, June Daye, and Kempton Greene. Clay M. Greene directed from a script by Dave Reed.

"A Temperance Town." (Selig. Three reels. Mon., June 5.)—Otis Harlan in a screen adaption of Charles Hoyt's play differs greatly from Otis Harlan speaking Hoyt's sparkling lines from the boards. While the celluloid version must necessarily resort more to burlesque, it yet possesses a not inconsiderable amount of humor. Barring two or three suggestive scenes on a bathing beach, the fun is clean. While there occasionally seems to be a lack of spontaneity, most of the episodes proceed briskly and naturally about the difficult business of securing laughs. Beside Otis Harlan, Grace Darmond, John Charles, James Bradbury, and Leslie King appear.

Jonesville votes to go "dry," so the innkeeper sells his establishment to Jones, a jack-of-all-trades. Jones opens a blind-tiger, and imports some fly damsels from the city to act as waitresses. The local vice committee decides to investigate the morality of the girls, but falls victim to their charms. Jones takes a moving picture of the committee-men embracing the girls. Later, the blind-pig is raided and Jones is fined three thousand dollars. By showing his moving picture to the committee, he forces them to pay his fine.

"Going West To Make Good." (Selig. Sat., June 10.)—This latest Tom Mix offering has a more pretentious plot than most of Mix Westerns can boast. Essentially, it is the same sort of thing this studio has been turning out for some time. The good horsemanship of the actors is the outstanding feature. Victoria Forde and Joe Ryan appear in Mr. Mix's support.

Vicky, a society girl, refuses the attentions of Tom Gilmore because his hands are not calloused. Tom goes West to get the necessary manual hardness. Months later Vicky arrives in the same Western village, and, while on the way to her uncle's ranch, the stage-coach is held up. Tom rescues her and wins her love.

"The Land Lubbers." (Vim. Fri., June 2.)—A rocking room, which gives the players and the spectators the same effect as that produced by a ship on a storm-tossed ocean, makes this slapstick of novel interest. The comedy is of the usual Burns and Stull type. Others in the cast are Ethel Burton, Frank Hanson, and Billie Fletcher.

MUTUAL PROGRAM

"Jealousy's First Wife." (American. Two reels. Mon., June 5.)—A most improbable tale, with an ending that does not wholly satisfy, is the basis of this release. The three excellent leads are well directed and the settings are luxurious. The story occasionally takes a melodramatic turn that brings in a few mild thrills. George Periolat, Vivian Rich, and Alfred Vosburgh, the principals, have Louise Lester and Robert Klein in their support.

Withington is a successful business man but a poor husband, since he is insanely jealous. He constantly accuses Helen, his wife, of being faithless. One day Helen is struck by a car belonging to Truax, a young clubman. Truax takes the girl to her home, and is seen there by Withington. The infuriated husband knocks Truax on the head and throws Helen out of the house. The girl falls in the hands of a pair of white slavers, but is rescued by Truax. Later Helen divorces Withington and marries Truax.

"A Plane Story." (Vogue. Tues, June 6.)—Not shown for review; the story follows: Rube, chief mechanic of the U. S. aviation corps, is entrusted with a copy of the service's new code. A spy tries to steal this from him, and many adventures ensue. After a terrific fight aboard Rube's aeroplane, the mechanic foils the foreign agent and wins the hand of the colonel's daughter. The comedians are Rube Miller, Arthur Tavares, Joseph Ray, Madge Kirby, Henry Huckins, and Alice Neice.

"Billy Van Deusen's Operation." (Beauty. Wed., June 7.)—This piece has a slightly higher laughing average than the general run of Beauties. The favorite cast works in some new business, and not a few of the subtitles are genuinely humorous. Among the farceurs are John Steppling, Carol Halloway, John Sheehan, Dick Rosson, and Robert Klein.

Billy Van Deusen, a corpulent bachelor, is much enamoured with a pretty nurse. He pretends to be injured and is taken to the hospital. A lunatic escapes from his padded cell, and puts another man's diagnosis chart on the door of Billy's room. The doctors are about to operate on the protesting man, but the nurse discovers the mistake in time. When Billy is informed that the nurse is married to one of the doctors, he begins to inhale from an ether bottle.

"The Pilgrim." (Mustang. Two reels. Fri., June 9.)—The film is saved by the good work of Frank Borzage and Anna Little in the principal roles. The Western atmosphere is well created, and there are occasional well executed bits of directing. The locations were selected with great care, and the photography is excellent.

"The Pilgrim" is a nomad cowpuncher who travels constantly from one ranch to another. At the Bar Z ranch he knifes a man, but with the help of the rancher's daughter, nurses the man back to health. He falls in love with the girl, but finding that she is engaged to be married to an Eastern man, wanders along.

"Thinnen Stout." (Beauty. Sun., June 11.)—Not shown for review; the story follows. Mr. and Mrs. Stout want to get rid of their excess embonpoint, consequently they go to Thinnen, the great reducing specialist. Mr. Stout is the first to take the treatment, and in half an hour he is a skeleton. Mrs. Stout is disappointed in his appearance and asks Thinnen to make her husband as he was before. This Thinnen does, but when Stout regains his strength he gives Thinen a terrific beating. The leads are taken by Orrol-Humphrey, Lucille Ward, and John Gough.

"His Blow Out." (Vogue. Sun., June 11.)—Ben Turpin, Paddy McQuire, and their assistants dash through this thousand feet of film in a frenzy of slapstick enthusiasm. If the velocity of the players as they nimbly speed through familiar antics will put this comedy across, it ought to go big. A great deal of the business is the kind that the average audience finds highly amusing. Assisting the principals are Arthur Moon, Rena Rogers, Jack Connelly, Edward Sedgwick, and Louise Owens.

The action centers around Bungling Bill and Bloggie, two gentlemen of leisure, who undertake to run a plumbing business while the owner is away on his honeymoon. Complications are caused by a broken water pipe, a stolen necklace and a jealous husband.

UNIVERSAL PROGRAM

"Peg o' the Ring." (Universal Special Feature. Episode Five. Two reels. Week of May 29.)—Peg, imprisoned in the circus trunk, is carried away by counterfeiters who believe they have run across something valuable. In the counterfeiters den it is learned that Mrs. Lund is their leader. Peg discovers this, but manages to remain hidden. Dr. Lund, Jr., tracks Peg to the den.

"The Madcap." (Red Feather. Five reels. Mon., June 5.)—Reviewed at length in last week's issue.

"Never Again Eddie." (Nestor. Mon., June 5.)—The husband is a flirt so his wife masks as a man and his brother-in-law as the wife and they speedily cure Eddie. This is a very good comedy; the laughs result from fine situations and the players are fully capable. J. Lewis is the author while Al Christie directed Eddie Lyons, Billie Rhodes and Lee Moran. Moran does the female impersonator again.

"The Rose Colored Scarf." (Gold Seal. Two reels. Tues., June 6.)—A romance between a society miss and her chauffeur very finely done with ever so many genuine comedy touches. William Worthington directed from a scenario by Ben Cohn. Herbert Rawlinson and Agnes Vernon as the lovers do their usual good work. The production is good as a whole, but the scenes taken in the moving automobile are very hard on the eyes.

"His Little Story." (Imp. Tues., June 6.)—An amusing picture in which a crook by telling his listeners a sad tale manages in the meantime to extract their bank rolls and watches. Matt Moore as the crook is the central figure while Jane Gail appears as his mythical wife.

"Object—Matrimony." (Victor. Two reels. Wed., June 7.)—A comedy by Paul West featuring Harry Myers and Rosemary Theby. It is a sure laugh maker, one of the cleverest comedies turned out from the eastern studios in some time. The situations and the acting have turned the trick.

"Billy's Waterloo." (L-Ko. Wed., June 7.)—Billy Ritchie as a strong man and Gene Rogers as his rival furnish fair comedy in "Billy's Waterloo." Quite naturally the reel closes in a wild fight, that is about average.

"Alias Jane Jones." (Laemmle. Thurs., June 8.)—Why authors will suddenly take it into their heads to dub plain, common, characters, detectives when their pictures close will always remain a mystery to us. Here we have two crooks who separate from a former pal and later they catch him with the goods and it turns out that the pair of crooks are not crooks at all but detectives. This is a good picture except for this final phase which fails utterly to convince. The action is a little impenetrable at times but on the whole the story is easily understandable. William V. Mong wrote the scenario and Ray Myers directed. Mong, Edna Maison and Ray Hanford are the principals.

"The Sea Lily." (Big U. Thurs., June 8.)—The story of an old lighthouse keeper who adopts a child washed ashore from a wrecked ship. Years later when she is grown to womanhood her fortune is regained by her lover and the old man is left to his loneliness once more. Good scenes and photography mark this release which is rather pointless. Thomas Jefferson and Zoe Bech are featured. George Cochrane directed from a scenario by Calder Johnstone.

"The Scorpion's Sting." (Victor. Three reels. Fri., June 9.)—Another English picture made by Percy Nash depicting the all but successful efforts of a man who has sold himself to the Devil to ruin a young minister. Concidence plays such a large part in the melodrama that it presents a very amateurish surface. The production is poor, the properties being cheap and the handling of the scenes old style. George Bellamy and Fay Temple are in the cast.

"The Code of His Ancestors." (Rex. Fri., June 9.)—A strong version of the eternal triangle that makes a most desirable release. One point in the action, that scene where the husband presents the third party with a check to sign, was not exactly clear but otherwise the reel is as good as could be desired. Ben Wilson, Dorothy Phillips and Charles Ogle are the principals.

"Twixt Love and the Iceman." (Nestor. Fri., June 9.)—Showing the very humorous complications that arise between the butcher and the iceman, who are rivals for the widow's hand. It makes an average Nestor with quite a few laughs, although the tedious chase might have been left out with better effect. Neal Burns, Gus Alexander, Stella Adams, Harry Rattenberry and Billie Rhodes are the principals.

"The Cage Man." (Bison. Two reels. Sat., June 10.)—A conventional subject told in a way that brings little suspense. The convict released on parole, goes over his past, how he neglected his wife and accused her of being unfaithful to him and how attacking his rival he shot a policeman and thus was jailed. He seeks revenge, finds his wife and her new husband happy, and the child prevents him from doing anything rash. G. Raymond Nye, Roberta Wilson and Hayward Mack are the leads here. The action in the print shown gave no evidence that the convict's wife divorced him. Jacques Jaccard directed from a story by Harold Burr.

"Betrayed by the Camera." (Powers. Sat., June 10.)—A child comedy in which Irma Sorter and Gordon Griffith are the leads. A group of children turn the camera crank on an idle motion picture company and when the sample print comes on the manager learns all about the bad habits of his company including his wife's flirtation with the juvenile lead. This makes very good entertainment.

"Phony Teeth and False Friends." (L-Ko. Sun., June 11.)—The greater part of the action taking place in a dentists parlor, this comedy in respect to locale and plot is rather worn. The action while provoking laughter to a certain extent is only fair measured by the recently attained high standard of the company. Reggie Morris and Gene Rogers are included in the cast.

"The False Gems." (Laemmle. Sun., June 11.)—E. J. Clawson who did this scenario for Rupert Julian hit upon a new way of telling an old story and the results are excellent. The father of the false wife lies to save her husband's happiness. There are many original situations in this strong release. Julian, Elsie Jane Wilson and Douglas Gerrard are the principals.

PAVLOWA

THE INCOMPARABLE—IN

"THE DUMB GIRL OF PORTICI"

The Supreme Artistic Achievement of the Decade

Produced at a cost exceeding a quarter of a million dollars

STATE RIGHTS NOW SELLING

The biggest production that ever hit Broadway. The supreme moving picture of the century. Pavlowa, the Incomparable in the wonderful screen adaptation of Auber's opera, "The Dumb Girl of Portici," produced by the Universal Film Manufacturing Company at a cost of over a quarter of a million dollars. By arrangement with Max Rabinoff. Directed by those geniuses of the film world—Lois Weber and Phillips Smalley.

An appeal, and a punch that will attract every moving picture lover. Has played to capacity at return engagements in Chicago and New York. An assured success which offers State Rights buyers the opportunity of a lifetime. Territory still open and offered for sale includes Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Nebraska, Colorado, Wyoming, New Mexico, Utah, Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina and New York State (excluding Greater New York).

Wire, phone, write or call for full particulars. Special advertising campaign ready for use of Exhibitors. Address promptly, STATE RIGHTS DEPARTMENT.

UNIVERSAL
Vol. I WEDNESDAY, MAY 5, 1916 Nos. 5-6
AN APOLOGY
To our many exhibitors who attended the Powers Theatre, Wednesday afternoon, at 2:00 P. M., to review the first „ episode of "Peg o' the Ring," the Universal all-star serial, the undersigned offers a humble apology for the numerous stops which were necessitated during the first reel. We feel mighty bad over it, even now after it is past, and beg the pardon of one and all who were compelled to look at a blank screen. For the injustice to all parties concerned, we wish to state these numerous stops were in no way caused through the fault of the films. Mr. Van Duzee, the general manager of the exposition, can explain very readily the whys and wherefores. Again we apologize and offer our regrets.
Editor-in-Chief.
Everybody is having a good time at the Armory; The wise ones booked Peg o' the Ring

Had it been used in this particular instance there would have been a different story to tell.

Everything for Theatre, Exchange and Studio

Motion Picture Projection Simplified

By J. H. Hallberg

98—While it is stated in the answer to question 96 that by wrong connection a choke coil wound in two sections besomes inoperative, just why does this happen and will you describe the effect in greater detail where the coil is connected wrong as illustrated in Fig. 48?

Ans. — A choke-coil in performing its work in reducing the line voltage to that required for the load which may be an electric arc, depends upon the following:

The ohmic resistance of the wires from which the coil or coils are made which you know is a very small portion of the voltage drop required and is therefore negligible and not necessary for us to consider in using a choke-coil.

The reactance of the coil depends upon the creation of magnetic flux in a laminated iron core by the impuse of current in one direction during the fraction of a second upon the reversal of the magnetic flux, during the next fraction of a second when the generator has reversed the current in the Alternating distribution system. The reversal of the current, of course, depends upon the number of cycles for which the generator is made.

Now, if you have only one winding as has been illustrated in figures 43, 44, 45 and 46, the direction of the current flow through the winding will always be uniform during the impression of current from the line. It is true that the current is reversed the next instant and then reversed again, but the current always flows during each cycle impression in one positive and one negative direction, but it goes in the same direction through all of the turns in the coil which means that the magnetic lines of force, or the magnetic flux is created in one direction under the influence of every turn of wire in the coil.

This condition allows, therefore, the magnetizing coil, as illustrated in Fig. 43 for instance, which illustrates the answer to question 86, to maintain the upper end of the magnet core as a north pole and the lower one as a south pole for an instant or a fraction of a second while the current is coming in at the top and leaving at the bottom end of the coil, as in the illustration. The next instant when the current on the system is reversed it comes in at the bottom of the coil and leaves at the top which reverses the magnetizing effect of the coil and as a result the lower end of the iron core in Fig. 43 will then become north and the upper one south. This is correct of course with the understanding that the windings are put in the direction which will cause the upper portion of the core to be north when the current comes in through the top terminal of the coil. This condition can be changed at will by winding the coil in the opposite direction and is merely a matter or original design.

With the magnetizing coil split in two sections as illustrated in Fig. 47 when the connections are correctly made you still have the same relation of magnetic polarity as you have in the single coil construction.

On the other hand if the coils are reversed relative to each other by wrong connection as illustrated in Fig. 48 then the upper coil will tend to magnetize the iron core in one direction for instance making the upper end north pole and the lower end south pole, but upon the same core there is the second coil in reversed relation which tends to undo what the first coil is trying to do in that the second coil or the lower one tries to make the upper pole south and the lower one north.

This condition of affairs nullifies the magnetizing effect of the windings, one bucking the other and as a matter of fact, the core will show little or no magnetism, because the creative coil in tending to magnetize the core has its effect neutralized by the opposing coil, so that the choke-coil does not even get started to do its work and no effect is produced, excepting the resistance drop due to the ohmic resistance of the copper windings the real choking effect of the coil is lost because the magnetism necessary to set up the counter electro motive force in the windings of the choke-coil is not present.

It has been neutralized or rather never created, and the practical consequence of such a condition will be, that your fuses will blow the moment the switches are closed and the carbons are put together. I am trying to get into the mind of the reader the fact that in A. C. apparatus, the ohmic resistance or what is usually known as resistance in series with the circuit, is very small and that the real resistance or the reactance is caused by the magnetic flux created in the iron core, setting up at the instant the current is reversed in the A. C.

line, a counter current or kick which limits and balances the current flow. The effect of this limiting or balancing upon the arc is the same as the introduction of a long resistance wire, wound in a spiral, but the heat with the A. C. device is reduced to a minimum and in consequence thereof, the current loss is very small as compared with rheostat control for an arc lamp requiring only about 35 volts on a 110 volt A. C. line.

THE EYE AND LIGHT INTENSITY AFFECTING VISION OF PICTURES

By Herbert W. Andem

OF what use is a motion picture to the blind? Obviously the photo-play does not appeal to them. They can get a great deal from the performance in one of the legitimate theatres, however. Hearing the dialogue and receiving occasional verbal coachings from a "seeing" companion, the blind are placed on an equal and get almost all from a visit to one of these theatres as a "seeing-man."

In a motion picture theatre this is not so. For a "hearing-man" and a "deaf-man" are upon an equal footing here. The eye is the all-important factor. Its nature is to be understood and its habits or workings are to be catered to. It is one essential toward obtaining good projection. Operators will advance much in their work and raise the standard of projection by making themselves a student of the eye and laws and nature of light.

The eye passes final judgment on the projected picture and, therefore, should receive consideration from the operators and manufacturers of projection machines. To do so, however, the operator must leave the domain of electricity with its mystery and enter the field of physiology. The available knowledge is more or less limited and uncertain. The time is at hand when demands will soon open the doors to the unknown laws and nature of the eye and light. It is true scientific investigators have already provided us with much information on the general action of the eye and its relation to light, but, there is still much to be learned before we can make exact allowances for its behavior under the artificial lighting systems and reflections from the screen. It is to be hoped that by a brief description of the eye and light it will be shown that there does exist a very important relation between them, and that this relation is of sufficient practical importance to demand attention from operators. Several states have laws requiring exhibitors to use only direct-current for projection of motion pictures and these laws will soon be followed by other laws requiring operators to be up in the knowledge of the eye and light.

The Eye, Light, and Color

The human eye is illustrated diagrammatically in figure 1 and is shown to consist of six essential parts, namely, the cornea, the anterior chamber containing the aqueous humor, the iris, the crystalline lens, the cavity containing the vitreous humor, and the retina. From the following description and the accompanying diagram, it will be observed that the eye resembles very strongly the modern photographic camera.

Let us follow a ray of light through the eye, observe its path and the actions and processes it sets up. The light is admitted through the cornea, a transparent extension of the eyeball shaped somewhat after the fashion of a watch crystal. It passes through the aqueous humor, a transparent jelly-like substance, and reaches the iris. The iris is the colored part of the eye and consists of a circular curtain, a continuation of the middle or choroid coat of the eye and is capable of increasing or decreasing the diameter of its opening—the pupil—allowing more or less light to pass through as is required for correct vision. The light next strikes the crystalline lens, a transparent elastic body controlled by a muscular ring—the ciliary muscles—which enables it to change its curvature to accommodate or fucus the eye. Passing through the vetreous humor, the light reaches the retina, which is the delicate network of nerve centres, possessing the property of converting the radiant energy into the sensation of sight. The retina plays such an important part in the process of seeing that it may interest the reader to know a little about its essential structures.

The retina is a very complex structure which, while only 0.01 inch thick, is composed of ten separate layers, but for the purpose of this article we will consider it as consisting of tiny nerve centers called rods and cones from their shape. The cones are most numerous in the fevea, which is the point of greatest sensitiveness, the ratio of cones to rods decreasing towards the outer regions of the retina. The rods are believed to be active in the determination of form and brightness and the cones in color perception. Furthermore, in dim illumination the rods only are effective, while for higher intensities the cones become active and colors are sensed. You have perhaps experienced at twilight the ability to see objects, although unable to distinguish their color. The cavities at the ends of the rods contain a bluish watery-fluid called visual-purple, which is being decomposed by the action of light and constantly replenished from the pigmentary cells in the choroid coat of the eye. However, when the eye is subject to too strong an intensity of light this visual-purple is bleached out more rapidly than it can be secreted, with the result that the vision is dimmed or blurred. Darkness or dim illumination will usually enable the eye to recover its normal condition.

In its path through the eye, the light encounters four refracting mediums, namely, the cornea, aqueous humor, crystalline lens and the vitreous humor. These refracting surfaces are shown at 1, 2, 3, and 4 in diagram, figure 1. It will also be noted that the eye, unlike most optical instruments, does not focus by changing the distance between lens and retina, but by changing the shape or curvature of the lens. This has been indicated in the diagram by showing the position for nearby and distant focus.

The eye is subject to the principal defects of the ordinary optical instruments. These are spherical aberration, which causes the central part and the edges of the crystalline-lens to focus in different planes, and chromatic aberration or the failure to focus all colors in the same plane. These errors do not enter to any serious degree and cause us no inconvenience in the ordinary process of seeing. On the other hand, the eye is capable of functioning through a wider range of intensities than would ordinarily be expected from any scientific instrument. It serves us with equal convenience for intensities corresponding to faint moonlight or to the direct rays of the noonday sun—a ratio of about 1 to 5,000,000.

One of the fundamental laws to be observed in placing light sources is to avoid locating lights of high intrinsic brightness in the field of vision. Intrinsic brightness is declined as the candle-power emitted per unit area of surface. For comfortable vision this value should exceed 5 to 10 candle-power per square inch. This law should also be the standard for screen illumination to give a pleasing reflection from the picture.

The Eye and Its Relation to Color Values

The eye responds to radiations having wave lengths between certain limits. The long wave lengths give the sensation of red as they grow shorter pass in succession through all the colors of the spectrum: Red, orange, yellow, green, blue, indigo, violet. Waves longer than the visible red and shorter than the visible violet are termed, respectively, infra-red and ultra-violet. These is a profitable investment. It is the simplest, most dependable and most efficient device for transforming a.c. into d.c.—and you know how necessary direct current is for projection. The clear, bright, white non-flickering pictures you can get with the G-E Mercury Arc Rectifier tells in the long run at the box office. And the big saving in current bills is another strong point in favor of your investment.

IS THERE ANY GIVEN NUMBER OF AMPERES TO A HORSE POWER? IS QUESTION FROM ROCHESTER, NEW YORK

G. W C., Rochester, N. Y.—Is there any given number of ampheres to a horse power? Does it depend upon the construction of the device that is using the pawer?

I have just received the last "News," issue of May 27, and have read, "The Waste in the Operating Room," That is fine. Why don't you say something about making patches and the devices for making patches? What do you think of the Edison Patcher? It may be all right but the price is a little too big for the average operator. I get some awful patches in our films.

ANS.—In response to your question as to whether or not there is a given number of amperes to a horse power, I must reply in a broad sense by stating, No.

In order to make this matter clearer to you, herewith is the following information: One H. P. equals about ¾ K. W. or to be exact, 746 Watts. One K. W. of course equals 1,000 Watts.

Taking for granted that you have available at the terminals of an electric generator, one H. P. or 746 Watts, then you must know the voltage of the generator before you can determine the number of amperes you may safely take from the generator.

As an illustration, we might assume that you have a generator capable of delivering 746 Watts or one H. P., and that it is wound for 100 volts; then in order to find out how many amperes this generator will deliver we divide 746 Watts by the voltage which is 100 and this leaves us a quotient of 7.46 amperes.

Suppose we have a similar generator of one H. P. delivery capacity or 746 Watts and the generator in this instant is wound for 60 volts, then we divide 746 by 60 and we find that you may take from a 60 volt generator of the same capacity about 12¾ amperes.

Suppose you have a low voltage generator, such as used for an automobile, which usually delivers about six to eight volts; then we would divide the capacity of the generator which is 746 Watts by 8 volts, which gives us a quotient of slightly over 93 amperes.

From the foregoing examples you will see that the ampere delivery from a generator rated at one H. P. or 746 Watts, depends entirely upon the number of volts, or in other words upon the number of turns and the size of wire on the armature and the field coils, so that if the machine is wound for a low voltage, a heavy amperage can be taken out and if the machine is wound for a higher voltage a lesser number of amperes may be had.

Now in figuring the power required to produce a given number of amperes at a given voltage then there are other factors which enter into the consideration of your problem and they may be enumerated about as follows when the generator is driven by an engine.

First, you must ascertain the brake H. P. of the engine. Sometimes an engine is rated at 10 H. P. That may be the rating on the basis of the indicated H. P. and there are unscrupulous manufacturers who sell their engines on the basis of the indicated H. P. without so specifying, whereas the actual brake H. P. at the pulley or fly wheel of the engine may be 25 per cent. less, or around 7½ H. P. for a 10 H. P. engine and this 7½ H. P. or actual brake H. P. is the available power or real capacity of the engine.

Now, if you use this engine for driving an electric generator, with a belt between the engine and the generator you have a loss of at least 10 to 15 per cent. in the belt transmission, depending upon the quality of your installation and the size of the plant.

The next item you must consider is the internal losses in the electric generator which for a small machine ranges any where from 15 to 25 per cent. depending upon the quality of the generator, so that if you wish to secure 10 H. P. at the terminals of an electric generator, which would be equal to about 7½ K. W., then you must add to this figure about 25 per cent. for the electrical and windage losses and friction within the generator if it be direct-connected to the engine. If the generator is driven by a belt between it and the engine you must add another 10 per cent. loss for the belt and then you have a loss within the engine of about 15 to 25 per cent., so that it will take a considerably larger engine that the actual output of the generator. On the above basis the figures would be about as follows:. 1.8 K. W. loss in the generator. 750 Watts loss in the belt and about 1.65 K. W. losses in the engine, making the total capacity of the engine or in other words the fuel required on the basis of about 9.9 K. W.

We know that there are, in round numbers, 750 Watts in one H. P., therefore we have to divide 9.9 K. W. by 750 Watts which equals about 13 H. P. which will be the capacity of the engine required to deliver 7½ K. W. for the electrical load.

Now, you can easily determine how many amperes you can get out of the generator. You can make the generator deliver any amperage you want, by winding it to suit your conditions within the capacity of 7,500 Watts, as that is the maximum output of the generator, and you may use the formula I gave you in the beginning of this answer.

The Edison film splicer or patcher is about the best machine of its kind there is on the market today and there is nothing cheaper for accomplishing the purpose. I believe every proprietor ought to provide his operating room as part of the equipment with an Edison or similar Film Splicing device, and the four or five dollars invested in such an apparatus is money well spent. There is nothing more annoying than to have a film open up in the middle of a performance, not only once but time after time, as happens where the films are not carefully spliced.

It is a fact, of course, that the majority of operators can make a perfect splice by hand, but it takes a good deal more time than you sometimes can spare and therefore the film splicer is an accurate and quick time saving device.

You never write in too often to this department. We invite your co-operation and will be glad to answer any questions which you may have in mind. In the book, "Motion Picture Electricity," which costs two dollars and fifty cents, you will find a complete set of formulas, on pages 17 to 22 inclusive, for figuring the amperes, volts and watts.

HE USES A POWER'S 6-A D. C., 45-FOOT THROW, WITH 60 TO 80 AMPERES, AND IS TOLD TO USE FROM 20 TO 30

L. B. F., Trent, S. D.—I am using a Power's 6-A D. C., 45-foot throw and picture 8 by 10. I am not satisfied with my projection and am using 60 to 80 amperes, while I am supposed to use 20 to 30. In fact I am notified to this effect. Now, what can I do to come within the demands. I am using a small rheostat supposed to be 25 to 40 amperes. Carbons are ½ and ⅝ inches. Where can I get a good work on projection, in fact, on operating a motion picture machine.

ANS.—Your condition is evidently not explained exactly as it exists. Just how you can use a Power's 6-A with D. C., and a rheostat which is adjustable from 25 to 40 amperes and how you can draw 60 to 80 amperes through this rheostat if it is made for the voltage of your circuit, I cannot conceive, unless you keep your carbons almost together and then, of course, you would not get the light and your amperage would be considerably higher than it ought to be and your rheostat would be red hot.

Now, in order to put you right and in order to be able to solve your problem, I want you to answer the following questions.

1. State voltage of your D. C. circuit. 2. Do you receive the D. C. from the electric lighting company's mains or do you generate your own D. C.? 3. If you have your own plant state the size, style and make of engine with the H. P. and also specify the make, size and style of generator as marked on the nameplate. 4. How do you know you are using 60 to 80 amperes? 5. Why are you supposed to use 20 to 30 amperes and who notified you to that effect? 6. What style rheostat are you using which you claim to be 25 to 40 ampere capacity? State the make of your rheostat and what is stamped on the nameplate, that is, the voltage and the capacity in amperes. 7. Give make of carbon used and whether cored or solid.

If you answer the foregoing questions I can put you right. In the meantime, I want to say that for your distance of 45 feet, with a picture 8 by 10, you should, as stated receive good illumination with about 30 amperes D. C. at the arc with the carbon points about ¼ to ⅜ of an inch apart, which gives a potential drop of about 50 volts, using a ⅝-inch cored carbon in the upper holder for the positive and ½-inch solid or cored carbon in the lower holder for the negative.

Perhaps your arc is burning upside down. To determine this, start your arc and let it burn for about 20 seconds and pull the switch. If the upper carbon is the hotter you are all right. If on the other hand, the lower carbon is the hotter pull your switch and reverse the leads so that the upper carbon will always be the hotter as it should be with D. C. and which signifies it is the positive.

The book, "Motion Picture Electricity," is the latest and most complete work on all matters pertaining to the illumination and control of various electrical devices for projection. The price is $2.50. Each manufacturer issues a most complete instruction book which is always up to date for the various type projectors manufactured. If you will kindly signify to this department the machines in which you are interested I will be glad to see that you get the right information and instruction books without charge.

OPERATORS OF DAVENPORT, IA., MOLINE AND ROCK ISLAND, ILL., RECEIVE CHARTER FROM THE I. A. T. S. E. & M. P. M. O. of U. S. & C.

THE NEWS is in receipt of the following from an organization in whose aims and ambitions we are in hearty accord.

"We, the moving picture machine operators of the cities of Davenport, Ia., Moline and Rock Island, Ill., wish to make it known to the public that we now have a direct charter with the I. A. T. S. E. & M. P. M. O. of U. S. & C.

"Our union is known as the Moving Picture Machine Operators Protective Union, Local 433 of Davenport, Ia., Moline and Rock Island, Ill. It was chartered on March first.

"Prior to that date we were members of Local 85 I. A. T. S. E. & M. P. M. O. of U. S. & C., and by withdrawing from Local 85 to take up our new charter we do so with the best wishes of Local 85. Like all other labor organizations, we must cater to the public for support as much as possible. All such support will be highly appreciated by this organization.

"To the average observer, moving picture operating is simple and does not require much experience, but as a matter of fact it is one of the most complicated crafts that there is to-day. To become a first-class operator requires years of study and experience to handle successfully the various electrical equipments and apparatus.

"The operator must understand thoroughly the different makes of machines, their principles and operation. The principles of optical projection must be understood in order to meet the different requirements under different conditions. There are set rules to everything in the projection of pictures which are different in practically every different installation of moving picture equipment, depending on local conditions. The operator must be an electrician and a mechanic and must be always on the alert to detect any fault with any of the different parts of his equipment or the picture. All these and a great many other things the operator must know in order to project at all times a first-class picture.

"This union wishes to convince all exhibitors who, heretofore, have not employed union operators that it is to their interest to do so and they will be benefited thereby. We respectfully request the public to give us their support by patronizing theatres employing union operators and they will endeavor to make the motion pictures themselves an attraction worth your patronage.

"To all members of organized labor bodies we tender the co-operation and good fellowship of fellow workers and to the theatre-going public we extend the respects of the Moving Picture Machine Operators Protective Union, Local 433, I. A. T. S. E. & M. P. M. O. of U. S. & C., Davenport, Iowa, Moline and Rock Island, Illinois. The officers are Theo. J. Garretson, president; C. C. Derr, vice president; Fred O. Slenker, recording secretary; Oscar E. Moody, financial secretary; Arthur R. Brock, treasurer; Hugo E. Thoensen, business agent, and Henry C. Thompson, guardian. Fred R. Parker, W. H. Myers and H. S. Gould are delegates to the Tri City Trades and Labor Assembly."

If Local 433 can maintain the high standard they are setting themselves they are bound to prosper, and they will also become a credit to the International Alliance and to the motion picture industry as a whole. The question is not, can you do it, but will you do it? The time has now passed when any "Tom, Dick or Harry" can go into the operating room of a motion picture theatre and qualify as an operator. It calls for, as you say, "years of study and experience to handle successfully the various devices and apparatus used in connection with the projection of pictures." But do not lose sight of the fact that it also calls for a continuation of that study if you are to become competent, efficient and reliable operators.

At this time you are filled with enthusiasm; highly elated over the fact that you have been granted a charter from the I. A. T. S. E.; you are anxiously awaiting the arrival of the "union slides" and display cards. Let us say this, and we know whereof we speak, do not be too hasty; go carefully; don't build your house until the foundation has been laid. Don't be too insistent that the union slide be shown, until you are sure that your work merits the showing it.

You are to be highly commended when you state, "that you will endeavor to make the motion picture an attraction worthy of being patronized" through the efficiency of your organization's membership; that efficiency which can only be obtained through hard labor and study.

The NEWS will be pleased to learn from time to time as to the progress being made by Local 433, and will be at all times willing to assist through the columns of this department men who will live up to the foregoing in every particular.

ISIS IS LANDMARK OF GOOD PICTURES IN DENVER AND DRAWS BIG CROWDS OF SATISFIED PATRONS

THE Isis theatre, Denver, which is owned and managed by S. L. Baxter, uses a Wurlitzer-Hope-Jones Unit Orchestra organ at a cost, including its installation, of $50,000. It duplicates every known musical instrument and the singing of human voices. Some of its pipes are thirty-four feet long and thirty-four inches in diameter, and others are as small as a child's toy. It is built over, under and at both side of the theatre's auditorium. It requires a thirty horsepower electric motor to operate it. With this addition to the Isis, Mr. Baxter has accomplished his aspirations, that is, to make the theatre one of the best, if not the most up-to-date in the country.

The owner of the Isis started in the motion picture business in Denver in 1908. At that time he opened the old Isis, one block from his present location on Curtis street. Mr. Baxter has always believed in giving the public all he possibly could for their money, and even then, furnished music with an orchestra of ten to twelve pieces, equally as good as one would see and hear in most first-class theatres anywhere, at an admission price of five cents. His success can best be judged by referring to the New Isis, which he built two years ago. It occupies the most prominent location among the moving picture theatres in the city, and cost, including the ground on which it is built, $250,000. It is modern in every respect, with a seating capacity of 2,000.

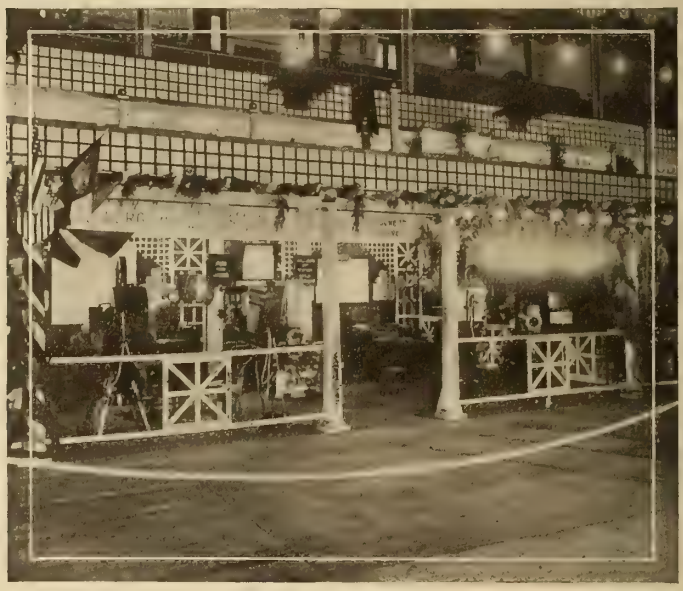
The space was No. 7, occupying a space 25 feet wide by 20 deep, and was located between the Universal and Vitagraph booths. A complete working model of the Rialto theatre equipment, as installed by S. L. Rothapfel, was on exhibition, including one Hallberg Twentieth century motor generator, complete with Rialto type controlled board, operating a Baird projection with Arc controller. The light from the machines was projected onto a special screen, called the "Rialto Screen."

Connected to the same motor generator was a Power's 6-B machine, complete with motor drive. On the right hand side of the exhibit was a Satin Gold Fibre Screen with a Simplex latest type projector, equipped with type "S" lamphouse, fitted for operation up to and over 100 amperes. Speer projector carbons were on prominent display and samples in neat pasteboard boxes were given away in behalf of the Speer Carbon Company.



Booth of J. H. Hallberg at Grand Central Palace Exposition

In the centre of the exhibit was an artistic electric fountain surrounded by plants and flowers. In the rear of this, was a complete miniature model of the Rialto stage setting as made by the Lee Lash studios, and above the fountain a Beseler Stereo Motorograph which displayed automatically changing advertising slides. The Motorograph can be loaded with 50 to 60 slides, and then by the mere turn of a switch one slide after another will be exhibited automatically.

Mr. Hallberg also had on display one of his new gasoline engines directly connected to a generator. This consisted of an 8 H-P engine directly connected to a 4 to 5 K.W. generator of special design. This outfit generates about 70 to 80 amperes at 60 volts or 40 to 50 amperes at 110 volts. It furnishes power for the motion picture arc as well as for the house lighting.

A complete line of Caille ticket selling machines and Caille specialties were on display. There were also installed several spotlights with D. C. to D. C. economizers and motor generators of various types. Another exhibit was the Kinak, a small motion picture machine which uses a paper film and in that respect is different from all other projectors.

The exhibit was under the personal direction of J. H. Hallberg, assisted by M. L. Livingston, W. H. Rabell, C. B. Wilson, J. Arigo and Melville Chandler. J. S. Speer, president and general manager of the Speer Carbon Company, was present for several days. The Feaster Film Non-Rewinding machine was prominently displayed and demonstrated on both Powers and Simplex projectors.

Characteristics of Photographic Developers

Ortol, Considered the Equal of Metol, for Negative Development, Can Be Varied Within Wide Limits and Is Adapted to Deal With All Kinds of Exposures—Another Reagent is Eikonogen, Which Produces Splendid Gradations and Abundance of Delicate Detail

Another developer which in the motion picture industry has always been considered the equal of Metol for negative development, and by many classed ahead of Metol for negatives is:

ORTOL $C_6H_4 \begin{matrix} OH \\ OH \end{matrix} + 2C_6H_4 \begin{matrix} NH \\ OH \end{matrix} CH_3$

Chemical Name, Equivalent Combination of Monomethylorthoamidophenol with Hydrokinone in its chemical state.

Ortol, which was discovered by J. Haff of Feuerbach, is very similar to Pyro in some respects and its value as a negative developer resides in the fact that it can be varied within wide limits and therefore is adapted to deal with all kinds of exposures.

In appearance Ortol is a coarse crystalline powder and may easily be dissolved in water. It combines with Sodium Sulphite in a colorless solution but cannot be used with effect unless a Carbonate of Sodium or Potash is added, which is generally done in such quantity as to form a rapid developer.

An Ortol bath will be found to work free from any tendency toward chemical fogging and most exquisite shadow detail obtains with its use. Although Ortol builds up the high lights in a plucky manner, the gradation in the resulting negatives does not suffer and will be found fully equal in quality to that secured with a Metol developer.

As in the case of Pyro an Ortol developer is very sensitive to the action of Potassium Bromide and also to lowering of the working temperature of the bath. This makes it an admirable developer for dealing with overexposures and so great is the influence exerted upon an Ortol developer by Bromide and low temperature that it is advisable to omit the Bromide from Ortol baths in the winter. Ortol shows further similarity to Pyro in the soft character of the negatives secured with its use and also as regards the color of the reduced silver comprising the film images which is a brownish black.

Ortol is preferably made up with Sodium Sulphite, Sodium Carbonate, Potassium Bromide and a small amount of Potassium Metabisulphate, which latter acts as a preservative and keeps the solution from deteriorating with undue rapidity. By decreasing the amount of the developer proper and increasing the amount of Carbonate softer results may be secured, while on increasing the amount of Ortol and decreasing the Carbonate, a slower acting bath is had which will give vigorous contrasts. The addition of Caustic Alkali acts as an efficient accelerator to the action of Ortol solutions while as before noted Bromide exerts a strong restraining influence.

Ortol Has Satisfactory Keeping Qualities Under Most Conditions

Whether mixed with a carbonate of Sodium or Potassium, Ortol solutions show satisfactory keeping qualities providing some Metabisulphite has been added in compounding them. An Ortol bath made up without Sodium Sulphite (which, however, is rarely done) will not keep for more than a day.

A negative film developed in Ortol may be easily distinguished by those experienced in such matters, due to the fact that an Ortol bath stains the gelatine of film to a reddish brown color. This is more than offset in cinematographic work by the fineness of grain of the reduced silver, a highly desirable feature in motion picture negatives, and no other developer yields as fine grained a silver deposit as does Ortol. The reddish stain imparted to the film by the Ortol developer has not been found a hindrance in printing positive films, as motion picture printing machines are invariably provided with a powerful light source.

Another reagent especially adapted to negative development and possessed of many good properties for that work is:

EIKONOGEN $C_{10}H_5 \begin{matrix} OH \\ NH_2 \\ SO_3\,Na \end{matrix}$

Chemical name, Sodium Salt of Amido B Napthol Sulphonate.

The developer Eikonogen was discovered by Professor R. Meldola and introduced into photographic practice by Dr. M. Andresen of the "Agfa" Co. of Berlin.

Eikonogen shows a combination of several active organic groups and occurs in the form of a white or sometimes yellowish powder which is comprised of minute crystals of rhomboid shape. It should be dissolved in boiling water, when it will form a colorless solution. An Eikonogen solution will remain colorless even after the addition of Sodium Sulphite and Potassium Carbonate providing it has been compounded properly.

No trouble from chemical fogging will be experienced when developing negatives with Eikonogen, and the rendition of shadow detail will be found very satisfactory.

Eikonogen is a developer which produces splendid gradations and an abundance of delicate detail in the negatives secured through its use. This quality in an Eikonogen bath is present even though development be forced (prolonged) and thus the popularity of Eikonogen for dealing with brief exposures, such as focal plane camera work and underexposure of all classes, is explained. Where there have been extreme contrasts in the lighting of a subject, a soft and pleasing negative is assured, providing development is performed with Eikonogen.

Reducing Action of Eikonogen Bath Controlled by Bromide

The reducing action of an Eikonogen bath may be readily controlled by the addition of Bromide of Potassium, 10 per cent solution, and diluting the mixed developer with water also decreases the speed of its action. Variation of the working temperature of an Eikonogen developer will affect the density of the developed images. A cold solution will produce negatives showing thin deposits while raising the temperature of the bath above the normal will cause exceedingly dense images to be formed.

Provided that Eikonogen solutions have been made up with boiling water, as previously recommended, they will be found to keep for an indefinite period, and an Eikonogen bath can be used many times before becoming exhausted, its reducing power leaving it very slowly.

The preferred ingredients of an Eikonogen bath in addition to the developer proper are Sodium Sulphite and Potassium Carbonate. Although Sodium Carbonate may be employed the Carbonate of Potash will be found best to use in conjunction with Eikonogen. When particularly soft negatives are desired it is advisable to use only one half the usual amount of Potassium Carbonate in making up the developer.

Due to its good keeping qualities and long life Eikonogen does not stain the gelatine of photographic emulsions and the images yielded by it are of a bluish black color.

There are, in addition to the developers described in this series of articles, various other organic compounds used as developers in photographic work, but as they all have their failings, such as poor keeping qualities, chemical instability, or incapability of action without the use of caustic alkalies (which cause severe shrinkage of the film on development) they have not been found desirable for use in processing cinematograph film and therefore mention of such compounds is not made here.

COLUMBIA THEATRE, PITTSBURGH, UNDERGOES ALTERATIONS AT NIGHT, TO AVOID INTERFERENCE WITH DAY PERFORMANCES

Special to MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 29.

IMPROVEMENTS are to be made at the Columbia theatre in Fifth avenue, Pittsburgh, as a result of the change in management. The theatre several weeks ago changed hands.

The contract has been let for new chairs. They will be of the latest pattern and will be more roomy and more comfortable than the ones now in use. The interior is to undergo a change which will make it one of the best lighted and best ventilated of the theatres here.

The management is also going to install a new front which will be of the very latest pattern. All of the posters and signs used by the theatre will be of the brass frame order and the ticket booth will be remodeled and enlarged.

A fine new ventilating system will also be installed which will make the theatre one of the coolest in the city and will make it possible to lower the temperature by 20 degrees over that outside the theatre. The improvements are to be rushed and most of the work will be done at night and on Sundays so as to make it possible for the theatre to be run during the day and evening. A large corps of workmen will be put on the job and it is estimated that three weeks will be required to make all the changes.

Music and the Picture

Edited by Ernst Lux

No Set Method in Picture Playing, is View of Rogers

Organist of Luna Theatre, La Fayette, Ind., Who in Seven Years' Experience Playing for the Pictures Has Tried Various Plans, Declares There Are No Set Rules for Directors and Leaders to Follow at All Times—There Are Moments When Best Results Can Be Obtained by Improvising, He Thinks

I HAVE been reading with interest the articles on music for the pictures, that have been appearing in MOTION PICTURE NEWS. I have been playing pictures for the past seven years, and have been confronted many times with puzzling situations that come to leaders of picture music only.

I have made a study of picture playing, and have tried various methods in doing so, and I find that there is no set method, nor any set rules that a director or leader can follow at all times.

I do not say that orchestra music is not successful for accompanying pictures, but I do say that it takes an orchestra of thorough musicians who understand harmony, and counter-point harmony, and have a fair knowledge of theory. Because there are times when the best results can be obtained by improvising; I find this most successful when the leader or director is either playing organ or piano.

When I am directing an orchestra in a picture house, I arrange to see the picture myself in advance, say in the morning, and then I select my numbers and arrange them on each musician's rack, as I want them to be played. Understand me, according to the different theme and situations as I have interpreted them. I may use one or a part of one of Chopin's "Nocturnes" or a part of one of Mendelssohn's songs without words—for example, "Consolation," Op-30 No. 3.

When I use a number of this type, I try to arrange it to be played at some time when it will fit the situation, and will not have to be improvised upon or cut short at any time. If at any time I feel that I should change the theme of music I first consider whether I can increase the tempo, or decrease the tempo, make the passage cresc, or dim, and get the desired effect; if I do not think it will fit the scene I then hit a high note on the piano or organ, whichever it may be, then decrease the tempo, and diminish in volume until very ppp. When I think I am soft enough I improvise the music to fit the scene in a relative key to the one we had previously been playing in, starting in very ppp, then gradually increasing in tempo and volume as the scene demands. When I think the action will permit, I quit improvising in the same manner as I began it and modulate into the key of the number we were playing previously and so on through the picture.

Another thing I would like to state is this, I never allow my music to rise above the action of the picture, because I feel that it would detract the attention of the audience and the picture would not get all the credit that was due it.

Runs Tone Themes Through Pictures

Of course I run nice little tone themes through the picture, but I am always sure that it fits the picture, then the audience gets the benefit of the numbers you render, and they carry them with the scenes as they are portrayed upon the screen.

If I want to feature a brilliant overture, I do it between shows when it will not detract from the picture and when the picture will not take the mind of the audience from the overture, or selection that is being rendered at that time.

I feel that the picture comes first for the approval of the audience. Then if you have anything to feature, do it in its place. I believe that if these ideas would be followed more closely that the box office receipts would increase universally, and success for the manager you are working for means success for you.

I am playing a large Seeburg one man orchestrian at present and I follow the same ideas in organ playing that I do in directing an orchestra. The instrument I am playing at the present time is a wonderful aid to any theatre, and with an organist who will put in a small amount of time each day, learning different combinations and the best places to use them will bring business to any theatre if the instrument is in accordance with the size of the theatre carefully operated. No one man instrument can be successfully used if not rehearsed upon, so the best that is in it can be gotten out.

Of course a great deal depends upon the ability to execute correctly and maintain an organ touch and not a staccato touch of the piano. Now I do not know it all by any means, and I am only stating my ideas and experience.

In conclusion I wish to bring in one more very important item. Some shallow managers do not want religious music played for pictures, but to my mind they are very narrow minded individuals. Why? Because if a scene that demands sacred music was not essential it would not be in a picture and if the theatre is good enough for the scene, why not the music? What is sweeter than a scene of a gray headed mother about to pass away with her loved ones around her and you hear the soft strains of "Some Day the Silver Thread Will Break" coming out of the hidden pit? Just recently I had the chance to use "Abide With Me" piano solo, with flute obligato, there was not a dry eye inside the house. I touched some that would never go inside a church. If we can reach people in that way, doesn't it pay to use sacred music now and then when it fits the scene? Does it not elevate the picture theatre in the eyes of the knockers.

EDITOR'S NOTE: I very much appreciated the above letter on account of the frank manner in which the writer expresses his methods for playing pictures and ideas for selecting music. Letters of this kind create a line of healthful thought which ultimately is the means whereby we hope to form a central point to which the many diversified opinions will lead.

With the writer's consent, I want to make a few suggestions which I would not have him misconstrue as being adverse criticism.

The very fact that there are so many different methods for playing pictures and that the muscician allows himself to believe there is no possible set method is the best proof that "music and the picture" lacks the proper co-operation among those who should be the most interested in it. When the musicians are both equally capable, it is difficult to believe that one can and the other can't and I am sure, after proper observation is made, that the correct answer will be found in the fact that the one will and the other won't.

The time is not far off when there will be few set methods and they will be followed by picture players who desire to continue in the work. There has been an idea among pianists and modern-taught organists who have attained to a certain extent the genius of improvisation that they are natural-born harmonists or musical theorists. This is erroneous, for in most instances I have found this advanced ability to be the result of either a better memory or more trained ear for music and seldom the result of an over abundant amount of knowledge of harmony.

It is only necessary that the musician thoroughly understands his instrument and knows how to perform on it to be successful in the musical profession and do whatever line of work in music may be required of them. There is absolutely no limit to the knowledge of music that a leader can have or should have.

"Leader" Sometimes Means a Musician Is Behind

Twenty years ago the name of leader implied that the one entitled to such a title must be proficient in all branches of music. Consequently he was usually a harmony student. Today I am sorry to say that in many musical organizations the leader is the least competnet musician in the organization. As in many other businesses, it has come to pass, even in music, that a "pull" as it is termed in politics, has had more weight in obtaining and retaining positions than ability. This has been a sad blight upon the musical profession and my personal endeavors shall always be given to eradicate it.

Through a misconception of musical facts, and the exploitation of motion pictures in the past, music has been made too little of and the musician has consequently suffered by the belittling of his profession. Music is nevertheless coming back to its own and while there are still many musicians blaming the pictures for their professional deterioration, they will have more to be thankful for when music and the picture eventually rises to its zenith.

After the few points in the beginning of your communication, I thoroughly agree with you, and might say that you are calling the manager out of his name when, as you say, he objects to the playing of religious music when it is played properly and at the proper time, for he is really not a manager and certainly not an adept pupil in the field of theatrical make-believe.

I shall always be glad to hear from Mr. Rogers and thank him for his interest in this department of MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

PURCHASE OF INSTRUMENTS IN LONE STAR STATE SHOWS EXHIBITORS DO NOT BELIEVE IN "STARRING PICTURES ALONE" WITHOUT MUSIC

JULIUS LEVY, Brady, Texas, has purchased a U Wurlitzer for his new theatre. This instrument is equipped with the Duplex Roll system, which permits the operator in the machine booth to change the music instantly from rag or popular refrains to deep, classical music, to fit the picture.

Another exhibitor to better his music is W. R. Fairman, Bryan, Texas, one of the oldest exhibitors in the state. He bought one of the Style U, Wurlitzers, some days ago.

The Western Automatic Music Company, of Dallas, recently made sales to the following exhibitors: V. J. Grunder, Cuero, Texas, who bought a Style O Wurlitzer Orchestra Organ; Sam Hefley, Cameron, Texas, who bought the first automatic instrument for a picture house in Texas, a specially built Style K Wurlitzer; L. B. Green, Rotan, Texas, who purchased a big automatic Wurlitzer. The Garden, managed by L. B. Crute, Jefferson, Texas, and the Elk, managed by F. A. McConicho, Marshall, Texas, also purchased Wurlitzer orchestra-organs from the Western.

MACBETH RESIGNS FROM WESTERN AUTOMATIC, DALLAS, AND JOINS THE UNITED

W. W. MACBETH, secretary and treasurer of the Western Automatic Music Company, of Dallas, for the past four years, has disposed of his interests and severed connections with that concern and is now with the United Music Company, a recent addition to the "music-for-the-theatre" concerns in Dallas. The Western handles Wurlitzers and the United distributes the American Fotoplayers.

ALL Kimball Organs are masterpieces, whether they consist in a carefully selected group of orchestral tones for a house seating less than five hundred or whether they contain every instrument that can be utilized in the most exacting picture and enough of them to fill the largest auditorium with musical sound. The electrical mechanism is quick, accurate, dependable and puts the whole instrument as completely under the domination of the organist as the symphony orchestra the conductor.

TWO PICTURES SHOWN AT ONCE AT DONTON PARK, SAN ANTONIO, TEXAS

THERE is a summer theatre in San Antonio, Texas, that has many features that place the show in the unique class. It is operated in a park specially built for the motion picture business, covering about a fourth of a city block in the heart of the business district in the city. The walls are decorated with vines and flowers; there is a bandstand and band of twenty-five pieces; a hundred and fifty tables are situated so as to command full view of both screens, and seat six or eight hundred. The main auditorium in the open air will easily care for three thousand with comfortable benches and chairs. Cushions, similar to those used in baseball parks, may be had at an additional five-cent piece.

Upon two screens, situated so that the audience may view either, pictures are projected from two operating rooms. One screen carries comedies only, one and two-reelers. The other screen carries a five, six or larger film. What may be called the main auditorium (for it's all open air) is excavated about five feet, giving a beautiful terrace effect. Three ticket booths are distributed to get the dimes—yes, it's ten cents admission—one booth facing on Commerce street, one on Crockett street and another on Houston street.

The man who conceived this novel show place is Dr. W. F. Box, owner and operator of the Petticlair theatre, a five hundred seat house along the usual lines, in the city.

The place is called "Donton Park"—as Dr. Box explains it, "Downtown Park" with the "W's" left out.

One may deposit a dime at any box office, walk in and enjoy beautifully rendered band selections, two picture shows simultaneously, sit at a table, be served with almost anything in the "eat and drink" line, and in addition, enjoy the natural advantages of any park in summertime, when people of the Southern section hunt cool places.

The Donton Park opened on May 27. Merchants on Commerce street got together when they heard of the project and offered Dr. Box a monthly bonus if he would erect and equip a place along the lines he had in mind.

TEST OF STERN PROJECTOR BEFORE DEALERS AND EXHIBITORS IS PLANNED FOR JUNE 1 IN NEW YORK

SAMUEL STERN, president of the Stern Manufacturing Company, Inc., of 1032-25 Race street, Philadelphia, has completed arrangements by which his new Stern projector will have a demonstration at 217 West Forty-second street, New York City, beginning June 1.

Invitations have been sent out to dealers, manufacturers and exhibitors in and around New York to examine the machine and test its ability. A competent machinist will be in charge to answer any questions. The projector will have a motor attachment. After the New York demonstration is over, the projector will journey to Chicago for the Motion Picture Exposition in that city on July 10, space having been taken there by the Stern Company.

SPEED CONTROLLER PLANS DISTRIBUTION OF MACHINES FROM SUPPLY HOUSES WITHOUT TERRITORY LIMITS

THE Speed Controller Company has just announced that it has given up its original distribution plan of assigning a definite territory to a special distributor. From now on various supply houses located in strategic geographical locations will handle the output without any regard whatsoever to territorial jurisdiction. Already eight distributors have been appointed in accordance with this new arrangement in seven different cities.

PACE PIANO COMPANY OPENS OFFICE IN DALLAS

THE Pace Piano Company, with headquarters at Beaumont, Texas, has opened an office in Dallas on Elm street, near the Hippodrome theatre. They are handling the Seeburg line of Unit orchestras and automatic pianos and orchestrions.

Note: In music plots each reel of film is divided into 10 units of time, each unit denoted by one X representing about 1½ minutes. Consequently when a number is designated by XX it plays about 3 minutes, XXXX about 6 minutes, etc. When no X appears after musical description it means that the number is very short and does not play a minute or more. When cues to stop numbers are in quotation "——" it means that the Cue is reading matter or sub-title. All other cues are action on screen. All segues should be made quietly and clean. When quick segues or abrupt stops are necessary it will be mentioned in Cues or Notes. When the time of each 1,000 feet of film is less than 15 minutes there will appear less than 10 Xs in each reel. To get the correct time of projection for each reel, multiply the number of Xs appearing in each reel by 1½.

AVENUE GRAND, WASHINGTON, D. C., OPENED BY CRANDALL ABOUT TWO MONTHS AGO, IS PROVING POPULAR

HARRY M. Crandall, one of Washington's pioneer motion picture exhibitors, is making a decided success of the Avenue Grand motion picture theatre, on Pennsylvania avenue between Sixth and Seventh street, southeast, which he acquired about two months ago. Extensive improvements and alterations were made, and following these changes the house was opened as a high class theatre showing feature productions exclusively.

The Avenue Grand is the largest theatre located in a residential section in Washington. It has a seating capacity of one thousand and is equipped with a balcony. There is a stage for use in connection with theatricals and Mr. Crandall has arranged for accommodations for a large orchestra. He has gone to heavy expense in making the theatre one of the most attractive in Washington. A new and larger screen has been put in; the machines have been renewed; a new concrete floor has replaced the old flooring; a new and improved electric lighting system has been installed, and with it there has been placed on the outside of the building a large electric flashing sign with the name of the house which is of value both as an advertising feature and ornamental.

In announcing the purchase of this theatre, Mr. Crandall stated "Our intentions are to have a first-class theatre located in each section of the city, placing us with our chain of theatres in a position to always furnish our patrons at the various theatres with the best in motion pictures, accompanied by good music.

"We now operate as you know, the Crandall theatre, Ninth and E. streets, northwest, also the Apollo theatre, 624 H street, northeast, and now we have given the southeast section an up-to-date theatre in the Avenue Grand.

"Our next announcement will deal with our proposed large theatre in Mt. Pleasant, located on Fourteenth street, the exact location to be made known at a later date, and at this time we wish to assure you that we have absolutely nothing to do with, and have no connection with any other that has recently been announced in the Mt. Pleasant section."

Associated with Mr. Crandall in the purchase of the Avenue Grand is Mr. Joseph P. Morgan, one of the best known exhibitors in Washington, who at present conducts the Princess theatre on H street, northeast. Messrs. Crandall and Morgan secured the property at an estimated cost of about $55,000 from the former owners, taking possession upon the expiration of the lease held by Harris and Davis, of Pittsburg, Pa.

THE SHERMAN AT SULLIVAN, IND., LEASED BY SHANKS, SHOWS PATHE, TRIANGLE AND WORLD PICTURES

THE SHERMAN theatre, at Sullivan, Ind., leased by Roy Shanks, formerly of Rochester, Ind., is owned by C. J. Sherman. F. J. Nickles, of Sullivan was the architect. The theatre, which was completed February 25, is controlled by the Sherman Amusement Corporation. It was constructed of brick, stone and steel, and contains a complete ventilating system. The theatre has its own heating system. The lighting equipment consists of ten indirect domes and wall brackets. The theatre has a seating capacity of 400 on the main floor and 169 in the balcony. Stafford all upholstered seats are used. Two 1916 Motiographs projectors are used, with a silver fibre screen. The length of the throw is 77 feet. A General Electric Motor Generator set, 70 amphires, is used. Music is provided by a six piece orchestra. The lobby display consists of Newman frames. The theatre is located on the west side of the square in the business district. Two and three shows are given daily at an admission price of ten cents. Pathe, Triangle and World films are shown.

The theatre is one of the most beautifully decorated in the state, according to the size of the house and seating capacity. It has a stage ten foot deep with an eighteen foot opening. The screen is mounted on the rear of the stage, boxed in with a shadow box effect, the stage opening is covered with an old rose plush curtain, with the Sherman monogram. The stage is equipped for spotlight singers.

The projection equipment was furnished and installed by the Motion Picture Products Company, of Indianapolis. C. D. Hill, manager of the company, personally supervised the installation. The machines are equipped with specially ground Manhattan lenses.

BIJOU IN NASHVILLE IS CONVERTED INTO A PICTURE THEATRE FOR COLORED PATRONAGE

THE Bijou theatre, Nashville, Tenn., one of the most complete and at one time one of the most popular family playhouses in Nashville, after an idleness of several seasons, will be thrown open to the colored people on Monday, May 29, as a moving picture house. The theatre has been undergoing a thorough renovation, and an operating booth, absolutely fireproof, will also be installed.

VIEWS OF HARRY CRANDALL'S THREE MODERN PICTURE THEATRES IN WASHINGTON, D. C.

The New Apollo | The Crandall | The Avenue Grand

The Bijou will be under the management of Milton Starr, who was connected with the Starr theatre on Cedar street. In an interview with the NEWS Mr. Starr said: "I intend to give the colored population of Nashville one of the best theatres they have ever had. I shall bend every effort to make this house a pride to the colored people here. No house this size has ever been opened to the colored people of Nashville, therefore it will be something of an extraordinary order to these people, who will now have somewhere to go for recreation. There will be an opening night given to the patrons, and it is expected that every available seat will be taken. "Peg o' the Ring," with Grace Cunard and Francis Ford, will be the opening attraction. All the picture managers predict success for Manager Starr.

THE NORTHERN LIGHTS IS A TWIN ARC OF THE PORTABLE TYPE FOR INTERIOR WORK

A recent addition to the many lights available for taking motion pictures, in interiors and studios, is the Northern Light, a twin arc of the portable type made by the Simplex Photo Products Company of Morris Park, L. I.

Although it is extremely light and portable, the makers claim for the Northern Light a candlepower of 10,000 for the No. 1 or 15 ampere lamp, while they rate the 25 ampere No. 2 size at 14,000 candlepower.

The feeding magnets have been figured out and wound with such precision that the light burns with great steadiness, is the comment made by all who have witnessed its performance. Snow white carbons are preferably supplied as giving the highest degree of actinicty, and the steadiness of feed and intensity of the light are equally good when using the lamp with alternating or direct current. This is accomplished by the use of two different sockets, suitably marked, for attaching the feed wires.

By connecting to the D. C. socket the current goes through the correct winding to achieve the steadiest feed and when using A. C. the same result is obtained by connecting to the A. C. socket.

As with other lamps of portable type, the equipment of the Northern Light includes the customary white reflector, adjustable stand for raising and lowering, and carrying case, and the Simplex Photo Products Company are asking $48.00 for the No. 1 or 15 ampere lamp and $58.00 for the No. 2 or 25 ampere lamp.

We have been observing the performance of several Northern Lights in use by a film maker, for sevarl months past. The lamps are performing in a capable manner and high praise is given them at the studio in question.

Quite recently the makers of Northern Lights introduced a new model, the No. 3. While lighter and still more portable than either No. 1 or No. 2 models, the No. 3 Northern Light is rated at 15,000 candlepower. This great illuminating power is secured by further modification of the resistance of feeding coils, and some new features are incorporated, among them being a metal pan to catch the falling ashes, situated below the carbon clamps, and an improved connecting device in which the socket for "plugging in" on the current supply is attached to a short cable extending one foot out from the body of the lamp.

The energies of the Simplex Photo Products Company have not, however, been solely confined to the designing and marketing of these new lights, for in addition they have also evolved a new model of their well known Alamo motion picture camera. The new Alamo camera has a film capacity of 100 feet, as against 50 feet, the capacity of the first Alamo instrument, and has many new and highly ingenious attachments, which will be of interest to cameramen and amateurs. In the near future a more extended description of this new Alamo camera will be given in the Camera Department.

EYE AND LIGHT INTENSITY

waves do not excite the retina, but the former may be realized as heat and the latter are characterized by their chemical activity. These properies exist in the visible spectrum to a certain extent, diminishing from two extremes mentioned to a minimum about the yellow. Furthermore, the eye does not respond with equal sensitiveness at all points of the visible specrum, but follows the sensation curves. These curves indicate a zero response at the extremes of the spectrum and a maximum response near the middle, shifting toward the blue in faint illumination and toward the red for stronger illumination.

A WRONG IMPRESSION

For 37 years the name SOSMAN & LANDIS has been synonymous with supreme STAGE SETTINGS. On this account many people believe that we command high prices for our product.

The fact is that our enormous plant, long experience, and solid business methods enable us to price our STAGE SETTINGS at reasonable figures. No matter how small your theatre, we can design and install an artistic setting for a sum you can easily afford. Some of our models cost only $200.

You certainly ought to have our brand new catalog.

DIRECTORY OF NEW THEATRES

CALIFORNIA

The Lincoln theatre, located on Sixth avenue, one of the leading outlying moving picture houses in San Francisco, has been purchased by Messrs. Atkisson and Godfrey at a price said to be $22,500. This house has been conducted for some time by Sam Gordon, who also has the Broadway and other theatres.

The St. Francis theatre, a handsome photoplay house now nearing completion on Geary street, San Francisco, opposite the St. Francis Hotel, will be opened at an early date, probably before the close of June. This theatre embodies many unique features in its construction and its success will be closely watched by exhibitors. Its location is in the center of a hotel and apartment district, though but a short distance from the most exclusive shopping district. N. Josey is the bulider and will conduct the theatre when it is completed. A fine organ furnished by the American Photo Player Sales Company will be a feature of the house.

The Garrick theatre, Los Angeles, recently sold, and now under the management of Teal Smith, is being generally improved. The first changes were made in the operating booth when two new Simplex projecting machines, model B, were installed by J. Slipper and Company.

A. M. Mozart and Company, of which Ed. Mozart is manager, has leased the Froman Building at Anaheim which is now being constructed. This contains a theatre of seven hundred seats, and will be opened about June 20. The theatre is equipped with Powers 6-B machines, motor generators, Minard daylight screens, and will be modern in every respect. The Mozart Company now has the Fifth avenue and Georgia street theatres in Los Angeles.

CANADA

Mr. Savor, manager and proprietor of the motion picture house in Cardinal, Ont., has arranged to operate the Princess theatre, in Prescott, Ont. It is rumored that Mr. Savor will operate a small three town circuit, in Cardinal, Prescott and Morrisburg.

Mr. White, sheriff in Sandwich, Ont., has decided to open a motion picture house within the next two months. He is hard at work, preparing the building and expects to call the new theatre, The Sandwich Home theatre.

Toronto is to have a new theatre. This will be named the Regent, and is situated on Adelaide street, near Yonga, the heart of Toronto's theatrical district. Mr. Ruddy, the gentlemen behind this enterprise has purchased the old Majestic vaudeville house, and is entirely remodeling it. The Regent will seat sixteen hundred people, is to have a mezzanine floor with lounge rooms, fitted up with fire places and pictures, easy chairs, magazines, writing tables, and telephone booths. There will be one balcony, and the whole theatre is being designed and decorated by Thomas W. Lamb, who is responsible for the designing of the Rialto theatre, New York City.

Literally springing out of the ground, comes the new military town of Angus Plains, Ont. The Canadian Government, acting on orders from Sir Sam Hughes, purchased the land about this town and 35,000 soldiers will go into training here, during the summer months. Two motion picture shows will be opened at Angus Plains to amuse the soldier boys and they are sure to do a rushing business. This new camp is in addition to the big concentration point at Niagara on the Lake, where during the summer months, the theatres play to capacity all the time.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

The latest theatre to enter the motion picture field is the Gaiety, the only burlesque house of the National Capital. In turning this into a film house for the summer months, the manager, Harry Garbee, is catering chiefly to the ladies. He has therefore announced that smoking will not be permitted, as was the practice at the burlesque performances, and he has added comforts and attractions which appeal to refined tastes. The Gaiety has a capacity of about 1,500 and bids fair to hold its own in the down town picture district. Features are shown, with the admission at ten cents.

INDIANA

R. K. Mossman, of Kokomo, and H. F. Mossman, of Elwood, have bought the Isis motion picture theatre at Kokomo, from Cecil and James Wells. The building is owned by Dr. F. D. Miller. The Isis theatre is the largest picture house in Kokomo, and in the future will be operated as a straight ten cent theatre. Mr. Mossman took over the Grand theatre on Main street, Kokomo, last November and renamed it the Cort. Since taking possession, raising the admission price, and getting high class pictures, the theatre has been changed from a losing proposition to a money making investment. The Mossman brothers hope to set a like mark for the Isis theatre.

Nat Wolf, formerly connected with the Interstate Amusement Company, of Chicago, where he was manager of the Plaza theatre, has been appointed manager of the American theatre at Terre Haute. Mr. Wolf formerly was manager of the Ellis and Drexel theatres for the Alfred Hamburger Company, and was in charge of the photoplay booking department for the fourteen Hamburger theatres. Mr. Wolf has announced he has booked some big productions for Terre Haute. He also announced that the railed seats in the American soon will be replaced with opera seats, so arranged that the people can step in between the seats and not disturb other persons in the same row.

The Princess theatre, at Argos, reopened recently after having been redecorated and remodeled. H. Riner bought the theatre from Harley Dawson and closed it for a week, pending the remodeling and redecoration. Among the changes made was the removal of the stage, the installation of a new screen and a new lens in the machine.

F. Walters, of Cromwell, has moved his picture show to the Gants building.

Marie Barnett, a newspaper writer of Evansville, has bought the Governor theatorium, in that city. This is one of the largest houses in Evansville and Miss Barnett is the first woman to operate a theatre there.

The Airdome at Washington was recently destroyed by fire. An electric sign twenty-five feet high and fourteen feet wide is being erected over the Strand theatre, Evansville, formerly the Wells-Bijou.

The Orpheum theatre at Plymouth, has reopened after having been closed for two weeks for remodeling and redecorating. The entire theatre has been redecorated and closed. New indirect lights have been placed and electric fans put in. Linoleum has been placed in aisles and the seats have been varnished and look like new. The ventilation of the theatre has been improved by putting in oscillating fans. A new piano has been bought and a daylight screen added. The front of the theatre will be lighted with electric lights.

Horton Brothers Gayety Airdome, at Lafayette, opened the season on May 20. The airdome has been painted, redecorated and presents an attractive appearance.

The Arcade theatre, at Winchester, which was closed for two weeks, while being remodelled, reopened recently. A six-piece orchestra provided a special musical program. J. and R. Tracy, lessees of the theatre, have put in a new floor at their own expense, changed the front, installed comfortable seats and have changed the lighting system. The policy of the theatre, which has been a five-cent house for the last fourteen months, will not be changed.

IOWA

Messrs. Julius and Awe, who have the agency for the Franklin automobile, in Ft. Dodge, are constructing a modern eight hundred seat motion picture theatre in that city.

KENTUCKY

C. E. Hampson, formerly of New Albany, Ind., has assumed the management of the Strand theatre, Lexington. Mr. Hampson has been in the otion picture business for a number of years and was proprietor of a otion picture theatre at New Albany before going to Lexington.

MASSACHUSETTS

Last fall there was some talk of a new moving picture theatre for Marblehead, but owing to the inability of the promoters and the land owners to come to terms, the project fell through. Recently, the owner of the land in question signified his willingness to sell and negotiations were reopened. William L. Terhune, of Phillips Beach, is the prime mover and is thoroughly conversant with the project, as he has started and is interested in several similar institutions in other places. The picture house will be built and operated by a corporation formed under Massachusetts laws and it is understood that nearly all the stock has already been subscribed, the major part in Phillips Beach and Marblehead.

MICHIGAN

Franx Marx, one of the founders of the Marx theatre in Wyandotte, and a well-known business man, died on May 24, having been in poor health for some time.

Harry R. Guest, a former printer and newspaperman, has been appointed director of publicity and editor of the Weekly Film News, the official bulletin of the John H. Kunsky theatres in Detroit.

Work on the new John H. Kunsky theatre, the Madison, at Broadway and Grand Circus Park, Detroit, is progressing speedily, and the contractors promise that it will be ready by late in the fall. The erecting of the walls has already started. The Madison will be exclusively for motion pictures. It will seat close to 3,000.

Architect S. D. Butterworth, of Lansing, has submitted plans to Fred Patterson of Owosso, for the remodeling of his building at 113 West Main street into a moving picture theatre, work on which is to start immediately.

The death of Frank Whitman, of Buchanan, may interfere with the plans which Mr. Whitman and others had in view for the erection of a moving picture theatre in Niles.

Frank R. Lampman has resigned the management of the Orpheum theatre in Jackson, and has been succeeded by A. A. Frudenfeld.

Two east side moving picture theatres of Detroit have discontinued business during the past thirty days, the Kercheval at 456 Kercheval avenue, and the Parkview, at Parkview and Kercheval avenues.

There are about one hundred moving picture theatres in Michigan that are threatened with being closed by the State Fire Marshal's office unless they pay their annual license fee of ten dollars. Notices have been sent to the owners of these playhouses with the ultimatum that they will be closed up and their wires cut unless they comply with the state law.

The Frank Farrington Company, Detroit, has been awarded the general contract for the erection of the theatre at Russell street, near Frederick, for the Russell Theatre Company. C. Howard Crane was the architect.

Architects Milder and Eisen have closed the bids on a theatre and store building to be erected on the northwest corner of the East Grand Boulevard and Chene street, Detroit, by the Iris Theatre Company.

Deckerville is to have a new photoplay house, seating about three hundred and to be ready by the early part of July. The owner is Mrs. Wesley Bearns. The structure will be 30 by 70 feet in size.

The Lyric theatre, Saginaw street, Flint, is being remodeled, and will have many improvements made.

A lot of improvements have just been made at the Majestic theatre, Kalamazoo, by F. Addison Pelley, proprietor. He has added a new stage setting, a new lighting system and new decorations throughout the house.

MINNESOTA

Messrs. O'Malley and Christianson, who are president and vice-president respectively of the Security Bank of St. Paul, have just purchased a Bartola Grand to replace their four-piece orchestra in the Palace theatre of that city.

MISSISSIPPI

Alexander Brothers are erecting a handsome $8,000 motion picture house on Hayden street, Belzone, for the Crescent theatre, owned by A. M. Levy and A. C. Bradley. This house will be equipped with the very best and will have a seating capacity of about four hundred.

MISSOURI

On May 16 fire did nearly $4,000 worth of damage to the Tenth street theatre, Kansas City, necessitating the closing of that house for an indefinite period. A piano and a player-piano were among the equipment burned, while extensive damage was done to incidentals, the fixtures and walls. The Standard Amusement Company, operating the Willis Wood theatre, has charge of the Tenth street house.

R. W. Cropper has sold the Dale theatre, 24th and Troost, Kansas City, to William Richardson, who has taken immediate charge.

Spyros Skouras has just leased the Russell airdome, on Russell avenue, east of Jefferson, St. Louis, to operate in connection with the Lafayette theatre, on Lafayette and Jefferson. Mr. Skouras acquired the Lafayette theatre last fall, when the house was not doing a very promising business and lifted it out of the indifferent class to the very highest point in the matter of quality of program and number of patrons. In the Russell airdome he will continue the same policy of program during the hot months. The airdome has been redecorated, and several Grecian statues placed on ornamental pedestals, with innumerable electric lights added, and one hundred and twenty trees, symmetrically arranged, have made the place a very beautiful out door theatre.

NEBRASKA

Rex A. Smith has rented the opera house at Allen, and will give shows each Thursday evening. J. H. Morrison, since Superior went dry, is to remodel his building that has been used as a saloon, and make a motion picture theatre of it, thus giving this place two motion picture houses.

SCREENS BUILT BY BRAINS

NEW JERSEY

The Grand theatre, Camden, will be entirely rebuilt and its capacity doubled, as the result of the purchase of adjoining property by Abe Greenberg, owner and manager of the theatre. The new theatre will have a frontage of 62 feet and a depth of 125. A balcony will be added. The total capacity will be sixteen hundred. A new ventilating system will be installed, and the Pilsner pipe organ enlarged.

OKLAHOMA

The Wonderland theatre at Enid, opened again the first of May under the management of M. A. Blackburn. This house has been closed for some time. The new management is using feature productions and a few acts of vaudeville.

John F. Facklin has sold his house at Broken Bow to A. W. James, who is now operating it.

The Lyric theatre at Guthrie, has been sold under foreclosure to Mr. Caffey for $750. The Electric theatre with a seating capacity of 600, has been opened at Commerce.

PENNSYLVANIA

The Grand Opera House, the largest theatre in Pittsburgh under the management of Harry Devis and in which a stock company has been operating, has once more changed its policy and is now running motion pictures again. Under the direction of Mr. Davis there are a number of fine motion picture theatres in Pittsburgh. He has the Lyric on Fifth avenue, the William Penn in Federal street, North Side; the Schenley theatre in Forbes street, Oakland, and a number of others.

A number of the theatres in Pittsburgh have changed hands during the past few days. Eddie Balson formerly manager of the Family theatre, Braddock, has taken over the Cameraphone theatre at Sharpsburg, and after making a number of improvements will throw it open to the public.

J. W. Jackson, formerly of East Liverpool, Ohio, has taken over the American theatre at 1616 Braddock avenue, Braddock. This house was formerly owned by J. A. Brown, and managed by S. A. Gilbert. It has a capacity of two hundred and fifty, but after the remodeling is finished will have a capacity of more than four hundred.

TENNESSEE

The new Knickerbocker theatre, Nashville, has been opened. The Knickerbocker cost $85,000 and seats twelve hundred. The Princess theatre, at Menphis, has installed a new $10,000 pipe organ. The Metropolitan theatre, at Memphis, is being remodeled throughout.

TEXAS

John D. Jones, one of the partners in the Crystal Amusement Company, Greenville, operators of the Rex and Crystal in that city, has sold his interest to F. E. Newman, his partner, and is now back on the road in the wholesale grocery line.

The Mirror theatre at Denison, built about a year ago by J. C. Colby, has been sold by Mr. Colby to J. V. Smith. The Mirror is a modern house, well equipped and getting good business.

C. W. Holley, formerly at Eagle Pass, visited in Dallas recently securing equipment for his new Airdome at Uvalde. It is named the Electric Palace.

The Soledad Roof theatre at San Antonio, has opened with feature productions. The Soledad theatre has been closed for the summer.

M. L. Levine has remodeled his roof airdome at Corsicana, and will soon open with pictures for the summer. E. F. Walker will open an airdome at the corner of Colonial avenue and Peabody street, in South Dallas, within the next three weeks.

The new suburban motion picture house, being built by E. L. Malone, near Jefferson avenue on Tyler street in Oak Cliff, one of Dallas' suburban districts, is nearing completion. An $8,000 Fotoplayer will be installed in the house which will seat around six hundred. The front is concrete work, in the form of logs, which will be finished in colors to represent an old-fashioned log cabin structure.

Hermandez and Garcia have secured the Star theatre at Eagle Pass. They also have the Majestic, which they have closed.

H. R. Yates, proprietor of the Garden Airdome at Longview, has leased his theatre to Joe Wells, proprietor of the Rex theatre, Denison, for the summer.

Chris Reesing has taken over the management of the Queen theatre at Gatesville, which will be operated in connection with the Royal.

W. H. Atwell, former U. S. Attorney at Dallas, has purchased the Hippodrome theatre at Dallas, paying $12,000. Mr. Atwell says that he was acting for several persons, whose names are not as yet given out.

Fred Nelson will open a new picture house at Clifton in the near future.

J. H. Jones has opened the Star theater at Fort Worth for negroes exclusively. Ellis Taylor has opened a new picture house at Blum. The Mirror theatre, at Denison, has closed for the summer season.

WASHINGTON

Clarence Summerville, well known to Tacoma's motion picture patrons, has closed a lease for the Strand-Hippodrome theatre and has reopened the playhouse as the Hippodrome theatre with high class feature pictures. The theatre until recently was known as the Liberty, being changed to the Strand-Hippodrome when the policy of pictures and vaudeville was adopted.

EVERY DAY ARE LETTERS RECEIVED TESTIFYING AS TO THE MERITS OF THIS WONDROUS PROJECTION SURFACE

The beautiful new Orpheum Theatre of Huntington, W. Va., the largest and finest photoplay theatre in the State writes this letter of the superlative merits of Satin Goldfibre Screens.

ORPHEUM THEATRE COMPANY

Huntington, W. Va.,
Satin Goldfibre Screens, Inc. April 7, 1916.
Gentlemen:—

Our projection surface is considered "perfection itself," not only by our patrons, but by fellow exhibitors as well, from various parts of the state. Our projection system consists of the highest grade and highest priced materials that may be purchased, but we may say that without your Satin Goldfibre Screen we would not be able to consider our projection perfect.

Yours respectfully,

The Success of a Theatre

depends largely upon its attractiveness and safety. This is evidenced everywhere by the large number of renovations going on.

Whether you are building a theatre or repairing the old, to keep abreast of the times, you'll find that will add to the general attractiveness of your theatre and at the same time remain perfectly safe. They combine the beauty of moulded plaster with the strength of steel. Easily and quickly erected, they give a life-time of satisfactory service.

"BERGER'S Classik STEEL CEILINGS"

Our long experience in installing these ceilings in theatres, enables us to make some worth-while suggestions.

The Rothacker Laboratory and Studio and Why It Was Built

YOUR first query about this very large, very modern, and exceptionally appointed studio and laboratory—some impression of which you will gain from the following pages—will be:

Why was it built?

So I'll let Mr. Rothacker tell you.

* * *

BACK of every big enterprise there's a sizable idea. Back of every successful undertaking there's a pretty clear, far-ahead look along the path of progress.

Firstly, then, he foresaw the new era of economy and efficiency in this film industry—the careful counting of costs, the pressing problem of prompt deliveries and the rigid inspection of quality work.

This era is right with us. The picture industry today is full abreast of the rules of modern merchandising. It must—and very swiftly—take to itself those time and money-saving methods and devices which are the salvation of other great industries.

SO this will explain the bigness of the plant, because ample space, the handling of film in a large way by modern methods and the buying of materials in considerable bulk—all this necessarily means economy. That's a plain business deduction.

And this will explain why he has, for more than a year, been gathering together the best of technical experts, both from this country and abroad, because the earnest efforts of these capable and experienced hands means quality service. Better service in fact is not obtainable.

YOU may in the light of earlier methods say that he is a crank—when you see the careful arrangements of departments and their remarkable appointments and the rapid, diligent way film is handled and checked from its entrance to its exit from this factory: but he has raised efficiency to its n^{th} power here because he knows the film business today demands efficiency and will come to his doors for it.

* * *

AND now the location—in Chicago. This is most important.

Chicago, as you know, is the geographical and trade center of this industry.

In shipping prints out of Chicago as a center he cannot only save time in delivery to all points—which is most important in this business—but there is also the saving of express charges which is a mighty big factor.

The engraving business is handled this way, at a vast and necessary saving of time and expense. Films—similar in nature to the publishing business—demand the very same economy in time and money.

SO in space, equipment, efficiency and by location this big modern plant is prepared to print for any producer in America—for all of them—and give service, delivery and economy to a remarkable degree.

For studio work excellent appointments are offered as the following pages amply testify. This concern will rent space or contract to produce pictures.

And as for the ability of the organization to produce pictures, no further proof is needed than its six years of successful experience, and the following well satisfied clients:

Standard Oil Co.
Northern Pacific Ry.
U. S. Gypsum Co.
Sulzberger & Sons
Peabody Coal Co.
Sprague Canning Co.
W. G. Souders Co.
Du Pont Powder Co.
Winchester Repeating Arms Co.
General Fireproofing Co.
Burroughs Adding Machine
Underwriters Laboratories
Chicago Board of Education
Peabody Houghtaling Co.
ETC., ETC., etc., etc.
Postum Cereal Co.
German Kali Works
H. J. Heinz Co.
U. S. Brewer Ass'n
Phoenix Horseshoe Co.
State of Illinois
Long-Bell Lumber Co.

SO, this answers your first query. Any other will be readily answered in the following pages. A personal visit to this magnificent institution will destroy all doubt.

Gentlemen:-

The fact that we have contracted with you to equip our new studios is sufficient evidence of our belief that where studio lighting is concerned you have the best on the market.

We made this selection after a careful analysis of the entire situation. We have thoroughly inspected all the lighting equipments available and have made the purchase regardless of price.

During the past six years we have used Cooper Hewitt lights in our title and special work and they have always given entire satisfaction.

We are supremely confident that the lighting equipment we have ordered from you for our new studios will secure perfect illumination and maximum light values.

Very truly yours,

Standardize—Economize

Efficiency and economy in studio and laboratory—the making of artistic motion pictures at the minimum of cost—depends primarily upon the mechanical equipment used.

Standardization—the fixing of a definite standard of film perforation to which the film movement mechanisms of camera and printer are made to conform—must characterize the machines used in processing film if efficiency and economy are to raise quality and lower costs.

Bell & Howell Perforators, Printers, Cameras—and these only—are so standardized as to insure perfect results. The "screen quality" of pictures made with B. & H. equipment is unequalled. The cost of making and finishing pictures with B. & H. equipment is less than that which follows the use of inferior—unstandardized—equipment.

And because they are the most highly efficient, Bell & Howell Perforators, Printers and Cameras—the only standardized equipment—are the least expensive machines of their kind to keep and use.

Provision has been made for the installation of sixteen Bell & Howell Perforators in the Rothacker Film Mfg. Co.'s new laboratory.

GET OUR BOOKLET

"I can recommend The Portoscope to the favorable consideration of those seeking a practical home projector, and traveling salesmen demonstration outfits."
F. H. Richardson.

Makes Possible 100% Value From Industrial Film

Is the expense of industrial film justified by the uses that can be made of it? YES—emphatically, yes, if you utilize THE PORTOSCOPE. Not an experiment—thoroughly practical

The Portoscope is the result of years of development to perfect a really practical projecting machine. It is proving its superiority daily to the complete satisfaction of critical purchasers all over the country.

Do not overlook the fact that film must be properly projected to get results. No matter how perfect it may be, unless the projector can satisfactorily reproduce pictures on the screen, the film has no value.

THE PORTOSCOPE

follows approved principles of projector construction, and embodies every essential of the large professional machines. It produces a steady, brilliant and flickerless picture. Takes standard film. Illumination is secured from a 1000 candle power incandescent, arc or calcium light.

STEREOPTICAN ATTACHMENT

THE PORTOSCOPE is equipped with an attachment for standard slides. The lamp house is so attached that it may be instantly adjusted for stereopticon purposes. Accurate alignment for both motion picture and stereopticon is automatic.

SAFETY WITHOUT BOOTH

The asbestos lined carrying case of THE PORTOSCOPE makes it literally a portable fire-proof booth. The machine cannot be operated until the door is closed. The special PORTOSCOPE Heat Eliminator makes possible stopping film at any point for prolonged study.

LOOK WHO'S USING IT

Maxwell Motors, Carnation Milk Products, Burroughs Adding Machines, Bull Tractors, Larkin Company, Minneapolis Steel & Machinery Co., Ohio Varnish, Willys-Overland, Winsted Silk. You know these concerns—you know they buy only the proven best. Over a hundred good concerns like these are using THE PORTOSCOPE.

READ WHAT USERS SAY

"We have looked over the entire field of portable motion picture machines, and have found this to be more satisfactory and safer than any others we have inspected."
Maxwell Motor Company.

"It is with a great deal of pleasure that we advise you that THE PORTOSCOPE installed in the club-room of the Advertising Association of Chicago is fully up to expectations and giving satisfactory results. The distinction enjoyed by this Club in having a projection machine of its own installed in the dining room making possible showing of film to its members during noon hour, has proven highly acceptable." E. H. Philippi, Chairman, Industrial Movie Committee, Advertising Association of Chicago.

"Your machine fills an ideal which I have held in mind for several years—that of a motion picture projector on scientific principles, but easily portable and simple to operate." El Paso Chamber of Commerce, L. J. Burrud

DEALERS: Over 10,000 small projectors will be sold during the next few years.

This is the prediction of a leading authority. He made this statement after a demonstration of THE PORTOSCOPE. The field for the machine, in view of its practicability and simplicity, is almost unlimited.

AMONG OUR ENTHUSIASTIC DEALERS ARE: B. F. Porter, New York; L. M. A PERFECT CAMERA FOR MOTION PHOTOGRAPHY

For the past 21 years I have been making motion picture cameras. I am supplying such concerns as the Rothacker Film Mfg. Company, who demand a perfect camera—one which will answer the requirements of the most delicate photography and at the same time stand up under severe treatment.

In all these years I have not had an unsatisfied customer, but I, myself, have not been entirely satisfied. I have been working on a new camera; it will have several improvements over my present one.

This will be ready about July 1st. If you are going to be in the market for cameras at this time, it will pay you to investigate what I have to offer.

TWENTY-FIVE CENTS A DAY BUYS A REMBUSCH SCREEN

Then why hesitate?

You save that amount in light bill.
Instead of dull, indistinct pictures
You have clear and brilliant projection.
You can have light in your house and bright pictures.

Listen! A Rembusch screen
Puts "pep" into your presentation;
Instills new life into you and your theatre;
It will remedy the "What is the matter with you."
It draws crowds so it pays for itself.

Of course, it goes without saying, Mr. Rothacker would install nothing but a Rembusch screen in his studio.

Rembusch makes every kind of picture screen;
Makes the Glass Mirror, his own invention;
Makes the Glass Translucent, for rear projection;
Makes the Glory Light "Fibre," for wide houses;
Makes the Crystal Fibre, superior to any other make;
Makes the Goldfibre, better than any other;
Makes the Silverfibre, cheap but good;
Makes anything you want in the screen line.

F. J. Rembusch makes every kind of picture screen because you can't fit a house unless you make every kind.

F. J. Rembusch is an authority on projection; is a practical exhibitor and has been running a half dozen theatres for ten years; knows the business from soup to nuts, and will make your screen the same as if he was making it for his own house.

Write to-day and he will tell you just what you need.

Now You Can Have a Portable Projector of Professional Quality

It's here at last—a compact, lightweight, easily portable projector of professional quality. Not an experiment—but a machine of tried and proved efficiency.

DeVry PORTABLE PROJECTOR

With a DeVry the exhibitor can examine his film at his leisure. The exchange man does not need a special projection room and equipment. The road man can always see his prospect without bothering him, and can satisfy his doubtful attitude. The musician can write his synchronized score more satisfactorily. Many other uses will readily suggest themselves to film men.

The Machine in a Nut-Shell

Type C-2-Regular 1,000 foot model

Dimensions: 17″ x 17″ x 7½″—more convenient to carry than a traveling bag. And it weighs only 19½ pounds—less than half the weight of any other so-called portable projector. Runs standard reels and films. Motor drive. Universal motor. Variable speed, easily regulated.

Among the users of the DeVry Portable Projector are:

Supreme Film Company
Northwest Weekly
Northern Navigation Co.
Chicago Northwestern Ry.
Western Electric Co.

We are six years old and proud of what we have accomplished since our first birthday.

We are particularly proud of this new home of Perfect Developing and Printing.

Magnificently built, elaborately equipped—it represents the best that human brains have invented, and money can buy, for moving picture production.

Efficiently operated on honor—scientifically managed—it gives you the supreme degree of film quality and absolute security.

We offer this laboratory, combined with multiple set studio, for your inspection and service.

Now While You're Thinking About Summer Business—

Are you making doubly sure that your theatre will be just as popular in the hot months as it was in the cool?

By far the best way—the way which will be building solidly for the Fall—and which will bring the money returns you want this Summer—is to pick out the calibre of pictures you know your patrons want and like, and THEN BOOK THEM.

Besides having a wide array of well balanced, well known, well selected plays and players from which you can book on the open market, each V-L-S-E feature you take is priced according to its box office value TO YOU.

Just look over the list of dynamically-charged, interest-compelling pictures on our continuously consistent program. Check off the ones that you know will appeal to your patrons. Get in touch with the nearest Big Four Exchange, and get the price on these features, based on their drawing power, for YOUR theatre.

What safer, saner, more result-producing policy can you follow for Summer business or for all-the-year-round business?

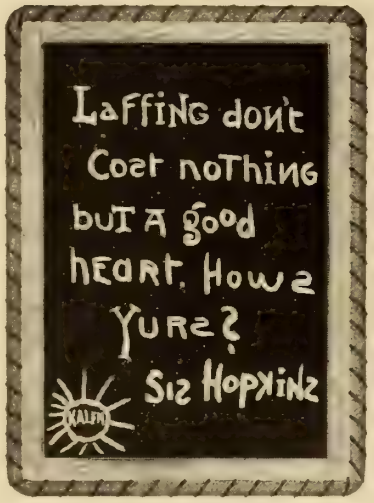
SINGLE REELERS YOU CAN BOOST!

Boosting a "one reel picture" is a difficult task, but you can boost Kalem's one reel features—Helen Gibson, Ham and Bud, Ethel Teare, and Sis Hopkins are all stars you can advertise and stars who "pull" at the box-office.



SIS HOPKINS

In a Swift-Moving Farce With a Whirlwind Finish

"The Stenographer's Strategy"

Released [Friday, June] 16th

Sis makes some classy stenographer, though she was only engaged because the Boss's wife was jealous. Then Sis has to become mixed up in the Boss's private love affairs and laughable complications pile on so fast they almost take your breath away. In some of the best work of her screen career Rose Melville is ably Supported by Henry Murdock and Frank Minzey.

"The Alaskan Mouse Hound"

Ham's laughable efforts to get rid of the Alaskan mouse hound [keep you in a continuous fifteen minute roar.

Released Tuesday, June 13th

"The Bachelors' Alliance"

As a policewoman fascinating Ethel Teare disrupts the Bachelors' Alliance when she goes on the war-path for flirters.

Released Wednesday, June 14th

A "Hazard" That Will Never Be Equalled For Sheer Audacious Courage

"A Race Through the Air"

HELEN GIBSON

The Screen's Most Daring Actress in Her Super-Achievement

Startling and electrifying are words that give but a meagre description of the astounding climax of this thrilling "Hazard of Helen." A thrilling race at terrific speed between an aeroplane and express train leads you up to the supreme moment when Helen swinging on a rope suspended from the plane of the aero whizzes through the air on a thirty foot drop to the onrushing train. If you miss this "Hazard" you miss the one big screen exploit of the year.

RELEASED SATURDAY, JUNE 17th.

Silence — or heart break?

Should she tell the lonely old man that it is all a mistake,—that she is not his daughter?

Twenty years ago the birth of a baby girl had cost his wife's life. In remorse and insane hate he had abandoned his daughter, but the barren years, though they bring an abundance of worldly goods, leave the old man a soul-sick, weary wanderer searching for his child.

At last he finds a waif to whom he clings with all a father's devotion, for he believes her to be his daughter. The girl knows the truth, but realizes that if she tells the old man it will break his heart.

REGULAR VITAGRAPH RELEASES

"Her Loving Relations"

One-part comedy — Released Monday, June 12th

"Dorothy Rich" has money—and relatives. To find out whether her relatives are attracted by her wealth or whether they love her for her own sake, she resorts to a little experiment.

Maybe "blood is thicker than water;" then again, maybe "money talks." Who knows—unless he has seen this delightful comedy.

MARY ANDERSON as Dorothy Rich, supported by Anne Schaefer, George Kunkel and George Lawrence

"Harold, the Nurse Girl"

One-part comedy — Released Friday, June 16th

When Mrs. Henry Peck left her hubby at home to take care of the baby while she went to the theatre, she didn't realize that there was such a creature as a male baby nurse to tempt overworked husbands from their duty.

Harold, the nurse girl, takes care of the baby for Mr. Peck, but if Peck had known then what he knows before the reel is over, Harold would never have appeared again.

WHY

In these days of keen competition and high prices good reasons why must be advanced to exhibitors who are asked to book productions.

Astute showmen will instantly grasp the soundness of these reasons why the new Mutual series of HELEN HOLMES features will be great financial successes and the makers of lasting friends.

Helen Holmes has a charm which unfailingly registers on the screen. She has a superb histrionic quality which is the result of natural gifts developed by practical experience in the best dramatic productions of the last ten years.

As the heroine in the recent Mutual serial triumph "THE GIRL AND THE GAME", HELEN HOLMES made countless friends of picture fans throughout the land.

All theatres which played "The Girl and the Game" will be certain to play to capacity with future HELEN HOLMES features.

Theatres which missed that sterling serial will benefit by the splendid reputation HELEN HOLMES achieved through her feats of unequalled daring and intense dramatic acting during the unfolding of its many scenes.

The plays in which HELEN HOLMES will be presented are from the pens of celebrated authors and, for the most part, adapted from the most famous novels of the day. The day's best seller:

WHISPERING SMITH by FRANK H. SPEARMAN MEDICINE BEND by the same author
THE MANAGER OF THE B & A by the author of many famous novels, VAUGHN KESTER
JUDITH OF THE CUMBERLANDS. A highly popular story by ALICE MCGOWN
THE DIAMOND RUNNERS. A story of romantic Honolulu photographed in the lovely Hawaiian Islands

In five reels each, produced by Signal

Booked through 68 Mutual Exchanges

Book them as a full series. Ask your Mutual exchange at once about the special plan of distribution.

HELEN HOLMES IN THE ROLE OF MARION IN "WHISPERING SMITH"

WILLIAM RUSSELL "STAR IN SOULMATES"

William Russell — Mutual Star Productions

The new series of Mutual Star Productions of five reels featuring William Russell is being booked by an extraordinarily large number of discerning exhibitors. Hundreds of houses have already arranged for these splendid attractions and the number is being added to daily.

Progressive exhibitors foresee in the William Russell features a sterling business opportunity. William Russell is ranked among the most popular leading men on the screen today, and is steadily making greater gains in the affections of the "fans." He is a power at the box-office window and his appearances under the auspices of the American Film Co., producers of the series, add to the drawing power of his subjects.

Artistically and technically, the William Russell-Mutual Star Productions will be of the highest standard approachable by brains and money.

The first of the William Russell-Mutual Star Productions is "Soulmates," a forcible, timely drama by Edward A. Kaufman, enacted skillfully by Mr. Russell and his associates, and beautifully staged. "Soulmates" is released the week of June 5.

Other forthcoming William Russell-Mutual Star Productions are "The Highest Bid," "The Guide" and "The Man Who Would Not Die," with others to be announced.

These subjects booked by special arrangement. For information thereto apply to any one of the 68 Mutual exchanges.

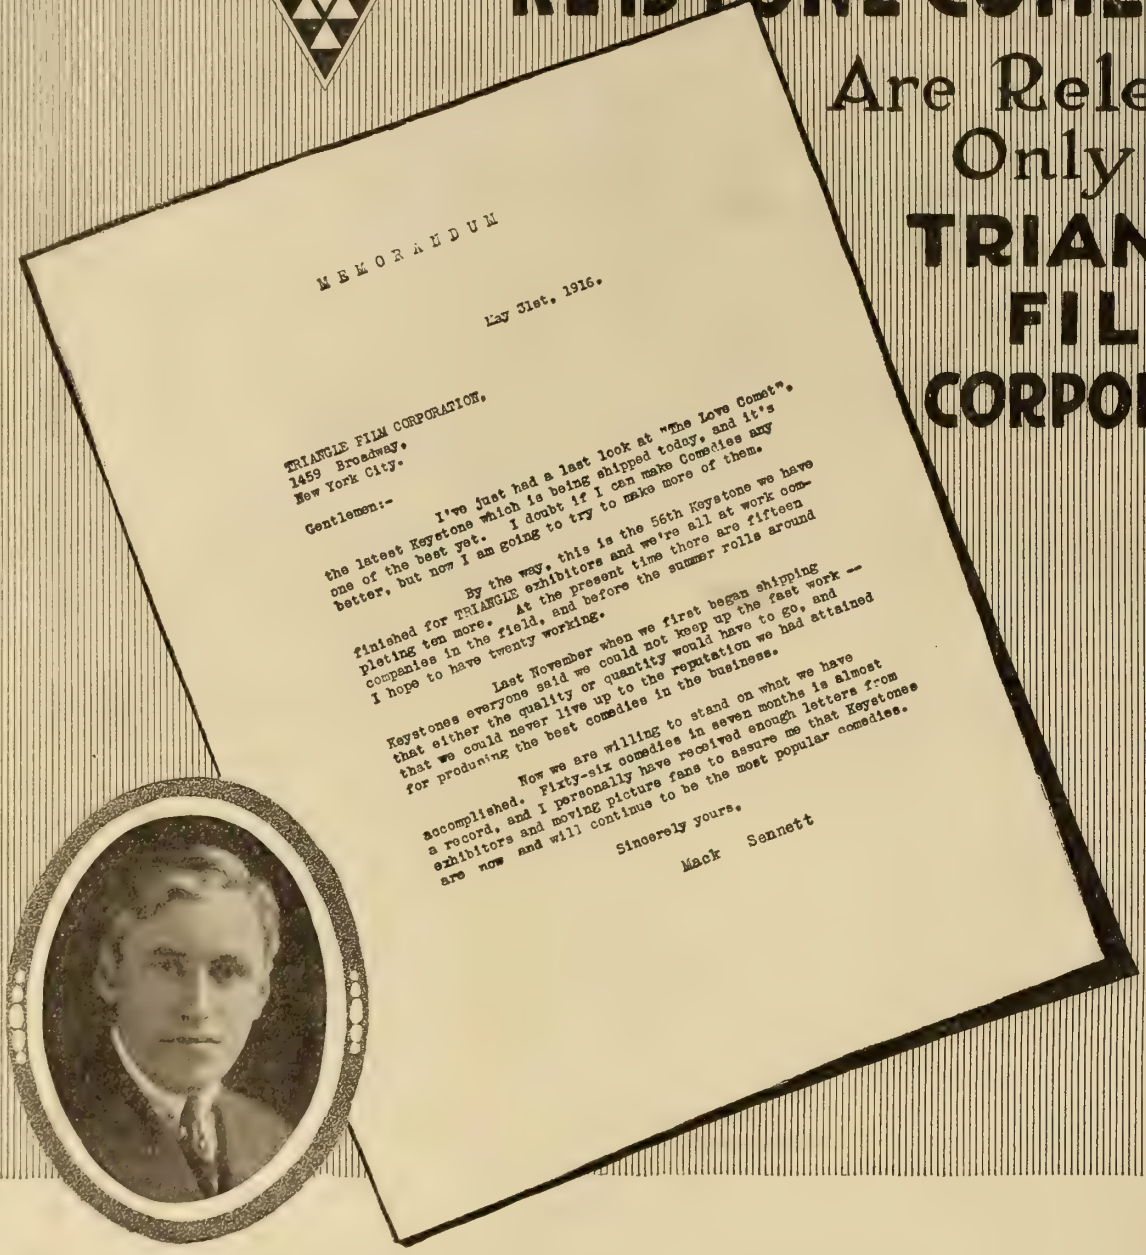
TRIANGLE PLAYS

KEYSTONE COMEDIES Are Released Only by TRIANGLE FILM CORPORATION



MEMORANDUM

May 31st, 1916.

TRIANGLE FILM CORPORATION,
1459 Broadway,
New York City.

Gentlemen:-

I've just had a last look at "The Love Comet", the latest Keystone which is being shipped today, and it's one of the best yet. I doubt if I can make Comedies any better, but now I am going to try to make more of them.

By the way, this is the 56th Keystone we have finished for TRIANGLE exhibitors and we're all at work completing ten more. At the present time there are fifteen companies in the field, and before the summer rolls around I hope to have twenty working.

Last November when we first began shipping Keystones everyone said we could not keep up the fast work -- that either the quality or quantity would have to go, and that we could never live up to the reputation we had attained for producing the best comedies in the business.

Now we are willing to stand on what we have accomplished. Fifty-six comedies in seven months is almost a record, and I personally have received enough letters from exhibitors and moving picture fans to assure me that Keystones are now and will continue to be the most popular comedies.

Sincerely yours,

Mack Sennett

You should read the above note from Mack Sennett, the man who made Keystone Comedies famous. Don't you agree that 56 comedies in the past seven months is a record to be envied?

The making of a good comedy is a man-sized job—far harder than the production of a large feature film—for it's extremely difficult to have continued action so funny that the audience will be kept laughing combined with a good story.

Years ago Mack Sennett discovered the knack of producing a comedy that could be guaranteed to furnish screams of joy, roars of laughter, and he has kept up the good work ever since until now Keystones are even better than ever if that is possible.

Now he has a special formula which is often used. Proved to get desired results at all times it is something like this :

"Take one perfectly good dramatic plot, soak in several gallons of fun and laughter, pour in one villain and mix thoroughly, add one favored sweetheart, and stir the contents until it is completely twisted out of shape into a hilarious tangle of fun and frolic."

Many Have Tried But All Have Failed To Equal KEYSTONE COMEDIES

Time, expense, effort or inconvenience are never spared in the making of Keystone Comedies. The orders are to make the best pictures possible regardless of cost. The wrecking of an expensive automobile, the burning of a two story house are trifles. A dip in an icy lake at the top of a snowy mountain or a leap from a moving train are details, while a journey of five or six hundred miles for a special location at which to take a few scenes is all in the day's work.

The proper selection of a program is all important to the successful theatre. It is always necessary to furnish a good comedy or two to give the bill the proper balance.

Keystone Comedies are acknowledged to be the best Comedies today, and the exhibitor who can show these pictures to his patrons is sure to give them a laugh and send them home in the very best of spirits.

Keystone Comedies are released only through The Triangle Film Corporation as a part of TRIANGLE PLAYS and on a regular program.

If you are not running Triangle Plays drop us a line now for information regarding their presentation. It is just possible that we may be able to show you how to increase your box office returns.

Why Eve Ate The Apple!

When Eve plucked the fruit of the tree of knowledge, it wasn't because she particularly fancied the apple. She was driven by a soul consuming curiosity.

When the new born babe first reaches out for the moon, it is governed by the same primal instinct.

Curiosity was the fundamental law of life that impelled the first fish to flip its fins until it could soar the air and walk the land.

Its restless, irresistible demand drove man to explore the ends of the earth, to read the mysteries of the sky and sea and land. It has held him from the cradle to his last sleep, when he wonders of the mysteries beyond. It is responsible for science, for art, for civilization itself.

It is this appeal to the same fundamental element in human nature that swept the world off its feet when Conan Doyle's famous detective stories appeared.

William Gillette added to the fascination of Sherlock Holmes by creating a being that feels, that acts, that lives. Through his genius in dramatic art Essanay has produced a photoplay that throbs with the fire of action, that enthralls as the mysteries of its plot unfolds. It bears the stamp of the fundamental that carries universal appeal.

Sherlock Holmes, with William Gillette, is released in seven acts through V. L. S. E.

A Substitute for Censorship—An Appeal to the Pro-Censorship Producers

GENTLEMEN: Would you consider a substitute for Federal censorship if you were reasonably certain that it would do for you what you believe censorship will do?

Very likely.

You have no love for censorship as a principle. You have adopted it as an expedient. It is, at best, a last resort. But you are mistaken in resorting to censorship when the end in view can be accomplished by another method less revolutionary, less disastrous and equally efficient.

Can you spare a moment to read and consider a serious suggestion?

FIRST of all, there must be brought into being a unified, unanimous body of manufacturers with a deliberate, conscious policy regarding unclean pictures. You may call it a Board of Trade, or a Chamber of Commerce or a Protective Association, or a Commercial League, or anything else you like.

But it should contain every producer as a member, and every member should be committed to a policy of hostility toward the vicious picture.

If you and your fellow-producers throughout the trade can submerge your petty differences and animosities and unite in such an organization for your own self-defence, you will be in a position to deal with the vicious picture as no body of legalized censors, state or national, could ever deal.

If you cannot—if unity, even for the sake of self-preservation, is impossible—then it is a waste of your time to read any further. The entire success of this substitute for censorship hinges on such an organization.

WE are convinced that you can. Therefore ——— Your second step is to formally recognize the National Board of Review (or some other advisory body equally representative of public opinion) to review productions in the light of your declared policies, and let every member be bound to abide by their decisions.

Third, come to a definite and explicit understanding with the Motion Picture Exhibitors League of America, and every other exhibitors organization in the country, regarding the exhibition of pictures not sanctioned by the Board of Review, so that there may be active co-operation between exhibitor and producer at every step.

It would be highly desirable that the exhibitors be represented on the Board of Review. If, however, the Exhibitors' League found it impractical to avail themselves of the opportunity, let the producers' organization agree to furnish them a detailed list, at any desirable intervals, of all pictures passed, all pictures prohibited and all eliminations by the Board of Review.

YOUR fourth step will then be a formal demand upon the authorities of every city and town in the United States to enforce their laws or ordinances now in existence relating to the exhibition of improper pictures, whenever any film appears which is considered to be a violation of the moral standards of any community.

State clearly the attitude of your organization and its members toward the indecent picture.

Let them know what measures you are taking, through your Board of Review, to maintain and improve the standard of pictures. Ask for their vigilance and activity in the matter first, against the unauthorized picture, second against errors of judgment on the part of the Board of Review—a Board which, just because it would judge films for the entire country, might overlook details that individual communities find repugnant.

And let these local authorities know that you, or your agents, stand ready to co-operate with them in every possible way, that your desire is for the suppression of the unclean film, and that you are willing to abide by the decisions of their courts.

LASTLY, make a similar appeal to the women's clubs of the United States. Offer them your complete and unlimited co-operation in the work of "volunteer censorship" which many of them are now doing or planning to do.

Instruct your exchange men to give them every assistance in the reviewing of pictures.

Urge them to see to it, as being on the ground, that the local authorities are not slow to invoke their local statutes against any and every offending film.

Appoint a committee, or create a bureau, whose special and exclusive duty shall be to keep in close and constant touch with the women's clubs or their representatives to facilitate the work of mutual protection against the undesirable picture.

Invite their criticisms and suggestions regarding the Board of Review, and offer them any opportunity they may desire to participate in it.

THERE is nothing visionary about this last proposition. The time is ripe for just such an alliance with the women's organizations throughout the country.

In proof of it, here is Resolution No. 5 of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, passed at the Biennial which closed in New York City June 2:

Inasmuch* as the motion picture has become a potent

A Substitute for Censorship

and seemingly pertinent factor in our national life—commercially, educationally and morally—and in accordance with the recommendation of the President of the General Federation of Women's Clubs adopted by this convention,

Be It Resolved,* That the General Federation of Women's Clubs undertake a countrywide survey of motion picture entertainments, and that it ask club women to favor local censorship among themselves in the interest of motion picture entertainments; also,

Be It Resolved,* That the Board of the General Federation of Women's Clubs appoint a committee to cooperate with the manufacturers of film to secure a higher moral standing of general productions and a larger supply of proper and appropriate film for children.

THE recommendation of Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker, President, above referred to was:

> That the incoming board be requested to make a survey of the questions of the motion picture and report what seems the wisest plan of action.

The Committee referred to in the resolution will be: Mrs. Charles W. Cartwright of Minneapolis; Miss Helen Varick Boswell of New York; Mrs. George Zimmerman of Cleveland; Mrs. Dexter Thurber of Bristol, R. I.; Miss Louise Connolly of Newark.

WHEN it is remembered that this Federation embraces 2,500,000 women and represents nine thousand clubs, and eleven national organizations, the meaning and force of the resolution is significant.

It means that the intelligent women of the country do not want statutory censorship, as a remedy. It means that two million and a half of the most influential women of the nation are in a frame of mind to meet the motion picture producer half way and help him help himself—if he will come the other half of the journey.

Is the producer—are YOU, gentlemen, ready to realize the importance of such an opportunity and meet it?

THE plan outlined above involves nothing new, no new laws, no new organizations,—nothing but putting to a new use the elements already at our hand.

At its costliest, it could not cost as much as Federal censorship. And if it did, it would be a thousand times better to spend money for such ends than to pay it out in fees to legalized censors. The gain would be greater—and there would be no disastrous consequences.

ONCE the several links in this chain of activity are firmly welded together, the efficiency of the laws, now on the statute books of every municipality in the land will be demonstrated to such an extent that every private citizen and every motion picture producer will wonder why censorship was ever thought a necessity.

The problem can be solved—without legalized censorship.

It's up to you, gentlemen!

Advertising on the Screen—How the Public Views It

APROPOS of that much-mooted question, "How far is it legitimate to make the photoplay share the screen with advertising matter?" the Star of Terre Haute, Ind., enters, in behalf of photoplay patrons in that city, a spirited protest against the manner in which some exhibitors have thrust advertising upon their audiences from the screen.

If the same method is followed in other cities, the editorial quoted below will be of more than passing interest to a number of exhibitors.

UNDER the heading, "Mistake of Motion Picture Men," the newspaper says:

"Motion picture fans are more and more strenuously objecting to screen advertising. Many are openly stating that they do not relish paying an admission fee to a motion picture theater and there being regaled, for perhaps half an hour, with the merits of "Jones' Soap," or "Higgin's Butter." "We read these advertisements in the newspapers, magazines and on billboards; we go to the picture theatre to view photoplays," is a most common expression.

"There is the handsome theater erected at heavy cost. The interior and exterior are all that could be wished for in architectural beauty. The interior is furnished with comfortable chairs, running water, greenery, etc. There are costly aisle carpets, a magnificent pipe organ, and the orchestra of perhaps half a dozen musicians, leaves nothing to be desired from that standpoint.

"Then the dignity, the artistic atmosphere of this handsome and commodious playhouse is frequently lowered because of forced advertising. An intelligent audience is seated therein and is in a mood to appreciate and to applaud a beautiful and appealing screen drama or comedy. All is in readiness, anticipation is rife, artistic atmosphere so essential to the successful showing of any meritorious play is all prepared, and then—

"'Jenk's Cough Syrup' is flashed upon the screen; an urchin is viewed swallowing, with evident satisfaction, the contents of a bottle of 'Popular Pop'; another lad appears on the screen and licks 'Oscar's Oleo,' from the top of a slice of bread, and so on for perhaps fifteen minutes.

"Civilization" Makes Profound Impression in East

Long-Heralded Ince "Cinema-Spectacle," Whose Tragic Theme of War Prosecuted with Relentless Power Against the Rights of the People by a King Mad with the Lust for Conquest, Is Given Its Premier in New York, and Moves Daily Press to Enthusiastic Comment

Thomas H. Ince (Center) and Four Scenes from His Ten-Reel Spectacle, "Civilization," a Portrayal of the Savagery of War, and Now in Its New York Engagement at the Criterion Theatre

THOMAS H. INCE'S long-heralded spectacle "Civilization" was given its first public showing in the East at the Criterion theatre, New York, on June 2. A crowded house applauded vigorously as the remarkable example of cinematography was unreeled, and the heads of all the important film companies in the East were on hand to study Mr. Ince's work.

Nothing more elaborate in the way of motion picture spectacles has ever been shown in this country. It is a simple story of war overtaking an unnamed, but peaceful and happy European country. The ravages and horrors of this war are shown in faithful detail; the effect on the inhabitants, and the relentless power, which for the sake of its own ambition rides ruthlessly over the lives and happiness of men, women and children, all innocent and ignorant of the causes which have despoiled them of homes and loved ones, is vizualized strikingly.

In mechanical and artistic production—that is, the full development of the powers and resources of the motion picture camera, up to the moment, "Civilization" need yield to nothing thus far produced—not even "The Birth of a Nation." This former production is cited because "Civilization" carries with it more than a suspicion that it was intended to rival the Griffith spectacle. But instead of rivalling it contrasts.

There are touches in "Civilization" which could come only from the hand of the artist. The handling of great crowds of extras, the arrangement of battle scenes, the depiction of the distress of an innocent people, and the wholesale destruction of life and property are as striking and as near the zenith of this form of art as we have ever seen. Inserted in this is an allegory, which bears a dubious relation to the thread of the narrative. It involves the second appearance of Christ, in the body of a young count who has given his life rather than slaughter innocent men, women and children on the high seas. It is through the mediation of the Christ that the King who precipitated the war on the world is led to see the awfulness of it, and to bring about peace.

It Is a "Cinema-Spectacle"

"Civilization" is presented as a "cinema-spectacle." It is divided into two parts, and the first part is preceded by a prologue, acted on a regularly set stage. This represents the happy life of a peasant village, until the rumble of distant cannon is heard, followed by the nearer rattle of musketry, and the explosion of shells on the stage, which in a few seconds transforms the peaceful field into a sceen of grisly carnage. Then the picture follows.

Troughout the showing, a hidden chorus, led by Kathryn Barnard as soloist, furnished incidental music, written especially for the production by Victor L. Schertzinger.

Where "Civilization" is weak is in the lack of an articulate human story. It is merely a pageant of horror, real and fantastic. There is a King, who, with his parliament, desires war, and forces it to an issue, despite the attempts of a parliamentary leader to prevent the slaughter. The troops mobilize, new and terrible engines of war are brought into being, the farmers are torn from their fields and the blacksmiths from their forges and hurried to the front and awful scenes of slaughter on land and sea commence.

There is a young Count Ferdinand who has invented a new submarine, on which the government depends to do great havoc. He bids farewell to his sweetheart, Katherine Haldeman, but before starting for the front he learns she has joined an organization of women pledged to suppress war. She leads him into one of their meetings, and he is converted to the principles of humanity.

On board his submarine, he receives orders to sink a liner, his better self comes to the surface and he refuses to obey, whereupon his subordinates take matters into their own hands. In order to prevent the slaughter of the innocents, the Count draws a pistol, holds the men back, opens the valves and fills the submarine with water. All the crew perish, but the body of the Count is recovered and taken back to the capital.

In the valhalla of the victims, he encounters the Christ, who tells him that his action in giving his life has purified his soul. The Christ then enters the Count's body, and appears on earth for the second time. The "Count" is revived, but instead of re-entering the war, he goes about preaching peace until he is court-martialed and sentenced to death. He dies in his cell, and the spirit of Christ, leaving the body, conducts the spirit of the King through the terrors he has created. Peace results.

Excellent Cast Interprets Action

The cast which interprets this phantasmagoria is able, and has been ably handled. Herschel Mayall, Lola May, Howard Hickman, Enid Markey, George Fisher, J. Frank Burke, Charles K. French, J. Barney Sherry, Jerome Storm and Ethel Ullman are the principals.

The New York opening was, strictly speaking, an Ince evening. The name of Ince was not only spread over the souvenir programs, but was blazoned on the decorations and pictured on the screen. Mr. Ince in person responded to vociferous calls and uttered two sentences from the stage at the close of the picture.

New York newspapers, realizing the importance of this production, gave liberal space to the opening. Among the comments were:

New York World:

In point of the number of people engaged in its scenes of frightfulness on land and sea, of the grisly realism of its episodes of destruction of life and property, and of the ingenuity and technical expertness with which its object lesson was carried to an emotional climax, the stage, either dramatic or devoted to the screens, has never produced a more impressive sight.

The acting of the individual roles was generally excellent, but it was the imagination, executive ability and technical skill of Thomas

Striking Moments in the World Film Picturization of Thomas W. Lawson's "Friday the 13th," with Carlyle Blackwell

H. Ince which makes "Civilization" the masterpiece that it surely is.

New York Times:

"Civilization' attempts to serve the pacifists as "The Battle Cry of Peace" tried to serve the cause of preparedness. Its argument is elementary, a leaf out of the pacifists' primer, a projection on the screen of something of that state of mind that was most in evidence in this neighborhood at the time the Ford expedition set forth from these shores. Its program describes it as a direct appeal to the "mothers of men."

Mr. Ince spoke his acknowledgments with a modesty and brevity in striking contrast with the fulsome Ince-adulation which makes the program such painful reading. He has projected a philosophy of war on a par with "War Brides," an entertainment on an artistic level with "Ben Hur," a dramatic photo spectacle that falls somewhat short of "The Birth of a Nation."

New York Tribune:

While "Civilization" attends to business it is probably the greatest motion picture ever made. When it turns aside into sentimental byways it is rather painful. The field of the films is photographic, and that fact was never more clearly demonstrated than last night at the Criterion theatre. Pictorially "Civilization" is gigantic. Its battle scenes are something more than wonderful; they are terrific. They are so terrific that they encompass and blot out the film's defects, and the net result is that the picture is a huge winner. Unless the competition to come is possessed of unexpected strength "Civilization' will remain at the Criterion all summer and all winter.

It is only occasionally that a bad play can be turned into a success by skilful direction, but such a procedure is an everyday occurence in the films. The success of "Civilization" is attributable solely to Thomas H. Ince, who produced it. So far as the experiences of the present reviewer are concerned, the vivid succession of smashing, rending, tearing battle scenes which make up the first part of the picture never have been equalled in any film. If Mr. Ince has erred it is in making these scenes so impressive that the second part of the film cannot but come as an anti-climax. Even this error can be laid at the feet of the author, however, who should have written a story that would have made it possible for Mr. Ince to put these scenes where they belonged.

New York Press:

Daring in the extreme is Ince's picturization of Christ in the second half of the spectacle. Reverence never is offended, although it did sound strange for applause to greet His figure. Through the picture the Saviour was beheld in the spirit rather than in the flesh.

"Civilization" comprises everything that has been shown in the massive picture dramas hitherto offered—and then hundreds of things never before comprehended by the camera. It transcends anything yet projected.

Mr. Ince, with his true artistry, has welded the whole into a coherent story. The thread is attenuated, but held consistently.

The story of "Civilization" was written by C. Gardner Sullivan.

Completion of Fiftieth Cub Comedy Celebrated at Horsley's

More Than 250 People Are Entertained at the Enclosed Studio on May 27—Director Fahrney Is Brought on the Floor for Witty Speech and Makes Good

Special to Motion Picture News.

Los Angeles, June 3.

DAVID HORSLEY, who has been on the coast for the past two weeks, following a stay of three months in New York where he looked after business matters, has again put into use his commuter's ticket, and Saturday left for the releasing hub of the motion picture industry. When Mr. Horsley returned to the coast he was accompanied by Charles Heinkel, who has been placed in charge as manager of production.

Friday B. H. Von Klein, who for the past eight months has served as general manager of the Horsley studios and interests in Los Angeles, tendered his resignation, and John Jasper, who has been connected with the Horsley organization as purchasing agent, has been appointed to the position of business manager.

Now that Mr. Horsley has closed his eastern office, all advertising and publicity of the company will be handled from the Los Angeles office. This department is in charge of Carlyle Robinson.

More than two hundred and fifty people were guests of David Horsley at the enclosed studio Saturday evening, May 27, when an informal dance and reception was held in honor of Director Milton H. Fahrney and Cub Comedy company, in recognition of the completion of the fifty Cub comedies, all of which have been made within the past fifty weeks. Carlyle Robinson of the publicity department of the Horsley studio, was master of ceremonies, and first introduced Director Fahrney, who briefly outlined, in a witty speech, the work and pleasures of his organization. Following, the Cub comedy quartette was introduced and sang three numbers. George Ovey, leading comedian, received very enthusiastic applause when he sang one of his own songs in negro dialect. An orchestra of colored men furnished music for a dance which continued the remainder of the evening. The Cub Comedy company was organized fifty weeks ago, and with but one or two exceptions, the organization remains the same today.

Brooklyn League Wants Ochs President of National Body

At Regular Semi-Monthly Meeting Branch Appoints Two Committees to Present Grievances to Two Large Film Corporations, with Power to Cancel Contracts

AT the regular semi-monthly meeting of the Brooklyn Exhibitors League held at the Triangle theatre, Thursday evening, June 1, a strong spirit of co-operation was evident by this organization appointing two committees to take up certain grievances with two large corporations. This committee is intrusted with full power to get redress or to cancel every contract now in force with these corporations.

A full meeting enthusiastically received Lee Ochs, president of the New York Local No. 1, who, in a stirring address, complimented this organization on their spirit of co-operation.

A splendid luncheon was provided by the management of the Triangle theatre and was enjoyed thoroughly by all the exhibitors.

The delegates to the Chicago convention were elected. The following exhibitors will represent Brooklyn at Chicago: President Manheimer, H. Clark Mooney of the Triangle theatre; Ben Title of the Avon theatre; Mr. Levine of the Regent theatre, and Mr. Bland of the Albany theatre, alternate.

A number of committees reported on the co-operative plan of purchasing material and booking. A considerable amount of money will be saved by the co-operative purchase plan.

The prevailing spirit among the members present favored Mr. Ochs as a candidate for national president.

NEPHEW OF LAEMMLE IS AT "U" CITY TO LEARN BUSNESS

Los Angeles, June 3.

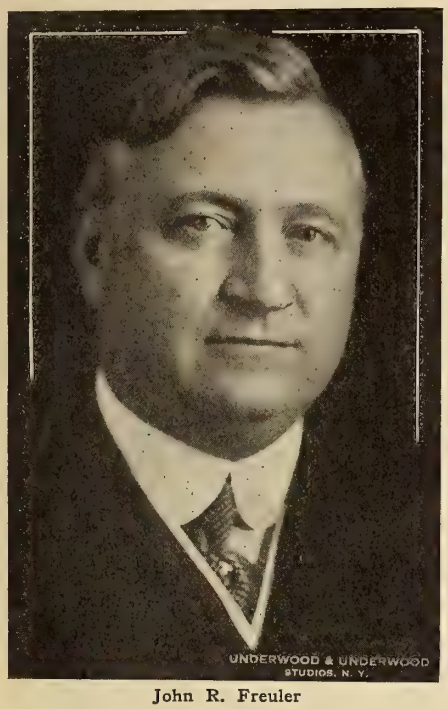
Edward Laemmle, nephew of President Carl Laemmle, has arrived at "U" city where he has been engaged in the production department under Manager Charles Rankin, where he will make a study of the business.

American Film Company Opens Office in New York City

Chester Beecroft, Whose Wide Experience and Conspicuous Achievements Qualify Him for His Duties, Is in Charge of the Branch and Will Contract with Leading Actors and Authors of Fiction and Drama, Besides Handling the Export Departments of the Hutchinson Company

THAT the American Film Company intends to maintain a prominent position in the way of extraordinary production is evidenced by the opening last week of a New York office, from which the brilliant stars of the thespian firmament, together with the big ones among the writers of fiction, drama and scenario, will be gathered to the fold of the "Flying A."

Chester Beecroft, whose thorough experience and conspicuous achievements in various branches of the business amply qualify him for the important duties of the position, has been chosen to manage the new office and has already taken up his duties in rooms 1627 and 1628 of the Masonic Building, 71 West Twenty-third street.



John R. Freuler

S. S. Hutchinson, president of the American, has for a long time been recognized as a successful producer and much of the success of his productions, such as "The Diamond from the Sky," "The Girl and the Game," and innumerable regular releases have been attributed to the fact that he has always given his personal attention to the preparation and actual making of every photoplay.

Mr. Hutchinson has wisely determined to continue this policy of personal supervision, so that when he and his associates decided to confine the future activities of the company to the biggest and most desirable attractions that can possibly be procured, the necessity of a metropolitan office became apparent.

James Kirkwood, director, and Mary Miles Minter, star, have already been engaged for American productions and negotiations are now under way with two of the most famous female picture stars in the world, also with three great dramatic stars, who will be presented in the play or plays with which they are most closely identified in the mind of every theatre goer in the land.

Study of Public Demand

The guiding idea in this new departure will be the careful study of the real demand of the generality of picture audiences, and the development of the artistic and technical phases of the motion picture along lines most conducive to the permanent success of the industry.

A frequent cause of failure of individual productions which have had the advantage of a great star or a great play has been the weakness of the connecting links the American heads believe. A great star needs equally great directing, and a great play or story is frequently ruined by incompetent "scenarioizing." Granted that these major requirements have been fully met, there is still the peril of improper technical and scenic preparation, hopeless cameramen, bad laboratory work and last, but still important, unskilful advertising.

To guard against the operation of any such faults in the productions of the American Film Company, Mr. Hutchinson has instructed Mr. Beecroft to contract with the leading actors in the world, with the authors of current works of fiction and drama for their most striking successes, and original stories to be written for special stars, experienced scenario writers who have had literary training to put such creations into "working" form for the studio, master directors of the Kirkwood class, and crack cameramen.

Chester Beecroft

When John R. Freuler, president of the Mutual Film Corporation, advanced the policy of that distributing organization to its present point of efficiency by limiting its releases to big star or big play productions, the American was the first company to see the wisdom of the plan and put it in instant operation.

S. S. Hutchinson

That the American is in earnest in its determination to produce only the "ultra" in motion pictures, and is properly equipped to do so, will be apparent to all when it is recalled that it was Mr. Freuler who conceived the idea and worked out the details of the contract whereby Charlie Chaplin is now receiving $10,000 a week, plus his $150,000 bonus. Mr. Freuler is one of the principal stockholders in the American and is vitally interested in its progress.

Mr. Beecroft will also handle the export departments, as far as sales and contracts are concerned, of the American, Lone Star Company (Charlie Chaplin), north American ("Diamond from the Sky," etc.), "Damaged Goods" and some others, and special advertising on Charlie Chaplin, the newly acquired stars, and the series of pictures in which they will make their appearances.

IT'S ALL WRONG—THERE'S NO VAUDEVILLE FOR ETHEL

Ethel Teare lost no time in wiring a denial of a story appearing in a Chicago vaudeville publication last week to the effect that she would return to the variety stage to be starred in a tabloid revue on Broadway next Fall.

Miss Teare will continue as the star of Kalem's new Ethel Teare comedies.

PANTAGES, VAUDEVILLE MAGNATE, TO ENTER PICTURES

Special to Motion Picture News.

Los Angeles, June 3.

Alex Pantages, who owns and conducts twenty vaudeville theatres along the Pacific Coast and in the mountain states as far east as Winnipeg and Minneapolis, is to enter the motion picture producing field in June. Mr. Pantages has engaged Chris Richards, an English comedian, as principal of his stock company, and will make one reel comedies. The producing organization will be located at a Los Angeles studio. Arrangements are now being made for a producing plant by Carl Walker, who is the manager of Pantages theatre in Los Angeles.

Lubin Gains Victory Over Pennsylvania Censor Board

Judge Audenried in Philadelphia Court of Appeals, No. 4, Overrules Its Tampering with "Dollars and the Woman," Released Through the V-L-S-E

IN an opinion filed last week by Presiding Judge Audenried of the Philadelphia Court of Appeals, No. 4, the Pennsylvania Board of Censors were overruled in their deletions of the Lubin-V. L. S. E. film drama, "Dollars and the Woman."

The objection which the censors made to the picture, and which was revoked by the courts, had to do principally with a sub-title, in which a devoted, self-sacrificing wife advises her husband that their meager bank account "soon must do for three."

Testimony regarding the elminations ordered by the censors was heard in court and was supplemented by the personal review of the film by Judges Audenried and Carr.

"Upon the whole evidence before it," says the opinion, 'the court is of the opinion (and so finds) that in deciding the questions indicated by its elimination requirements (excepting the second) the board abused its discretion and acted arbitrarily and oppressively. For this reason the appeal taken by the Lubin Manufacturing Company (so far as it has not been withdrawn) is sustained, and the order of the Board of Censors, so far as it involved the condemnation or disapproval of the moving picture film above mentioned for default of compliance with any of its requirements except the second, is reversed."

The elimination known as No. 2, which the court excepted in its order, was a scene showing a thief cutting a handbag from a woman's arm. The Board of Censors ordered that the view of the shears be entirely eliminated.

The court quotes the description of the play and continues:

"This summary outlines the story of the play in the most general manner, and fails to give an adequate or just idea of the plot or the method of its treatment. It is referred to, however, as in some degree explanatory of the criticisms of the board. It may not be amiss to observe in passing, that in the opinion of the court these pictures cannot fail to convince any unbiased mind of the purity of the underlying motive of the story, that they illustrate and satisfy it, that the tender pathos of the plot absolutely precludes the impressions and suggestions imputed by the censors to the features they have condemned."

The consensus of opinion among newspaper reviewers who attended a private showing of the film, prior to its having been placed on the market, was that the picture was remarkable for its freedom from sensationalism, sensual suggestion or scenes of physical violence, and yet possessed the power of enlisting the sympathy of the spectators.

When the censors saw fit to place an embargo on the film, they were requested to state their reasons for objecting to it. They replied only that it could not be shown. It had hitherto been the custom for censors to point out objectionable features of a film. The appeal followed immediately and the censor brigade, evidently somewhat wary of the outlook, made advances toward peace with the producers.

"We think," said one of them soothingly, "that you people were a trifle too hasty in rushing this matter into the courts. There is every likelihood that a compromise could be reached if it were talked over in detail."

"That," rejoined the Lubin legal representative, "is just where we differ in opinion. There can be no compromise where there is nothing to compromise, which is our contention in this case."

Picture People Win Victory Over Funkhouser in Chicago

"Censor Czar" Refuses to Pass on "Little Girl Next Door"—Appeal Is Made to Mayor, Who Decides It Is a Police Matter, and Chief Issues Permit

"THE Little Girl Next Door," which is now being booked on State rights basis from Room 521, First National Bank Building, Chicago, has had a stormy career. It is based on the report of the Illinois State Vice Commission in its investigation to find out why girls go wrong.

The battle over the picture began when it was first shown to the Chicago Board of Censors. Although it had been endorsed by more than a score of Chicago's most prominent ministers, Major M. L. C. Funkhouser, head of the Chicago Board of Censors, refused to issue a permit. An appeal was taken over his head to Mayor Thompson, who received a legal opinion from Corporation Counsel Ettleson. He declared that the final work on censorship was up to the Chief of Police. Chief Healey promptly issued a permit over Major Funkhouser's head, thus establishing a new role in censorship in Chicago, which also will be likely to have its effect on other boards throughout the country.

The play was immediately booked by the Jones-Linick and Schaefer Company for the LaSalle Theatre, Chicago. There it had the biggest run of any picture ever played in that house, according to President Aaron Jones.

The play was later attacked on the floor of the city council, Alderman Buck declaring that the picture was not fit to be shown. Several cutouts were made in compliance with the criticisms of Mr. Buck, who objected largely on the ground that the picture put Mayor Thompson in too favorable political light in the closing of the places mentioned.

The play is still being presented practically intact to great crowds. The council has as yet taken no action on the resolution before the judiciary committee to compel Chief Healey to revoke the permit, leaving the entire matter of cutouts and permits up to the judgment of Major Funkhouser.

"The Little Girl Next Door" has been booked in several large cities. In some it met with distinct opposition and in others was granted a permit to be shown on the ground that it taught an important moral lesson and would be of benefit in opening the eyes of parents to the dangers that lay in the paths of their daughters and in teaching girls inclined to innocent pleasures the inevitable outcome of their missteps.

Ministers and social workers have endorsed the picture.

Marguerite Clayton Cast for Series of 3-Reel Essanays

In Each Picture She Will Appear Opposite an Actor of Equal Reputation, in Keeping with Spoor Policy of "Best Players in Short Subjects"

A SERIES of two and three reel pictures has been prepared for Marguerite Clayton by Essanay and she is now at work on the third subject. In each she appears opposite a star of equal reputation, in keeping with President George K. Spoor's policy of placing his best players in short subjects.

The first of the new plays was "Putting It Over," a two reel comedy drama in which she appeared with Harry Beaumont. This was her first attempt at light comedy.

The second play was "The Promise Land," her first appearance opposite Bryant Washburn. These two popular stars are now working in another three reel drama, "Worth While."

Miss Clayton's rise to stardom has been wholly in Essanay productions. The popularity she won in Essanay western pictures has grown steadily since her appearance in the largest of Essanay features. She went to Chicago studios of Essanay late in 1915. Since that time she has appeared in three feature productions, "A Daughter of the City," "Vultures of Society," and "According to the Code," together with numerous short pictures.

VIM ADOPTS NEW TRADE MARK

Vim Comedies have dropped the cartoon style of poster so long distinctive of the Vim brand, and have adopted a new device, consisting of a Shakespearian fool with a baubel. The device is used as a border for one-sheet posters, the Vim name appearing on a balloon which the fool holds tethered with a string. In the panel is inserted a comedy scene from the subject, posterized in three colors.

"We Need Proper Picture Regulation"—Rowland

President of Metro Does Not Advocate, However, the Principle Nor the Operation of Censorship as Now Conducted —A Federal Commission Would Eliminate State and Local Bodies Which Work So Much Harm by Their Diversified and Irresponsible Judgments, Is His View

"AS the great amusement of common men, and as the fifth industry in the United States, the motion picture has a right to demand and will demand fair play at the hands of the lawmakers, said President Rowland of Metro recently. I do not believe in the principle nor in the operation of a censorship of motion pictures. I do believe in a proper and protective regulation of motion pictures.

"There should be demanded, and I believe there is to be demanded of the Congress, a law creating a Federal Commission of Motion Pictures. The members of this commission should be men of the broadest education and intelligence. They should be paid salaries of from $10,000 to $15,000 annually in order to make certain that men, big enough and broad enough, can be induced to accept the responsibility that would attach to such offices. They should be sufficient in number so that all sections of the United States would be represented on the commission, and for purposes of suggestion only, I would place the number at seven. Of these, two should represent the Middle States, one the Pacific Coast States, one the New England States, one the Middle Atlantic States, one the Southern States and one should be appointed at large and be chosen as head of the commission.

"The commission should be required to review every motion picture manufactured for public exhibition, with the exception of news pictures, which, under proper conditions, should be exempt from review because of the element of time. The pictures reviewed should carry the Federal Commission trade mark or sign as an evidence that they had been shown to and approved by the commission.

Commission to Be Appointed by President

"The commission should be appointed personally by the President of the United States with the approval of the Senate, and it should be specified that its membership should be bi-partisan in order to insure its freedom from the influence of politics.

"I might point out here that, with upwards of seventeen thousand motion picture screens in the United States, there lies in the hands of the exhibitors an opportunity for political influence which, if rightly used, will take full care of the bigoted, the self-seeking politicians, the long haired, notoriety seeking reformers, the professionally virtuous and all the rest of the gallant crew that is now aligned against the greatest source of entertainment in the world.

"I believe the exhibitors would combine and as one man oppose to the uttermost the election of any man to office who seeks to exploit motion pictures for political profit, whether the office be that of Governor, Senator, Assemblyman, Mayor, Alderman or Town Constable. I believe that such a protective combination will be in operation before the next elections, and in such full operation the screen will be guaranteed a freedom equal to that now enjoyed by the pulpit, the spoken drama and the public press.

"A Federal Commission is needed by the industry if it is to be protected against the assaults of forty-eight different kinds of legislation in forty-eight different States. The situation now, if it is permitted to continue, will bring absolute ruin, and I am not overstating the case, to the makers and the distributors of motion pictures.

"No matter how broad minded the State Censors may be they do not seem to agree in their demands upon the picture makers. One scene is cut out in Ohio, another totally different one is eliminated in Pennsylvania, and we may look for other changes in Maryland and in Kansas. How is it possible to preserve a story in anything like its entirety if they all take a hack at it and each in a different place?

Time Would Solve the Problems

"We in the picture business believe that the problem of better pictures would solve itself, if time were given for the industry to work out its own salvation before the public. But legislation is upon us in oppressive bulk, and before we can suit the various needs and satisfy the whims of the censors in each of the States, our business will be gone and it will be too late. Therefore, as a protection to ourselves as business men, we have a right to demand protection from the Federal Government.

"I do not expect that this Federal Commission would at once rid motion pictures of the state censorship problem, but it could not help but deter States from passing legislation that would be shown to be totally unnecessary when the situation was being adequately supervised in fairness to the industry and to the public by a body of dignity, breadth and full power. It would, in my opinion, lead to the repeal of State Laws which have been found in every case unsatisfactory to the public, as well as oppressive and unfair to the picture makers. A Federal Commission would provide a broad and fair foundation for the settlement of all of our motion picture problems within and without the industry, and the expense of its maintenance would be borne by a proper tax upon the industry itself."

World Is Ready to Buy Script from Unknown Authors

Scenarios Are as Welcome from the Literary Obscure as the Literarily Enlightened, Provided That They Really Have Something Worth Putting on the Screen

DECLARING that World Film has not fixed any limit to the price it will pay for big stories, William A. Brady, director-general of production, announces that scripts from obscure writers are desired just as much as material from established authors. The worth of the story alone will determine the price, Mr. Brady said.

"We pay for material any sum commensurate with the importance of the writer, bigness of the story, unconventionality of the plots and promise of the scenario. A John Smith is as welcome to us as Sir James M. Barrie—all we want is the finished product.

"There is no filed in the world where a reputation counts for less than in motion picture making.

"An author, in order to attract attention, must lay before us a finished work. If it is unfinished, we must, in order to produce it, put a professional writer to work, have it revised and scenes, situations and climaxes injected,—all of which, when the film is produced, go to the credit of the original writer.

"But, to my mind, at least so far as World Film is concerned, there is no limit to the price we will pay for original material.

"We are advertising at an expense of ten thousand dollars for new writers, new idea creators, new plot architects—all because we want to get away from the hackneyed, tired 'two men and a woman' ideas.

"We recently bought one scene from an author to insert into the story of another writer, and paid almost as much for the scene as is sometimes paid for an entire story. The author of the play, when it is screened, will get full credit for that scene.

"There is no standard price for World Film. We are in the market for the product of the best authors, for which we will pay the highest prices."

INCE IN "CIVILIZATION" AUDIENCE UNRECOGNIZED

While "Civilization" was being flashed on the screen before a notable first night audience at its New York premiere in the Criterion Theatre, Thomas H. Ince, creator of the spectacle, stood at the back of the house, unrecognized.

In response to applause and cheers, he was finally led out on the stage by Al Woods, his associate, and made a brief speech.

"I feel like a man who has seen a dream come true," said Mr. Ince, after the audience had departed. "I felt within myself that my handiwork had been good, but the question was: would New York share my opinion? I hope it has."

LOUIS GLAUM MAY BE CAST FOR DAVIS STORY

RIFKIN BUYS "YELLOW MENACE" FOR NEW ENGLAND

Andrew J. Cobe, vice-president and general manager of the Unity Sales Corporation, announces that through negotiations conducted between himself and Herman Rifkin, general manager of the Eastern Feature Film Company, that concern has purchased the New England rights to "The Yellow Menace," the sixteen episode serial starring Edwin Stevens, and featuring Florence Malone and Margaret Gale. The states covered by Mr. Rifkin's franchise include Maine, Massachusetts, Vermont, New Hampshire, Connecticut and Rhode Island.

Mr. Rifkin is highly enthusiastic over "The Yellow Menace." "I consider this serial one of the most powerful and thrilling I have ever seen," says Mr. Rifkin, "the timeliness of the subject with such men as Speaker Champ Clark warning against the peril from across the Pacific alone makes it certain to be of tremendous drawing power. Every wide-awake exhibitor who has his own best interests at heart should get busy on 'The Yellow Menace' right away."

ADMISSION OF NON-FILM MEN TO OMAHA CLUB UNDER ADVISEMENT

Special to Motion Picture News.

Omaha, June 3.

The Omaha Screen Club is in a quandary. Should anyone besides motion picture exhibitors, exchange men and the motion picture editors and advertisers of the various newspapers be allowed to join the club?

The Omaha club today launched a membership campaign. If 500 members are secured, or even if 250 are found, club quarters will be established. But the field is limited. The Omaha, Council Bluffs, and South Omaha picture men, together with a few from out in the state, will hardly be enough.

But a number of automobile, musical and theatrical people have asked to join. Whether or not to let them occupied a good bit of the time during the discussions of the club today.

Leads in "Julius Caesar" Taken by Prominent Film Folk

In Cast of Outdoor Production at Beechwood Natural Amphitheatre, Hollywood, Cal., Were Theodore Roberts, William Farnum and Tyrone Power

Cast of "Julius Caesar" As Presented at Hollywood: (Left to right, Seated) Raymond Wells, Director; De Wolf Hopper, Frank Keenan, Tyrone Power, Sarah Truax, Theodore Roberts, William Farnum

Special to Motion Picture News.

Los Angeles, June 3.

PROMINENT members of the West coast film colony took the leading parts in the presentation of "Julius Caesar" at Beechwood natural ampitheatre, Hollywood, last week, a production which sets new records for gigantic dramatic attractions from many angles. This was staged for the benefit of the Actors' Fund. The gross receipts were twenty-one thousand dollars, and the production cost approximately twelve thousand dollars. More than twenty thousand people purchased admission tickets, and it is estimated that fully that many saw the presentation from the crests of adjoining hills.

In this speaking stage production, the motion picture industry not only loaned the players, but other effects including silhouettes and flash-backs which added wonderfully to the presentation. The flash-backs were accomplished by means of searchlight lighting devices, and were used when the plotters of Rome discussed the offer of a crown for Caesar.

Cassius, Brutus, et. al., were on the stage, while the crowds consisting of several thousand were on Capitoline Hill several hundred feet distant. In the last act, the silhouette scenes of the unsuccessful battles were shown across the night sky on the crest of the seven hills surrounding Rome, by aid of flares and searchlights.

The natural amphitheatre with a stage at the bottom of the canyon, afforded ideal location for the spectacle, and gave ample space for the thousands of seats. The acoustic properties were such that the person in the farthest seat could hear distinctly practically every line by the players. Men versed in the history of dramatic productions accredited this with being the most stupendous of its kind ever given. Never before, and without doubt, never again, will such an array of talent take part in one production.

The success of this production by the motion picture section of the Actors' Fund Association, must be accredited to Raymond Wells, who originated the idea of giving such a production, and has been in charge of preparing for it. In directing the staging of this he was aided by Ernest Shields, Captain Louis R. Ball, Ralph Benzies, Mark Fenton, Nicholas Kessler, Robert Lawler, Mrs. L. R. Ball, Marjorie Riley, Clara Turner, and Lionel Bradshaw.

The cast included Theodore Roberts as Caesar; Octavius Caesar by Charles Gunn; William Farnum as Marc Antony; Tyrone Power as Brutus; Hal Wilson as Cicero; Frank Keenan as Cassius; De Wolf Hopper as Casca; Douglas Fairbanks as Young Cato; Constance Crawley as Calpurnia; Sarah Truax as Portia; Arthur Maud as a citizen, and scores of others of national reputation. More than 4,000 took part.

The remarkable success of "Julius Caesar" has caused the Chamber of Commerce of Hollywood to realize the value of the natural amphitheatre, and it is to be a permanent amusement place. J. C. Jessen.

Women's Political Equality League Pins a Medal on V-L-S-E

Chicago Organization, as Result of City-Wide Campaign to Expose Exhibitors Who Show Unclean Pictures, Issues Report Giving Company First Place for Clean Plays

AS the result of a city-wide campaign in Chicago to expose exhibitors who show unclean pictures, the Women's Political Equality League of that city has just issued a report giving V-L-S-E first place in percentage of clean plays produced.

With a view to ascertaining the cause of this situation, the members of the League instituted a second inquiry. In consequence of this, the open booking policy of the Big Four which permits individual exhibitors to select those pictures best suited to their clientele, was declared to be the dominating influence responsible for the V-L-S-E's good showing.

The investigation began last November, with Mrs. Guy Blanchard as chairman of the committee of inquiry. The city was divided into districts, with a district manager in charge of each. Assistants were detailed to visit the theatres. From November 25 to April 10, one thousand seven hundred and fifty-five houses were visited by members of the League, and 4,563 reels inspected. The investigators were supplied with blanks for complete reports.

JAVA MONKEY IN E. & R. "DISCOVERED"

Managers Edwards and Rounan have discovered a new actor in the person of Punch, the Java monkey, who has just portrayed the role of the son of Napoleon and Sally in the comedy "Discovered." This is a detective tale with Napoleon as an assistant to the sleuth, who observes his employer flirting in the park, and aids the detective to secure evidence against the woman's husband when a hold-up is done by the husband.

BRENNAN IN "THE QUITTER," SET FOR RELEASE BY METRO ON JULY 10

Edward Brennan, who has appeared in many Metro plays, will next be seen on the screen in "The Quitter," the Metro-Rolfe release for July 10, in which Lionel Barrymore is starred. Mr. Brennan was featured with Grace Elliston in "Black Fear," a Metro, and had a similar role in "The Woman Pays," with Valli Valli.

SEQUELS TO "SHOULD A BABY DIE?" IS PLAN OF VARIETY

Variety Films Corporation has gathered a number of scenarios submitted by film fans as sequels to its production, "Should a Baby Die?" It is announced by President Louis Rosenbluh that George Szirmay, in charge of the Variety scenario department, has begun work on several of these in preparation for their picturization.

Policy of "Short Lengths" with Stars Profits General Film

General Business of the Company Trebles Since It Inaugurated Plan of Providing One, Two and Three Reelers with a Variety of Themes and Noteworthy Players

GENERAL Film these days is reported to be profiting as a result of its predominating policy of providing short length pictures of many varieties with notable stars featured in them and exhibitors are appreciating it too, if one may judge by William N. Selig's recent statement that since he decided to offer his biggest and best stars in one, two and three reel pictures, for release through General Film Service, his business with the General Film Company has trebled. All the other producers, releasing through this same service, have gone on record as declaring that this policy has worked out to the best possible advantage of both manufacturer and exhibitors.

George K. Spoor, president of Essanay, is one of the most enthusiastic over the policy of featuring big stars in short reels and only last week made another announcement that Essanay's highest salaried and acknowledged best artists will be seen in the one, two and three reel pictures released through General Film Service.

General Film Service program for the week June 12-18 inclusive, leads with Kate Claxton's greatest success "The Two Orphans," picturized by Selig. The next picture is a Vitagraph comedy, "Her Loving Relations." Then the Selig-Tribune will flash pictorially the important news of the world. Biograph's "The Spirit Awakened," featuring Blanche Sweet and directed by D. W. Griffith, will be presented. Then just to send everybody home in good humor, Lubin's comedy, "Otto the Cobbler," will be shown.

Essanay's "Putting it Over," a comedy in two parts, featuring Marguerite Clayton and Bryant Washburn, will be first on Tuesday's program. This will be followed by Kalem's "The Alaskan Mouse Hound," a single reel comedy, which will precede "The Avenger," in two parts by Lubin, in which L. C. Shumway is featured. Then will follow one of Edison's pictures, "The Man in the Street," which Marc McDermott and Duncan McRae share honors.

"The Bachelors' Alliance," a Kalem one part comedy, is the first subject for Wednesday. It is followed by Essanay's "Canimated Nooz Pictorial" and a short scenic production. "The Charge of the Light Brigade," an Edison single reel drama, featuring Ben Wilson, will then be shown. The program for the day will close with Biograph's "Liberty Bells," a three part comedy.

Lubin offers "The Sons of the Sea," a drama in three parts which leads Thursday's program. Lucy Payton is featured in this. The Selig-Tribune is one of the features of this day's releases and "Hungry Hearts," a Vim comedy in one part, will close the day.

Marguerite Nichols and Daniel Gilfether share honors in "An Old Man's Folly," a Knickerbocker Star Feature, a three part drama on Friday's program, and will be followed by one of the Sis Hopkins Series, "The Stenographer's Strategy." Then "Harold, the Nurse Girl," a Vitagraph comedy, and "The Raid," a Vim comedy, each one reel, will be screened.

Another instance of where Essanay's big stars are featured in short reels will be seen in the first release on Saturday, "The Promise Land," featuring Marguerite Clayton and Bryant Washburn. Lubin will provide a one part comedy, "Hubby Puts One Over," which will precede "Ashes," a Vitagraph three act drama in which Corrine Griffith and Jack Mower are featured. The thrill of the day releases will probably be emphasized by Kalem's "A Race Through the Air," an episode of the "Hazards of Helen." Saturday's program will close with Selig's "The Cowpuncher's Peril," featuring Tom Mix.

Sunday, as a General Film Service innovation, a five reel feature, will be presented in "Pay Dirt," produced by Knickerbocker.

Ivan Calls Meeting of Exchangemen to Discuss Output Plans

Many Franachise Owners Now in New York—Majority Express Themselves in Favor of the Company Releasing at Least Two Features Instead of One a Month

THE success enjoyed by the Ivan productions has caused the owners of franchises as distributors of this brand to desire more feature photoplays along similar lines.

With a view of increasing the output, the exchange owners from all over the country are coming to New York where the executive and production departments of the Ivan Company are located.

Among those already in New York are William Hershberg, President of the General Feature Film Company of Chicago; Mayer Silverman of the Liberty Film Renting Company of Pittsburg; Harry A. Samwick of the Merit Film Corporation of New York; E. W. Lynch of the E. W. Lynch Enterprises of Boston and Mr. H. Schwalbe of the Electric Theatre Supply Company of Philadelphia.

Among those who are en route to New York and who have signified their intention of being present are C. D. Struble of the Monarch Feature Film Company of Kansas City, Mo.; A. T. Lambson of the Reelplay Feature Service of Seattle, Wash.; H. L. Charnas of the Standard Film Service of Cleveland; J. F. Cubberly of the Zenith Feature Film Company of Duluth; L. J. Santikos of the Central Feature Film Company of Waco, Texas, and A. M. Graham of the Queen City Feature Service of Birmingham, Ala.

As the majority of these exchange owners have expressed themselves as favorably inclined to the Ivan productions releasing at least two features instead of one each month, it is expected that the result of the convention will be an increase in the Ivan company's productive output.

Elaborate Presentation of "Macbeth" is Made at Rialto

Rothapfel Arranges an Allegorical Foreword for the Event—Orchestra Augmented for Unusual Musical Program—Six Daily Showings for the Week

THE presentation at the Rialto Theatre, New York, for the week of June 5, of Macbeth, the Triangle-Fine Arts film starring Sir Herbert Tree, is designed to be the most dignified and elaborate ever accorded a motion picture. S. L. Rothapfel has arranged an allegorical foreword—the hour glass suspended in midair reversing in unseen hands, emblematic of turning back the sands of time. The Rialto orchestra, augmented for the occasion, will play an appropriate accompaniment arranged by the Rialto musical staff. Much of the material is original and for the interlude the finale of the Sixth Symphony —Tschaikowsky's "Symphony Sympathetique"—is being employed. Sir Herbert Tree has written an introductory which is delivered by Leonard Crask, reader and Shakespearean actor.

The six daily presentations will be timed to a schedule and patrons have been asked to observe it closely in order to avoid marring the beauty of the performance. The schedule opens at 12 noon with presentations following at 2.15, 4.15, 6, 7.30 and 9.30 o'clock. Between each there is given an organ recital.

Managing Director S. L. Rothapfel has been assisted in arranging the presentation by Sir Herbert and his leading lady, Constance Collier, and also by John Emerson, who directed the picture. This quartette, Dr. Hugo Riesenfeld, the musical director, and the entire Rialto mechanical staff, have worked after the theatre closed almost every night, often as late as 3 A. M., working out details.

McQUARRIE IS WITH THE AMERICAN ORGANIZATION

Murdock MacQuarrie, who was with the Universal, and later directed for the Signal Company, is now with the American, where he will direct Helen Rosson.

BOARD OF REVIEW MAKES QUICK DECISION PASSING ON "CIVILIZATION"

The National Board of Review passed unanimously last Thursday night Thomas H. Ince's cinema spectacle after a preview of the production of "Civilization" at the Criterion theatre on Broadway, where it was given its premiere Friday evening June 2.

This is probably the quickest decision on record of a production of the magnitude of "Civilization," the board rendering its verdict without comment before the members left their seats in the play house.

Cranston Brenton, chairman of the National Board of Review said: "'Civilization' has been passed by the Board without discussion. The body however showed intense and spontaneous enthusiasm throughout the entire production, sitting in their seats until near midnight."

"COUSIN JIM," SHOWING SOCIETY IN ITS LAIRS, IS UNIQUE FILM

The feature picture "Cousin Jim," in which scores of prominent Chicago society people appeared has been completed and will be shown at the Strand theatre, Chicago. This feature is unique in that it was made without the use of a single studio set. Interiors were taken in the residences of Chicago millionaires, in fashionable clubs, and in the Blackstone Hotel.

In filming these scenes, special portable artificial lighting equipment, furnished by the Rothacker Film Manufacturing Company, was used. The Rothacker Company also did the photographing, developing and printing of the picture. The production was directed by Charles W. Hitchcock for the Van Dee Company.

"Gloria's Romance" with Billie Burke Proves Magnet

Kleine Picture of Society at Its Winter Gambols in Florida Draws Patronage Even When a Heavy Rain Keeps People Away from Other Theatres

NO matter how inclement the weather, Billie Burke in "Gloria's Romance" is proving a box office magnet, according to the reports from different Kleine exchange managers. Here are a few selected at random from a long list of similar reports.

B. T. Hardcastle, manager of the Kleine office in Atlanta, Ga., says "The Piedmont opened Monday in a drizzling rain which continued throughout the day and night, but we played to full houses, all day long, most of the other theatres not having at any time more than a handful of people. The following day it cleared up in the afternoon, but a hard rain throughout the morning and noon hours, and an overcast sky frightened the people against coming out. However, at night the Piedmont was jammed and everyone went away delighted with the production they had witnessed."

Foster Moore, of the Kleine branch office in New York City, writes under date of May 25: "F. G. Hall, proprietor of the Hall Circuit in New Jersey, states that the 'Gloria's Romance' business at his Hoboken U. S. Photoplay theatre, was an absolute turnaway for the three days, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, though Tuesday night there was a heavy rain. At his Palace theatre in East Orange, where he charges twenty-five cents admission, his opening Monday night was to capacity, and on Tuesday night, in a rain storm, the house record was broken."

Charles M. Thall of the Minneapolis Kleine exchange, reports: "The New Princess theatre in St. Paul opened the third chapter of 'Gloria's Romance' last Monday to over 8,000 paid admissions and the New Palace theatre in Minneapolis is showing to hold-out business right along."

Rialto Film Company Elects Officers in Detroit

I. Goldberg Is President, Jesse J. Goldburg Vice-President and General Manager and S. T. Goldberg, Secretary and Treasurer—Will Produce Two Features a Month

JESSE J. GOLDBURG, general manager of the Rialto Film Corporation, has returned to New York from Detroit, where a meeting of the board of directors was held and plans for future operations of the company were definitely determined upon. Officers were elected as follows: President, I. Goldberg; vice-president and general manager, Jesse J. Goldburg; secretary and treasurer, S. T. Goldberg.

Interviewed at his office in the Candler Building, General Manager Goldburg said: "The corporation is incorporated for a nominal sum because those financially interested will always remain limited to those now owning its capital stock. The board of directors determined to produce two features a month, commencing in September, and one feature a month between now and that time. There will be deposited to the credit of the company in the First and Old National Bank, of Detroit, $250,000. It was considered good business policy to have this amount at hand to meet any unforeseen contingencies that might arise.

"Although we have produced but one feature, having been organized a little more than a month, our liabilities are nil and a resolution was adopted by the board providing for the liquidation of all obligations as soon as they are incurred. We will produce features with a minimum of five reels. Our initial release, "The House of Mirrors," however, is in six reels.

"Until September our productions will be made in New York. The players will travel to other locations when necessary. After September, unless conditions change so as to make it more advisable to continue in New York, we will produce at our own studios to be built in Detroit. We have not yet determined upon the method of distribution."

"U" Gets Rights to Dorsey Pictures Taken in the Orient

Scenics Filmed in India, Japan, China, Mongolia and Persia Will Be Issued Weekly in Split Reel Form Under the Powers Brand

THROUGH an arrangement with Joseph S. Klotz, the Universal has acquired motion pictures of the Dr. Dorsey Expedition, which traversed the greater portion of India, Japan, China, Mongolia, Ceylon and Persia. The films are of an educational and scenic nature, and will be released weekly in split reels under the Powers brand.

Dr. Dorsey, who has been an incessant traveler to unfrequented parts of the globe, took a motion picture camera with him on his most recent tour, which virtually covered the countries enumerated above. He secured a hundred thousand feet or more of what is said to be exceptionally interesting film. The cost of the expedition was $250,000, it is said, representing only the actual expenditure and the value of negative.

THE REDOUBTABLE "TEDDY" IN 500 FEET OF UNIVERSAL ANIMATED WEEKLY

The Universal Animated Weekly is exhibiting this week special moving pictures of Roosevelt. There are over five hundred feet of them and they were taken at his home in Oyster Bay last week when three thousand of his admirers went there to request him to accept the overtures made to him for candidacy on the Republican ticket.

Arrangements had previously been made by Jack Cohn, editor of the Animated Weekly, with Mr. Roosevelt and cameraman U. K. Whipple succeeded in taking some excellent pictures of "the most prominent man in America" in various poses. Some of these show "Teddy" getting into action; others going full steam ahead and some in repose.

The pictures were shown privately to some of his political aides in the private projection room of the Universal a couple of days ago and the verdict was that these pictures eclipse any that have been taken heretofore of our ex-president.

A few days previous to the taking of these pictures, Editor Cohn sent Whipple to Washington, where he succeeded in taking some remarkable pictures of President Wilson. There are some excellent "close-ups" among these, and those who have ever attempted to "get" Mr. Wilson will appreciate what this means, for he has never shown a fondness for posing for cameramen.

SORIERO BOOKS WORLD PICTURES FOR PARK, BOSTON

Through an arrangement entered into last week by William A. Brady of World Film and Thomas D. Soriero, manager of the Park theatre, Boston, the forthcoming Brady Made pictures on the World program will be housed in that theatre. The deal was consumated by Mr. Soriero during a short visit to New York at which time he stated that "After viewing the products of almost every concern, I came to the conclusion that with the renewed vigor, absolute diversity of subjects, the remarkable quality seen in the pictures already released under the Brady direction, convinces me that World pictures are the biggest bet and I have closed for first run in Boston on all World subjects, which of course is first run showing in all New England."

The Park theatre, Boston, located on Washington street, near Boylston street, is by far the most important house in the New England territory, devoted to film presentation and for the past two years a varied program, but beginning July 3 with Alice Brady in "La Vie De Boheme" the place will play World Film production exclusively.

Six Dramatic Subjects from Knickerbocker This Month

"Shadows" Throws Light on Social Conditions, "Master of the House" Shows Outdoor Island Life, and "An Old Man's Folly" Has Wise Detective

THE Knickerbocker Star Features program for June, in addition to the five-reel feature, "Pay Dirt," already announced, includes five three-reel dramas.

"Shadows," a drama of modern social conditions, featuring Frank Mayo and Lillian West, tells a story of the lengths to which a man's hopeless passion for a girl drove him and the unfortunate vicitms of his fury.

"The Stained Pearl," featuring Henry King, is a tale of the sea, whose action centers about a bloodstained gem. It is scheduled for release on June 9.

"An Old Man's Folly," featuring Daniel Gilfether and Marguerite Nichols, is the release of June 16. It is a story of a father who endangers his daughter's happiness by placing himself in the power of an adventuress. An unscrupulous detective gives a startling turn to the course of events.

A new Knickerbocker star will be seen for the first time in "The Ancient Blood," a drama of the Canadian Northwest. Virginia Norden has the role of a half-breed girl who saves the life of a young Englishman, marries him, and is later introduced into high society when he inherits a title. In the strange environment she fails to hold his love, and returns to her mountains, where she finds happiness. This is the release of June 23.

Frank Mayo and Lillian West are featured in "The Master of the House," the release of June 30. This is a story of a society reporter who, following a clue accidentally picked up, is brought by a remarkable chain of circumstances to an uninhabited island off the coast, in company with a young millionaire whom she has the best of reasons for believing to be a burglar. In his absence from home the burglar entertains his aunt and cousin. Double exposures are a feature of this picture.

A. AND W. FILM WILL DISTRIBUTE "PRIMA DONNA'S HUSBAND"

The A. and W. Film Corporation has arranged with Julius Steger for the sole distributing rights of "The Prima Donna's Husband," the latest photoplay produced by Mr. Steger and Joseph A. Golden under the Triumph trademark.

In this picture, Holbrook Blinn is starred, supported by Clara Whipple and Kathryn Brown-Decker. A. and M. H. Warner, managers of the A. and W. Corporation, are said to have paid thirty thousand dollars in advance royalties in their deal with Mr. Steger. The picture will be shown to the trade June 12 at the Lyceum theatre.

"TESS OF THE STORM COUNTRY," WITH MARY PICKFORD, AT STRAND

"Tess of the Storm Country," one of Mary Pickford's most celebrated successes, will be shown at the Strand, New York, for the week of June 4. Its presentation is in the nature of a revival similar to the return of stage plays that have had unusual popularity. It has never been shown at the Strand for the reason that the theatre was not in existence at the time the picture was first released by Famous Players through Paramount.

ROLAND AND ARBUCKLE IN "MATRIMONIAL MARTYR"

Ruth Roland and Andrew Arbuckle are the two players featured in "A Matrimonial Martyr," the five part Gold Rooster Play released June 19, made by Balboa and treated to the process of Pathe color in the Pathe Company's extensive Paris laboratories.

Miss Roland plays a double role, while Arbuckle appears as an antiquarian wedded to a woman who possesses an ungovernable temper.

RALPH HERZ IN "PURPLE LADY" FOR RELEASE BY METRO ON JUNE 26

"The Purple Lady," a five part Metro-Rolfe production in which Ralph Herz is starred and Irene Howley is featured, will be released on the Metro program June 26. This Metro feature will serve to introduce Mr. Herz to the silent drama. He has had a long and successful career on the speaking stage, and is perhaps best known for his work in "The Soul Kiss," "Madame Sherry," "Dr. De Luxe," and recently in "Ruggles of Red Gap."

Miss Howley was last seen on the Metro program in "A Yellow Streak" with Lionel Barrymore, which was pronounced one of the best features produced last year. She was known for several years on the vaudeville stage as "The Manhattan Girl." There is a strong supporting cast in "The Purple Lady," which includes Alan Hale, Howard Truesdell, George Pauncefote, Guido Colucci, Gretchen Hartman, Mrs. William Bechtel, Cora Williams and other well known stage and screen artists.

"The Purple Lady" is a picturization of the play of the same name by Sydney Rosenfeld, which enjoyed a successful run on Broadway.

ROLIN AT WORK ON BURLESQUE OF "JULIUS CAESAR"

The Rolin Film Company, makers of Pathe's Lonesome Luke comedies, have put special effort and a large sum of money on a burlesque of "Julius Caesar," which they are making. To show the magnitude of this one-reel production they have utilized among their hundreds of extras the several hundred pretty dancing girls who took part in the Actors' Fund presentation of the great Shakespearean tragedy which was enacted on May 19 in Hollywood.

Their whole studio is being utilized in one large set for this production.

California Film Lets the Cat Out of the (Director) Bag

George E. Middleton Modestly Works Under Cover on Five Features for the Company and Now Has Activities Disclosed by Beyfuss

THE directing brain behind the producing activities of the California Motion Picture Corporation is George F. Middleton, according to a recent announcement by General Manager Alexander Beyfuss.

George E. Middleton

Mr. Middleton has been working quietly in the background since the corporation's inception, and is now credited with having directed "Salomy Jane," "Mignon," "Salvation Nell," and "The Unwritten Law." He has just completed "The Woman Who Dared," in which Beatriz Michelena is starred.

Because of the showing he has made, Mr. Middleton has been selected by the California Corporation to direct its production of "Kismet," which will have Otis Skinner for its star.

In commenting upon his announcement, Mr. Beyfuss said: "Although we have never had any doubt about Mr. Middleton's continued success, all mention of his directing responsibility has been withheld at his own request. He wished that he might work in the background until he had proven his capabilities beyond all posssibility of question.

"His modesty in this respect runs rather to the extreme, since it is now only upon the strongest importunity that I have won his consent to this announcement. To him the California Motion Picture Corporation owes much of its success."

DINNER IN HONOR OF ALICE JOYCE ON STRAND ROOF

For a welcome back to pictures Alice Joyce was the honor guest at a dinner given at the Strand Roof Garden, Sunday evening, June 4. This dinner was attended by the other principals in the cast of the big spectacle, "The Battle Cry of War" which is being produced by J. Stuart Blackton of Vitagraph, among them being Joseph Kilgour, Harry Morey, Dorothy Kelly, James Morrison, Naomi Childers, Templer Saxe, Walter McGrail and Edward Elkas, as well as Director William P. S. Earle.

Miss Joyce has just reappeared in the ranks of her motion picture friends after an absence of a year and a half and has begun work on the big feature picture at the Vitagraph studio in Brooklyn.

FOOTE AND DEXTER SIGNED BY MOROSCO

Courtenay Foote and Elliott Dexter have been engaged by Morosco and are now at work on "An International Marriage," being produced with Rita Jolivet in the stellar role. It will be released on the Paramount Program early in July. George Broadhurst wrote the story.

Foote and Dexter are well-known leading men on both the screen and stage.

Selig Stars in Long and Short Films Is Successful Plan

Strides Taken by Selig General Releases During Last Six Months Justify Colonel's Exploitation of Versatile Players in Subjects of All Lengths

WHEN many of the leading motion picture stars appear only in feature film productions of five reels or more in length, the Selig Polyscope Company calls attention to the fact that many of their most popular stars have been exploited in Selig one, two and three-reel productions released through General Film service.

Col. Selig's policy to exploit his highest-salaried and most versatile star players in shorter length films, as well as in the longer feature productions, is, he declares, endorsed as to its success by the strides the Selig General Film releases have taken within the past six months. The Selig Company asserts that their business through General Film service has trebled during that time.

Among the stars now appearing regularly in Selig productions released through General Film, as well as in the Selig Red Seal Plays, can be named: Kathlyn Williams, Bessie Eyton, Thomas Santschi, Tyrone Power, Otis Harlan, Edith Johnson, Eugenie Besserer, Tom Mix, Vivian Reed, Jack Pickford, James Bradbury, Harry Mestayer, Guy Oliver, Fritzi Brunette and others.

"A Temperance Town," featuring Otis Harlan and an all-star cast has just been released.

Another Selig release through General Film service will be a revival of "The Two Orphans," released through General Film Service on Monday, June 12. The production is in three reels and the stars include T. J. Carrigan, Kathlyn Williams, Winnifred Greenwood, Myrtle Stedman, Charles Clary, Lillian Brown Leighton, Adrienne Kroll and others.

EIGHT NEW ORLEANS EXCHANGES WANT ASSESSMENT RELIEF

Special to Motion Picture News.

New Orleans, La., June 3.

The long-expected suit against the tax assessor of New Orlenas was filed by eight New Orleans exchanges last week. Declaring that the amounts they are assessed for film are ridiculous, exorbiaant and onerous, the exchanges pray for a reduction, in some cases of more than 75 per cent of the amount originally assessed.

The eight concerns, the amount for which they were assessed, and the reduction they ask, are as follows:

Mutual Film Company, $27,000 to $7,000; World Film Corporation, $20,700 to $2,900; V. L. S. E., Inc., $20,000 to $2,000; General Film Company, $20,700 to $5,500; Consolidated Film and Supply Company, $22,500 to $5,500; Southern Paramount Pictures Company, $15,500 to $3,500; Pathe Exchange, Inc., $20,700 to $3,700; Fox Film Corporation, $20,500 to $1,700.

PITTSBURGH NOMINATES OFFICERS

Special to Motion Picture News.

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 3.

At the meeting of Local No. 1 of the Motion Picture Exhibitors League of Pennsylvania held at the headquarters of the organization, Penn avenue and Ninth street, the following nominations for officers were made:

President, G. W. Sahner, Fred J. Herrington, H. C. Kliehm and A. J. Barthell; Vice-President, William Fritz, Fred M. Smith, Oliver McKee; Secretary, James Delves; and Treasurer, I. W. Shearer. Trustees, I. W. Shearer, James Delves, Fred J. Herrington, A. J. Barthell, G. W. Sahner, Sol Oppenheimer, Chris Volmer, and Harry Poke.

The election of officers will take place early in June and as a spirited rivalry exists for some of the offices there is likely to be some whirlwind campaign work done.

FOREST AND GEBHARDT JOIN AMERICAN

Alan Forest and George Gebhardt are the most recent additions to the American-Mutual studios. Their initial appearances will be in support of Helen Rosson in "The Sign of the Spade," a forthcoming American-Mutual feature in five acts. Forest will appear in juvenile role opposite Miss Rossen, while Gebhardt will essay the "heavy."

Pennsylvania Meet in Pittsburgh Probably a Big Event

Members of Branch League in Smoky City Work Hard to Get Everything Under Way Without a Hitch When Keystone State Exhibitors Gather at Convention

Special to Motion Picture News.

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 3.

FEW if any of the arrangements are yet to be made for the holding of the Pennsylvania State Convention of the Motion Picture Exhibitors League, in Moose Hall, 628-34 Penn avenue on June 27-28 and 29. The members of the organization have been working like beavers and have completed all but the small details which will be hurried through as quickly as possible.

The matter of location has been a serious one but with the assistance of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce the motion picture men were able to secure the Moose Hall for the holding of the exhibition and the result is that they have laid their plans for the big event.

The committee members are as follows:

Executive committee: Ben H. Zerr, Chairman; G. W. Sahner, James Delves, I. W. Shearer, F. J. Herrington, William Kane, W. J. Barthell, Sol Oppenheimer, Christ Vollmer, Henry Poke and H. C. Kliehm.

Convention committee: W. Fritz, Chairman; J. B. Clark, H. B. Miller, D. C. France, F. M. Smith, Peter Antonopolis, James E. Smith, R. S. Jones, Peter Magaro, Jacob Silverman, Frank Stehle, H. A. Victor, William Fairgraves, George W. McGowan, J. G. Hanson, A. H. Nace, M. A. Benn, J. Emanuel and C. H. Potter.

Commitee on Finance: G. W. Sahner, James Delves, I. W. Shearer, A. J. Barthell, Oliver McKee and F. J. Herrington.

Committee on Publicity: W. S. Bush, William Mayer, James Delves and Charles Seltzer.

Committee on Entertainment: James B. Clark, Al Cross, Chas. Miller, A. S. Davis, Jos. Skirboll, Harry Poke, F. J. Herrington, P. J. Demas, B. F. Lyon, Fred H. Alborn, W. E. Artzberger, A. H. Berg, George Berry, G. W. Sahner, A. G. Thomas, Jacob Kaiser, J. D. Walker, Harry Smith, A. Bailey and A. B. Smith.

Ladies Entertainment committee: Miss A. M. Sahner, Mrs. A. J. Barthell, Mrs. Fred J. Herrington, Miss Irene Herrington, Mrs. William Fritz, Mrs. Oliver McKee, Mrs. J. H. Jones, Mrs. Christ Vollmer, Mrs. H. A. Victor, Mrs. A. A. Weiland, Mrs. James Delver, Mrs. H. B. Miller, Miss Nellie Price, Mrs. H. C. Kliehm, Mrs. Walter Kinson, Mrs. D. C. France, Mrs. Al Cross, Mrs. Mayer Silverman, Mrs. Harry Poke and Miss A. Weiland.

Committee on Decorations: Ludwig Hommel, M. C. Hughes, Jack Kramer, Thomas S. Bradley, C. W. Eckhardt, A. H. McClelland and Harry Lande.

Program and Exhibit Committee: G. W. Sahner, Christ Vollmer, Sol Oppenheimer, James Delves and Fred J. Herrington.

Two Pictures "Struck" Together at Edison Bronx Studios

"The Girl from the East," Directed by Richard Ridgeley, and "The Princess from the Poorhouse," Featuring Francine Larrimore, Are the Subjects in Question

A COINCIDENCE in picture production happened the other day at the Edison studios in the Bronx when the sets for two five-reel subjects which were started the same day, were "struck" together. The pictures in question were "The Girl from the East," in which Conway Tearle is costarred with Mabel Trunnelle; and "The Princess from the Poorhouse," in which Francine Larrimore is featured.

"The Girl from the East" was directed by Richard Ridgeley. It is a story of India and London, and deals with the adventures of a girl, the daughter of an English gentleman and a native beauty.

"The Princess from the Poorhouse" is described as a fairy tale of real life. The various characters who move through it appear, in the eyes of a little girl, in the roles of the characters she has read about in wonder books.

WARM WELCOME FOR IVY CLOSE IN SOUTH

In addition to the Kalem forces, players from other studios were included in the delegation that welcomed Ivy Close, the English stage star and beauty, when she arrived in Jacksonville, Fla., last week to begin work in a new series of comedies for Kalem.

SELZNICK GOES TO CHICAGO TO CLOSE DEALS

Lewis J. Selznick's two representatives, Ben S. Cohen and Ned H. Spitzer made such progress in negotiating for the distribution of the future Clara Kimball Young features in Chicago and throughout the Middle West, that Mr. Selznick has already followed them to the Windy City to close several deals they had started. Messrs. Cohen and Spitzer had only been in Chicago a week when affairs took such definite form as to require Mr. Selznick's immediate presence to complete the negotiations.

It is understood that Mr. Selznick has formed a partnership with western exchange men, similar to those he formed in Philadelphia, Detroit and Boston. The details of the transaction will be made known in Chicago as soon as Mr. Selznick concludes the deal there.

A BROADWAY THEATRE FOR "PAY DIRT," A KNICKERBOCKER STAR FEATURE

Negotiations are pending whereby the General Film Company will secure a theatre in Times Square, New York, for the week of June 18, to exhibit the new Knickerbocker Star Feature production, "Pay Dirt," in five reels. The deal will be closed after arrangements have been made with the present lessee of the theatre.

This latest strategic move of the General Film Company must be credited to President George Kleine, who conceived the idea of establishing a criterion whereby Eastern exhibitors may ascertain the strength of the features released on the General program.

"Pay Dirt" is a story of the gold fields, adapted from a drama which had a successful run a few years ago.

CONSTANCE CRAWLEY, MUTUAL STAR, AT WORK ON SCENARIOS

Constance Crawley, star of American-Mutual releases, is now actively engaged, in addition to her screen work in the writing of scenarios for the American-Mutual studios.

Her first effort in this line will be released shortly in two acts under the title "Fear." It is a story dealing with cowardice and fear, the action of which is centered in a typical border cow town.

For a number of years Miss Crawley, in addition to her stage and screen work, has been a contributor to various magazines of general circulation.

MAE MURRAY MAKES SHORT VISIT TO NEW YORK

Mae Murray, Lasky star, visited New York for a few days last week. It was Miss Murray's first trip East since she went to the Lasky studios at Hollywood, Cal., last autumn.

Miss Murray's next picture is entitled "The Dream Girl," in which she has the support of Theodore Roberts, Earle Foxe, Charles West, and others. She returns to Hollywood where she will continue work in a new and elaborate series of Lasky productions.

Membership of the Reel Fellows Club in Chicago Near 200

Special Meeting of the Officers and the Board of Governors Called for Making Plans to Conduct Vigorous Campaign for Extending Its Influence

WITH Chicago rapidly becoming an important producing center, having already become a stronghold as a distributing point, the live-wire "engineers" of the Reel Fellows Club are building with the incoming tide, making the social side of the film business what it should be in the "Windy City."

As a matter of fact the Reel Fellows organization is no small fry at the present time for its membership is close to the 200 mark, and mounting higher at a rapid rate.

This year's official staff of the club is one of the livest combinations ever voted into office by any trade organization. Composed of R. R. Nehls, President, Frank J. Flaherty and Richard C. Travers, Vice-presidents, William J. Sweeney, Treasurer, M. G. Watkins, Secretary, and Freeman Owens, Assistant Secretary, they are working wonders, and that the ultimate result of the present campaign will be a 500 membership is a foregone conclusion in their minds.

A special meeting of the officers and the Board of Governors, which includes Watterson R. Rothacker, H. C. Miller, George C. Berg, L. A. Boening and Fred W. Wild, Jr., was held Monday evening, May 29, when details for conducting the membership campaign were worked out in their entirety, and the first gun was set for firing on June 1.

Speaking enthusiastically of the club and its object, President Nehls said, in part, "The social element is most essential to the development of keen business intellect. So busily have they been engaged in working out their own salvation that the motion picture interests have been given little or no consideration to concerted efforts for the establishment and maintenance of social interests.

"Every large motion picture center needs adequate club quarters where not only local but visiting members can be domiciled; where opportunity is afforded for careful consideration of perplexing problems of the hour. The Reel Fellows Club of Chicago, being an organization in which all interests are combined without a predominance of any one interest, supplies this need. Our organization is awakening interest in the cause of good-fellowship among the leaders of the various branches of the industry."

To accommodate its growing membership, the Reel Fellows have decided to move their club quarters nearer the heart of the loop district of Chicago. For several months past they have occupied their own rooms situated at 17 North Wabash avenue.

During the national convention of the Motion Picture Exhibitors League, in July, the club will maintain a booth and special quarters in the convention building for all visitors, and will lend its assistance to the league for the entertainment of all the out of town folks.

No Lessening of Studio Activity for Kalem This Summer

Jacksonville Companies Will Continue Operations at Full Speed—Pacific Coast Players Will Keep Up Usual Output—Six Reels a Week Through General

THE coming of the Summer months does not mean any lessening of activity on the part of the Kalem Company. In fact present plans would indicate a speeding up all along the line at the studios. Five companies are now at work under the Kalem banner. The new Ivy Close Comedy company is due to start work this week at the Jacksonville studio.

An important Kalem announcement is the fact that the Jacksonville, Fla., studio will continue operations at full speed throughout the Summer months. Kalem, the original picture company to locate in Jacksonville, has maintained an unbroken record of work in the Florida city throughout all seasons. With the special attention being given to the Ivy Close Comedies indications are that this Summer will be busy.

At the Pacific Coast studios four companies will continue the regular output undiminished through the warm months. The addition of True Boardman to the Glendale Company shows the plans for this studio. An extensive enlarging of the studios, under way for two months and now nearing completion, removes all limits from Summer activity. Director Horne is nearing the closing episodes of "The Social Pirates," Kalem's big series success, and July will find the company at work on a spectacular new series.

Kalem's studio-station on the Salt Lake Railway is another producing plant undergoing the enlarging process rather than an expected hot-weather let-up. To aid the "Hazards of Helen" company the railroad is at present carrying on considerable construction work along the stretch of track adjoining the studio grounds.

Two comedy companies, the Ham and Bud and the Ethel Teare forces complete the Kalem roster on the coast. The recent appointment of Harry Millarde, the feature director, as producer of Ethel Teare Comedies was the first step in ambitious plans for this organization. The ever-popular Ham and Bud and their strong support are others at the busy Hollywood studio.

Kalem's releases through General Film will continue to include six reels a week throughout the Summer months. In addition June also finds "The Lotus Woman," a five reel feature on the regular program schedule.

A WARM PLACE MADE COLD FOR AN EVENING

Special to MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

Los Angeles, June 3.

The first motion picture company to film ice skating in a cabaret was the L-Ko. A Los Angeles cafe was artificially lighted, and for an entire evening during the past week, the company used the professional skaters in addition to their own comedians, and the diners in the cafe served for atmosphere.

OFFICERS ELECTED BY ST, LOUIS ASSOCIATION

At a recent election of The Theatre Managers and Motion Picture Exhibiotrs' Protective Association of St. Louis, an entire force of new officers were installed. John Gentner, first president of the organization and one of the original movers for an exhibitors' league in St. Louis, is again president. The financial secretary is now D. T. Williams, of the Ashland theatre, on Ashland avenue. The new treasurer is Joseph Mogler, of the Mogler theatre and airdome at ninth and Bremen avenues.

The resigning officers are all on the executive board and new plans are being tried out for the upbuilding and progress of the film exhibiting industry. The Association has again taken up headquarters at the old offices, in suite 312, Benoist Building, which has been found to be a better location than the Majestic theatre on tenth and Franklin, where the meetings were held for a time. The attendance, which had fallen off for a while, is growing again, and the meetings are taking on quite a good business outlook.

LOEW GETS KNICKERBOCKER, NEW YORK

Marcus Loew has acquired the unexpired lease of the Triangle Film Corporation on the Knickerbocker theatre, Broadway and Thirty-eighth street, New York, and will open the theatre shortly after June 1 as a vaudeville house with a program similar to that presented in other Loew theatres in New York.

Omaha's First Annual Film Ball Promotes Friendly Feeling

Stars in the Picture Firmament Scintillate at the Event for the Throngs of Fans Anxious to See How They Twinkle Off the Screen

Special to Motion Picture News.

Omaha, June 3.

OMAHA'S motion picture fans were excited, stirred up, aroused and highly interested, and the exhibitors and exchangemen of the Omaha territory were brought into closer touch and friendship with each other as the result of the first annual "Movie Ball" held in Omaha, Thursday, May 25, under the auspices of the Omaha Screen Club and Photoplay Manager's Association. Unlike a similar event in Des Moines, the one here was a financial triumph, besides being all the other things its promoters had hoped for it. Several hundred motion picture people attended, and several thousand "people and fans" attended the ball.

"Real, honest-to-goodness moving picture stars!" gasped Omaha, gazing with rapt attention at Bryant Washburn, "Dick" Travis of the Essanay, Lee Moran and Eddie Lyons, Universal stars; Dolores Cassinelli and Caroline Winters of the Emerald Company, Chicago.

Philip Goldstone, manager of the World Exchange here, presided at a meeting held at the Rome Hotel during the morning.

"Don't blame us if we appear sometimes in plays that aren't quite up to the mark," said Bryant Washburn in a speech. "It is necessary to do that once in a while, unless you want to get a reputation as a chronic kicker."

Harry B. Fleharty, Omaha city attorney, welcomed the visitors to the convention and ball in a speech, confessing himself a dyed-in-the-wool movie fan and pitying the person who isn't.

Lee D. Balsley of the Kansas City Feature Film Company, handling Paramount pictures, emphasized the great need of honest and liberal newspaper advertising for success.

"The object of your advertising investment is to promote growth," he said: "There is not far from $500,000,000 invested in the motion picture business. We must concern ourselves with the most important part of our work—advertising. If we are going to stay in the business it is necessary for us to follow honorable lines. So much characterless advertising has been done by inefficient people that the people placed all photoplays on a par. The fact is, we've got to play fair with the people. Give them quality and service—their money's worth.

"If you would have a busy box office, tell them in a sincere, simple, entertaining and forceful manner what you have to offer. Sometimes it requires a soft pedal, but more often a bang. Absorb film enthusiasm; radiate your faith, have a message and drive it home hard and often; stand by every statement; play the game fair and square; you can then be reasonably sure of a liberal trade.

Manager Thomas of the Strand theatre in Omaha, was introduced as an exhibitor who had taken a "lemon" and made a "peach" out of it. The Strand, formerly the American, was a decidedly unprofitable theatre property. Through just the kind of advertising described by Mr. Balsley, he made it a great success.

W. O. Jensen of the Lothrop theatre, Omaha; Mrs. S. R. McKelvie of the Lincoln Daily Star photoplay department; M. J. Weisfeldt, local manager of the Mutual exchange; C. W. Taylor of the General; J. E. Kirk of the Pathe; Lester Sturm of the Fox, and L. J. Scott of the V-L-S-E made talks, most of them boosting the event for which they were then gathered.

A parade, headed and led by bands, followed a luncheon at which the short talks were continued. Automobile loads of film people made up a parade several blocks long. Thousands of people stopped to view the procession, think of the ball and think of the motion picture business in this territory.

Several score of people were brought to the affair by a novel scheme suggested by the Screen Club. The exhibitors were advised to give a vote with each ticket sold, the girl in that town getting the most votes to be brought to the ball at the exhibitor's expense. With the lucky girl came a number of her friends, as well as the exhibitor and his wife and friends.

A meeting of the Screen Club and Photoplays' Managers' Association, which combined for the event, was held and arrangements made for a complete report of finances. The percentage to be sent to the Actors' Fund of America will be announced later.

Feature Comedies from Melies for Release Through General

Harry C. Myers and Rosemary Theby Will Appear Each Week in a High-Class Refined Single Reel Laughmaker Directed by the Star

FEATURE comedies in the regular service of the General Film Company form the subject of an interesting announcement issued this week by Melies Manufacturing Company, releasing Vim Comedies and Knickerbocker Star Features. Harry C. Myers and Rosemary Theby will appear each week in a high-class refined single-reel comedy directed by Mr. Myers. It is probable that the first picture will be released late in June. Wednesday of each week will be the regular release date.

Mr. Myers has already completed eight productions, five of which have been screened in New York for the private view of a number of film notabilities, including exchange managers and prominent exhibitors.

"Housekeeping," the first release, presents the Newlyweds in their Harlem flat, which is barren of furniture. It will be followed by "Spring Cleaning," "The Connecting Bath," "Will a Woman Tell?" and "Hubby's Relatives," in this order.

A strong appeal to the public is expected by the Melies Company from the nature of these comedies. In the five pictures already screened, the comedy depends entirely upon quick perception of the funny side of human foibles. There is no suggestion of vulgarity, even in "The Connecting Bath," whose title is capable of a risque interpretation. So far Mr. Myers has smoked only one cigarette, entirely for the purpose of introducing a funny bit of business, and there is no drinking or rough handling of women.

The interior sets are all designed by Mr. Myers, who is a pupil of the celebrated Josef Urban. Black-and-white effects are boldly used.

Harry Keepers is responsible for the photography. Mr. Keepers has introduced many unusual "shoots" into the five pictures above mentioned. It is his practice, upon returning to a scene after a cut, to present an entirely different view of the room. This, in combination with frequent close-ups, is said to greatly enhance the interest of the scenes.

The scenarios for these releases have been selected by a committee comprising Louis Burstein, managing director; Mr. Myers and Bert Tracey, scenario editor.

"THE TOILERS" IS CHANGED TO "THOSE WHO TOIL"

On the eve of issue, the title of "The Toilers," the big feature photoplay production by the Lubin Company, has been changed to "Those Who Toil."

This change necessitates the recall of all literature prepared for the heralding of this feature production.

"Those Who Toil" portrays the ancient feud between capital and labor in modern colors. Through understanding, peace is won. Under the direction of Edgar Lewis this theme has been woven into a play.

LIVE WIRE EXHIBITORS

EDITOR'S NOTE.—It is the desire of "Motion Picture News" to include under this heading novel advertising ideas, successful schemes in the management, decoration and equipment of the theatre—everything, in fact, done by the exhibitor to stimulate his trade. We invite every exhibitor to write us about any new enterprise he has; also to come to us for advice or information along any line. Cutting Down Advertising Space in Summer a Mistake Made By Many Exhibitors

BY CHARLES B. TAYLOR
Buffalo Correspondent of MOTION PICTURE NEWS

THIS is the time of the year when some exhibitors figure on cutting down expenditures—because it is summer time. Why this should be is, of course, a mystery to many "live wire" exhibitors and men not directly connected with the operation of a theatre; but, nevertheless, it seems to be an axiom that, with the arrival of summer, expenses must be cut.

And the still greater mystery is that the first thing to which many managers look with the hatchet is their advertising.

It may seem incongruous, but it is, nevertheless, a fact that the publicity directors of some theatres find that their real work is not in writing notices and reviews, and so forth, but in fighting with the manager to keep up the advertising space in the newspapers.

One manager remarked to me the other day that he did not believe in the publicity he was doing; did not believe it brought him a cent, and believed that the whole policy was wrong. Now, no advertising, no matter in what form it is presented, is without its value. After a long argument on the value of the present campaign which this manager was conducting, I stepped into the theatre proper from his office, and lo and behold, the theatre was not only packed, but patrons were standing in all available space.

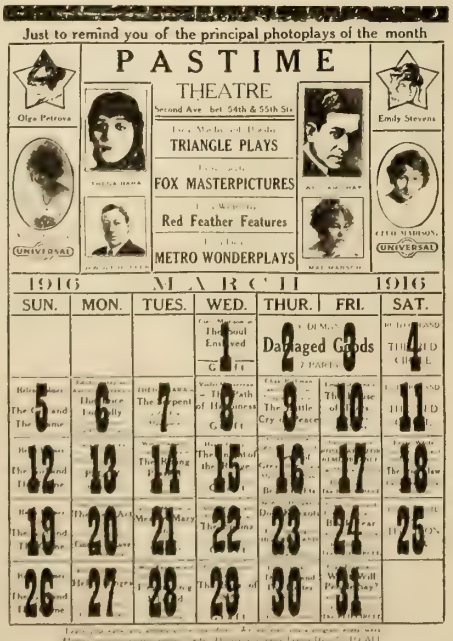
And yet the manager did not believe the advertising was bringing him a cent. Where did the hundreds of people find out that he had an exceptionally fine bill for that evening? Absolutely nowhere but in his advertising, because this crowd was on Monday night and the ads had been inserted on Sunday. They had been continued on Monday, and good business was the result on Monday evening, and Tuesday evening, also.

It is the every day, every Sunday consistent advertising that counts. The fact that your ad is always "there" when your patrons look to see what is at your theatre establishes confidence. If your ad is not "there," many patrons will not take a chance and go to your theatre to see what it is showing. There are too many live theatres nowadays, the managers of which are strong advocates of publicity, for any patron to "have to take a chance" at any theatre. If the theatre which he or she wishes to attend has not their ad in the amusement column when the name of the attraction is wanted, then it is 100 to 1 some other theatre which does have its ad "right there" where "yours used to be" will get that dime "which should be yours."

PUBLIC SPIRIT SHOWN BY IOWA EXHIBITORS

A young men's bible school class in Council Bluffs, Ia., were planning a big rally. They went to the motion picture theatre managers to ask how much an advertising slide would cost. They were told the manager would be glad to run it free. They went to Manager F. A. Van Husan, of the Laemmle Film Service in Omaha to ask how much the slides would cost. "They cost 18 cents apiece, but I will be glad to see that you get them for nothing for such a worthy event," he answered.

There were 300 young men at the class. Announcement was made of the motion picture people's generosity. The Council Bluffs exhibitors also run pictures of the library, advertising the fact that free books are to be had there. Such public spiritedness never fails to help, they believe, as several victories in recent public fights have proved.



A Distinctive Way to Advertise the Month's Features. The Dates Are Printed in Red. Issued to Patrons by the Pastime, New York

HERE'S PROGRESSIVE NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING

A four page supplement in the Saturday night issue of the Racine Journal devoted entirely to the new Palace Photoplay theatre in that city was the way Arthur Friedman took to tell the citizens of Racine of the attractiveness of their newest theatre and of the attractions that would be shown in it. The first page of this supplement was devoted entirely to news matter regarding the theatre and the attractions. The two inside pages contained advertisements and reading matter on the furnishings and equipment of the theatre, while the last page was devoted to a full page ad for the Palace theatre, the first page ad, by the way, ever run in Racine.

The music as well as the photoplays were extolled in the reading matter upon the first page. The section was entitled, "Palace Theatre Section" and made a profound impression upon the theatres and resulted in packing the theatre for the opening.

LOUISVILLE MANAGER PUTS OVER "TOPICAL" STUNT

An enterprising stunt was accomplished recently by Louis Dittmar, manager of the Majestic theatre, Louisville. The Kentucky Derby was run at Churchill Downs on Saturday, May 13, and pictures of the race and scenes at the track were shown at the Majestic the following Monday. Of a large number of camera concerns engaged in a speed contest of their own, the Pathé producers were "lightning fast," catching an 8 o'clock train for Cincinnati Saturday night and working at high speed for a finished production, which put the films into Louisville in time for the opening show Monday.

The making of the film was especially contracted for by Manager Dittmar, who secured the picture one week ahead of the usual Pathé News Weekly release.

PHILADELPHIA LEDGER DISTRIBUTES BITS OF FILM TO READERS

The Philadelphia Evening Ledger recently pulled off a stunt which was much appreciated by its readers. It distributed neatly printed cards, with a bit of film attached, to any reader who clipped and mailed to The Ledger a coupon printed on its photoplay page. The Lubin Company donated the film.

On the back of the card was printed "A Few Film Facts" descriptive of the process of taking and projecting pictures.

REVIEWS OF RECENT HOUSE ORGANS

House organs and other exhibitor publications recently received by MOTION PICTURE NEWS include:

Mahaiwe Theatre News, Great Barrington, Mass., an eight-page house organ, with an excellent house talk on the last page.

The Cumberland, from the Brooklyn theatre of the same name. This is a four-page folder, well printed, with complete casts and synopses.

Folder from the Orpheum theatre, Gardner, Mass., carrying the "Peppina" cut, showing Mary Pickford in costume perched on a fence on which is tacked the theatre sign.

Picture News, from the Majestic, Bellaire, Ohio. This is on news print paper, but broken by cuts, with features and dates well displayed.

House organ of the Auditorium, Coatesville, Pa. Also a special herald of the theatre's own making on "Peggy" and an exceptionally attractive herald of six pages on Vitagraph's "The Battle Cry of Peace."

Reel News, published weekly by the Brown Amusement Company, Middlesboro, Ky., for its Manring and Amuzu theatres. This is quite a pretentious publication of 12 pages, including cover, fairly well printed, and with local ads. segregated properly.

Four page house organ of the Circle theatre, Easton, Pa. This has improved greatly within the last few months, and is one of the neatest of unillustrated organs of its size.

The Photoplay World, Tiffin, Ohio, apparently a non-exhibitor publication, or perhaps a co-operative scheme. At any rate, it is well edited, contains a gratifying number of short, gossipy items, and the programs of Tiffin theatres.

Twelve-page house organ of The Calhoun, Minneapolis. This has a specially designed cover for "Mothers' Week," and as a whole is quite effective. About the only criticism we make is that typographical errors should be eliminated, and a better grade of ink used.

Street Car Leased to Advertise "Gloria's Romance" At Piedmont Theatre, Atlanta

"GLORIA'S ROMANCE"
"BILLIE BURKE"

"The Billie Burke Special" Used by the Piedmont Theatre, Atlanta

IN Atlanta, Georgia, a unique method of attracting the attention of the public to "Gloria's Romance," was hatched in the brain of Ralph de Bruler of the Piedmont theatre, in co-operation with The Atlanta Journal, which is running the serial in its columns.

A special street car, called "The Billie Burke Special," was leased from the Georgia Railway and Power Company and plastered with twenty-four sheets announcing Billie Burke's appearance at the Piedmont. The car traveled the tracks of the trolley line every day for two weeks, and the Piedmont played to S. R. O. business every day.

STRAIGHT TALK IN NEWSPAPER AD BY KANSAS CITY THEATRE

Not once a month or twice a month, but nearly every day in the week does the Iris, Kansas City, get off some neat advertising copy. A recent effort by that theatre resulted in the following paragraph at the bottom of a five-inch, two-column display:

"Coming—shows worth $$, some worth more, some less, but all worth far more than the price of admission and which cannot be excelled in its class by human hands. Music—several patrons have told us the music is alone fine entertainment. If any one knows of pictures as good as the Iris shows, we will buy them. It's never a question of what service costs. We pay more in a day than other theatres pay in a week."

FOX PUBLICITY FORCES PUT OVER NEAT STUNT IN MILWAUKEE

A stunt that no doubt will be copied by other publicity staffs was put over by the Fox forces on the Milwaukee Sentinel last week. A two-column cut showing Virginia Pearson reading a copy of the Sunday Sentinel was sent to the photoplay editor together with the following story:

"While Virginia Pearson, well known motion picture star, is widely known to Milwaukeeans as the result of her appearing in Fox films, shown here, she is by no means ignorant of what is going on in this city. The accompanying illustration shows the reason why. Miss Pearson was 'snapped' by the camera in the Fox studios reading local news in The Sunday Sentinel."

Naturally, the editor being human, fell for the stunt and the result was that the Fox people had the only two-column cut in the entire photoplay section outside the regular stuff of the photoplay theatres.

Seattle Times, Which Carried $80,000 Worth of Picture Advertising Last Year, Establishes 8-Page Section

THE Seattle Times, a pioneer on the Pacific Coast in the printing of film news, has established an eight-page section in its Sunday issue devoted to motion pictures and amusements alone. Ninety-five per cent of the space is given to pictures.

Is it surprising, then, that The Times carries ninety-five per cent of all the exhibitor advertising in its city?

The fair play to the exhibitor exemplified by this latest piece of enterprise on the part of George H. Bellman, photoplay editor of The Times, brought in to his newspaper $80,000 in revenue from motion picture business in the year 1915.

That is the astonishing total which The Times received in 1915—eighty thousand dollars. The first issue of the eight-page section on May 14 carried $1,100 in advertising. Despite this big Sunday amount, The Times on the following Monday had $200 worth of advertising. You see, The Times runs a daily photoplay department of nearly two columns in addition to the Sunday section.

The credit for this achievement—and we doubt if it has been paralleled anywhere in this country—belongs to Mr. Bellman, who has handled both the news and the advertising end of The Times' amusement department for four years. A glance at the Sunday section will convince anybody that Seattle exhibitors believe in The Times, just as The Times believes in them and the pulling power of screen news.

And we call your attention also to the fact that The Times' Sunday Amusement Section is one of the main news sections of the paper. It is a distinct innovation in Seattle, for which both The Times and Seattle exhibitors are to be congratulated.

ADOPTS "STAGE AND SCREEN" AS FORM FOR HOUSE ORGAN

Stage and Screen, the house organ published by the Connellan Amusement Company of Bath, Maine, made such an impression on the manager of the Academy of Music, Newburgh, New York, that he adopted the form in its entirety for his own house organ when he saw a copy reproduced in Paramount Progress.

"Imitation is the sincerest form of flattery," wrote the Academy of Music to H. I. Day, editor of Paramount Progress. "We were so impressed by the copy of Stage and Screen published in Paramount Progress that we have taken it bodily as a form to go by in making up our house organ."

Looking Ahead With The Producers

"What Love Can Do" Is Red Feather Feature for Week of June 12

THE feature of the Universal program for the week of June 12 is the five-reel Red Feather photoplay, "What Love Can Do," in which Adele Farrington plays the principal role, that of a successful author who is determined to live her life as she sees fit regardless of the conventions of society. On the same day Eddie Lyons, Lee Moran and Betty Compson cavort about in the Nestor comedy, "Their Awful Predicament."

On Tuesday, June 13, J. Warren Kerrigan is the star in the Gold Seal three-reel mountain drama, "The Melody of Love," in which Nell Shipman also appears. The Imp comedy, "Her Wonderful Secret" with Harry Benham and Edith Roberts, is released on the same day.

"How Stars Are Made," a two-reel L-KO comedy, leads off the program on June 14 with Alice Howell and Ray Griffith supplying the fun. Number 24 of the Universal Animated Weekly is followed by Cleo Madison in the Rex drama, "When the Wolf Howls," in which she is supported by William Mong.

On June 15 the feature of the day will be the Laemmle two-reel society drama, "Her Soul's Song," with Emory Johnstone and Dorothy Davenport in the principal roles. "Betty's Hobo," a comedy-drama in which Thomas Jefferson, son of the late Joseph Jefferson, and the child actress, Zoe Bech, is also released on the same day together with a Powers split reel which includes "Professor Wiseguy's Trip to the Moon," a comic cartoon, and "Little Journeys in Scenic Japan," an educational travel novelty.

Hobart Henley and Irene Hunt co-star in "The Devil's Image," a two-reel Imp society drama on June 16 and on the same day's program Albert MacQuarrie will be seen in the Victor comedy, "The Golden Boot," followed by Neal Burns, Betty Compson and Ethel Lynn in the Nestor comedy, "Almost a Widow."

Daredevil Marie Walcamp and Lee Hill have worked for several weeks past in a railroad thriller, "A Railroad Bandit," which will be released on June 17 under the Bison brand. On the same day Gale Henry and William Franey furnish the fun in a Joker comedy entitled, "Love Quarantined."

Ben Wilson is featured in "The Finer Metal," a two-reel domestic drama which will be released under the Rex brand on June 18. Dorothy Phillips plays opposite Mr. Wilson. Two comedies are released on the same day, "Romance at Random," a Laemmle comedy with Rupert Julian and Elsie Jane Wilson in the cast, and "A College Boomerang," an Imp comedy in which Harry Benham and Edith Roberts play the principal roles.

During the week of June 12 the seventh episode of the "Adventures of Peg o' the Ring," with Francis Ford and Grace Cunard furnishing the excitement, will be released. Announcement is also made that King Baggot will appear in "The Man from Nowhere," a five-reel Red Feather feature on June 19, and Val Paul, Myrtle Gonzalez and Fred Church in another five-reel Red Feather. "It Happened in Honolulu," on June 25.

HOFFMAN PLANS FOR BLUEBIRD WILL CARRY EXHIBITORS TOWARD REGULAR SEASON

Manager M. H. Hoffman has made plans for Bluebird Photoplays, that cover the next several weeks, carrying the exhibitor well along toward the regular season. "Broken Fetters," a production written and directed by Rex Ingram, will introduce Violet Mersereau in her regular order as a program star, on July 3.

On July 10 Ella Hall, now a full fledged Bluebird star, since her success as a co-star with Robert Leonard in "The Crippled Hand," will be presented in "Ambrosia," a feature directed by Robert Leonard. In this role Miss Hall appears as a little girl.

Louise Lovely appears July 10 in "The Grasp of Greed," a photoplay made from one of H. Rider Haggard's stories, and directed by Joseph De Grasse, who has supervised Miss Lovely's work ever since she arrived from Australia and joined the Bluebird coterie of stars.

Later in July J. Warren Kerrigan will make another appearance in the Bluebird series, with Lois Wilson, the Alabama beauty, again making her appearance as his leading woman.

"ASHES" (AND SACKCLOTH) FOR EMBITTERED LIFE IS THEME IN A "V"

"Ashes," a Vitagraph Broadway Star Feature, is a drama, produced by the Vitagraph Western Branch, in which are seen Corinne Griffith, Jack Mower and Anne Schaefer. "Ashes" tells the story of a man whose life is embittered, when his wife Miriam, whom he loves better than life itself, dies while giving birth to a child. William E. Wing wrote the story and the production was supervised by William Wolbert.

"Her Loving Relations" is another subject from the Hollywood studios. This is a one-part comedy featuring Mary Anderson. Anne Schaefer, George Kunkel and George Lawrence are seen in Miss Anderson's support. Dave Smith produced the picture from the scenario by William E. Wing.

In "Harold the Nurse Girl" William Dangman is seen as Harold, a nurse girl—that is, he has an established business, which consistly mainly of minding babes at so much down and so much an hour, according to the disposition and lung power of the infant. Florence Natol, George O'Donnell, Richard Turner and Harry Mayo are also seen in this comedy. The scenario is by Edward J. Montagne and Frank Currier had charge of the direction.

"VALIANTS OF VIRGINIA" FOR RELEASE ON JUNE 26

"The Valiants of Virginia," a Selig Red Seal play, is to be released through V-L-S-E, Inc., on Monday, June 26.

The Selig production is taken from Hallie Erminie Rives's world-famous novel, and features Kathlyn Williams, supported by such players as Guy Oliver, Arthur Shirley, Edward J. Piel, Al W. Filson, James Bradbury, Harry Lonsdale and Little Billy Jacobs. T. N. Heffron, who produced "Into the Primitive," directed the production of "The Valiants of Virginia."

Three Scenes from "Shoes," a Coming Bluebird, with Mary McDonald

"MAKING OF MADDALENA" FROM MOROSCO THROUGH PARAMOUNT ON JUNE 8

The initial Edna Goodrich photoplay to be released by the Oliver Morosco Photoplay Company on the Paramount Program has been finished at the West Coast studios. "The Making of Maddalena'" is the title of the next Morosco offering and will be released June 8.

The films directed by Frank Lloyd with the assistance om Waldo Walker. Included in the cast are such able players as Forrest Stanley, Howard Davies, John Burton, Mary Mersch, Juan de la Cruz and Colin Chase, while the photography has been entrusted to James Van Troos.

Simultaneous with the completion of "The Making of Maddalena," another Morosco Company has commenced work on Rita Jolivet's vehicle, "An International Marriage," by George Broadhurst. This is expected to be Mr. Broadhurst's initial subject for the Paramount Program as a result of his recent affiliation with the Oliver Morosco Photoplay Company and is planned for release in July.

BRIAN IN SMUGGLING STORY FROM FAMOUS PLAYERS

Donald Brian, comedian and matinee idol, is to be starred by Famous Players in a modern smuggling story, which will be released on the Paramount programme within the next few weeks. Work has already begun on the production under the direction of Sidney Olcott. The picture is described as a swiftly moving comedy of action.

Mr. Brian, who has been seen on the screen in a Lasky photoplay, is best known for his work in musical comedy. He has, however, played roles in straight comedies.

TOM MIX STORIES THROUGH GENERAL BEGINNING JULY 8

The Tom Mix series of Western comedies will start in General Film regular service with "Some Duel," to be released Saturday, July 8. A Tom Mix comedy will be released every Saturday thereafter. These comedies are of Selig standard in every respect. Tom Mix and Victoria Forde supply the fun.

"Silks and Satins" from Famous Players on June 12 Gives Marguerite Clark Opportunities in a Winsome Role

Marguerite Clark in a Scene from "Silks and Satins," Her Next Famous Players Vehicle

MARGUERITE CLARKE makes her next screen appearance in the Famous Players production "Silks and Satins," which is released on the Paramount Program June 12.

Little Felicite is being forced to marry Felix Breton, a youth whom she despises, but who is her father's choice. Her heart is with Jack Desmond, a likable chap whose joviality has incurred the disapproval of her father. On her wedding day Jack calls to say good-bye and to declare that he has not yet given up hope of winning Felicite. Her heart breaking at the thought of parting with her lover, Felicite finds in an old table a diary which belongs to one of her distant ancestors.

It is a fascinating tale which she reads—a romance of the days when the sword settled more disputes than the law courts and when a lady was to be won by her hero's mighty right arm and defended against all comers. The Felicite of old had been betrothed to a cowardly chap and when the death of her father placed her in the power of the great Marquis de Sagen and of his swaggering son, the betrothed one had engaged a clever swordsman to do his fighting for him.

Little did he suspect that this stout-hearted Jacques had already made a deep impression upon the little Felicite by rescuing her from a ruffian on the road. When Jacques boldly enters the De Sagen chateau and delivers Felicite from her oppressors after a great sword fight in which he bests an overwhelming majority of enemies, Felicite decides that she would rather trust herself to the capable hands of Jacques and accordingly elopes with her deliverer.

It is in this determination of her ancestor to follow the dictates of her heart that the Felicite of today finds inspiration for a similar step and she decides to run away from Felix and to wed Jack.

That Interesting Summer Sport, Swatting the Fly, is Shown in An Animated Cartoon from Paramount

PARAMOUNT Pictures for the week of June 19 will be headed by the usual two five-reel features, the releases being the Lasky production, "The Clown," starring Victor Moore, which will be shown on Monday, and "Susie Snowflake," the initial screen vehicle of Ann Pennington, diminutive star of the Ziegfeld "Follies." The latter will be a Thursday release.

Single reels on the same program for this week will be the Paramount-Burton Holmes Travel-Picture "Imperial Berlin," the Paramount-Bray Animated Cartoon, "Bobby Bumps' Fly Swatter" and the weekly Pictographs.

With this release of the Paramount-Burton Holmes Travel-Pictures Mr. Holmes will make his first stop in a film tour through the most interesting parts of Europe, visited by him before the war. Europe's most celebrated tourist goals will be shown to Paramount audiences in this series, the first point of interest visited being Berlin the Imperial. Throughout this journey Mr. Holmes preserves his attitude of strictest neutrality so that his "Easy-Chair" travellers may view the beauties of the country through which he passes with unbiased appreciation.

Swatting the fly forms the theme of the latest of the Paramount-Bray Animated Cartoons by Earl Hurd. As demonstrated by Bobby on the screen, fighting the fly is probably the most interesting of summer sports.

In the Paramount Pictographs for this week will be seen "Keeping Time" in the "Testing the Mind" series by Professor Hugo Munsterberg; how to dress and undress the baby in "Better Babies;" "Training a Lion;" "Preparing Fruit;" "New Ways" and "How to Fall."

TOUR THROUGH CANADIAN ROCKIES IS PLANNED BY HOLMES FOR PARAMOUNT

Burton Holmes, whose journeys are shared by screen audiences each week in the Paramount-Burton Holmes Travel-Pictures, has left for a trip through the Canadian Rockies. Through the land of Evangeline, Mr. Holmes will travel during peach blossom time, later going to Newfoundland and for a visit to the historic shrine of St. Anne de Beaupre. The journey which will cover all of Canada will be made in the car of the late Lord Strathcona, and Mr. Holmes will be entertained by Lord Shaunnessy. He has also been invited to be the guest of the Duke of Cannaught during his Canadian visit.

KERNEL NUTT GOES INTO MEXICO FOR "V" WEEK OF JUNE 12

Vitagraph's Blue Ribbon Feature for the week of June 12, is "The Redemption of Dave Darcey." It is a story of the struggles of a crook to reform. James Morrison is in the title role.

Morrison is given support by Emmanuel A. Turner, Belle Bruce, Billie Billings, Mary Maurice, Robert Gaillard and Gordon Gray. The scenario comes from the pen of Charles T. Dazey, author of "In Old Kentucky,' and its filming was supervised by Paul Scardon.

After enjoying himself immensely in Mexico with a beautiful senorita, Frank Daniels, as Kernel Nutt in "Kernel Nutt in Mexico" wakes up to find himself embracing his wife in his little flat. Wifey "laces" it out to him, but try as he will, he cannot fall asleep again and regain his pleasant dreams. Alice Washburn as Nutt's wife, and Adele De Garde as the senorita, assist Mr. Daniels in separating the audiences from many hearty laughs. Frank Kock, Jr., wrote the story, while C. Jay Williams directed the picture.

MIDDLETON PICKS GADEN AND MISS ROBINSON FOR "GATES OF DIVORCE"

The first thing Director Edwin Middleton did on arriving at Flushing, N. Y., from the Gaumont winter quarters at Jacksonville, Fla., was to announce the stars who are to appear in Robert Burns' "Gates of Divorce." Alexander Gaden and Gertrude Robinson have been chosen for stellar honors in this three-act Mutual Picture.

The story is a revelation of the dual life it is possible to live in a great city. Woven into this web is the effort of a husband to find happiness outside his home after his wife has forfeited his affection by devoting all her time to the worldly pursuits selfishly possible for a woman in the metropolis. "Gates of Divorce" will be seen on the screen July 6.

KALEM'S "LOTUS WOMAN" WILL BE RELEASED IN REGULAR SERVICE

In order to remove definitely doubts apparent in the minds of some exhibitors, Kalem wishes to make emphatic announcement that "The Lotus Woman," the coming five reel feature, will be released in the regular program service of the General Film Company.

Exhibitors may thus book "The Lotus Woman," which features Alice Hollister, the original vampire of the photoplay, without extra charge. Advance showings of this picture are now being given to exhibitors at all General Film Company branch offices.

PARSONS WILL PRODUCE IN EAST

Special to Motion Picture News.

Los Angeles, June 3.

William Parsons, head of the National Film Corporation, who has been at the coast for the past three weeks, has disposed of his interests here, and is returning shortly to New York and will continue production there and in Florida.

First of Masterpictures from Mutual for the Week of June 12 Is "The Inner Struggle" With Winnifred Greenwood

THIRTY-TWO reels, including two Masterpictures De Luxe, starring Crane Wilbur and Winnifred Greenwood, respectively, comprise Mutual releases for the week of June 12.

First of the Masterpictures, "The Inner Struggle," the story of a young physician who quits the girl he loves to minister to a colony of lepers, starring Miss Greenwood supported by Franklin Ritchie and Roy Stewart, under the direction of Edward Sloman, will be released June 12. "The Wasted Years," a vehicle for Crane Wilbur, follows on June 15. This is a psychological drama, in which the follies of a man's early life are brought back to him with bitter memories in subsequent years. The supporting cast includes Mae Gaston, John Oaker; Thelma Salter and other well known screen players.

The three-reel drama of the week will be released June 15, under the title of "The Window of Dreams." This is a Thanhouser production in which Grace De Carlton and Bert Delaney have the principal roles.

Mutual two-reel subjects for the week present "Circumstantial Evidence," in which the chief parts are played by Edward Coxen and Lizette Thorne. It will be released June 12. "Brothers Equal" is the two-act Thanhouser production of the same week with Barbara Gilroy in the lead, supported by a capable company of players. It will be released June 13.

William Stowell and Helen Rosson are the featured players in "The Sheriff of Plumas," a story of the cow country, which will go to the public June 16, under the Mustang brand. "The Star of India," a drama of the Orient, featuring Margaret Gibson and the Bostock animals, is the Centaur contribution of the week. It is scheduled for release June 17.

Mutual laughmakers for the week of June 12 are: "Real Estators," starring Claude Cooper and Frank E. McNish, and "Doughnuts," first of the new comedies featuring Riley Chamberlain in his role of "Conductor No. 786." These are the Falstaff offerings. The former will be released June 12 and the latter June 17.

The Vogue comedies include "Love, Burglars and the Bulldog" with Rube Miller, for release June 13, and "Delinquent Bridegrooms," starring Ben Turpin, which will go to the public on June 18.

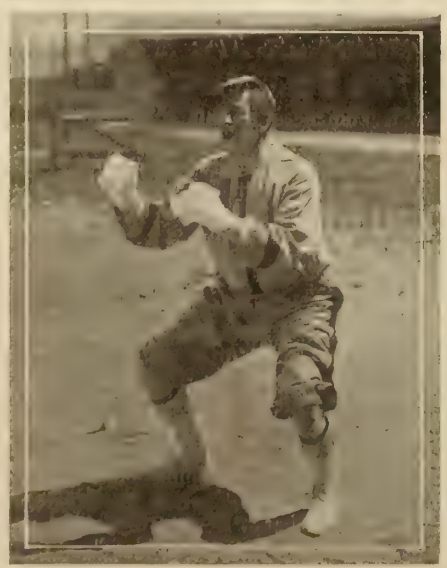
"Beauty" releases present Carol Halloway and Johnny Sheehan in "Billy Van Deusen's Eggs-spensive Adventure," for release June 14, and "Pedigrees, Pups and Pussies," with Orral Humphrey, for release June 18.

"Jerry, and the Moonshiners," starring George Ovey, is the Cub offering for June 16.

In Last Half of May Horsley Completed 9 Reels of Film, Constituting 6 Pictures, and Started on 3 New Subjects

INCREASED activities were noticeable at the David Horsley studios during the last half of the month of May, there having been completed nine reels of film, constituting six pictures and work was started on three new subjects.

Director Milton H. Fahrney and his Cub Comedy company finished three pictures, starring vehicles for George Ovey; the two dramatic companies completed three photoplays, one of which is said to be the best work of Crane Wilbur, star and author, and the co-stars Margaret Gibson and William Clifford will be filmed in two Centaur features in which the Bostock animals also take a prominent part.



De Wolf Hopper in a Scene from "Casey at the Bat," Fine Arts-Triangle

"The Fool's Game," a drama of the two reel length, from the pen of Crane Wilbur, who is also the star of the production, is a story believed to be new to the screen. Mr. Wilbur portrays the part of a multi-millionaire and falls desperately in love with one who returns a sham affection but who is, in reality, devoted to a youth of her same set. Mae Gaston and John Oaker make up the supporting cast and although there are but three principals, the eternal triangle does not exist in this offering.

Margaret Gibson and William Clifford are co-starring in the latest work of Francis Worcester Doughty, "The Star of India," a two reel subject in which the Bostock animals are used in large numbers. Many of the scenes present an idea of life in the jungle, introducing lions, leopards and elephants. Hand to hand combats with the beasts and a furious jungle fire add to the massiveness of the production.

The three offerings of the Cub Comedy company are all from the mind of Director Milton H. Fahrney. George Ovey is the star in each and large companies assist, chief among the casts being Claire Alexander, Louis FitzRoy, George George, Janet Sully, Jefferson Osborne and other Cub favorites.

"Jerry and the Moonshiners" is the first of the trio to be released, Jerry's attempt to pass counterfeit money launching him on a rocky road from the start.

THE EASTERN STUDIOS

ON Monday, May 29, Alice Joyce started work at the large Vitagraph studios in Flatbush.

Before actively entering upon her duties, Miss Joyce was taken over the entire plant and introduced to the various workers, both in the departments and studios.

Her cordial and hearty manner made many friends for her and the entire Vitagraph force has expressed itself as glad that she is to work with them.

Fans will have the opportunity of viewing her in the new feature production, "The Battle Cry of War," before a great many months pass by.

Little Audrey Berry, who will be remembered as a popular child artist in motion pictures, was a visitor at the Vitagraph Flatbush studios during the week, and renewed her acquaintance with the various stars with whom she worked while a member of the stock company. The photoplay star was compelled to forego the lure of picture posing, for the time being, in order to pursue her studies, which took up all her time.

Miss Berry's most important pictures under the Vitagraph banner, include "The Jarr Family Series," in which she played Emma Jarr, "Mr. Santa Claus," "A Close Call," "The Crime of Cain," "The Arrival of Josie," and many others.

Chinese "Passport" for Miss Stewart

Prominent among the editors who motored to the Vitagraph Bay Shore Studio Thursday, May 25, to join in the tribute of the Fourth Estate to Director Ralph W. Ince, was Yan Phou Lee, one of the most distinguished and learned Chinamen in this country. He ranks high in newspaper circles in China and was an intimate friend of the late Li Hung Chang up to the day of the latter's death. At present Mr. Lee is editorial writer of the Chinese Reform News, the leading Chinese paper in this country, and writer of special stories for the Mon Hey Weekly. After paying his compliments to Mr. Ince, he spied Lucille Lee Stewart, one of Vitagraph's new stars.

Miss Stewart was much interested in the learned Chinaman and the two enjoyed a long chat together. Before he left, Yan Phou Lee had become one of Miss Stewart's most enthusiastic admirers, and as a token of his friendship, he penned for her a rare document, perhaps the first of its kind ever seen. The document resembles and is a Chinese passport; in reality it is an introduction of Lucille Lee Stewart to the mayor and officials of every Chinese city in the world. Miss Stewart is wondering whether she will ever have a chance to use it.

While doing some exteriors on a comedy the other day, Director Frank Currier, of the Ince-Vitagraph studios at Bay Shore, had a unique experience. The lead in the comedy is a tramp, played by Ralph Whiting. Mr. Currier was not exactly overpleased with the scene as rehearsed, and expressed himself to Whiting in terms that could not be misconstrued. While the quiet little chat was going on, a sweet old lady with white hair, made her appearance, and seizing Frank by the arm, expressed herself as follows:

"You big brute, how dare you abuse that poor man in that way! I know he is only a tramp, but you have no right to browbeat him for that reason. There are worse people than tramps, sir, and I'm looking at you when I say so. Here, my poor man, is a quarter. I know your curse, rum, but you will conquer it, if you try hard."

Then the little gray lady turned on her heels, leaving Whiting and Currier staring at one another dumfounded. It was not until she was out of sight that they had the heart to laugh.

Nearing the completion of his third picture starring Lucille Lee Stewart, Ralph Ince has already started to look up locations for his next feature picture. The new photoplay, a railroad drama, offers wonderful opportunities for spectacular effects, and the supervising director of the Vitagraph Bay Shore studios declares he will eclipse "The Juggernaut" in this respect, which is promising a great deal. This Blue Ribbon feature, was adapted for the screen by Edward J. Montague.

Dorothy Long, ingenue at the Ince-Vitagraph studios at Bay Shore, has taken up her residence at Ocean Beach for the summer, where she has a beautiful bungalow. Miss Long is at present playing a character role in "Weary Willie's Birthday."

The ubiquitious skyscraper has invaded the motion picture studio. That is, the interior setting has finally reached the three-story stage of development. When motion pictures were much younger, the interior setting was a painted canvas with two or three chairs standing between it and the camera. Then the canvas gave way to more substantial backing and the three walls of the room were shown, as on the stage.

The next step was to build two-story settings, with real stairways running up to the second floor, up which the players could plainly be seen mounting.

Now the Famous Players have capped the climax by building a three-story replica of the interior of a French chateau for Marguerite Clark's appearance in "Silks and Satins." This entire structure, one of the largest ever built in a motion picture studio, is so solidly constructed that the players are able to use the two upper floors for their action and a sword play episode was staged on the stairs, with the victims of the doughty hero's trusty blade tumbling down the steps without causing the adjacent "stone" wall to quiver.

When Director J. Searle Dawley read the script of "Silks and Satins" in which Marguerite Clark is starring for the Famous Players, he reached the description of the big fight scene in which the diminutive heroine is rescued from a French chateau by her lover. "Check that scene for the last one we make," he told his assistant. "We want to get everything else first, because we may lose a player or two—or break up the set—when we tackle that riot. With a lot of sword-play and extras falling down stairs we'll take a tip from these preparedness fellows and have everything else carefully stowed away on the celluloid before we start anything."

"Very Pretty Idea!"

Size has very little to do with one's importance in this world, as Marguerite Clark and Ann Pennington demonstrated the other day when these two diminutive stars, neither of whom towers to the lofty eminence of five feet, monopolized the entire floor space of the Famous Players studio. It so happened that the other stars were either out of town or doing exterior scenes. As a result Miss Clark and Miss Pennington were monarchs of all they surveyed.

Frank Losee, who is featured by the Famous Players in "The Evil Thereof," tells a frankly amusing story on himself. He played Denman Thompson's old role in "The Old Homestead" on the Paramount Program a few months ago. One day he saw one of the stills from that picture in which his portly figure totally eclipsed an ox team that should have formed part of the background. "I took one look at that still picture," says Losee, "and I started dieting that night at supper. If I had kept on gaining weight I would have had to do a monologue before the camera. Nobody else could have gotten into the scene with me. I have taken off so much weight since then that I can almost make two suits grow where but one grew before."

Police reserves were called to clear away the crowd and extra traffic policemen summoned to make room for vehicular traffic when Mme. Petrova, the Metro star, appeared in Fifth avenue, attired as an Italian immigrant girl with a monkey and playing a grind organ. Mme. Petrova in this strange and picturesque costume was being photographed in front of the National Democratic Club, near St. Patrick's Cathedral, and in less than five minutes the avenue became choked with thousands of people and hundreds of taxicabs, big automobiles and Fifth avenue busses.

Before the extra police arrived the busses were obliged to make a detour at Forty-ninth street. Director Burton King, and his assistant, Dale Henshaw, selected the hour of eleven in the morning as being the best time to avoid attracting a great crowd. But as soon as they set up two motion picture cameras, and Mme. Petrova, with her gaily colored costume, appeared upon the sidewalk, people seemed to come to life out of the very pavement. Attendants from the club, together with two policemen on the beats near by, were unable to fight back the crowd so the action could be photographed. It was not until the extra police arrived that Director King was able to make a foot of negative.

The National Democratic Club was used in scores of scenes, both interior and exterior. It was the first time that this famous old structure, which has been the scene of entertainment for Presidents, Senators, Ambassadors, and many other men high in politics and official life, had ever been utilized for motion pictures. In making photographs of the interior many famous old paintings are shown, including portraits of Richard Croker and other leaders. The motion picture actors also staged some of their action on the noted Tammany tiger rug which was presented to the club by an illustrious group of politicians, and which occupies a prominent place at the head of the first landing leading to the library and billiard room.

Volkman Joins Hands with Horan

P. Thad Volkman, assistant director, who was associated with Edgar Jones at both the Lubin studios and later with Metro, has joined forces with Charles Horan, one of the best directors on the Metro staff. Mr. Horan and Mr. Volkman have begun work on "The Quitter," a five-part Metro-Rolfe wonderplay, in which Lionel Barrymore is starred. It is a story laid on the Mexican border in a mining community, where many thrilling events are staged. Mr. Volkman has had long experience in motion pictures, and is considered one of the foremost authorities on locations in and around New York. Much of this knowledge he gained when he was a reporter on the New York Herald, where he began his career after leaving high school.

George Fitzmaurice of Astra, the Pathe producer, has completed work on "Arms and the Woman," and is now engaged on "The Romantic Journey," an original five reel feature by George Brackett Seitz and Ouida Bergere, for the Pathe program.

William Courtney is the star and the cast is made up of Broadway actors, amongst whom are Alice Dovey, now playing in "Very Good Eddie," Macey Harlan and others.

Having just completed the third of his Pine Mountain two-reel stories, all of which were taken at Highland Falls, N. Y., Ben Wilson, the Universal director, has left mountains and backwoods scenery behind him for a short time, and taken to the water. During his last trip to Highland Falls he was engaged in putting on a two reel story entitled "The School Master of Pine Mountains," a companion piece to "The Sheriff of Pine Mountains," and "The Parson of Pine Mountains." He had occasion to borrow a fine riding horse, and was lucky to obtain the loan of a horse from Lieutenant Holderness of West Point. The horse, which is named Kentucky, was given to the lieutenant by August Belmont, and his brother too, Sam Meekin, now prominent in the Belmont racing stable.

However, Mr. Wilson has given up the idea of horseback riding for the time being at least, and will have to devote himself to motor boating, for on Tuesday evening he took his entire company on the initial trip of the new Metropolitan steamship liner, Massachusetts, to Boston and thence to Gloucester. Here he will stage a three reel photoplay entitled "For the Love of a Baby," written by James Garry. The picture requires Norwegian scenery, and Mr. Wilson intends to make the Gloucester fishing facilities represent Norway in this particular. The baby in the cast is Violet Axzell. The company in support of Mr. Wilson includes Edna Hunter, Miss Ritchie, Mrs. Axzell, Miss Crane, Miss King, Jeanette Rutland,

A Larger Family Than Foy's

Those who have seen Eddie Foy and the seven little Foys on the stage and considered them "some family," will have an opportunity to see an even larger family in a new William Fox feature starring Virginia Pearson. This picture is soon to be released.

Miss Pearson and her company were in Savannah, Ga., for local color. Director Davis decided that he wanted a really considerable family and that he would like to have this family ride into the picture in an ox cart. So he held engaging conversation with a colored citizen and discovered that he had sufficient children to fill the requirements.

The next morning all the actors and principals, properly costumed, were ready to be put through their paces. All of a sudden down the big road there came an ox-cart laden to the brim with people, nearly all of them children. When the cart had come to a stop within camera range, Director Davis decided to take a census. He discovered the father and mother and sixteen children, ranging in ages from four months to eighteen years. The father of this extensive group gave his age as forty-five. His wife was a woman in her early thirties. She confessed to being the fourth wife and mother of five of the youngsters. Her three predecessors were responsible for the remainder of the outfit.

Dr. Martin Somers, who will shortly be seen in a new Fox production directed by Roland West, who produced the photoplay "A Woman's Honor" in which Jose Collins is starred, is a really and truly doctor. He is now preparing to build a sanitarium in New Jersey for the treatment of the "tired business man."

Theda Bara had a narrow escape from serious injury on Friday night while returning from New Jersey. Her automobile skidded on the wet streets near the Cortlandt Street ferry house crashing into a heavily loaded truck, breaking the glass and wrecking one side of the car.

Miss Bara had gone over to New Jersey to appear in a train wreck scene in William Fox's production of "East Lynne," soon to be produced. The scene had been finished, and when Miss Bara returned a driving rain started. She was in her limousine with her assistant director, Robert Ross.

As the party left the ferry house on the New York side, her chauffeur, in order to avoid running into another car turned suddenly. The car turned three complete circles, finally landing against a truck heavily loaded with iron pipe.

Miss Bara was thrown to the bottom of her car and Ross was slightly cut by broken glass.

William Fox tired of some of the faces he saw constantly on the screen. He looked about him for new types and began by using the newspapers. This is how the advertisement read:

"BEAUTIFUL MODELS WANTED.

"The most beautiful artists' and cloak models in New York are wanted for motion pictures. There is an exceptional opportunity for distinctive beauties to win rapid advancement if they reveal not merely beauty but capacity as well."

This advertisement brought a flock of unusual girls to the Fox offices—more than four hundred in all. From this number ten were immediately engaged, providing they screened well in tests. When "tested" before the camera this number was reduced to six and these six young beauties were immediately given parts in two pictures then being started.

Valeska Surrat will shortly begin a new photoplay under the direction of William Fox. Miss Surrat, of course, will be given an opportunity to wear some stunning clothes.

Five playing companies of the World Film Corporation, working under the Brady-Made regime, are away, seeking the elusive local color and atmosphere.

Mollie King, Arthur Ashley and a supporting cast of fifteen players under the direction of Edwin August are at Asheville, N. C., where the first co-star picture these two have appeared in, "Contrary Mary" will be staged.

Gail Kane and House Peters are at Washington, D. C., where among the federal buildings scenes are being staged under Maurice Tourneur's supervision, for the forthcoming production of "The Velvet Paw," in which Peters and Miss Kane are co-starring.

June Elvidge, with a supporting cast and under the guidance of Frank Crane, are aboard a warship bound for Hampton Roads, Virginia, where during the spring manoeuvers of the Atlantic fleet a number of scenes for "Reparation" will be made. Permission of Secretary of the Navy Daniels was obtained which permits of the company traveling with the fleet at least two weeks and consent to photograph from the decks of torpedo boat destroyers, submarines and battleships was secured.

For the Holbrook Blinn picture, "The Prima Donna's Husband" in which Clara Whipple and Julius Steger are featured members of the acting cast, the Casino theatre at Broadway and 39th street, was secured from Messrs. Shuberts, and for the past two weeks, at intervals when the theatre is not in use by the "Blue Paradise" company, scenes requisite to the original scenario are staged with an audience of over six hundred picked people.

Muriel Ostriche and Carlyle Blackwell, playing opposite each other in "Molly o' Pigtail Alley," are enroute to a small city in the Middle West where the story of the play is laid.

In and Out of West Coast Studios

By J. C. Jessen

Special to Motion Picture News.

Los Angeles, June 3.

CHANGES being effected at Universal City together with news dispatches carried in the local papers, confirm the recent rumor that all producing of this company is to be done at Universal City in the near future. This will increase the producing staff fully one-third, and it is estimated that there will be thirty-five directors and producing companies employed permanently. The number at the present time is twenty-four.

Another change apparent at the film city is the general trend toward smaller productions. By members of the producing staff it was stated that in a short time there would be far more one-reel subjects made, and that three reels will be the average size. Three it is said, is the story size of sufficient length to give close-ups and other atmospheric effects for the average motion picture story. At the present time there are eight companies working on one-reel subjects.

Stewart Paton, who has been in charge of producing the Jules Verne story, "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," many of the scenes for which have been made at the Bermuda Islands, has arrived at Universal City to make the Sepoy rebellion scenes for this subject. Jane Gail and Allen Holubar, who played the leads in this Verne story, are also here, and production will be started shortly. At the present, Holubar is directing several short stories.

Vivian Martin, Morosco Star, and Her New Car

Three new directors were added to the Universal producing staff this week, and all have started one-reel subjects. Charles Bennett, who some time ago directed for the Biograph, is in charge of one company; Richard Donaldson, late assistant director for Lynn Reynolds, is producing another, and the third is Francis Powers, who has been with the Selig and Fine Arts companies.

Another change at "U" City is in the scenario department. Eugene B. Lewis has been appointed editor to succeed Dr. H. G. Stafford, resigned.

Wilfred Rogers Signs as Lead for "U"

Wilfred Rogers, who came to Los Angeles with "The Servant in the House" Company, has been engaged as leading man by Marshall Stedman of the Universal Employment Department. Kathlyn Arnold, Maude Emory, Gilmore Hammond and Lule Warrenton appear as supports in Rogers' first story, a two-reel subject now being made.

Beebe Daniels, Phunphilm Girl

Director Jack Conway and the Jack Kerrigan "U" Company, are at the Yosemite Valley securing exteriors for "The Beckoning Trail," a five-reel Bluebird from a scenario by F. McGrew Willis.

The Universal Producing Company which has been at Eureka, California, for the past two weeks making timber region scenes for a five-reel subject, are expected home daily. This company is under the direction of Jay Hunt.

Pat Rooney, well known vaudeville player, has arrived at "U" City, and the filming of his first two-reel subject has been taken up by Roy Clemens. This will be titled "The Bell Boy," and is adapted by Walter Woods from a story of the same title by Charles E. Van Loan. Rooney takes the part of the bell hop known as Cricket, who is madly in love with the cigar counter girl, played by Adele Farrington. Her work requires that she be a good fellow with all men, which causes much jealousy on the part of the bell boy. Throughout the two reels there is a constant rivalry between him and a drummer, but the uncle of the drummer wills all his property to the bell hop for kindnesses, and he wins the cigar counter girl. Jay Balesco, Hayward Mack, H. M. Thurston, O. C. Jackson, and Marc Robbins will be the other principals in the picture.

Margaret Gibson in a Scene from "The Lion Nemesis," Horsley-Mutual

Deacon Stillwater comes to life again in a Joker comedy being made by Allen Curtis, entitled "The Harem Skarem Deacon," and takes an active part in the work of the anti-sin league. On this occasion he is sent to Chinatown to investigate the sale of opium, and is induced to try it by the owner of the resort. A few whiffs and he finds himself the owner of a harem with the women of the league all bowing to him. The regular Joker players appear in this number.

Dorothy Davenport, Richard Morris, Emory Johnson and Alfred Allen make up the cast for "The Shepherd," in five reels now being filmed by Universal Director Lloyd B. Carleton.

"The Primitive" is a one-reel Universal drama with Allen Holubar, Ruth Stonehouse and Jack Holt as principals. It tells the story of a jealous lover's attempt to injure the fair name of the woman he professed to love on the night of her marriage. The heavy succeeds in inducing the husband to leave his home, and in the husband's absence he attacks the wife.

Director Oscar C. Apfel and His Company of William Fox Players on Santa Cruz Island, California

Western Completed by Carey and Marshall

Co-Directors Harry Carey and George Marshall have just completed the filming of a western one-reel Universal subject, "The Adventures of Tom Horne the Claim Jumper,' in which Carey plays the name part, that of a leader of a gang who prey upon the settlers. The gang's buzzard locates oil properties, and they immediately start to drive away the settler, an elderly man. In the midst of this, their work is arrested by the arrival of the settler's daughter. The claim jumper, fascinated by her beauty, forces all to leave the settlers alone. Besides Carey the principals of this one-reeler are Olive Golden, Doc. Crane and Joe Rickson.

Director William Worthington, while waiting for sets to be completed for a Bluebird subject, "The Spring Song," which he is next to produce, has filmed "At Cross Purposes," in one reel. The pappars again serve as a basis for a photoplay plot in this instance, and the charts of fortifications are sought by a diplomat of another nation, who has a leading woman at one of the theatres in his power. Jack Connally, Jessie Arnold and William Canfield hold down the corners of this triangle.

"Base Ball Bill" lands on a South Sea Island in number five of the comedy series being made by Billy Mason, and he teaches the natives how to play baseball with cocoanuts. His wonderful athletic ability wins for him the hearts of all the dusky belles. He is made the king, and then awakens to find he is in a padded cell. Besides Mason, O. C. Jackson and Ruby Cox appear in this.

A girl imbued with a sixth sense, is the principal character of "When the Stars Foretell," a one-reel drama of finance being made by Director George Cochran. Marjorie Ellison plays the lead in this with Jack Connally and Malcolm Blevins as the two brothers.

A one-reel comedy, "The Plumber's Waterloo," is being filmed by R. M. Donalson as his first contribution to the Universal program. It is the story of a shrewd Irishman learning that one of his helpers has inherited a fortune, and binds the man to work with him for five years or forfeit five thousand. As usual in a plumber's story, a home is flooded when the pipes break. The cast for this includes Harry Depp, Ernest Shields, Andrew Arbuckle and Eileen Sedgwick.

The fourth of the "Timothy Dobbs" serial is now being filmed. Scenario Writer Bess Meredith in this number, sends the aspiring photoplayer to the slums to play the part of a tough. In his make-up he closely resembles a gangster sought by the police, and for that reason members of the gang hide him away in their meeting place. Because of this he has opportunity to serve the civic authorities, and thus the director is relieved of the burden of giving him the gate. Robert Milash and George Hernandez play in this with Carter DeHaven.

"The Fourth Tree," with Mina Cunard

"The Fourth Tree" is a rural drama of one reel in which Hayward Mack, Mina Cunard, Vola Smith and Norbert Myles play the principal parts. It is a story of an artist who leaves home because his wife thinks he pays more attention to his work than to her. In a mountain retreat, he makes his home with a woodcarver and his daughter. The girl admires him, and when her father dies leaving as his last request that she marry a young man who has been assistant to her father, she refused and implores the artist to make her his bride. In answer to her beseeching, he tells her of his wife at home, and thus breaks up her childish romance.

"Men and Women' will be a one-reel subject of the badger game. This is being produced by Jacques Jaccard with G. Raymond Nye, Roberta Wilson and Peggy Coudray as principals. The vampire induces a married man to call on her at her apartments and her partner arrives and together they force a sum of money from the husband.

Production of a Bluebird entitled "L'Abbe Constantin," adapted from the Ludovic Halevy story of the same name by E. J. Clawson, was begun last week by Director Rupert Julian. The cast for this is an unusually strong one, containing as it does, seven of the Universal Stock Company's best players, George Berrill, Francelia Billington, Zoe Beck, Louise Lovely, Jerry Girrard, Rupert Julian and Elsie Wilson.

A small village set, built especially for the purpose, was burned this week at the Lasky ranch for scenes in the Cleo Ridgley-Wallace Reid production filmed by George Melford. Approximately five hundred people took part.

DeMille on Way Home

Cecil B. deMille, director general of the Lasky Company, is on his way home from New York City by way of Alabama, New Orleans and the Mexican border. He is making the trip over the southern route in order to select locations for productions soon to be taken up.

Several carry-all automobiles were used last week to pick up types in the Los Angeles slum district for scenes in the Marie Doro new Lasky production entitled "The Kid." William C. deMille is directing this, and has Tom Meighn as leading man, and Theodore Roberts, William Elmer and Mary Mirsch as principals.

The cast for the Lasky production, "Public Opinion," which stars Blanche Sweet, and is being filmed under the direction of Frank Reicher, has been announced. Tom Forman, Raymond Hatton, Earl Fox, Edith Chapman and Dorothy Abril will appear in the principal parts.

Mae Murray, who has been playing in Lasky productions, has returned to New York City for a vacation.

The Lasky scenario department staff has been increased by Charles Sarver, well known New York newspaper man, and Eva Unsell, magazine writer.

Francis Ford and Grace Cunard have now completed the seventh episode of "Peg O' the Ring" serial, at the Stern Film Company's studio in Hollywood. This places them far ahead of the release, and will permit all the time necessary to keep up with the releases. Since taking up the filming of the serial at the Gower street studio, this producing plant has been turned into a veritable circus with tents and circus properties of all kinds to be seen in every part of the lot, which covers an entire block.

The L-Ko Company, making a five-reel war comedy, staged a thriller at Santa Monica last week when George Meehan drove a big Mercer car off the end of Municipal pier. The roadbed of the pier is fully forty feet above the water, and there was an additional structure on top of this which raised the machine ten feet higher so that it would shoot up in to the air as it left the pier. Meehan rode the machine into the water, remaining back of the steering wheel until after it disappeared below the surface. He was rescued by life guards. The machine is at the bottom of the ocean in forty feet of water.

Three Reels Weekly from Vogue

The output of the Vogue Films studio is to be increased to three reels weekly, consisting of one two-reel comedy, and one one-reel comedy. This fact was made known last week when Director Jack Dillon began the making of the first two-reel subject. No additional members will be added, but the present two companies will alternately make a two-reel subject. The present comedy of two reels will have Paddy Maguire, Ben Turpin, Jack Gaines, Arthur Moon and Rena Rogers as principals.

This will be the last Vogue comedy in which Miss Rogers will take part, as on June 7 she will become the bride of Frank Borzage, director at the American studios at Santa Barbara. After a short honeymoon trip the couple will go to Santa Barbara where they will make their future home.

"Fruit and Intrigue" is the title given a Vogue comedy just completed by Jack Dillon, which deals with the adventures of an inventor who tried to sell his government a new submarine, but fell into the hands of foreign emissaries who used counterfeit money on him. Rena Rogers is the daughter of the inventor, Jack Gaines as the villian Admiral Shimsky, and Ben Turpin and Paddy Maguire do a new comedy turn as sailors. The daughter and her sweetheart foil the foreign diplomats by the aid of the sailors. The players in the filming of this went through a number of daring feats, and several were forced to enter the dry docks temporarily.

At the David Horsley Jungle Zoo Director Charles Swickard is filming "The Siren of the Jungle." Margaret Gibson is cast to play the title part, that of a daughter of a Boer innkeeper, who has broken the hearts of many of the diamond miners. William Clifford is the trapper, Harris Ingram the husband, and Fred Montague the girl's father. The subject will be completed in two reels.

"The Haunting Symphony," of the nature of a detective drama, is being filmed by Robert Broadwell from a story by Crane Wilbur. Mr. Wilbur appears in the part of a doctor, a guardian of two children who have been left considerable wealth. The guardian hopes to induce the girl to become his wife, but failing in this commits murder, at a time when a man who has been blinded by a chemical explosion enters the home, thinking it his home. The blind man hears a scream and a shot when near a table. He clutches a photograph, his hand has fallen on and leaves the building. When he recovers his sight he attempts to unravel the mystery because of the beauty of the girl as shown in the photograph. This he accomplishes by a peculiar strain of a musical number. Besides Mr. Wilbur, the principals of this are May Gaston, John Oaker, Jessie Burnett, and Lloyd Holton.

Horsley Beats Kalem at Baseball

Photoplay baseball league opened the season Sunday when the David Horsley and Kalem Company teams contested at Exposition Park. The Horsley players were successful by a score of twenty-three to twelve, which ended in the fifth inning for want of a larger score board. Bud Duncan was on the pitcher's slab for the Kalems, and Roemer for the Horsley team.

Dave Allen, who was accompanist for Violinsky last season on his vaudeville tour, is now a member of the Horsley stock company, and has written two musical numbers. One has been titled "The Ovey Rag," and the other is to be named for Claire Alexander.

The Robert M. Baker story filmed at the Fine Arts studio with Douglas Fairbanks as star, has been titled "Flirting With Fate" instead of "The Assassin."

In this, Fairbanks plays the role of an artist with much temperament and little ability to draw a salary. This was made by Director William Christy Cabanne, and has as a supporting cast Jewel Carmen, W. E. Lawrence, Dorothy Haydel, Howard Gaye, George Berranger and others.

Director Paul Powell is to film a story in which Wilfred Lucas is starred. This is by Mary H. O'Connor, and is laid in the western lumber region. Mr. Lucas takes the part of a dominant westerner who later becomes the victim of the badger game. Mary Alden is the badger woman, Eugene Pallette her accomplice, and Bessie Love, James O'Shea, and Ralph Lewis have the bulk of the scenes.

The two-reel subjects made at the Fine Arts studio for the Triangle program are to be known as the Komedy Brand, three of which have been completed. Fay Tincher is starred in two of these, and work has now been taken up on her third subject. The second is said to possess all the color possible for an ordinary picture without tinting or hand coloring, as Miss Tincher has worn gowns of such color that none is lost in the photographs. Strips predominate. Beach scenes for the subject were made at Balboa Beach, tennis scenes were taken at a Pasadena millionaire's hovel, and dormitory life scenes were secured at a school for girls.

Norma Talmadge Off for the East

Director John Emerson, his assistant, Eric Von Stroheim; cameraman, and Norma Talmadge and her mother, have left for New York where they will make one or more Triangle dramas. They took with them a scenario prepared by Anita Loos. They were given a farewell at the station by many of the members of the Fine Arts stock company.

Walter Newman, late scenario writer for the Keystone, has furnished the E. & R. Company with the one-reel comedy entitled "Dynamited," which is now being made. In this Walter Rogers appears as an inventor who is pestered by the pets, Napoleon and Sally, the chimps owned by the woman next door, taken by Virginia Ames. Napoleon delights in rushing in and turning a cuckoo clock forward to the hour, while his mate Sally performs equally mischievous acts. The inventor plans a trap to catch Sally, and places dynamite in the clock to get Napoleon. But he, forgetful of the trap, springs it upon himself and is held prisoner when Napoleon comes in to make the clock cuckoo. Fortunately he is rescued, and the clock blows up the alley.

Al. E. Christie is filming "His Blushing Bride," which deals with two young men out of work and funds who disguise themselves as a honeymooning pair, in order to get the cash prize and free entertainment at a new hotel offered to the first couple who come there for their honeymoon. The disguise of the one young man as the bride is so near perfect that it is not penetrated by any except the constable who is looking for a blonde female crook. The boy's sweethearts secure employment at the hotel, and frequently apprehension is narrowly averted. Nolan Leary makes his debut with the Christie Company playing the lead in this. For a time he was with Pathe, but for the past two or three years has been on the legitimate stage. Harry Ham is the bride, Eddie Beery the constable and Billie Rhodes and Ethel Lynn the young fellow's sweetheart.

Henderson Leaves Keystone

Del Henderson, who for the past year has served as director and assistant to Mack Sennett, is leaving the Keystone Company to return east. He is succeeded by Tony O'Sullivan. Mr. O'Sullivan is one of the pioneer producers of motion pictures. He was associated with the Biograph Company when Mack Sennett first became a member of their producing organization. He remained there until the time that he and Sennett left, Sennett to organize the Keystone, and O'Sullivan the Reliance Company. Mr. O'Sullivan remained with the Reliance for three years, and recently served as director for the Biograph.

The wireless spark plug story filmed at the Keystone studio by Charles Parrot, has been named "Hearts and Sparks." The comedy pertains to a wireless spark plug which makes it possible for a flivver to win the ten thousand dollar stakes of an automobile race, a more complete synopsis of which was published in this department recently. The cast has Hank Mann, Nick Cogley, Bobbie Dunn, Gloria Swanson, Billie Bennett and Bobby Vernon.

The Keystone story in which the couple elope in an airship, and are sighted by the girl's father, an astronomer, has been named "The Love Comet." The couple have numerous adventures in the air, including the picking-up of a negro minister, and later throwing him overboard when he alights in whitewash. Walter Wright was the director of this Sennett comedy, and the principal players are Ora Carew, Joseph Belmont, William Callahan and Frank Hayes.

The comedy featuring Chester Conklin as the property man at a tank town theatre where a musical comedy company stops, has been titled "His First False Step." Much of the fun is centered around the difficulties of the property man in caring for the many dogs of the chorus girls. Co-directors William Campbell and Harry Williams are responsible for this, and Conklin is supported by Mary Thurman, Dora Rogers, May Wells, and Charles Reisner.

The William Fox company has finished the filming of "The Man From Bitter Root," adapted from the story of that name. In this Director Oscar Apfel offers as a surprise for the Fox film lovers, as he has eliminated the usual fight. William Farnum, the star, has but a very short and snappy encounter. Scenes for the story are laid in the Bitter Root Mountains of Montana, where Farnum and his partner have a valuable mine. Exteriors for this subject were made in the vicinity of Huntington Lake in western central California during the past two weeks, amid the peaks of the High Sierras. Most of the action takes place in winter, and the company was fortunate in being there during several severe snow storms. H. A. Burrows is the tenderfoot; Betty Schade, of the Universal Company, the partner's sister; Betty Harte, the dance hall girl, and William Lewis and Henry J. Heber have good parts.

While in the north country, Director Apfel and players made scenes for a Canadian northwest drama which will be completed next.

Walsh Nearly Completes "Honor System"

Director R. A. Walsh is making the finishing scenes for the nine or ten reel subject, "The Honor System," which will be finished within a few days. Many of the exteriors were filmed at Florence, Ariz., the company having just returned from a long stay there.

Ollie Kirkby has been transferred to the Hollywood studio of the Kalem Company, where she will play in the Ham comedies, which in the future are to be produced by Lloyd V. Hamilton, who will also write many of the stories. This latter will be quite an advantage, it is believed, as Mr. Hamilton knows what business is best suited to himself and partner, Bud Duncan.

Hamilton has just finished filming "The Beggar and His Child," in which he does the gutter act with a violin, and Bud impersonates the little singing daughter. A wealthy couple notice a resemblance to their "Little Nell," adopt the girl and engage Ham as the butler. This affords some unusual amusing situations.

The other Kalem comedy company, under the direction of Harry Millard, is making a one reel picture featuring Ethel Teare as the girl just home from college. She secures employment as a newspaper reporter, and is assigned to get a story regarding a woman advertising for a husband. Ethel is mistaken for the advertiser, but the situations are cleared. She wins her father's approval and the heart of the young man she loves. Jack McDermott and Victor Rottman are the other principals of the cast.

The Kalem "Hazards of Helen" producers added to their laurels as destroyers of property in demolishing an automobile by a locomotive. Helen Gibson drove the machine alongside a runaway train, and jumping to the cab stopped the engine. The auto ran in front of the locomotive and was ground to pieces. The scenes that followed show the capture of bandits, and the saving of the lives of the passengers of the runaway train. Percy Pembroke plays opposite Helen Gibson in this "Hazard," and G. A. Williams impersonates an important part.

"NEWS" MODESTLY ADMITS IT BELIEVES WHAT PAUL WEST SAYS ABOUT IT IS TRUE

Editor of the Motion Picture News,
729 Seventh Ave., N. Y. City.
Dear Sir:

After a strenuous season of writing for the screen I am going to Nantucket, Mass., for the summer, but not to rest, as I have several feature pictures mapped out to work upon. I can't go, however, without being assured of receiving Motion Picture News regularly, for without it every week I feel absolutely out of touch with the picture world.

Not only is Motion Picture News an invaluable companion for anyone writing scenarios, with its information concerning new markets and the current work of all the companies, but, in my opinion—that of a newspaper editor of many years experience—the best edited, best written and best put together publication devoted to the interests of any special trade or profession that I have ever seen. It not only keeps one fully informed of everything going on in the motion picture field, but it presents its information in such a form that it is good reading from a magazine standpoint.

I don't see how anyone connected with the motion picture business in any of its departments, writing, acting or producing, to say nothing of exhibiting, can get along without it. I can't, for one, and therefore I want to be sure of getting it every week this summer while I am away from town.

(Signed) PAUL WEST.

DORSEY EXPE
ON THE REGULAR UNIVER

An Achievement for Exhibitors That Surpasses

A Quarter of a Million Dollar Attraction That Means 14 Weeks of Capacity Houses

PUTTING such a costly Feature production Extraordinary as the Famous DORSEY EXPEDITION on the regular Universal Program (at not one cent extra to regular Universal Program users) sets an entirely new and wonderful precedent in Moving Picture history.

Had any other film concern in the world presented such a colossal attraction as the famous DORSEY EXPEDITION PICTURES, they would yowl their heads off in advertising, hire a few extra Press Agents, boost it to the skies and then ask exorbitant prices for the Feature.

To be honest with you, any film concern would be fully justified in doing exactly what we describe, for no matter what price Exhibitors paid for the famous DORSEY Pictures, both Exhibitor and patrons would be getting their full money's worth.

COMING!

THE WORLD'S GREATEST COMEDIES, STARRING THE COMEDY KING OF THEM ALL

CARTER DE H

AT LAST—the big event in Filmdom has arrived—and as usual the UNIVERSAL—as in every other great enterprise that has given better films to the world—takes the lead.

This is the event that thousands of Exhibitors throughout the world have been wanting; the event that millions of photo-play lovers have been clamoring for.

CLEAN COMEDIES without the vulgar stuff; without the disgusting slap stick; and minus the cheap clap-trap.

Be sure to mention "MOTION PICTURE NEWS" when writing to advertisers.

CARTER DE HAVEN, the King of modern day comedy, will play the lead in a series of subjects that will establish, once for all, the fact that comedy films can be produced, without the slam bang as is usually presented in the very ordinary mediocre comedies of today.

This series will be elaborate, distinctively different, and distinguishable by numberless points of vast superiority in every detail. From script down to the last finishing touch of masterly direction, this series of comedies will stand out from the mass of offerings on the market today, as a genuine pearl stands out from all rank imitations.

The series will be directed and produced by Wallace Beery. No expense will be spared to give the public the rarest of treats and surprises that will mark the most radical departure yet conceived in this branch of the moving picture industry.

Watch for the first release. It will be announced soon. Watch for all the following releases. You'll see something new, different, distinctive. A series of convulsion producing pictures that will herald themselves from one corner of the earth to the other.

Your nearest Universal Exchange can give you more facts and figures. Better investigate.

or two months, following a change in contract relations, and all the members of the company and staff have been released, most of the players going to Los Angeles where they look for connections with some of the large producing concerns located in that vicinity.

It is announced from Capt. Wilbert Melville's office at the studio, that it is planned, upon reopening, to produce five-reel feature pictures, starting with one company and gradually adding to the working force as opportunity is afforded.

Evelyn Page, one of the members of the company, who, in the course of a few months, advanced from an "extra" to leads, and whose home is in this city, has gone to Los Angeles with a view to locating there.

Alan Forrest, who has been with the company for several months, is now with the American at Santa Barbara, according to reports. Other former Lubin people with that company are Ed Sloman, director, and Julian La Mothe, scenario writer.

Melvin Mayo, in leaving the Lubin Company, ends a relationship with Capt. Melville, as actor and director, covering nearly three years.

The Universal All-Star Company has been working at Coronado under the direction of Bob Leonard, and in connection with the filming of scenes for "Little Eva Edgarton," a large number of society people were included in the cameraman's subjects. The pictures were taken at the matinee dansante. Included in the regular company are Ella Hall, Gretchen Lederer, Doris Pawn, Thomas Jefferson and Herbert Rawlinson. The play upon which the company has been working is an adaptation of Eleanor Hallowell Abbott's novel of the same name. Mr. Jefferson is playing the role of Prof. Edgarton, father of Eva, the latter being portrayed by Ella Hall. Herbert Rawlinson appears as Jimmie Barton. In all there are about forty people with Director Leonard.

Dorothy Dalton, who has been a guest at the Hotel del Coronado, held a telephonic conversation recently with Thomas H. Ince at New York, and when the receiver was hung up there was a bill of $69.00 for the little confab between the motion picture actress and the magnate.

Ince's cinema-spectacle, "Civilization," is to be shown for the first time locally at the Empress theatre for a week, beginning June 5.

Geraldine Farrar Off to Coast for Deferred Honeymoon

Prima Donna Is Reticent About Plans for Pictures on Her Arrival in the Film Colony, but Probably the Summer Will Find Her Busy Before the Camera

WITH the long winter season of grand opera and concert at an end, Geraldine Farrar has started with her husband, Lou-Tellegen, on that long deferred honeymoon trip to the land of motion pictures at Hollywood, California.

Mr. and Mrs. Lou-Tellegen were passengers on board the 20th Century Limited attached to which was a private car for the star and her suite. Miss Farrar's drawing room was embanked with roses.

A summer devoted to the motion picture camera is no novelty for the prima donna as she had the unusual experience a year ago of making three big productions at the studios of the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company at Hollywood, California, including a filmed version of the opera "Carmen" all within a period of nine weeks.

Miss Farrar was reticent concerning her motion picture plans for the summer, but she said several things were in contemplation any one of which she promised would be exceptionally interesting.

"A summer vacation can only be enjoyed by those who are all tired out from resting all winter," said Miss Farrar. "As for me, I believe that the motion picture if approached with serious intent and artistic endeavor, is a medium as full of expressive possibilities as the grand opera, the drama, painting or any other art. For an artist whose life is devoted to the public there is a keen sense of joy in the thought that the motion picture camera supplies an imperishable record of one's best achievements."

At Hollywood, California, there is awaiting Miss Farrar, a country estate with a large mansion completely furnished after her own tastes.

There is a note of real sentiment in that Mr. and Mrs. Lou-Tellegen are passing their honeymoon in the place where they first met. It was while Miss Farrar was at the Lasky studios last summer that she and Mr. Tellegen, who was there also appearing in motion pictures, became acquainted.

SELIG PLAYERS BACK IN CHICAGO FROM VICKSBURG

A number of the Selig stars returned to Chicago, Ill., on Monday, May 29, after participating in scenes filmed for "The Crisis" at Vicksburg, Miss. Among the players who returned to Chicago are: Eugenie Besserer, Cecil Holland, Matthew Snyder, Leo Pierson and George Fawcett. Bessie Eyton, seizing the opportunity, paid a brief visit to New York City. Miss Bessie has never seen Broadway, and proposed to take in the sights before returning to Los Angeles.

Several enjoyable social functions were held in Vicksburg before the Selig players left that hospitable Southern city. Harris Dickson, whose "Ole Reliable" stories scored such a hit in The Saturday Evening Post, threw open the doors of his mansion and entertained Director Colin Campbell and the Selig players to a real Southern dinner. He also personally accompanied a party of Selig artists over the National Park at Vicksburg, explaining to them all the points of interest.

Matthew Snyder, aged 82 years, a veteran of the Confederate army, who participated in the defense of Vicksburg over half a century ago, was given a "farewell" party by his fellow players at the Vicksburg Hotel before he left for Los Angeles.

GAUMONT WILL PUT BURNS STORY IN WORK SOON

The Gaumont Company has announced that it will next put in work an interesting three-reel drama from the pen of Robert Burns, the well-known novelizer of screen dramas for magazines. This is "Gates of Divorce," a photoplay which portrays the lengths to which an idle, restless woman may drive her home-loving husband. The photoplay is to be directed by Edwin Middleton.

MARGARET THOMPSON WINS DANCING CONTEST

Margaret Thompson, the attractive Ince Triangle ingenue, was winner of a dancing contest recently at a private gathering of photoplayers and Hollywood, California, society. At the studio Miss Thompson has been very frequently told that she was the exponent of new and attractive steps, but she refused to believe this until now that competent judges awarded her a handsome prize.

Film News From Foreign Parts

Fussy Fingers Feel For Flaws in Foreign Films

Special to Motion Picture News.

London, May 23.

FROM time to time I have mentioned in these notes the unsatisfactory system of censorship in this country. Before the outbreak of the war, the matter was regarded as all-important and filmmen in all parts of the country consistently urged the official recognition of the present censor, Mr. Redfern (of the British Board of Film Censors, supported by the trade), but without success. Since then the subject, besides other events, has faded into obscurity, but has reappeared in a most unexpected form. At the present time considerably authority is vested with the local magistrates and chief constables, who have the power to veto, or "ban," to use the colloquial expression, any film they may think likely to injure public morals. Apparently they appreciate how laborious and irritating the present system is, and now we have the Chief Constables' Association, at a meeting in conference, urging by unamious resolution, the establishment of a Central Government Film Censorship by the Home Office. This arose out of a discussion on juvenile crime and the war, and it was generally put forward that the increase in crime was due chiefly to relaxed parental control and improper films seen at cinema entertainments.

We are told that "there was universal condemnation of certain cinema influences" by these chief constables sitting in solemn conclave. The matter has also occupied attention in Parliament, and the Home Secretary himself stated that it was generally believed that one of the causes of the considerable increase in juvenile crime during the past year, was the character of some of the films shown at cinematograph theatres, and while he was not in a position to make a further statement at present, the matter was one which was receiving his close attention. It is not my purpose in this article to discuss any increase, however abnormal, in proportions of juvenile crime, for the remedy lies, as it always has done, in the hands of our officials, but the attack upon the films which the licensing authorities themselves allowed to be screened, is neither called for, nor merited. Practically all cinemas caters specially for adults at evening performances, and to submit a program of films to satisfy the juvenile palate would be probably only to incur the wrath of regular grown-up patrons. Exhibitors contend, and rightly too, that they are there to provide good wholesome entertainment as a matter of business, and if as is alleged, certain films have a deleterious effect upon juvenile morals, owing to youngsters not having the understanding to grasp the moral of the story, then the matter is one which demands the more stringent parental supervision of children, and their habits. There are restrictions on the admission of children under sixteen years, but we are not so advanced on this side of Atlantic as to have evening exhibitions of special children's pictures.

Practically All Films Passed by Censor

Practically all pictures now to be seen at evening performances are passed by the censor for general exhibition, a comprehensive term, applicable one supposes, to children as well as adults. One of the most distinguished of the penny journals, the Daily Telegraph is also in the ranks of the fault-finders, bemoaning the pictures which are "demoralizing" children, and which make the audience familiar with death, crime, killing, fighting, scenes of anguish and unhealthy excitement." Instead of always taking up a negative attitude, it is about time the lay press faced the hard facts, appreciated the absolute permanence of the cinematograph, both as an entertaining medium and as an educational factor, and gave us some real helpful criticism by way of a change from the constant grumble. The Kinematograph Weekly has published a most virile and effective reply to the Telegraph in the form of an open letter, and the charges made in the latter journal are by no means being allowed to pass by unchallenged.

"Nation" Shown in Liverpool

"The Birth of a Nation" is now being shown in Liverpool at the leading and largest music hall in the city as an exclusive attraction, and some little concern is being manifested by exhibitors at films of such stupendous workmanship passing out of their reach. It is admitted that the ordinary picture house could not accommodate sufficient people to see such a film and then make a profit, and there is a lurking fear that other films produced on a similarly colossal scale may be put before the public in some manner as "The Birth of the Nation." A very strong argument indeed for more super-cinemas, more capable of dealing with outstandingly important films.

People are wanting to see more and more of those phases of society of which they hear so much, but know so little about. The unconventional story, such for instance as that of "The Fallen Star" (Ideal Film), Albert Chevalier's new play of an actor's life, will always catch the eye of the public. Film visualizations of novels and plays are also enjoying very great popularity. As an instance of how certain films have appealed to the public, I will mention the bookings of three Ideal films: "A Welsh Singer" was booked at 410 theatres, "My Old Dutch," at 935, and "The Bottle" at 510.

The Neptune Film Company, announce a pictorial reproduction of "The Pictures of Dorian Grey," a visualization of Oscar Wilde's renowned novel. The trade show is being awaited with keen interest. The Lucoque Company intend making a bold step forward and hope very shortly to supply a film program of exclusively British produced films, both comedies and dramas, including features. "The Valley of Fear" from the novel by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, is the next important production to emanate from the Samuelson studios. This I understand is quite a superior production, and the cast includes H. A. Saintsburg as Sherlock Holmes. The Urban Trading Company is reissuing the startling film "The World, the Flesh and the Devil," with new advertising matter.

T. A. Managing Director's Enterprise

J. A. Tippett, the general manager of the Trans-Atlantic Film Company is showing the important film "The Dumb Girl of Portici" at the Philharmonic Hall, London, the same building in which the Williamson Submarine Pictures were screened. The film gives one an excellent conception of the art of Madame Pavlowa, and it is declared that the subject will not be booked at any legitimate theatre.

Owing to the civil strife in Dublin, there has been considerable dislocation in the Irish film trade. Much of the booked film did not arrive during the troublous period, and J. D. Walker's World Film, Ltd. (who handle all the Famous Players and Lasky productions), announce that during month of May their Irish bookings will be canceled, owing to martial law, which requires people to be indoors before eight o'clock in the evening. Entertainments will in consequence suffer. One Dublin picture house was wrecked.

The Triangle Films are showing particularly good promise and considerable success was achieved at their first trade show. Three others have just been arranged, the subjects to be exhibited being: "Let Katie Do It" (drama), "Submarine Pirate" (Keystone), "Jordan is a Hard Road" (drama), "Crooked to the End" (Keystone), "The Golden Claw" (drama), "Dizzy Heights and Daring Hearts" (Keystone.) The American Company (London) Ltd. have introduced a new brand, known as the Vogue films, the first of which are: "Oh! for the Life of a Fireman," "The Bubbles and the Barber," and "Johnny's Jumble."

Billie Burke in Five Typical Scenes from Chapter Five of "Gloria's Romance," a Serial Produced by George Kleine from an Especially Written Screen Novel by Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Hughes

Amongst the best received American films during the past few days have been: "Money Master" (Kleine), "Tried for His Own Murder," and "For a Woman's Fair Name" (Vitagraph), "A Woman's Weakness" (Laemmle), "Love's Enduring Flame" (Selig), "Less Ye Be Judged" (Broadway), "The Walls of Jericho" (Fox), "Madame Cubist" (Trans-Atlantic), "The Great Ruby (Lubin), and "Lost Bridegroom," "Nearly a King," "The Sales Lady," and "Out of the Drifts" (Famous Players).

"SHELL PLATE" FROM PARAMOUNT FOR SOLID PAGE PUBLICITY

The Paramount Pictures Corporation issues its "shell plate" weekly. The page contains all sorts of matter—"shorts" and "longs," pictures of stars and scenes in each of the two weekly Paramount releases. This page, in proof form, goes to every exhibitor and to the newspaper in his town or small city. Circular letters have told the exhibitor the advantages of the proposition —that if his newspaper receives shell plate, it will be more likely to print publicity for his pictures than if it has to set up the story. Shell plate does away with composition charges and the editors of this class of newspaper using Paramount publicity have welcomed the new page.

Paramount exhibitors are seeing the wisdom of paying a small sum of money if it will guarantee publicity handed out day after day, until up to the time they are going to play their big attractions, a total of a full page of "shell plate" has been run. Paramount plans to sell the entire page of shell plate to the exhibitors for a dollar and a half or two dollars, all according to the zone in which they live, the zones, of course, being determined by freight charges.

JUST QUIETLY SAWING WOOD AT FOX STUDIOS

Though nothing has been heard of the big William Fox studios at Corona, Long Island, in recent weeks, this does not mean a cessation of activities there. This work is well under way and the entire Fox producing organization in the East expects to be installed in its Long Island film city by the end of the present summer.

General Manager of Progressive Boosts Western Exhibitor

"Average Theatre Manager on the Pacific Coast Does Not Make Any Money, but Has Clearer Conception of Proper Way to Put on Pictures," He Says

THE general manager of the Progressive Motion Picture Company, distributors of Paramount Pictures in the states of California, Washington, Oregon, Arizona, New Mexico and Nevada, is spending two weeks in New York at the offices of the Paramount Pictures Corporation, 485 Fifth avenue, to become familiar with the eastern situation in the motion picture industry.

"General film conditions on the coast are not on a par with those in the rest of the country," he declared. "The average exhibitor on the coast does not make any money, but he has a far clearer conception of the proper presentation of a picture than the exhibitor in the east has. The western man has been developed to the point where he has a much better understanding of the great value of better pictures, longer runs and higher prices than the men in the motion picture business here seem to have.

"While the coast has no houses of the size or type of the New York Strand," he continued, "most of the large towns in the west can boast of three or four high class picture houses. Seattle, for instance, has four large houses and the Coliseum there is equal to any theatre in the country outside of the New York Strand.

"One Paramount exhibitor, who owns both the Coliseum and the Liberty theatre in Seattle, has already made plans for a picture house in Butte, Mont., to cost $200,000, which is quite remarkable in a town the size of Butte and indicates how progressive is the western exhibitor generally.

"Paramount exchanges are taking in from twenty-five to thirty per cent of the motion picture business on the coast," I should say. The short reels on the Paramount program are universally popular and most of our exhibitors run the entire list of releases each week.

"The west makes many Paramount converts, both in patrons and exhibitors," he concluded. "And when converts are made the exchangeman on the coast leaves nothing undone to keep them, whether it be by advertising or some other method."

The offices of the Progressive Motion Picture Company are at 642 Pacific Building, in the heart of San Francisco's business district at Market and Fourth streets. On July 13, 1913, when this company was incorporated, it occupied two medium-sized offices covering 350 square feet. In March of the present year the office space occupied was 3,500 square feet—an increase of 1,000 per cent.

The coast offices have been conducted along the plan originally outlined by President Hodkinson.

Rubinstein Resigns from Thanhouser Publicity Department

"Ruby" in the Two Years He Was Connected with the New Rochelle Organization Made Name for Original Advertising Stunts

LAST week, Leon J. Rubinstein, the Thanhouser publicity director, resigned his position, with two weeks notice. It has long been known that "Ruby" would make this move, yet his resignation caused no mild surprise.

Mr. Rubinstein has been at New Rochelle for almost two years, since Edwin Thanhouser returned from Europe. Ruby engineered Mr. Thanhouser's re-introduction to the industry and then started a series of spectacular publicity stunts. His advertising won quick recognition by its originality and his knack of playing to the theatre man produced results. While at the helm in New Rochelle, Ruby made a specialty of stunt work and in the past year he gathered in a number of scoops.

Before taking up his work at Thanhouser's, Ruby was in the producing business as head of the Ruby Twinplex Studio, which he built. When the time came he sold out, which later transpired to be wisdom on his part. Now he will practically resume where he left off, but declines to give any details of his plans except that he will show the trade an entirely new style of production.

Mr. Rubinstein leaves New Rochelle with the best wishes of the company and the board of directors. Mr. Thanhouser's token of appreciation is his request that Ruby name his successor on leaving the Thanhouser forces.

AMONG THE EXCHANGES

Fox Serves Twenty-eight Theatres Out of Sixty-eight in New Orleans; Nola Gives Barbecue

PRACTICALLY all the New Orleans exchanges report a lull in business. Things have slacked up ever since the real hot weather began a few weeks ago. Competition, especially among the suburban houses, is keen. Patronage at the bigger, first-run program houses, has not fallen off to any appreciable extent. The open air amusement parks are attracting many thousands. On opening day at Spanish Fort, there was a crowd of 20,000. This naturally is hurting the picture shows some.

Nowadays Anna H. Sessions, of the World Film Corporation, writes "manager" after her name. This distinction was conferred upon her by C. E. Tandy. At first the position was only temporary, but Miss Sessions has received word from the "higherups" that it is to be permanent. It is possibly the first known instance in Southern film circles where a woman has been appointed manager of a large exchange.

Film men during these sultry days are freely patronizing the Empire Parlors, just above Jac. Miller's Empire theatre in Canal street. The film men find almost every known indoor sport up at the Empire, including a great electric baseball scoreboard through which they can watch the plays of their favorite teams on Sundays and holidays. A moving picture manager is in charge, Howard Gale, late of the New Orleans Kleine office, and the patronage is almost exclusively moving picture men. In New Orleans the Empire has gained about as much fame as has the Movie Inn in Chicago.

The Fox offices appear lonely and deserted without Jeanne Olivier. Miss Olivier resigned recently, and will become the bride of Richard Mestayer, a New Orleans lumberman, early in June.

F. F. Creswell, recently in charge of the World in New Orleans, now is in Cincinnati.

Correspondents, newspapermen and a few chosen moving picture men were recently the guests of Charles R. Meade, Southern manager of V. L. S. E. at a private showing of "God's Country and the Woman," run off at Fabacher's new Portola theatre.

J. E. Pearce, managing head of the Pearce interests, was host to a number of exchange managers on board his yacht, Spitfire, during the running of the regatta at the Southern Yacht Club last week. Incidentally, the Spitfire won the race in which she was entered, although not until after there were several cases of seasickness among the guests.

Al. G. Shear, Universal and Consolidated manager, reports that "Peg o' the Ring" is booked solidly up to September. This has been one of the most consistently successful serials of the year.

Maurice F. Barr, manager of the Bluebirds office, has returned from a trip to Alabama. He did some good business for his company in signing up the West Alabama Theatre Circuit Company for a whole flock of Bluebirds.

Nat Ehrlich, Triangle manager in New Orleans, last week corrected an impression that had gained circulation to the effect that Arthur Lucas was seriously ill. Mr. Ehrlich showed a telegram which stated that Mr. Lucas had fully recovered from his illness and was back at his desk in Philadelphia.

One of the biggest events of the week socially in film circles was the barbecue, presided over by Manager Ernst Boehringer of the Triangle Theatre, given at the suburban studio of the Nola Film Company, in Moss street. Everybody from President William J. Hannon down to the humblest call boy, had a most enjoyable time, and all the roasted goodies they could eat.

Fox, on May 20, began serving twenty-eight theatres in New Orleans. This is a near record for this company. This record seems pretty good, considering there are 68 theatres in operation in the Crescent City.

J. Eugene Pearce, president of the Southern Motion Picture Trades Association, has sent out notices announcing that the exposition would be held in New Orleans in January, 1917, instead of in February.

Mr. Pearce says that the largest number of film stars ever sent South will be in New Orleans for the exposition. He says he has been assured this by the picture producers.

Maxwell Harvey Swain, special representative of Pathe, Inc., has finished in New Orleans his work of filming the Crescent City section of the film to be known as "Historical America." He found that New Orleans was a rich field for his particular line of film, as, during his stay there, he 'shot' the following scenes: Jackson Square, General Beauregard's home, the house where Jefferson Davis died, the Jefferson Davis monument, the work of destruction of the old St. Louis Hotel, which covered the greatest slave market in the world; picturesque views of the water front and other historic spots, of which there are plenty, about the city of New Orleans.

Last, but not least, Billie Burke in "Peggy" booked out of the New Orleans office of George Kleine, broke all records at the Majestic theatre, in Memphis, Tenn., where the picture played to a uniform admission price of twenty-five cents.

WOLFBERG CLAIMS RECORDS FOR "POLICE"

Tuesday is now the regular World Film Feature day at the New Grand Central theatre, Grand and Lucas avenues, St. Louis, where Manager George W. Fuller of the World Exchange shows the latest releases of the Brady-made pictures and other features put out by his company. There is always a good attendance of exhibitors who take advantage of the opportunity of seeing the features before booking them.

H. P. Wolfberg, manager of the St. Louis branch of the General Film Company, claims that he has broken all records in booking the Essanay-Chaplin comedy "Police" in three of the highest class theatres in town. The comedy ran for a solid week at the New Grand Central, the Lyric Skydome, and the Royal, the first week of its release.

The Pathe publicity agent, H. W. Francis, of New York, spent a few days in St. Louis recently, arranging for the publication of the next Pathe serial "The Grip of Evil," which is to follow "The Iron Claw" in the newspapers. "The Iron Claw" is at the present time showing in eighty-four theatres in St. Louis and East St. Louis, the best booking record ever made in that territory on a serial.

Sam Shurman has resigned from the Bluebird Photoplays office in St. Louis to accept the management of the new Unicorn Film Service exchange that is being established at Memphis, Tennessee. Mr. Shurman leaves a host of friends and acquaintance in the film circles of St. Louis, and spent several hours before his departure making the rounds of the exchanges and receiving the good wishes of his friends for his future success.

STATE RIGHTS BUYERS AFTER "A WOMAN WILLS"

State rights buyers are continuing to show interest in the five reeler, "A Woman Wills," which feature Elsie LeClaire. If this interest continues, the Sun Photoplay Company will soon have disposed of all of its territory. Deals will be closed the coming week with representatives of Ohio, also of the Chicago and Minneapolis territories.

The Sun's five reeler, "The Princess of India," is also in demand.

L. C. McHENRY SELLS INTEREST IN SOUTHERN CABIRIA CONCERN

L. C. McHenry has sold his interest in the Southern Cabiria Company of Dallas, to his partner, F. J. Boyer. This exchange handles "Cabiria" and the California Motion Picture Corporation production, "The Unwritten Law." Mr. McHenry was formerly manager of the World. His future plans are not known now.

PRICE, GENERAL MANAGER FOR MUTUAL IN CANADA, VISITS VANCOUVER BRANCH

The Mutual Film Corporation's Vancouver branch received a visit recently from C. B. Price, general manager for the Mutual in Canada. Mr. Price is just completing an inspection trip covering all the cities in which the Canadian Mutual maintains offices, and reports that within the past few weks business has shown an appreciable increase. Not only has the first of the Chaplin releases boosted the bookings, but the number of other reels available at the various exchanges has been practically doubled. Since Mr. Price took charge the branches have been placed on a circuit, with the films going the rounds at regular intervals. The addition of many new subjects now guarantees an average of about fifty reels per week at each of the western exchanges, which will allow of a considerable extension of the Mutual service.

A. E. Vince, who has been manager of the Vancouver office for the past year, resigned upon the arrival of Mr. Price and C. R. Dippie, formerly on the road for Mutual in that territory, has been placed in charge.

Extensive alterations are now under way at the Vancouver office, and within a short time the quarters will be completely transformed.

Mr. Price announced that W. F. Barrett, who has for some time been manager of the Winnipeg office of the Universal, has been engaged as special representative of the Mutual in eastern Canada, under the head office at Toronto.

V-L-S-E MAKES MORE PROMOTIONS AS A REWARD FOR HARD WORK

Last week marked many important changes in the Vitagraph-Lubin-Selig-Essanay, Inc., whose policy it is to elevate from the ranks; the most important of which was the promotion of F. F. Hartich, assistant and manager of the New York exchange to the managership of the Syracuse Branch.

A year ago, Mr. Hartich was practising law with the Corporation Trust Company of New York city, for which firm he handled papers of incorporation. Shortly afterward he entered his duties as salesman for the New York branch of the V-L-S-E and from then on has been climbing. He was in charge of the booking department of the New York exchange, and then became its assistant manager.

In the Cleveland exchange, A. M. Holah, salesman, has been promoted to the position of assistant manager. Mr. Holah, who has been covering part of Ohio, has turned his territory over to James Surrell, a new salesman.

Frank D. Stanton, manager of the Franklin Park theatre, Boston, Mass., has left that position to become associated with the Boston branch as salesman. He will work in Massachusetts with the Boston branch as salesman. He will work in Massachusetts territory exclusively.

This Boston appointment will enable George Balsdon, manager, to visit his territory frequently, which he finds essential. Assistant Manager Reardon will take care of office details during these trips.

Harden Is Now in Kansas City for Metro; Balsley Does "Missionary" Publicity Work for Convention Gathering

C. W. HARDEN, who for the past several months has been acting as manager of the southern division of the Fox Film Corporation, resigned and is now located in Kansas City, with the Metro, having charge of the Kansas City and St. Louis offices. Mr. Harden left the managership of the Fox office here two months ago to take up the new work, so is very well known to Kansas City. "I wanted to get back home more than anything else." was Mr. Harden's brief comment. Incidentally, a number of his former friends have renewed their acquaintance with Mr. Harden, with the result that he has a number of new contracts.

C. D. Struble, Kansas City manager of the Monarch Feature Film Company, reports that the E. & R. Jungle comedies are going well in his territory. "We get one release each week and have it booked far ahead, so much so that we have to turn down orders. Two prints keep us filled up until far into July." Although Chaplin's picture, "Charlie, the Gangleader," is an old release, Mr .Struble also comments on the great reception it is getting. "I consider this picture a dandy, and to judge from the way we are getting calls for it, the exhibitors probably hold the same opinion," said Mr. Struble.

William Beckenstein, for the past year representative of the Pathe Exchange in Missouri and Kansas adjacent to Kansas City recently resigned and will soon be located with the Unicorn Film Service at Omaha. Mr. Edwards, Kansas City manager, has not yet made an appointment to fill the vacant place, and will not do so for some time. His last two acquisitions as travelers were newspaper men.

Lee D. Balsley, publicity manager of the Kansas City Feature Film Company, who recently returned from the conventions at Omaha and Des Moines, was very much impressed with the Omaha affair, but did not speak as enthusiastically regarding the other. "The display at Omaha was really a great big get-together meeting between the exchanges, the exhibitors and the press and it was a wonderful success," said Mr. Balsley. At Des Moines, Mr. Balsley diagnosed the case as lack of proper publicity and made himself a track down to the newspapers and told them so. As a result of his activities the occasion was given as much publicity in the days of the convention as in most of the preceding time.

One peculiar item in connection with the passing of the "Traffic in Souls" by the Kansas Censor Board is that before it was finally approved eight part showings were necessary. Even this did not pass the censors, but the Universal took the case to the Appeal Board, which allowed it to go by. This is one of the first pictures of its kind ever shown in Kansas, and the Universal says it is taking in fine style. The picture is, of course, an old one, but it is new to Kansas.

Van Husan Leaves Laemmle Film Service in Omaha and Opens Large Supply House; Rogers is Assistant

F. A. VAN HUSAN, JR., "Van," as he is familiarly called, for seven years manager of the Laemmle Film Service in Omaha, Neb., handling the Universal, has quit to go into business for himself. With Mrs. Van Husan as his only partner, he has incorporated the Western Supply Company and taken the larger part of a floor in the National Buliding.

With him from the Laemmle branch goes George Rogers, former assistant to him in the exchange. Rogers is manager in the new business. This is the first large exclusive motion picture supply house in the territory. The rooms cover 1,800 square feet. The fittings were all put in before the opening day and the business is now in full tilt in the complete office. No successor to Mr. Van Husan as manager of the Laemmle branch has been named. He is continuing in the office until such arrangement can be made.

Jake Schlank, manager of the Hipp theatre, Omaha, was the first buyer. He waited at the door until the new store was opened. He bought two Powers' 6-B machines. Joe Gorman, the Strand theatre, Lincoln, arriving on the first train, was the next, making a similar order. Then they came thick and fast all day, testifying to the popularity of Van and his manager, Mr. Rogers.

Representatives Carlson of the American Feeding Company; Blakesley of the Motiograph Company; Evans of the Simplex Company, and Bob Horn of the Nicholas Powers Company went to the opening.

Van, who is president of the Screen Club in Omaha and an active leader in all work for the progress of the motion picture industry,started as an exhibitor in Detroit for two years. Then he went to Evansville, Ind., as Laemmle manager for one year, and then went to Omaha. There he built the Universal into one of the livest and best exchanges in the country. It occupied the entire floor of a large building, whereas it occupied but three small rooms in a stowed-away corner when he took charge.

By opening the first big exclusive supply house in the Omaha territory he follows his reputation of constantly taking steps forward. His friends and acquaintances everywhere joined in wishing him, by telegraph, mail and personal calls, the very best of success.

CHATKIN VISITS UNITED IN SAN FRANCISCO

D. J. Chatkin, one of the owners of the United Film Service, arrived in San Francisco recently to look over the exchange conducted by this concern on Taylor street. The business has been conducted for more than a year without any new films, but the local management is now promised new subjects. D. Tompkins, who has been in charge for the past six months, has been succeeded by P. Epstein.

ROBINSON GOES BACK TO FOX IN MINNEAPOLIS

S. N. Robinson, who went to Los Angeles eight months ago from the office of assistant manager of the Minneapolis Fox Exchange, has been recalled to Minneapolis to take the management of that Fox Exchange. The business of the Los Angeles Exchange has been materially increased under Robinson's management, and his return to Minneapolis as manager is a distinct promotion, as the exchange in that city has far greater territory, and in this respect compares favorably with the Chicago and New York branches. Field Carmichael, who has been manager of the Denver branch, goes to Los Angeles as manager, and Mr. Eden, salesman of the Seattle exchange, becomes the Denver manager.

A. B. Lamb, who has been manager of the Peerless Film Exchange in Los Angeles, has been engaged as special representative for Bluebird features. He is succeeded at the Peerless by A. L. Sailor, who has been identified with Los Angeles exchanges for several years.

E. H. Emmick, San Francisco Exchange man, owner of the Picture Playhouse Exchange in the Bay City, and the Peerless in Los Angeles, is spending a week or two looking after interests of the Los Angeles exchange. Emmick is making a specialty of feature comedies, handling the Mutt and Jeff cartoons, and the E. & R. Jungle Film Company's comedies.

A. L. TEAGARDEN RESIGNS FROM GENERAL IN DALLAS

A. L. Teagarden, for several years with the General Film Company, in Dallas and Oklahoma City, has resigned the managership of that company in Oklahoma City, and will become aligned with another concern in the Southwest.

Sam Dembow, manager of the World exchange in Atlanta, has resigned. Joe Marientette, manager of the General in Atlanta, succeeded Dembow.

The Consolidated Film Cats baseball team were the guests of the Consolidated Film and Supply Company, at a banquet at the T. M. A. Club rooms, Dallas, Friday night, May 26. In addition to the Cats team, those present included Ned E. Depinet, manager of the Consolidated; James B. Kelley, assistant manager; E. T. Peter of the United; R. D. Thrash of the Southern Theatre Equipment Company, and others.

THREE ADDED TO STAFF OF UNICORN IN BOSTON

Dr. Willard has severed his connection with the laboratory forces of the Triangle in Boston.

Jeff Dolan, of the General in New York, Sam Applebaum, formerly of the Eastern Feature, and George Briggs, formerly manager for the Universal in Springfield, are additions to the sales force of the Unicorn.

The Goldstein Brothers Amusement Company, of Springfield, Mass., have taken over the management of the Globe theatre, Springfield, and have placed Sam Asher in charge.

Sam Grant, of the "Battle Cry of Peace," is organizing the publicity campaign of Lefavour's Bijou and orpheum theatres in New Bedford for the engagement of the "Battle Cry of Peace."

Patrick A. Powers, treasurer of the Universal, was in Boston last week, visiting the Universal offices and the Bluebird Exchange.

Albert S. Schaller, manager of the Universal office, Boston, has returned to duty after a long illness. The Unicorn Service has signed the Federal theatre, Salem, Mass.

Joseph Mack, of the World Film Company, has resigned to take charge of the New Onset theatre, Onset, Mass. Fred Murphy, just returned to Boston from a ten-day trip through New York state territory, has left town again for a two-week trip through the western part of Massachusetts. Harry Smith, of the General, takes George Marshall's place as the Bangor manager.

MONARCH EXCHANGE, KANSAS CITY, BRINGS OUT HOUSE ORGAN THROBBING WITH LIVE IDEAS

The latest exchange organ to be issued by a Kansas City office is that published by the Monarch Feature Film Company, Gayety Theater Building, under the name of The Monarch Booster. Three thousand copies composed the first issue, all of which were disposed of to exhibitors, newspapers and interested parties. The first issue is mostly devoted to comments on pictures, but on the front page is the following paragraph which fully explains the function of the little four-page sheet: "To Our Friends and Patrons: We herewith present you the first issue of a little sheet devoted to the interests of our business and that of our customers, through which we shall take occasion to speak to you from time to time.

"It is our desire that we become better acquainted and we want you to be familiar with what we have to offer and with our methods of doing business, and we trust that this may be the means of forming a closer friendship and more pleasant business relations between us."

In one corner of the publication the following cordial invitation is extended: "We herewith extend an invitation to you to visit our offices and make them your headquarters while in Kansas City. You will not intrude. Our office is always at your disposal, where a telephone and stenographer are at your disposal." C. D. Struble, manager of the Kansas City office of the Monarch, is the editor of the publication.

KENT REPORTS GOOD BUSINESS FOR GREAT NORTHERN

J. A. Kent, publicity and sales manager of the Great Northern Film Company, New York, has returned from a trip to Chicago, Minneapolis, Detroit, Cincinnati and Cleveland, and report excellent business for his firm. While in Chicago, Mr. Kent disposed of "The Folly of Sin" for that territory to the United Film Service. "The End of the World" was purchased by the National Film Service, Chicago.

REDLICH ON TOUR IN CALIFORNIA

E. R. Redlich, who is now filling the position of Western representative of the William Fox Film Corporation, with headquarters at Seattle, stopped at San Francisco a short time ago on his way to Los Angeles on a regular tour of inspection, and returned to San Francisco later for a more extended stay. He was taken around the city by the local manager, William Citron, and shown the leading playhouses, including all of those where Fox productions are featured. He found Fox pictures well placed in the territory, with conditions in good shape. The Orpheum theatre at Oakland, which has been showing these productions, has adopted a new policy, and has ceased using long films; but Turner and Dahnken have contracted for first-run Fox films in that city.

CHAPLIN SUBJECTS IN BIG DEMAND, SAYS STEPHENS

S. T. Stephens, manager of the New Orleans office of Mutual, has made several trips out of that office, and over the Southern territory, in the interest of the Charlie Chaplin Mutual pictures.

He announces on his return that smaller cities and towns in the Gulf states are taking to the new Chaplins with as much avidity as New Orleans has.

In New Orleans, the Plaza theatre has contracted for exclusive showing of Charlie Chaplin subjects on Canal Street. It is planned to run each picture one, two or three weeks, as the patronage demands. The initial Chaplin release, "The Floorwalker," ran two weeks at the Plaza to crowded houses at each performance.

LYNCH GOES TO DALLAS FOR SOUTHERN PARAMOUNT

R. W. Lynch, the newly appointed manager of the Southern Paramount Pictures Company, at Dallas, arrived from Little Rock, Ark., Saturday, May 20. Mr. Lynch had never been in Texas before, and he remarked that he "had heard a lot about Texas and the shoot-em-up-stunts in the state." It so happened that in the next berth to Mr. Lynch on the Texas and Pacific train bearing him to Dallas, T. S. Mahoney, former superintendent of the transcontinental division of the T. and P. shot himself about six o'clock in the morning. Mr. Lynch said he was introduced into Texas under circumstances he would have had different if he were responsible—that the suicide robbed him of a lot of pleasure of coming to Dallas.

KINGSLEY IS AFTER CLEVELAND RECORD FOR FOX

Neil Kingsley, manager of the Detroit branch of the Fox Film Corporation, is after the scalp of Paul Mooney, district manager at Cleveland. Mr. Kingsley is anxious to beat the records of the Cleveland office, despite the fact that Detroit is the seventh city in size in population and Cleveland the sixth city.

"I am going to beat Cleveland on the amount of business before six months are gone," he said to the NEWS correspondent. "Detroit is getting stronger every day for Fox pictures, so here's a tip to Cleveland: Look out!"

Managers of 15 Theatres in Kansas City Ask City Council for Reduction of License Fee

MANAGERS of fifteen large moving picture houses in Kansas City are eagerly awaiting the result of their plea before the finance committees of both houses of the city council in regard to lowering the license fee of moving picture houses from $100 to $12.50. Led by J. G. Hiatt, manager of the Gladstone theatre, this group of business men laid their grievances before the finance committees last week. Their request was that they be given a decrease.
